EDUCATIONAL PROGRESS NOTED BY STATE SUPT.

Weekly News Lette From the Department of Education at Montgomery.

Conecuh County High School.

The pupils of the Conecuh County High School are writing a history of the county. Exceedingly interesting data are being tabulated and put in permanent form for the first time. The first settlers, the first churches and schools, and the first county officials are being treated somewhat in detail.

In connection with the history, there is being worked out a school survey of the county at the present time. On investigation they find that only 18 schools out of 71 in the county have state aid libraries, and they ask why not 71? There are only 39 with patent desks and only 25 painted. In each instance, the question is written down by the pupils, "Why not 71?"

Including the two state schools—the county high school at Castlebury and the District Agricultural school at Evergreen— they find the combined value of the school buildings and grounds in the county to be $75,000. These children ask this question, "Which is the greater asset, children or convicts?"

Conecuh County is no exception in these respects. All over the state a similar condition prevails. When our children are investigating these matters,, presenting these facts to us, and asking these questions, is it not time for us, with the reins of administration in our hands, to give our little ones better answers?

Consolidation in Escambia.

There is a healthy sentiment for better schools in Escambia County. Recently near Appleton on the Bellville road, eight miles from Brewton, the first real consolidated school of the county was formally opened.

There were present visitors from many sections of the county, a number of whom came from districts in the three teacher type of school to investigate the new enterprise.

The Appleton school is located on a five-acre plot of ground, an ideal site. The building was constructed at the cost of $1700, is complete in every respect, and equipped with a good quality of blackbords and patent desks.

The consolidation was brought about by the uniting of three one-teacher schools, resulting in a splendid three-teacher school with the advantages of all pupils enrolled that are always found in the larger type of schools. Two transportation wagons carry the pupils of the districts to school at a minimum expense and the patrons are rejoicing over the fact that it is now possible for their children to enjoy a good school with high school advantages without leaving the farm and moving to town.

The County Board of Education of Escambia County is a progressive one and deserves to be congratulated for encouraging this forward step.

HOME GARDENING CUTS DOWN BILLS

But It Must Be a Real Garden, Kept Planted Through Season, Says Hastings.

Atlanta, Ga. — (Special) — "The greatest obstacle to permanent farm prosperity in the south is the 'store bill' made for food and grain that could and should be grown on every southern farm," says H. G. Hastings, president of the Southeastern Fair Association and of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce, in an interview on agricultural conditions in this territory.

"A real garden," says Mr. Hastings, "properly prepared and planted, and kept planted throughout the season, will help more to decrease store bills than anything else the farmer can do.

"There are lots of what I term 'one planting' gardens made, gardens with a few struggling rows of beans, a few dozen cabbages and tomato plants, with some watermelon off to one corner, but that's not real gardening any more than a youngster's first drawing of a cat or a dog on his slate, is fine art. Our southern folks generally don't take the garden seriously, when as a matter of fact the right kind of a garden, containing a full line of vegetables and kept busy all season, is reasonably sure of furnishing at least half the living of the family.

"I have never seen a 'one crop' section, regardless of what particular one crop was grown, that did not have a poverty-stricken look, with poor school buildings, churches and homes.

"I have never seen a diversified section that did not have the signs of prosperity sticking out all over it.

"And on practically every farm in these prosperous diversified sections the home garden has an honored place.

"I haven't a thing in the world against the supply and general merchants, but if all of our people would take the home garden seriously, half of them would have to go out of business for lack of trade. Give your garden a square deal in 1917.

THE CIVIC IMPROVEMENT CLUB MEETING TUESDAY

Considering Important Things Dealing with our Civic development in 1917.

At 3:00 o'clock on Tuesday a very interesting meeting of the Civic Improvement Club was held at the rest room, with the president, Mrs. W. T. Callen in the chair.

The business was hurridly gone through with in order that the program might follow.

After roll call, the minutes were read and adopted with one correction in regard to naming Committee, composed of Mrs. McDonald, Mrs. Deason and Mrs. Phillips, who were to confer with the Clubs in order to devise some plan of passing censorship on class of shows brought to our County Fair.

It was announced that Mrs. Jim Jones, President of the Methodist Ladies Aid had appointed a standing Committee from that body with Mrs. Wade as Chairman to confer with the Civic Club throughout the year.

Dues were not collected.

Rest room discussion was carried over until next meeting to be taken up with other matters under the head of unfinished business.

Prof. McDonald, Mrs. Lida Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Foshee, Mrs. Plier and Mrs. Crichton were our guests for the afternoon The business part stood adjourned, and Mrs. Wiley Foshee gave a pleasant talk, complimenting our work and inviting us to join them in their club meetings.

Mrs. Lida Jones gave an interesting address, beautifully advancing the idea of the dormitory problem which will enable girls throughout the county to take advantage of the high school and its opportunities.

Prof. McDonald's lovely address on the efficiency and upliftment of our youth, and its educational basis was most comprehensive and inspiring, and thoroughly enjoyed in its entirety by all present.

SOPHIA COURTNEY JONES,
Secretary-Protem.

Free Flower Seed Hastings' Catalogue Tells You About It

No matter whether you farm on a large scale or only plant vegetables or flowers in a small way, you need Hastings' 1917 Seed Catalog. It's ready now and we have a copy for you absolutely free, if you ask for it, mentioning the name of this paper.

In addition to showing you about all the varieties of vegetables, farm grass, clover and flower seeds, this catalog tells how you can get free five splendid varieties of easily grown, yet beautiful flowers, with which to beautify your home surroundings.

Good seeds of almost every kind are scarce this season, and you can't afford to take chances in your seed supply. Hastings' Seeds are dependable seeds, the kind you can always depend on having "good luck" with.

You are going to garden or farm this spring. Why not insure success so far as possible by starting with the right seed? Don't take chances that you do not have to.

Write today for Hastings' 1917 Catalog. It's free and will both interest and help you to succeed in 1917. —H. G. HASTINGS CO., Seedsmen, Atlanta, Ga.—Advt.

SINGING CONVENTION HERE LAST SUNDAY.

Gathering of County Organization in Practice and Promotion Sacred music.

The Chilton County Singing Convention met at the County High School building, at Clanton on Sunday, December 31, and rendered the following program:

Opening song and prayer by the President at 10:45, after which Messrs Green Retherford, J.W. Lowery and Joe Varden were appointed as program committee, who placed O.L. Devaughn, J.W. Lowery, J.M. Williams and R.A. Smith on program for fifteen minutes each. This led up to the noon hour.

The meeting was called to order again at 1:15, p.m., by the president with a song. Then H.G. Carter, W. G. Culp, J.C. Jones, Reuben Wyatt, Jr., Evan Parrish, A.B. Baxley, and J.A.W. Mims directed each fifteen minutes, which lasted until 3:15. Dismission was administered by singing, "God be With You Till we Meet Again," and prayer by the president.

Although attendance was not as up to the expectation, nevertheless everyone present seemed to enjoy the singing. We wish to thank the visiting singers for their assistance in making the singing a success, and extend to them a cordial invitation to our future meetings. We also thank Prof. McDonald for his kindness in allowing us to use the building.

The organists for the day were Mrs. Dovie Jones, Misses Effie Askins, Beatrice Mims, and Alice Wyatt, and Messrs Freeman Scott and H.G. Carter.

We also had the rare privilege of listening to a splendid male quartet by Messrs H.G. Carter, R.A. Smith, J.W. Lowery, and Iria Grant.

FIVE ALABAMA GUARDSMEN DIE

RESULT OF OUTBREAK OF PNEUMONIA AMONG SOLDIER BOYS

MORE ARE ILL AT HOSPITAL

Nogales, Ariz.—Five Alabama men have died during the last few days and more are ill at the base hospital here as the result of an outbreak of pneumonia among the guardsmen. It is rumored that the troops may be ordered home within the next two weeks on account of the situation here.

The Alabama troops have been unfortunate since coming to the border. Following a hike of 150 miles to Tucson and return by the Fourth Alabama men, the Second regiment was ordered out on the march. Scarcely had they reached Tucson when a cold spell struck this section. On the return journey to Nogales the men of the Second suffered greatly, and it was decided to hold the First regiment, who were to have been ordered out, in camp. Two weeks ago several cases of pneumonia developed, the disease spreading among the guardsmen rapidly. In order to minimize the discouragement of the men as much as possible, the practice of firing a volley over their comrades has been dispensed with.

Man 87 Gets Marriage License.

Tuscumbia.—The old adage, that as long as a woman's finger will bleed when cut, so long will she accept some offer of marriage, is also applicable to the men, as verified by John Holland, of Colbert county, a farmer 87 years of age, who was granted a marriage license to wed Mrs. Martha Tuple, 41 years old. This probably is the oldest groom on record in Colbert county, as there seems to be no instance where a man four-score years and seven has been issued a marriage license. The groom in this case is said to be active and capable of doing a hard day's work.

Injured Man Dies.

Florence.—C. D. McLean, aged 55, formerly of Rome, Ga., died here from a fractured skull and other injuries including three fractures of his right arm and two broken shoulders. Mr. McLean was picked up beside the track of the Interurban Electric Car Line running between Tuscumbia and Florence, at a point just south of South Florence. He was unconscious and never regained his sense.

No New Developments in Oil Field.

Cordova.—There are no new developments in the oil situation, further than that a company of Alabama parties has been formed and leased 400 acres from Hugh Morrow just north of Cordova. They have a cable drilling outfit where it can be moved immediately to this vicinity and it is expected drilling will begin at an early date.

May Have $75,000 Drydock.

Mobile.—Harrison Brothers, proprietors of the roller ways and spar yards, have submitted blue prints for a set of marine ways to cost approximately $75,000. The prints were submitted to the United States Engineer's office, with application to erect them on the river front. Work is expected to begin sometime this month.

Liquor Shipments Heavy.

Albany.—Approximately $20,000 was sent from Morgan county to pay for holiday liquor, according to estimates of local express company officials. Shipments received in Albany-Decatur reached nearly 7,000, it is estimated. Very few of them cost less than $2, and some of them more.

Planing Mill is Bought.

Montgomery. — The planing mill formerly operated by C. Y. Bogack has been sold and the new owners will remodel and overhaul it to establish and operate a modern sash, doors, blinds and other building materials. The plant will begin operations at an early date.

Decatur Man Is Appointed.

Decatur.—Conrad W. Ables, former resident of Decatur, has been appointed an attache of the American Embassy at Madrid, according to news received here. He will assume his new duties about the middle of January.

Drops Dead in Cemetery.

Tuscumbia.—Mrs. Pauline Goike, aged 83 years, while in the act of placing a bunch of flowers on the grave of a friend in the cemetery here, dropped dead.

Turpentine Concern Formed.

Mobile.—The Taloco Turpentine Co. has filed incorporation papers in the Probate Court to do a general turpentine business in this city. The company will operate in Birmingham on a tract of timber near there.

Alabama Coke Goes by Express.

Birmingham.—The enormous demand and consequent scarcity and high prices for standard bee hive coke, which sells now at $10 and up, as compared with $3 and up at this time last year, reached its apparent apex in the past few days, when a cargo of Alabama coke was shipped to an eastern consumer by express and the price paid was $12 per ton. It was not a large amount, but the price paid and the manner of shipment emphasizes the state of the coke market.

Appropriation is Made.

Tuscumbia.—The Board of Revenue of Colbert county has appropriated $1,000, to assist and carry on the work of farm demonstration in the county during next year, and Dr. Aicher, the government expert in charge of the tick eradication in Colbert county for the past year or two, has been endorsed by the board as a suitable man for the work. The appointment is made by Demonstrator C. M. Mauldin, and the county appointee will work in conjunction with the State and Federal authorities.

School Work Reviewed.

Montgomery.—In the Senate Chamber of the Capitol, the Alabama School Improvement Association met for a session of two days. Mrs. Charles Henderson, wife of the Governor, made the welcome address, which was responded to by Mrs. J. H. Cranford. Mrs. R. L. Faucett, President of the Association, delivered the annual address, after which county reports were received. On the second day school subjects were reviewed by Mrs. Z. V. Judd, Miss Jennie Burkes, Mrs. Lida Jones, Mrs. J. F. Hooper and round table talks by Mrs. R. L. Faucett, Miss Lulu Bradford and Miss Clara Pitts.

Dog Law Friend of Rabies Victims.

Albany.—The Walden dog law, applying to Morgan county, has proved a friend to a number of persons who were recently bitten here by dogs known to have been victims of hydrophobia. The law provides that a part of the dog tax collected shall be used in defraying the expenses of victims of rabid dogs at the Pasteur Institute at Montgomery. When the latest batch of patients were sent to the State Capital for treatment, it was at the expense of the dog owners of this county, who have already paid $1,000 into the county treasury.

Fort Succeeds Sayre at Alabama.

University.—President Denny announced that Dr. Tomlinson Fort, of the University of Michigan, has been appointed successor to Dr. H. A. Sayre in the Department of Mathematics of the University of Alabama. Professor Fort is a native of Georgia. He was for three years instructor in mathematics at the University of Georgia.

Bonds Are Sold.

Eufaula.—The bond issue of $15,000 voted by Eufaula in October for school improvements, have been sold to an Augusta, Ga., company at a premium of $673, and accrued interest. There were five bids in all, in each case a premium being offered for the bonds, the lowest premium being $5 and the highest, that of the Augusta concern.

Graphite Beds Are Rich.

Selma. — A. C. Northern, of the Southern Railway here, has just returned from a visit to his father, Judge A. A. Northern, of Clay county. He says more than two million dollars have been invested recently in graphite plants in that county, and that the beds there are among the richest in the United States.

Ashford Man Suicides.

Dothan.—Carrying out a plan of several years' standing to die by his own hand, William Rigell, aged 60 years, a well-known citizen of Ashford, placed the muzzle of a shotgun under his chin and blew his face off. He died in about two hours.

Horticulturists to Meet.

Mobile.—The Alabama Horticultural Society will hold a field meeting in Mobile January 24-25. J. H. McCrary, of Birmingham, is president and Prof. J. C. C. Price, of Auburn, secretary and treasurer.

Judge Moody Is Dead.

Tuscumbia.—Judge Amos L. Moody, aged 82 years, registrar in chancery of Colbert county for 30 years and probate judge of Franklin county for one term, died at his home here.

Ozark Citizen Ends His Life.

Ozark.—The body of Marvin Dowling, a well known merchant of Ozark was found in a closet of his store with his head blown off. He used a shotgun.

Mixed Feed Mill Begins Operation.

Greenville.—The large milling plant of the Butler County Milling Company is now running. The principal grain to be made into feed is the velvet bean. However other grains will also be used by the mill in the manufacture of various kinds of mixed feeds. Since the organization of the milling company, the prices on all food crops raised in this county have greatly advanced. It is destined to be of much value to the farmers in fighting the boll weevils.

TEUTONS PRESSING AGAINST MOLDAVIA

In Spite Of Very Stiff Resistance The Forces Of Central Powers Make Progress.

1,400 PRISONERS ARE TAKEN

Teuton Thrust At Moldavia Adds To Difficulties Of The Russo-Roumanians

New York.—Pressing in upon southern Moldavia from three sides, apparently with all their vigor, the forces of the central powers are making progress against stiff resistance. On the Transylvanian-Moldavian frontier, in the region north of Rimnik-Sarat, and in the Dobrudja opposite Braila, Berlin reports, the Austro-German and Bulgarian troops are advancing.

A new thrust has been started by the Austro-Germans along the Moldavian frontier, thus adding to the difficulties of the Russians and Roumanians, already hard pressed from the south and east. Several lines of new positions and 1,400 prisoners were taken by the invaders in the first day of their offensive in Moldavia from the west, which may have for its purpose the cutting off of the retreat of the Russo-Roumanian troops

Along the river Kasino, and west of Covesha, Petrograd says, Roumanian troops were driven back nearly a mile. A desperate battle also is reported as taking place near Sesmezo, near Ocana, and within the Moldavian boundary. North of Rimnik-Sarat, all attacks were repulsed, according to Petrograd.

Field Marshal von Mackensen has reached Dumitresti, about 12 miles northeast of that town troops under his command have captured several villages. The number of prisoners taken by this army totals 1,400, in addition to cannon and machine guns.

West of the Meuse in the Verdun region, the forces of the German crown prince have repulsed attacks by French troops against the new German positions on Le Mort Homme, where second and third line trenches were entered by the Germans and 220 prisoners and seven machine guns taken. Paris admits a slight success for the Germans in this sector, saying that one trench south of Le Mort Homme was entered by the attackers. Other efforts to advance between the Meuse and Avocourt and in front of both Le Mort Homme and Hill 304 were repulsed by the French.

BOND ISSUE FAVORED BY PRESIDENT WILSON

To Meet Part Of The Deficit Faced By The United States Treasury

Washington.—Tentative approval having been given by President Wilson to plans for a bond issue to meet a part of the prospective deficit at the end of the next fiscal year, administration leaders in congress are preparing to bring in their revenue bills as soon as possible after the holiday recess. It has become known that they have urged that the president deliver a special message or adopt some other means to spur both houses to prompt action so that the necessary legislation may be passed before the end of the present session.

It has been agreed that any bond issue shall be charged to the account of extraordinary army and navy expenditures. Representative Hill of Tennessee, author of the income tax law, outlines a plan he has drafted for consideration of the ways and means committee for separating the preparedness account from the ordinary expenses and receipts of the government. He figures that ordinary expenses this year and next will be less than the estimated ordinary receipts and that special taxation and bond issues will be needed only to cover excess disbursements for various purposes, including army, navy and fortification extensions.

Mr. Hull's plan contemplates the issuance of $125,000,000 of Panama canal bonds for army and navy expenses, $70,000,000 under the shipping act and for the proposed nitrate plant and $25,000,000 to pay for the Danish West Indies, or a total of $220,000,000.

White Man Charged With Butchery

Minden, La.—Two negroes held as suspects in connection with the killing of John Nelson Reeves, nine miles north of here, on Christmas eve, have confessed, implicating Henry Waller, a farmer and neighbor of Reeves, and John Long, 20-year-old youth. Lang also has made a confession declaring Waller instigated the crime and with an ax killed Reeves, his wife and three children. Robbery and an old feud between Waller and Reeves were given as the motives. The negroes claim they were forced to do the killing.

Policy Of Absolute Silence Adopted

Washington.—A policy of absolute silence regarding the peace negotiations has been adopted by President Wilson and Secretary Lansing. It was stated officially that all steps henceforth will be regarded as confidential, that no comment will be made on any development and that rumors will not be discussed in any way. The decision to pursue this course was made know after the state department had received the official texts of the German and Austrian replies to President Wilson's identic notes

GERMANY REPLIES TO WILSON

Immediate Peace Conference Proposed By Central Powers In Reply To United States

Berlin.—Germany and her allies—Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey—replied to the note of President Wilson in which he asked that the belligerent nations state the aims for which they were fighting.

The proposal is made by the central powers that a conference of the delegates of all the belligerents be held immediately in a neutral city. The task of preventing future wars, the official statement says, can be begun only after the end of the present struggle. The answer follows:

"The high-minded suggestion made by the president of the United States of America in order to create a basis for the establishment of a lasting peace has been received and considered by the imperial government in the friendly spirit which was expressed in the president's communication.

"The president points out that which he has at heart and leaves open the choice of road.

"To the imperial government an immediate exchange of views seems to be the most appropriate road in order to reach the desired result.

"It begs, therefore, in the sense of the declaration made on December 12, which offered a hand for peace negotiations, to propose an immediate meeting of delegates of the belligerent states at a neutral place.

"The imperial government is also of the opinion that the great work of preventing future wars can be begun only after the end of the present struggle of the nations.

"It will, when this moment shall have come, be ready with pleasure to collaborate entirely with the United States in this exalted task."

Peace Movement Advanced

Washington.—Germany's reply to President Wilson's note is regarded here as having advanced the peace movement another step, despite the fact that it disappoints in not meeting his suggestion for an avowal of terms.

The reception Germany's reply receives among the entente allies whose statesmen have publicly declared against such a program, now becomes the point upon which a further move is hinged. The German note probably is the prelude to a series of carefully-considered delicate moves in the great game of world diplomacy, all possibly leading to an approach for a real discussion of peace terms on grounds which all the belligerents may feel can place them at no disadvantage.

PLURALITY OF 568,822 RECEIVED BY WILSON

Official Returns Show 9,116,296 Votes For Wilson And 8,54,474 For Hughes

New York.—Complete official returns on the presidential election show that Wilson received 9,116,296 votes and Mr. Hughes 8,457,474, a plurality of 568,822 for Wilson. In 1912 Wilson received 6,297,099, Taft $3,846,399 and Roosevelt 4,124,959.

The vote for Mr. Benson (Socialist) was 750,000 with eight missing states estimated, against 901,873 for Debs (Socialist) in 1912, and for Mr. Hanly (Prohibitionist) was 225,101 against 207,928 for Chafin (Prohibition) in 1912.

The total popular vote for the four candidates was 18,638,871, as against 15,045,322 in 1912. This is an increase of 3,593,549, accounted for by the increased population and the women vote in the new suffrage statese.

Monroe Doctrine Not Jeopardized

New York.—For the United States to join a league of nations to enforce world peace after the European war "would in no wise be jeopardizing the Monroe doctrine—certainly not to any greater extent that it already has been jeopardized by some thirty-odd treaties," was the view expressed here in a formal statement issued by the League to Enforce Peace, of which former President Taft is the head.

$2,500,000 Pledged For Jewish Relief

New York.—Nearly $2,500,000 for the relief of Jewish war sufferers was pledged at a great mass meeting in Carnegie hall. Jacob H. Schiff of this city and Julius S. Rosenwald of Chicago headed the list with $100,000 each. A total of $466,875 was subscribed by forty persons.

Many Killed In Arkansas Storm

Little Rock, Ark.—Four persons are known to have been killed near England, Ark., in a tornado which swept through portions of Lonoke and Jefferson counties, and omre than a score of others are reported to have lost their lives at Keo, Tucker and other small towns in the path of the storm. Wire communication with the territory affected is interrupted, and only meager reports are available. Albert L. Swartz, a farmer, and three negroes were killed near England.

San Luis Potosi Taken By Villa?

El Paso, Texas.—A report was received here by sources known to be close to Francisco Villa and by government agents saying that Villa's forces captured San Luis Potosi. Many foreigners who left Toreron before Villa attacked that town recently went to San Luis Potosi. No details were available. San Luis Potosi is south of Torreon on the National railroad line between Aguascalientes and Tampico. Tampico is believed to be Villa's objective.

CARRANZA MAKES APPEAL TO U. S.

Fails To Sign Protocol And Asks For Modification Of Demands In Lengthy Statement

QUESTION UP TO CONFEREES

Mexican Commissioners Confident Carranza Has Raised No Barrier To Final Settlement

Washington.—One more appeal for modification of the protocol providing for the withdrawal of American troops from Mexico is made by General Carranza in a message delivered to Secretary Lane by Luis Cabrera, chairman of the Mexican members of the joint commission. The Mexican first chief replied to the insistent American demand that the protocol signed by his spokesmen at Atlantic City be ratified with an 800-word document, in which he failed to accede to the demand, but refrained from writing anything that could be construed as a flat repudiation.

The latest suggestion for changes in the agreement will be considered by the three American representatives—Secretary Lane, J. R. Mott and Judge George Gray. Secretary Lane advised his colleagues of the character of the reply and asked them to meet him here as soon as practicable.

A joint session of the Mexican-American commission will be held, at which the Americans will give the Mexicans their answer, and on its nature depends the future course of the commissioners, who have been trying for four months to adjust questions at issue between the two countries.

It was learned that the Mexican commissioners were confident that no insuperable barrier had been raised by Carranza. It was asserted that the utmost care had been exercised to keep out of the reply any expressions that would in any way offend the American troops should be withdrawn unconditionally, which the American commissioners would not consider.

There appeared reason to believe that one of the conditions to which Carranza now objects is that under which he would be obliged to garrison the territory evacuated by the Americans as they marched out. It was pointed out that since the protocol was drafted the increased activities of Villa and the steady growth of his army of bandits has made it difficult for Carranza to agree to use any considerable part of his army in the district now occupied by Pershing, when it might be necessary to use the same force in meeting more active moves of Villa at other points.

ALL MALE CITIZENS LIABLE FOR SERVICE

Must Serve As Soldiers If Needed In Case Of War Under National Defense Act

Washington. — Every able-bodied male citizen of the United States between the ages of 18 and 45 years is held liable for service in the National Guard in war time, without further act of congress, by war department regulations for the government of the Guard issued under the national defense act. In a circular prepared only two months ago, but made public recently, the militia bureau directs that where a National Guard regiment is called out for war service, a reserve training battalion to fill vacancies at the front shall be organized out of the National Guard reserve and by voluntary enlistment.

"If for any reason," the order continues, "there shall not be enough reservists or enough voluntary enlistments to organize or to keep the reserve battalion at prescribed strength, a sufficient number of the unorganized militia shall be drafted by the president to maintain such battalion or other lesser reserve unit at the prescribed strength."

The language follows closely that of the national defense act, in which the unorganized militia is defined as including every able-bodied male citizen within the prescribed age limit or those who have declared their intention of becoming citizens.

The national guard regulations, which will be amplified in great detail

Fighting Resumed On Western Front

Paris. — Considerable fighting has again taken place on the Verdun sector around Le Mort Homme and on the eastern slopes of Hill 304, where the Germans made an attack, but were repulsed, and where later the French began a bombardment of the German positions. Elsewhere along the French front there have been reciprocal bombardments and attacks by small patrol parties, interspersed with fights in the air and aerial raids by French, British and German aviators.

Eight Fund Guilty In Wild Horse Case

Omaha, Neb.—The jury in the case of eleven bandits charged with use of the mails to defraud in sales of wild horses in Coconino county, Arizona, returned a verdict of guilty against eight defendants and found two not guilty.

60th Milestone Passed By Wilson

Washington.—President Wilson was 60 years of age December 28. He was the recipient of many congratulatory messages from all parts of the country and abroad.

NATIONAL BANK RESOURCES

They Now Aggregate $15,520,000,000, a $4,000,000,000 Increase In Two Years

Washington.—Resources of national banks of the United States, Comptroller Williams announces, have increased more than four billion dollars during the past two years, and now aggregate fifteen billion five hundred and twenty million dollars, exceeding by about one billion dollars the total resources of the Bank of England, the Bank of France, the Bank of Russia, the German Reichsbank, the Bank of Italy, the Bank of Spain, the Bank of The Netherlands, the Bank of Denmark and the Imperial Bank of Japan combined.

In a statement based upon returns from the last bank call, November 17, the comptroller calls attention to the fact that the increase has been at the rate of approximately eighteen per cent a year during the past two years as compared with six per cent a year for the ten-year period from 1904 to 1914, and that the total resources at present are more than double what they were ten years ago.

"The compilation just completed of returns for the last bank call," the comptroller's statement reads, "discloses a condition of strength, progress and growth beyond all precedent. Resources of national banks on the date of the last call are greater than the total resources of all reporting state banks, savings banks, private banks and loan and trust companies throughout the United States at the time of the inauguration of the federal reserve system, about two years ago.

"It is also noteworthy that the resources of our national banks at this time exceeds by $321,000,000 the total resources of all the reporting banking institutions in the United States, including state banks, savings banks and loan and trust companies and national banks as well as late as the year 1904."

Twelve cities in which are to be located the federal farm loan banks have been announced by the farm loan board, and it is expected that within sixty days the new system will be in operation, ready to make the loans for which applications already are pouring in from every section of the country.

The banks will be set up in Springfield, Mass.; Baltimore, Md.; Columbia, S. C.; New Orleans, La.; Houston, Texas; St. Louis, Mo.; Louisville, Ky.; St. Paul, Minn.; Omaha, Neb.; Wichita, Kans.; Spokane, Wash., and Berkeley, California.

Stock subscription books of the banks will be opened. It is expected, however, that the government will have to supply most of the $9,000,000 capital, under that section of the law which empowers the secretary of the treasury to make up the unsubscribed stock.

METHODIST LEADERS CONSIDERING UNION

Joint Commission Meets In Baltimore. Bishop Candler Heads Southern Delegation

Baltimore.—South Methodist members of the joint commission on union with the Methodist Episcopal church met here for organization. Bishop Warren A. Candler of Atlanta was selected as chairman, succeeding the late Bishop A. W. Wilson of Baltimore.

The joint commission will begin its deliberations here in an effort to agree upon a definite basis of corporate union of the two bodies, representing more than 6,300,000 members. On the commission are ten bishops, twenty leading laymen, from all sections of the United States.

The meeting of the commission is regarded as ranking almost with the Baltimore Christmas conference of 1784, at which American Methodism was born.

10,000 Jack Rabibts Killed In Texas

Amarillo, Texas.—Reports concerning the Panhandle of Texas jack rabbit drives held in a united effort to reduce the cost of meat indicate that not less than ten thousand jack rabbits have been killed in the various drives. Hereford, Texas, reported 1,000 rabbits killed and sold to a Galveston brokerage concern for shipment to New York. Markets quoted here for dressed jack rabbits was eleven and a half cents a pound.

Lot Of Foodstuffs Exported Abroad

Washington. — Fodostuffs continue to leave American ports for Europe in vast quantities. Figures published by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce show that in the first eleven months of the year they reached a value of about six hundred and seven million dollars, or at the rate of more than sixty million dollars a month. Breadstuffs led in value of foods sold abroad. In the eleven months they reached a total of $404,000,000. Meat and dairy products amounted to $245,000,000.

Net Closing Around City Of Braila

New York.—The net of the Teutonic allies apparently is fast closing in upon Braila, Roumania's oil and grain center on the lower Danube. Having taken Filipechti, thirty miles to the southwest, Field Marshal von Mackensen's troops have now captured the railroad town of Rimnik Sarat, relatively the same distance to the east, while the guns of the Dobrudja army are still hammering the Russo-Roumanians at the bridgehead of Matchin, on the east bank of the Danube.

Congressman Adamson's threat to spank the railroad brotherhood and the executive, reminds one of the small boy who legs it home to escape a thumping and then stands in the window making faces at his pursurer. No such brave words as these were heard in September when the Democrats were in mortal fear of defeat if they did not grovel before the brotherhood.

President Wilson sent a check for $2500 to the Democratic National Committee as his contribution toward meeting the deficit in the committee's campaign fund. In the winter of 1914 he sent a check for $25 to the Association Charities of Washington to be expended on the bread line which grew out of Democratic depression. Mr. Wilson believes his re-election is one hundred times more important than the stomachs of the poor, and it probably is—to him.

Considerable extension of the power of Executive patronage is furnished by the periodical elevation of post offices of the fourth class to the third class, thereby removing thepostmasters from the Civil Service, and putting their appointment in the hands of the President. Recently 281 nominations of postmasters for apointment to new third class offices were sent to the Senate in one lot, the increased receipts of those offices causing the change of classification, thus giving the President discretion to continue the inmcumbent in office or appoint a political worker to the place.

The Democratic Representative of the district embracing the town of Fond du Lac, Wisconsin, has introduced a bill providing for the donation by the Secretary of War to that community of "four condemned bronze cannon" for the ornamentation of the public park. This is one of the little jokes that Congressmen occasionally play on their trusting constituents. It is well known to the initiated that such bills when finally enacted into law mean absolutely nothing, as they simply "authorize" the Secretary "in his discretion" to make the donations. If one takes the trouble to look the matter up at the War Department one is informed that obsolete cannon are not given away, but can be bought at prices up to $150 each, according to size.

Exodus During Holidays.

The resolution passed by the House on December 20, providing for Christmas recess, beginning the 22, was a signal for an immediate exodus of members to their homes for the holidays. Only the members of the Appropriations and District Committees remained to give attention to the District of Columbia appropriation bill, carrying over $13,000,000, which this year has not excited the determined opposition usually accorded it by the Democrats from rural communities.

No Publicity Desired

Much opposition to the bill recently debated in the House proposing to allow the use of school buildings in the city of Washington by "community forums" for the purpose of discussing social and public questions appeared to be based on the suspicion of certain Democrats that subjects of a political nature might be brought into the discussions. Considering the dubious record of the Democratic party it is but natural that its members should hesitate in providing opportunity for free expression of the views of the people of Washington, who have suffered much in the way of increased taxes and curtailed appropriations from a Democratic Congress.

Democrats Would Duplicate Appropriations

Another instnace of the watchfulness of Hon. James R. Mann of Illinois in detecting Democratic schemes to insure success of questionable legislation occurred the other day when a bill, introduced by a Democrat, was reached on the House Calandar proposing to establish a fish cultural in California. Mr. Mann immediately recalled the fact that the same item had been included in the omnibus hatchery bill passed a few days before. He called the matter to the attention of the House, remarking, "The gentleman ought not to take two chances. He cannot ride two horses going in different directions at the same time." On Mr. Mann's objection the bill was stricken from the Calandar.

A HISTORY OF 1916.

Whatever may be said about the things that happened in the year that has just passed—whatever may be offered in the way of criticism—however much it may have pleased or displeased us—we all must admit that 1916 was an epoch in the history of this old sphere, wherein things really did happen. Things of all kinds happened—things of great moment and things of trivial circumstance.

Would it not be interesting to hold up in front of your eyes a complete record of this marvelous year just passed, and behold at a single glance the wonderful transient picture of the world as it ever and again was changing itself, according to the dictates of powers both human and superhuman?

If you think so, we invite you to take 30 minutes in looking over the second page of the Union-Banner this week. You will find compiled right there the most complete history of 1916 that there is in existence up to this date. The most important events of the past year are set forth in detail.

The progress of the European war is given, showing the chief developments of this the mightiest conflict of nations.

A complete view of the political ,industrial, financial and sporting events of note throughout the United States.

It gives a list of the things that have been done and undone in the course of the year, relating to our Mexican muddle. It is a glance back at the world as it rolled along through the entire year—a veritable motion picture of the universe in action.

We are indebted to the Western Newspaper Union Auxiliary Service for this unexcelled feature. It could not be obtained and brought to our readers through any other channel.

Songe of Different Tune

The author of "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" passed away recently. That was the war song par excellence of the Spanish war, and the lilt of it put pep into many a soldier who fought for Cuba Libre. Those were the days when the United States had the respect of the world and we had a president who was not afraid to stand steadfast for righteousness. The author of "I Didn't Raise My Boy to be a Soldier" still lives. It is an appropriate whine for the administration now in control. The policy now is to dodge responsibilities, surrender known rights, and quibble about words. The navy is shorthanded, and the army cannot secure recruits because the leaders of the party in power are effeminate, vagarious, and inspire confidence in no man. Some of us are rolling up huge profits from the sale of food, clothing, and ammunition to countries batling for a principle; more of us are feeling the pinch of hunger and the chill of winter because prices have gone toLuciferian heights. The American people will have occasion for a tall amount of thinking during the next four years, and the result of their cogitations will have a pretty good indication as to whether our present political anemia is chronic or acute.

AN AGED WOMAN

Tells How Vinol Made Her Strong

In her eighty-second year Mrs. John Wickersham, of Russellville, Pa., says: "I was in a run-down, feeble condition and had lost flesh. A neighbor asked me to try Vinol, and after taking two bottles my strength returned; I am gaining in flesh, it has built up my health and I am feeling fine for a woman of my age, so I get around and do my housework."

The reason Vinol was so successful in Mrs. Wickersham's case was because it contains the very elements needed to build her up.

GREAT DEMOCRAT ENDORSES S. B. ANTHONY AMENDMENT

At a dinner given in his honor by more than three hundred Democrats in Washington on December 6, William Jennings Bryan outlined the reforms to which he hopes to commit the Democratic party and which he believes may be accomplished in the next four years, among them being woman suffrage by Federal Amendment.

Mr. Bryan said: "Equal suffarge kas the one question upon which all parties agreed in the last campaign, their differences relating only to the method of securing the reform..

While the Democrat and Republican parties failed to commit themselves to a national amendment, we might as well recognize the fact that a national amendment will come as the reform is adopted in a sufficient number of states to make its adoption by the nation probable. The Democratic party which builds upon a foundation that is essentially ethical—the doctrine of brotherhood—has that reason for welcoming the co-operation of women in the work that lies before the party, and it has special reason for regarding woman suffrage with favor at this time, as the influence of the women in the close states was sufficient to determine the result."

Mrs. Bryan Promises Aid in Campaign for Nation-Wide Suffrage.

Mrs. William Jennings Bryan in a letter to the President of the national American Woman Suffrage Association, declared that the dominant issue of the time is woman suffrage, and she has pledged her support to the campaign in behalf of the Federal amendment. Mrs. Bryan will spend the winter in Washington and she promises t try to win some of the recalcitrant Senators and Representatives to support the amendment.

Birmingham to have next Convention

The Alabama equal Suffrage Association will hold its 1917 convention in Birmingham in February, just before the national suffrage school opens there.

Mrs. Julian B. Parke made a visit to Roanoke recently, at the request of the local association, which was as delightful as it was profitable.

The president was met by a committee of the Roanoke Equal Suffrage Association in automobiles decorated in the suffrage colors and taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burrell Simmons, whose guest Mrs Parke was while in Roanoke. In the afternoon a reception was given in her honor by Miss Lurline Griffin, President of the Roanoke Association.

Mrs. Parke spoke to an audience of some one hundred people, who manifested considerable interest in her subject.

The Roanoke Association is one of the liveliest things of its size in the state, having as officers some very brainy and energetic women.

You've heard many an earful about the Prince Albert patented process that cuts out bite and parch and lets you smoke your fill without a comeback! Stake your bank roll that it proves out every hour of the day. Prince Albert has always been sold without coupons or premiums. We prefer to give quality!

There's sport smoking a pipe or rolling your own, but you know that you've got to have the right tobacco! We tell you Prince Albert will bang the doors wide open for you to come in on a good time firing up every little so often, without a regret! You'll feel like your smoke past has been wasted and will be sorry you cannot back up for a fresh start.

PRINCE ALBERT

You swing on this same like it was a tip to a thousand-dollar bill! It's worth that in happiness and contentment to you, to every man who knows what can be gotten out of a chummy jimmy pipe or makin's cigarette with Prince Albert for "packing"!

THE Prince Albert tidy red tin, and in fact, every Prince Albert package, has a real message-to-you on its reverse side. You'll read: "Process Patented July 30th, 1907." That means that the United States Government has granted a patent on the process by which Prince Albert is made. And by which tongue bite and throat parch are cut out! Everywhere tobacco is sold you'll find Prince Albert awaiting you in toppy red bags, 5c; tidy red tins, 10c; handsome pound and half-pound tin humidors and in that clever crystal-glass humidor, with sponge-moistener top, that keeps the tobacco in such fine condition—always!

Cost of Transportation

Every economist is busy figuring on the increased cost of living and the causes therefor. All agree that the cost of living has increased very greatly, and in consequence individuals seek increased incomes.

In the many reasons advanced for the increase in the cost of living one very important item is significant by its absence—THE COST OF TRANSPORTATION.

Every item which enters into the manufacture and sale of freight and passenger transportation has advanced in cost to the L. & N. Railroad Co., tremendously, in the last few years.

The layman, unfamiliar with railway materials though he may be, knows that the price of coal, iron, steel, lumber, labor, clerical expenses—in fact everything, has advanced.

He knows further that he can get on the L. & N. passenger train and ride 100 miles at a less cost than he could ten years ago.

He knows also that he can make a shipment of freight via the L. & N. at a much less cost than he could ten years ago.

While all the time the L. & N. is paying the advanced prices required to supply the transportation.

Increase in volume of traffic, efficient management, rigid economy in operation, substantial equipment and satisfactory service to L. & N. patrons are the reasons the L. & N. has been able to stand the strain.

We solicit your patronage on the basis of the standard of excellence in freight and passenger transportation service.

FARMERS IN REVOLT RECEIVE CONTROL OF STATE GOVERNMENT

Chas. Edward Russell Studies North Dakota's Experiment.

Bismarck, N.D.—North Dakota is now to hold for some the center of the United States stage. A kind of government on this continent or anywhere else is about to take hold of the machine here. It is a farmers' government from top to bottom, and all the way across.

That is one thing novel about it. Then it is strictly non-partisan, being chosen by the farmers for reasons of their own and without the least regard to party lines.

It is also a government that owes nothing to any politian on earth and no corporation, bank railroad or interest has a single string on it.

Few of the men about to take office ever held office before and none of the men that put them that put them there had any previous experience in politics.

At the last election the farmers in revolt, captured the legislature, all the state offices except one, and what is still more important, gobbled the supreme court.

They will now run the whole shooting match from A to Izzard. They can pass any law they please and nothing this side of the supreme court of the United States can interfere.

It is the biggest revolution that ever occurred in any state in this nation.

North Dakota has been from the beginning just a fine old pocket borough for their interests. The railroads, banks, elevators and grain men had an iron-clad combination that ruled the politics of the state the way a bucko mate used to rule a Cape Horner. Do what you are told, keep still or get hurt.

Today there isn't a railroad politicial, grain agent or corporation valet in the state that dares peep. The farmers are a whole cheese.

Also, they have introduced a new system of choosing men for office.

They started out literally to let the office seek the man. When it became evident last spring that they were liwely to win out, a fine crop of their dear old friends and oclege chummies sprang up all about the state offering the glad hand and pulling for this office or for that.

All they ever got was the icy stare and the swift kick. Instead of listening to the dulcet notes of these charmers, the farmers went about hunting for good men that were on the level and not job hunters.

Their candidate for governor, for instance, Lynn J. Frazier, was steering a plow over his wheat lands when he was chosen. The committee wanted to telephone him and had to wait until he could be summoned to the house. He was the most amazed man in America and thought it was some kind of a joke.

But he quickly showed that no error had been made about him. He had never made a set public speech in his life, but he jumped into the campaign and turned out to be a cracker jack. He made more than 200 speeches. He got 81,000 in a total of 102,000, that's all.

The name of the organization that put all this over is the Farmers Non-Partisan League. It is only two years old, but has forty thousand enrolled members of the fifty thousand farmers in North Dakota.

It works with a new scheme and new method. Every farmer that joins pays for his own membership. Farmerly the annual fees were $6. Now they are $16 for two years in advance, and practically every man whose first years subscription has expired is renewing at the new rate.

New members are put on the roll by personal interviews. The league owns 140 automobiles, and keeps a corps of organizers always in the field. The money received is used to carry on this work, and to publishet he Leagues newspaper, the Leader.

This paper started in September, 1915, on a shoe string and now has 65,000 circulation. The league has lately acquired a daily paper at Fargo, and owns the only photo engraving plant in North Dakota.

Branch leagues are being organized in other states. The welcome the idea has received causes northwestern politicians to view the movement with pain and extreme disgust. It looks as if entirely a new deal was on in this part of the world.

Nobody can join this league except an actual tiller of the soil, so there is no chance for others to come in and get posession of the thing.

The thing that had most to do with the creation of the league was the deplorable state of farming in North Dakota as the result of 75 varieties of gouge and swindle practiced by railroads, banks, money sharks, elevator combines, commission men, and others.

Government as conducted by the interests merely assisted the plunderers. The total annual gouge was estimated at about $50,000,000 on the wheat crop alone. Between farmer and consumer about fifty cents on each bushel disappeared into the hands of those who had no right to take it.

The league's program provides for salutary reforms in the state government, but nothing to scare anybody. State owned and aperated terminal elevators, state hall insurance, state rural credit systems, taxation reform and the state development of the lignite deposits are the chief features.

The main object of the league is to secure a rational brand of government conducted for the benefit of the majority of the population instead of for the benefit of railroads and banks. It will be a novelty for North Dakota and some other regions.

Judge Adams has requested us to print the above clipping from the Birmingham Ledger, and we do so, with his comment as follows:

"The above is similar to the same thing that I recommended for Chilton County last year, except the North Dakota organization is confined strictly to farmers and is a state-wide affair. I believe that it will take something on this order to save the tax-payers of this state. If the two old political parties have not been weighed in the balances and found wanting, I do not know what greater proof the people will look for. Democrats and Republicans have had charge of this government since I can remember, and is it better and are the people satisfied? We have so many liars that the courts cross themselves and the while fabric seems to be mixed, and the people are confused. At the end of each political campaign, the people are battled, scared and sore. That seems to be the only part the people have in it at all.. Our fathers bought this country and this government with their blood. And should we not know that it is ours, to use for the greatest good to the greatest number?"

"S. M. ADAMS."

Cleveland Leader—We wish it distinctly understood that it is through no fault of ours that Mr. Wilson's habit of reading messages to Congress continues unabated.

"Celebrators" here had a gay time about midnight Sunday night, getting rid of the old year and ushering in the new. They left signs of the "change" in many places and in different ways. In some cases, however, they didn't "leave" the signs but carried them away with them or left them in the middle of the street. And in the course of procedure they made so much noise that peaceable citizens could not sleep all.

Kirstin Stump Puller

One Man — Horse Power

Every Kirstin is guaranteed for 15 years, flaw or no flaw. Your money back if the Kirstin bond does not live up to its promise. The Kirstin method clears land from 10 to 50 percent cheaper than any other. We guarantee this, too.

For nearly a quarter century the Kirstin Horse Power Stump Puller has proved its superiority on Southern stump lands. Thousands of Southern farmers have been started on the road to prosperity by a Kirstin.

It is designed for Southern work and will pull anything it tackles, be it a thick, green pine, a deeply imbedded tap root or a field of hundreds of heavy stumps. The new triple power and automatic take-up enable it to perform the heaviest work with rapidity, certainty and without strain on man, horse or machine.

The One Man Puller gets the biggest stumps, too. Horses unnecessary. Double leverage gives you a giant's power; a push on the handle means a pull of tons on the stump. Clears an acre from one anchor and clears it ready for the plow.

Have used another well-known make of puller but don't like it as well as my Kirstin. The Kirstin triple power method is much better. I know because I have cleared over 100 acres.

He Never Knew Temptation.

Rev. Fred Winslow Adams, pastor of St. Andrew's Methodist Episcopal church in West Seventy-sixth street, who recently read from his pulpit answers to the question, "What are the greatest safeguards against temptation?" received a reply to his question from Thomas A. Edison. He said:

"I cannot answer the question as I have never had any experience in such matters. I have never had time, not even five minutes, to be tempted to do anything against the moral law, civil law or any law whatever. If I were to hazard a guess as to what young people should do to avoid temptation, it would be to get a job and work at it so hard that temptation would not exist for them."—New York Mail.

FARM STOCK

HOGS DIFFICULT TO CONTROL

When Animal Once Acquires Habit of Getting Out of Pasture He Is Hard to Restrain.

When a hog once gets the habit of getting out of its yard, pasture or whatever its inclosure may be, it is one of the most difficult animals to control. You can stop a brenchy horse or cow if you build a fence high enough, but a hog goes through. If there is no hole in the fence it makes one. Of course if the fence was so tight at first that the hog could not get through, it won't bother you the second and forty-ninth time.

Insufficient or irregular feeding, or failing to supply something which the animals crave in the feed makes hogs restless and ready to take the first chance of exploring the outside world in hopes of finding what they failed to find in their troughs.

It saves time and patience to keep them contented and at home.

TREATING HOGS WITH WORMS

Prescription Given for Pig Weighing About 100 Pounds—Give Salt, Sulphur and Charcoal.

To expel worms from hogs the following prescription is right for a pig weighing about 100 pounds: Santonin, five grains; calomel, two grains; areca nut, two grains; sodium bicarbonate, one dram. Keep the hogs off feed for about 12 hours and give the dose in a slop of middlings. The evening of the same day give a mash of wheat bran. This will flush the bowels. Gather all worms and burn them.

Worms often are the forerunner of disease.

If a hog or pig has a big appetite and thriftless condition, with dry dead hair, it is a good indication of the presence of worms.

Salt and sulphur and charcoal should be kept in every pigpen and pig yard so the pigs can help themselves.

COLTS RESPOND TO FEEDING

Size of Animal Determined First Winter After Weaning—Aim to Build Up Big Frame.

No farm animal will pay more for abundant feeding than the colt. The first winter after weaning, the ultimate size of the colt is largely determined. We understand that the French Percheron breeders feed as much as ten pounds daily of bran and oats to their weanling colts.

The object of feeding the weanling colt is to induce the formation of a big frame, with heavy muscling. Our aim is not fat. Therefore, we prefer to feed some bran, oil meal, and oats in connection with corn. For this reason, also, we prefer a good quality of clover or alfalfa hay to timothy hay. In connection with timothy or corn stover, we would feed a mixture of five parts of corn, three parts of oats, three parts of bran, and two parts of oil meal; while in connection with good clover or alfalfa hay, we would make the mixture five parts of corn, three parts of oats, two parts of bran, and one part of oil meal.

To a colt of draft ancestry, designed for market, we would feed at least five pounds of such a mixture the first winter, and, as the winter wears on, we might increase to seven or even ten pounds.—Wallace's Farmer.

FEEDING ALFALFA TO SWINE

Some Arrangement Ought to Be Made to Prevent Hogs From Dragging Hay Around Underfoot.

In feeding alfalfa hay to hogs some arrangement must be provided to prevent them wasting the feed by dragging it around underfoot. A rack with ends boarded up solid and sides made with upright two-by-fours far enough apart for the hog to pull the hay through will prevent waste. It should be made light enough so it can be easily moved by hand to avoid having the hogs always eat at the same place. Quite a broad bottom will be necessary or the rack will get tipped over too often for the owner's serenity of mind.

Spectacles of the Russian Ballet

The spectacles presented by the Russian Ballet were revelations of gorgeous color. Audiences were enthralled by them, responding to the fascination of the most marvelous management of color that has ever inspired them to enthusiasm. It is for students of the times to determine how great an influence these spectacles have had on fashions. We see this influence reflected now and know that it will reappear in the spring, for it has given women "the courage of color," as Rostand expresses it.

The legends of the ballets make a limitless playground for the imaginations of those who must enjoy so rich a field. In "Scheherazade," the scene is a sultan's harem. It goes without saying that here is chance for reproducing and elaborating oriental splendor. "Le Carnaval" betrays by its name how great the variety it includes, and "Cleopatra" revives the wonders of old Egypt.

In "Thamar" and "Sadko" imaginative designing reaches the zenith of its marvels. In "Sadko" there is nothing either to guide or to hamper the fancy of the costume. The scene is laid at the bottom of the sea in the realm of the ruler of the ocean, where the fortunes of Sadko, a roving musician, have landed him. The stage is peopled with groups representing swaying seaweed, corals, sea flowers, fishes and other inhabitants of the deep, clear waters.

The costuming is a revelation of resourcefulness and of beauty that lures the mind into unexplored paths. Why not take the corals or anything else on land or sea as inspirations and make life a continual round of impersonations? In the accompanying picture "The Bird" of the Russian Ballet leads us to ponder the prodigality of nature in clothing the feathered tribe. Color and more color is the bequest of the ballet.

Novelty in Handles.

Cherries are always more or less popular on umbrella handles, and one of the new umbrellas fairly bristles with them. Bright red cherries on stems are carried along the full length of the handle. It is the branch of a cherry tree and unusually well laden with fruit.

Borders of Braid.

On some of the new suits for autumn there is little trimming, though broad silk braid is occasionally employed as a border for skirt and coat. Belts are ubiquitous, though on many models the belt appears back and front.

The Gorgeous Hat of Midwinter

Midwinter millinery is about to make its exit from fashion's stage. It has made a splendid performance and will be bowed out amid many plaudits for its brilliant triumphs, for it has grown more and more rich and beautiful as the season advanced to its climax. Already demi-season hats of satin are making their appearance, intended to tide over the time between winter and spring. But we shall not turn our backs on the gorgeous hats of midwinter without casting "one longing, lingering look behind."

A look will be rewarded with such inspiring headwear as is pictured in the group of hats above, and any one of them is fascinating enough to make one bless the winter season. At the center of the group a hat of heavy blue silk lace is made over a wire frame and lined with silver gauze. The Nattier blue of the lace looks particularly well with moleskin, and the hat has a top crown of this fur. There are medallions in the pattern of the lace, about the side crown, and every other one is covered with a medallion of fur.

At the left a hat of satin is covered with a delicate net and lace of gold. The lace extends beyond the ribbon in the brim. There are three clusters of metallic roses and foliage about the crown, and this model would be quite as much at home among palms and flowers as it is against a background of snow and ice.

The third hat is of black chantilly lace and kolinsky fur. The brim-edge is bound with fur and there is a narrow band of it about the crown. An odd star-shaped ornament, covered with jet beads, is applied to the top crown and its points are extended into ornaments that lie flat against the side crown. Two jet balls rest on the brim at the right side. The hat is a reserved and quiet design made sufficiently brilliant to hold its own in gay company, by the jet ornaments.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of the Sunday School Course in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR JANUARY 7

JESUS THE LIGHT AND LIFE OF MEN.

The studies for the first six months of this year are devoted to the gospel of John; the remaining portion of the year to II Kings, Ezra and Nehemiah, being a study with the prophets. One year from now we begin the new "graded uniform lessons" recently adopted by the reorganized International Lesson committee.

John was younger than his brother, James, and lived to be the oldest of the apostles, dying somewhere between A. D. 95 and 98. His name means "Peace," though he is surnamed the "son of thunder" (Mark 3:17). Five of the New Testament books bear his name. He blended the gentleness of a dove with the force and vision of an eagle." The purpose of his gospel is clearly stated (ch. 20:31). Only about 8 per cent of it is found in the other three gospels. Seventy-six times the word "witness" is used. The word "father" occurs 140 times and the name "Jesus" 240 times.

I. The Word (vv. 1-5). Words utter thoughts; a word is an expression of an inaudible and invisible thing. As the Word, Christ is Creator (ch. 14:9; 8:19), he is the source of light. "The word is God heard; the life is God felt, and the light is God seen"—Moody. This eternally existing person is called the Word because in him God fully expresses or reveals himself. The Bible is the written word because in it God speaks and reveals himself through this person who is the eternal Word (Heb. 1:3). The first verse brings out the fact that there are at least two persons in the Godhead, the one divine person in company with whom the word was, and the word, himself, was God; that is, was also a divine person. He who by his incarnation became our brother and our savior was first our creator and the creator of all things, and apart from him not anything came into existence. The Word did not become the light of men by his incarnation in Jesus of Nazareth. He was ever the Light of Men. The light that shone in the Old Testament time shone from him. When sin came, night came.

II. The Witness (vv. 6-10). John the Baptizer came for a witness. He was not the light. Some might have thought him to be the promised Messiah. This he denied. He was a lamp which held forth light to men concerning the true light "which lighteth every man that cometh into the world." He reflected light (v. 8). John told all that he knew. Testimony will expand as experience enlarges. The spoken word of man must confirm the experience of the word in our lives. John was a wonderful man, a man whom God delighted to honor, but he was a man. Men are not asked to believe blindly, but always upon an abundance of testimony.

III. The World (vv. 11-14). This world was created by Jesus, and throughout its existence he has been in the world, though the world knew him not. This living light had been coming into the world, and was not fully come until he was manifest to Israel at the baptismal act of John. In order to be made manifest the "Word was made flesh" in the person of Jesus. The world did not apprehend the light (v. 5) nor did the world which he was in and which was made by him (v. 10). Even his own people, literally his own household servants, i. e. Israel, received him not to themselves, but whoever receives him, even the vilest sinner of earth, and takes him into his heart to be all Jesus desired to be, savior, lord, teacher, friend, that instant he becomes a child of God. We cannot attempt to explain this mystery. The union of spirit and body was in one person, a sample fact; though unexplained, still true. The union of God with a human body, forming one person, Christ Jesus, sometimes spoken of separately, sometimes as a whole, sometimes as divine, sometimes as human. We cannot divide his activities into two sections and say this is divine and this is human; they are inexplicably blended into one. This Christ really dwelt among us. He did not merely appear to some persons, or come in a vision, and yet his abode among us was only temporary, only a few years, and we beheld his glory, the glory of the only begotten Son. The world expected a Messiah and his own creation, his own inheritance received him not, rejected him, opposed him, crucified him, their lord, savior, king and messiah. Those who received him and believed on his name became sons.

To be a child of God we must be born into the nature and character of God, into his spiritual life. We are members of his family.

We are heirs of all things through him, his joy, his love, his character and his blessing and the privileges of working for him and with him. We become heirs by being born of God, not of blood, physical descent nor inheritance, for the best of parents cannot bestow this gift upon their children.

Not by our own efforts or exertions nor the will of the flesh, not by the will of men, through wisdom and man's highest powers of intellect, but of God.

SOUR, ACID STOMACHS, GASES OR INDIGESTION

Each "Pape's Diapepsin" digests 3000 grains food, ending all stomach misery in five minutes.

Time it! In five minutes all stomach distress will go. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas, acid, or eructations of undigested food, no dizziness, bloating, foul breath or headache.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest stomach remedy in the whole world and besides it is harmless. Put an end to stomach trouble forever by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder. It's the quickest, surest and most harmless stomach doctor in the world.—Adv.

Sausage Skins of Silk.

The packing of sausage meat in the old way has long been an objectionable proceeding to fastidious persons. It also has been declared insanitary, so that many families have tabooed the link sausage. Now thin silk cases are being provided, which can be sterilized to the last degree of sanitation. Being of chiffonlike texture, they would hardly be noticed if taken into the mouth, although they can be easily removed at the table. These thin silk cases can be supplied at a cost little greater than the sausage skins now in use and are proof against the attack of vermin.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" IF BILIOUS OR COSTIVE

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—They work while you sleep.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.—Adv.

BOARD WILL RAISE SCHOOL STANDARD

MUST HAVE TWO YEARS HIGH SCHOOL WORK BEFORE ENTERING NORMAL SCHOOL

NEWS FROM STATE CAPITAL

—Montgomery.

Announcement was made by William F. Feagin, state superintendent of education that the board of control of the state normal schools has adopted a change in the course of study for the schools which will raise the standard for scholarship by one year and which will prevent any person from entering who has not had two years of high school work or its equivalent. The change will be effective at the beginning of the next school term.

Died Without Leaving Will.

For the first time in many months the state treasury has received money from a person who died without leaving a will and without relatives. The state treasury has received $8,127.64 from W. C. Christian, probate judge of Hale county, with the announcement that George DeLaney died in that county, and that all efforts to find relatives or a will disposing of the property had failed. The money will be credited to the public school fund.

Under the law the property of a person who has no relatives and leaves no will reverts to the State at the expiration of two years from the time the property was entered for administration by the probate court. Relatives of DeLaney were advertised for but none entered a claim. Judge Christian disposed of DeLaney's real estate and personal property and paid all receipts into the state treasury.

Old Veterans Receive Pensions.

Warrants calling for the payment of pensions ranging from $16 to $25 to about 160,000 Confederate soldiers and widows were sent to the probate judges from the State auditor's department.

The warrants call for the second payment for the fiscal year, which began October 1 and probably will call for the release of about $400,000 by the state treasury. Soldiers in the first class will receive $25. Those in the second class will be paid $20, and those in the third will receive $16.

Road Contracts Given Approval.

Road construction contracts aggregating $30,000, let by the State Highway Engineer, were approved at a special called meeting of the State Highway Commission held in Birmingham. These contracts were let by W. S. Keller, State Highway Engineer, and by the county boards of revenue in which the new roads are to be located.

No other business was taken up at the meeting. The efforts of various highway associations in the State to obtain Federal aid money from the Commission will be in vain until the Commission meets in regular session, as no business of this nature can be transacted at a special session, according to the officials.

Federal aid money obtained through the new Bankhead Federal Aid Law will be given by the Commission to a certain project, which will be selected later. The money available now will be sufficient to pay for the construction of about fifteen miles of highway.

Parole Recommended.

Eight paroles were recommended and 41 applications were rejected by the state board of pardons at its last meeting, according to announcement made. In the list of those rejected was the petition of Bill Wilson of Blount, who sought release from a life sentence on the ground that human bones which were used as evidence against him on a charge of murdering his wife and child were those of Indians, who inhabited Alabama years before. The board was not convinced that Wilson did not kill his wife and thought that the sentence was light enough if he did commit the crime.

Persons recommended for release were: Jesse Breedlove, Jefferson, robbery; James Echols, Lee, murder second degree; Ruben Madison, Jefferson, receiving stolen property; Abraham Reese Dallas, burglary; Tommie Ritch, Jefferson, grand larceny; Lige Rowell, Bullock, murder second degree; Tom Self, Cullman, forgery; Jim Todd, Cullman, forgery; Jim Todd, Cullman, perjury. The board's recommendations were submitted to Governor Henderson for his consideration.

Charters Applied For.

With the intention of boring for oil and other minerals in South Alabama, the Mobile-Pennsylvania Development Company, incorporated, of Mobile, filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state. The corporation has an authorized capital of $100,000 with $25,110 paid in. Another company which qualified to do business as a corporation was a jewelry company, of Anniston. The company has an authorized capital of $3,000 with $1,500 paid in.

NEW FEDERAL TAXES IN FORCE

NEW LAW INCREASES RATE ON INCOMES AND MUNITION MANUFACTURES.

EMERGENCY REVENUE BILL

Graduated Tax of 1 to 10 Per Cent Laid on Estates of $50,000 or More.

Washington.—New federal taxes on incomes, estates, munition manufactures, corporation stocks and certain businesses, became effective with the new year. The taxes are provided by the emergency revenue bill enacted by Congress September 8.

Unmarried persons with net incomes of $3,000 or more and heads of families with incomes of $4,000 or more are subject to pay a normal tax of 2 per cent. instead of the present rate of 1 per cent, and additional taxes are imposed on incomes of more than $20,000 by a graduated scale running from 1 to 13 per cent. A tax of 2 per cent is made on the income of corporations with stock valued at $75,000 or more; the former rate was 1 per cent.

A graduated tax of from 1 to 10 per cent is laid on estates of $50,000 or more when they are transferred. Munition manufacturers are taxed 12 1-2 per cent of their net profits. Corporations are subject to a special excise tax of 50 cents a year for each $1,000 of fair value of capital stock in excess of $99,000. Among the new annual taxes on special businesses are these:

Securities brokers, $30; pawnbrokers, $50; custom house brokers, $10; ship brokers, $20; theaters, $25 to $100, according to seating capacities, with rates one-half as great in towns of 5,000 or less; circuses, $100; other public amusement shows, excepting chautauquas and educational exhibits, $10; bowling alleys and billiard rooms $5 for each alley or table; tobacco manufacturers, sliding scale of rates determined by scales.

Special taxes heretofore collected from commission merchants and commercial brokers are abolished.

FIFTY-FOUR LYNCHED IN 1916.

Fifty Negroes, Including Three Women, Are Among Victims of Mobs in 1916.

Tuskegee, Ala.—Fifty-four persons were lynched in the United States during 1916, according to records of Tuskegee Institute made public. Fifty of the victims were negroes and four white persons and included in the record are three negro women. Sixty persons were lynched in 1915, thirteen of whom were white men.

In a statement presenting the report, Robert R. Moton, President of the Institute, said:

"Fourteen or more than a fourth of the total lynchings occurred in the State of Georgia. Of those put to death, 42, or 77 per cent of the total, were charged with offenses other than assault. The charges for which whites were lynched were murder, three suspected of cutting a woman; one (this a Mexican).

"The charges for which negroes were put to death were: Attempted assault, nine; killing officers of the law, ten; murder, seven; hog stealing and assisting another person to escape, six; wounding officers of the law, four; assault, three; insult, two. For each of the following offenses one person was put to death: Slapping boy, robbing store, brushing gainst girl on street, assisting his son accused of assault to escape, entering a house for robbery or some other purpose, defending her son who in defence of his mother killed a man; fatally wounding a man with whom he had quarreled, speaking against mob in act of putting a man to death; attacking a man and wife with club.

"Lynchings occurred n the following State: Alabama, one, Arkansas, four; Florida, eight; Georgia, fourteen; Kansas, one; Kentucky, two; Louisiana, two; Mississippi, one; Missouri, one; North Carolina, two; Oklahoma, four; South Carolina, two; Tennessee, three; Texas, nne."

Child Labor Law Goes Into Force.

Columbia, S. C.—The new South Carolina child labor law prohibiting the employment of children under 14 years of age in the textile establishments of the State, became effective on the first of the year and automatically about 2,400 children ceased to be employed in the cotton mills of the State.

Eight Airplanes Survive Test.

Philadelphia.—Eight of the twelve army aviators who started from Hempstead, L. I., for this city in a qualification test for government pilot licenses, arrived at the Philadelphia navy yard, completing the flight of 165 miles in less than two hours. Two of the aviators who failed to reach this city were compelled to descend because of motor trouble, near Monmouth, N. J., and one at Deans, near that place. Engine trouble caused one of the squad to abandon the flight.

TAKES THE PLACE OF DANGEROUS CALOMEL

New Discovery! Dodson's Liver Tone Acts Like Calomel But Doesn't Gripe, Salivate or Make You Sick—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Harmless Liver Medicine for Men, Women, Children—Read Guarantee!

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated, or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable. therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.—Adv.

Good Coal From Refuse.

Various devices for economizing fuel have been brought to notice in Holland since the war caused a difficulty in procuring coal. It has been found that 20 to 75 per cent of combustible material remains in furnace refuse, and a device has been constructed which preserves a large part of it. The refuse is finely ground and placed in a liquid with a specific gravity a little greater than that of water. This is said to be very cheap, generally a refuse from factories. The mass is agitated, the heavier particles sink to the bottom, while the combustible material floats and can be scooped off to be used in the furnace. It is stated that 200 tons of refuse will yield 38 tons of good fuel.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, liver and bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad, has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.—Adv.

But She'd Heard of Them.

Humors of a piano studio are related to us by Clarice Balas, the Cleveland pianist, who writes: "One young girl who charged all she forgot to the neglect of her former teacher in the few words: 'He never told me anything about that,' was provoking me by her poor reading and bad time. 'What kind of notes have you in the right hand here?' I asked.

"She guessed wrong immediately. 'I suppose you never heard of such a thing as triplets?' I asked, in thorough disgust.

"'Why, yes, Miss Balas, I have heard of triplets,' said she with offended dignity, 'but not in music.'"

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try It! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.—Adv.

COMMENT ON POLITICS IN NATIONAL MATTERS

Let us make ready. Let us train all our sons. We shall not simply be preparing for war. We shall be making ready for a deeper and fuller and securer national life. We shall be weeding out of our hearts and lives the cowardice and slothfulness which have marred our relation to our country, and giving our better selves a chance. We shall be doing away with artificial distinctions and class differences and invoking the only principle on which a nation may safely rest—that of a democracy based on a common devotion to the common good and common service to the commonwealth.—St Louis Republican.

Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo, in an interview, says that there is no cost of living problem—that we have so much wealth that we should not complain about the increase in prices but should thank God morning and evening for our great prosperity. This is the same secretary who scouts the idea that there is any evasion of the income tax worth worrying about. Blindness is not only a severe affliction for a man of the secretary's vigor and wide interests in life;but carping critics might even consider that it impaired the usefulness of the head of the federal government's greatest departmen. We strongly urge the secretary to consult an occulist before it is too late.—New Haven Times-Leader.

Cincinnati Commercial Tribune: The people of Mexico are engaged in a task of preparing to adopt a new constitution. The convention was addressed recently by Carranza, the provisoonal president. In the course of his speech Carranza outlined a number of reforms which he recommended as worthy of adoption. But the most daring recommendation of all, not only from the Mexican but from any other nation's point of view, is found in the fo owing: "We must consider whether the vote ought to be given to all or limited by educational or propert yqualifications. I think the vote should go to all, but that it should be taken from those making wrong use of it or those who look with indifference on the affairs of the republic." If the latter proposition were a part of the American Constitution a large army of voters would have been disqualified in the state of Ohio at the recent election, for a tabulation of the votes cast shows that more than twenty thousand failed to indicate their choice for a presidential candidate and as many as thirty thousand manifested the same feeling of indifference toward the candidates for the governorship.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer, an ardent supporter of President Wilson, declares that "if the Adamson Act were a national menace previous to November 7, it is a menace now," and suggests that the Republican minority should get busy in an effort to repeal it, or at least to hamper seriously the efforts of the Democrats to make the act stronger. You remember the farmer who tied himself to a runaway calf?—Minneapolis Tribune.

This administration has a good deal to answer for in its action of yesterday, when its ill advised and wholly erroneous statements regarding the probability of the United States being drawn into war, broke the back of the New York Stock Market and through the near panic which ensued ruined thousands of people throughout the country. This morning, after the damage is done, Secretary Lansing says it is all a mistake, but such mistakes like the negligence of the engineers, is almost criminal. Of all the Cabinet, Secretary Lansing has had the reputation of being a man of ability, but such a bone head as was pulled off yesterday should consign him and the administration to the scrap barrel for good.—Stebenville (Ohio) Herald-Star.

INDICTED FOR STEALING GOVERNMENT GASOLINE

Leo G. Woodward, former chier chauffeur of the Post Office department, has been indicted by the Grand Jury for stealing government gasoline. It is alleged that May 30 and 31, June 5 and 10, Woodward appropriated gasoline purchased for use of the United States government. It is claimed that Woodward filled the tank of the private car of Assistant Postmaster General Otto Praegerwith gasoline from the government tank. The post office inspectors say that Woodward admitted using the gasoline on three occasions to fill the tank of Mr. Praeger's car, but stated that on the following days he purchased gasoline from the Standard Oil Co., which was placed in the Government tank.—Washington Star.

MUDDLED THE SITUATION

It is seriously doubted whether Secretary Lansing has, by his explanations of the note which has been sent to the belligerent nations of Europe, contributed anything in its favor. That he has muddled the situation instead of clarifying it, both in his country and abroad, is indicated by the explanation which he has made of his explanation. In one of these he speaks of this country being on the verge of war, because both sides are continuing in their violation of our rights, and later, after having discovered the effects thereof he hastens to say that he did not intend to convy the idea that this country was contemplating a departure from its neutral position, and that he did not consider that his first statement was open to several interpretations.

But there should have been as much care taken in the explanations as there apparently were in the note. If Mr. Lansing has said more than he intended to, it is possible that it was based upon information which the government has, which has not become public, but the result has been, instead of making the meaning of the note more plain, or setting forth the reasons for sending it, he has thrown a cloud about the whole affair, which even this third statement does not dissolve. This is bound to have its effect abroad as well as at home, a fact which should have been taken into consideration before it was made His explanations indicate that there is something in the note which has to be arrived at through inference rather than through what is actual said.—Norwich (Conn.) Bulletin.

WHO MAKES TERMS OF PEACE?

Does the victor or the vanquished usually propose peace during a war?

Take America's wars and you will find that the loser was the one to suggest an end of the fighting.

England and not the United States was the power to request peace in the Revolutionary War, and America was the winner.

Mexico and not the United States was the first to talk peace in that clash seventy years ago, and again America was the winner.

The Confederacy, whose cause was lost, made peace proposals during the Civil War, long before Lee surrendered.

Napoleon tried vainly to make peace with Russia when he was at Moscow one hundred and four years ago, but Czar Alexander, then apparently the under dog, refused, and Napoleon's retreat followed, with an anihilation of his own army.

It was Napoleon, who again sought peace before and after Leipsic, but the allied powers refused, deposed him from the throne and sent him to Elba.

The French people cried for peace in 1870, but Bismarck, the victor, didnot stop until all his conditions had been met.

The war had been ended before Grant said, "Let us have peace!"—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

FUTILE ESSAY IN PROBABILITY

We violate no confidence when we venture the statement that if there now happened to be a Republican majority in either the Senate or the House, the probability is strong that there would ensue a searching legislative investigation of the circumstances under which the fact of the president's communication to the belligerents reached the stock tickers six or seven hours before it reached the newspaper offices.

This invstigation would extend not only to the ascertainment of the fact of a leak but also to its exact location. It would cover the questions of source, channel and chronology in connection with the known performances of the stock market on Wednesday afternoon.

Candor compels us to add that there is not now a Republican majority in either house of Congress.

Consequently there is not likely to be a public scandal.—New York Sun.

J. Dalton Wedon, who is teaching in Tennessee, was called home last week by the unfortunate death of his brother.

SUCCESSFUL TEACHERS ON STATE EXAMINATION

The following list of applicants for teachers certificates in Chilton County were successful at the last examination held in December:

Miss Eloise Honeycutt, first grade; Wm. R. Baker, third grade; Elmer Williamson, third grade; Mary Norris (colored) third grade.

Only four out of the total number of fifteen applicants were successful. The teaching force of the county is not increased by these successful ones as each of them were already engaged in teaching under former certificates.

County Superintendent Bean advances the idea that next year will find the schools of Chilton County somewhat in a scramble for teachers, if we depend on our native product for material.

This condition should not exist. We are already too dependent on importations. We should raise and use our own teachers as well as many other things. It is all right to send them away to be trained, but they should come back to us, and render their just duty to their home community by striving for elevation along educational lines.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

The Senior Class of 1917 are preparing to get out an annual. The following officers have been elected:

Joe Kanjutzky, Business Manager; Ruben Lowe, Editor-in-Chief; Dewey Rockett, Assistant Editor; Kathleen Mullins, Historian; Madge Cooper, Poet; Arden Allen, Orator; U. L. Jones, Prophet; Dewey Rockett, Editor of Athletics; Henry Lee Payne, Will Writer.

The officers are now at work, and we hope to have the work ready to be printed in a short time.

Seems that during the holidays, some of our students were captured by Cupid. The Seniors are certainly shocked at the loss of Henry Lee and the Sophs of Ellen, but then we take it for granted that they knew best.

Mid-Term Exams. start Thursday and close with the first term's work on the following Tuesday.

"Pat" Sartor has made some New Year's resolutions not to be late at school. He now arrives at 9:00, a.m.

Erle Pinckard says he believes that he will complete two grades again this year.

The basket ball boys are undergoing some stiff practice this week. They will probably play a game Saturday.

Of course, Texas Republicans have not much to feel thankful for in a political way this year. They didn't elect anybody, they will get no offices, and they will not be allowed to even look at the crumbs that fall from the pie counter. Still they may feel thankful that none of them were lynched for voting their ticket, and also that there will be only four more years of Woodrow Wilson.

SHOULTS

Editor Union-Banner:—It has been so long since I have seen anything from this neck of the woods, so I thought I would write a few lines.

The health of our community is very good except a few accidents that happened recently. Miss Gennie Lawrence's clothes caught on fire Sunday, and she was burned seriously leaving her in a critical condition at this time. Also the same morning Bennie McFee fell and broke his arm.

It seems that people are going to raise hogs and hominy this year.

Charles Walker and John Mitchell have the record for killing squirrels this year. They have the "brag" squirrel dog of this community.

I don't see why some of the soldier boy don't write to the Union-Banner and tell of some of their ups and downs.

The children and grand children of Charles Walker spent Christmas with home folks.

BIG IKE

What have you got that you want to turn into money?

SOCIALISTS INSIST ON A PARTY REGULARITY

Bouck White, who has occupied space in the newspapers and engaged public attention before, is again in evidence. The Socialist party has expelled him from its membership for the violation of its party constitution and rules in that he supported candidates of other than the Socialist party. This is a method of keeping a political party small and select. If it should be universally adopted the party of the expelled would soon outnumber all the others—Because the supporting of candidates of other parties than that to which a voter nominally adheres is a very common thing. We do not approve of the practice, but it exists nevertheless. Our theory is that the place to settle pary troubles is within the party, that when a party, by a fair majority, has made a nomication, it should be sustained by all who took part in the preliminaries to naming the ticket.

THE ACME OF MISCHIEFMAKING

President Wilson's peace note is commented on bitterly by Canadian press. Toronto Evening telegram says note will do more harm to future of United States than to the allied cause, and adds that, "the President has exhausted the mischief-making possibilities of his interference in Germany's game to secure peace at any cost." Toronto Globe says proposals will not be received with any greater cordiality than the efforts of Von Bethmann-Hollweg.—The Boston News Bureau.

TRYING TO FIND A WAY OUT

In the mostpositive language this government served upon Germany that if merchant ships were sunk without visitation and search and provision for the safety of life, that we should have no alternative but to sever diplomatic relations. Germany gave a pledge that he would abide by our demands.

She has not done so. Vessel after vessel has been torpedoed without the slightest notice. The government of the United States is now faced with the alternative of making good its ultimatum or running away from its threats, just as it has done right along.

Is the peace note of the president an effort on his part to find a way out of the dilemma?—Philadelphia Inquirer.

NOTICE MIDWIVES

All midwives of the county, who intend to act as such during the year 1917, and who have not olready reported to the health officer, must send their names and addresses to me at once, under penalty of the law for not doing so.

CARD OF THANKS

Editor Union-Banner:—We desire to express through your paper our appreciation to those, who so kindly remembered us by word or deed, in the bereavement caused by the death of our little baby. May God's richest blessings rest upon each of them.

NOTICE REVENUE LICENSE

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 1, 1917—Hon. H. A. Harris, Sheriff of Chilton County, Ala.,

Dear Sir:—The following Internal Revenue License have been issued to Chilton County in the month of December, 1916:

No U. S. Internal Revenue License were issued to your county in December, 1916

IN MEMORY

On Monday, January 1, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Weldon, and took from them their son, Peter Carl, aged 16.

Carl was burned seriously on Dec. 31.

He leaves a father, mother, two brothers and four sisters, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn his loss, which is of a kind and affectionate boy.

We cannot speak words so sympathetic as to soothe the aching hearts but we can point them to the Lamb of God, who "taketh away all sorrows." We believe that we shall meet him again in heaven, where there will be no more parting, and no more sickness or death.

It is hard to give up our loved ones but we should remember that our loss is heaven's gain.

If we could only see him or hear him praising the Savior, we could not wish him back, but would say, "Dear child, with God remain."

The funeral service was conducted by Revs. W. P. Lowery and M. J. Parrish, after which the remains were laid to rest in Cane Creek cemetery, to await the resurrection morning.

FEAGIN WANTS SCHOOLS TO HAVE LONGER TERMS

State Supt. Appeals for opportunities for Lads and Las- of the Southland.

"We must give the boys and girls of the rural South longer schools—and we must do this no matter what it costs in time, effort or money. Not only is it true that in no other section of the United Staes are the people doing so little for their boys and girls as we are doing; not only is it true that probably no country in Christendom except Russia is doing so little for their boys and girls as we in the South are doing, but the shameful fact is that when the writer was in Japan, he found even that so called heathen country aroused to the importance of education, and giving its country boys and girls twice as long a term as we are giving ours—and with compulsory attendance."

"We, of the South have made gratifying progress to be sure, but yet, all too little. Your boys and girls in Alabama, kind reader, who are getting only a five months' average school term—these boys and girls of yours must face competition of boys and girls from other states of the Union, with a combined average term of seven months."

"Nor can we lay the flattering unction of our souls that in proportion to our means we of the South are doing as well as people of the other states are doing. WE ARE NOT!"—Clarence Poe in Progressive Farmer.

Medical Inspection of Children

For some years medical inspection has been carried on in the schools of the larger cities, such as Birmingham, Montgomery and Mobile, and recently the board of education of Ennterprise passed regulations safeguarding the health of pupils in attendance upon the schools. The health resolutions read as follows:

1. Beginning January 1, 1917, regular medical inspection of all the children of the city school shall be made by the medical inspector, who shall bear the official title of "School Medical Inspector."

2. Children found suffering from the following diseases, namely: scarlet fever, diphtheria, chicken pox, minengitis, skin disease, small pox, mumps, whooping cough, pediculosis, and tuberculosis, shall at once be excluded from the school, and not be permitted to re-enter until they present a return permit signed by the Medical Inspector.

3. Children from homes where any of the above mentoned diseases exist shall also be excluded from school until they present a permit signed by the Medical Inspector.

4. In case of children who are anaemic, are who are sufferers from adenoids, enlarged tonsils, etc., parents shall be advised of the existence of said conditions.

5. In addition to the above, a dental examination by an authorized dentist may be made one or more times durthe year, and parents advised where children's health is jeopardised by the bad condition of their teeth.

A CORRECTION IN MR. ADAMS' ARTICLE

Editor Union-Banner:

Your type-setter makes my comment on the North Dakota Farmers Political organization sound a little different from what I intended it.

RUSSIANS SMASH AT TEUTON LINES

Berlin Admits That Counter-Offensive Has Been Launched And That Russians Gained Ground

ALSO BATTLES NEAR RIGA

Heavy Fighting On Northern End Of Long Eastern Line—Berlin Says Russians Were Repulsed

New York.—Although the Teutonic allies have made further advances in Roumania, both in their operation driving eastward from the mountain region and northward from Wallachia into Moldavia, the Russians and Roumanains at various points are giving them battle and at several places have met with success.

Between Folshani and Fundeni the Russians made a strong attack over a front of about sixteen miles. They gained ground near Obilechti, says the German war office, but elsewhere were repulsed with heavy casualties. The Petrograd official communication says the Russians re-established their former position near Kapatuno, northwest of Folkshani, made an advance in the vicinity of Raspitza lake and in a surprise attack captured trenches to the northwest in the Oituz valley.

Admission is made by Petrograd that the Russians and Roumanians on the upper reaches of the Suchitza river retired before the advancing invaders, while Berlin says that between the Oituz and Putna valleys the defenders were pushed back further toward the plains. Mount Adobesti was stormed by a German detachment and captured.

On the northern end of the Russian line in Couland the Russians launched strong attacks near Mitau, but were repulsed, suffering casualties and losing thirteen hundred men who were made prisoners, according to Berlin. Near Riga considerable fighting is still in progress.

In the other war theaters bombardments and small enterprises by reconnoitering and raising parties have featured the fighting.

Rome reports an advance of about five hundred yards by the Italians near Hill 208 during a surprise attack.

In Macedonia the British endeavored again to push forward their line near Lake Doiran, but failed, according to Berlin.

FOUR MEXICANS SHOT BY NEW HAMPSHIRE GUARDS

Report Says Mexicans Were Engaged In Filibustering Expedition On Border

Laredo, Texas.—Four alleged Mexican filibusterers were either killed or badly wounded in an encounter with troops of the First New Hampshire infantry at Zapata, Texas, according to a report reaching Laredo. Army officers here stated, however, that they had no information of the reported fight.

The New Hampshire troops, under command of Major Orville Caine, doing patrol duty in the vicinity of Zapata, according to the report, came upon an indefinite number of filibusterers crossing the Rio Grande at Zapata. A clash followed, and at least four of the Mexicans were killed or wounded while crossin gthe river. No mention is made of American casualties.

The same report says that Mexican revolutionists have captured Ramilene and Parral, two villages, located about ten miles below the border from Zapata.

K troops, Fourteenth United States cavalry, which was sent to Minerva, forty miles west of Laredo, to prevent a reported impending crossing of a filibustering expedition into Mexico, returned to quarters here, having encountered no filibusterers.

Real Money For The Mexicans

Leaders Of Allies Close Conference

Rome.—The conference between the members of the entente allied governments has been brought to a close. It is announced that the conference established once again the complete unity of views of the entente allies on the various questions down for discussion and that the statesmen present will leave Rome with a strong resolution to introduce greater co-ordination in their efforts for the successful issue of the war. Cordial speeches were delivered in which the Italian and French took part.

Jitney Bandits Loot Tennessee Bank

Bristol, Tenn.—Two men forced a Bristol jitney bus operator to drive them to Bluff City, Tenn., where they dynamited and robbed the Bank of Bluff City. En route they ransacked a store at Piny Flats. The amount stolen has not been determined. The automobile driver was forced to wait while the two robberies were accomplished, and then bring the men back to Bristol. There is no clew and it is not now known whether the robbers will be caught, although everything being done to capture them.

CHARGES WILL BE PROBED

"Leak" Investigation Favored By The House And The Rules Committee Ordered To Report

Washington.—Congressional agitation over charges that there was a "leak' 'of advance information on President Wilson's peace note, on which somebody made money in the stock market, culminated in the house ordering the rules committee to make a report within ten days on Representative Wood's resolution for investigation and an open statement on the floor by Representative Bennet of New York, that Bernard Barush, a New York stock operator, was reported to have sold short 15,000 shares of steel on the "tip."

Over objections of Representaive Henry, chairman of the committee, who, after conferences with Thomas W. Lawson, of "Frenzied Finance" fame, announced that the Boston financier's charges were a "mirage," Representative Wood succeeded in having the house hold privileged his resolution providing for an inquiry into the Lawson allegations by a committee of five. Then the resolution was referred to the rules committee with instructions to report on it in ten days.

Mr. Henry immediately called a meeting to consider the resolution, and both Democrats and Republicans of the committee demanded that Mr. Lawson, Representative Wood and others be called to testify.

Oratorical pyrotechnics marked Representative Wood's fight to obtain privileged recognition. Flanked by Representaitve Gardner of Massachusetts and a dozen other Republicans, Mr. Wood insisted that Representative Henry had no intention of calling his committee to consider the original Wood "leak" resolution introduced December 22. Representative Henry denied this, but said neither Mr. Lawson nor Representative Wood had produced or promised to produce any evidence which would warrant such action.

For Better Agricultural Conditions

Atlanta.—An important step in the agricultural development of the South is the establishment here of the Farmers Service Organization, with Professor J. N. Harper and Professor J. C. Pridmore in charge. Professor Harper resigned his position as dean of the Clemson Agricultural College and director of the South Carolina Experiment Station and Professor Pridmore resigned the chair of Soils and Crops at the University of Tennessee to take over their new duties. Both of these gentlemen are recognized authorities on southern agricultural conditions and their advice should be authoritive in every way.

The work of the Farmers Service Organization will extend throughout the South and will be in close harmony with the State Experiment Stations, Colleges of Agriculture and Federal Departments of Agriculture. Their work will include lectures before agricultural societies, demonstration agents, agricultural colleges, chautauquas, etc., the preparation and distribution of bulletins and direct correspondence with any farmer who desires to make any inquiry in regard to any agricultural problem that may confront him.

There will be no charge, directly or indirectly for any advice that may be offered and farmers will be as free to avail themselves of the services of this organization as they are to consult with the state college of agriculture.

Carranza Consul Held As a Plotter

New York.—The arrest here by federal officers of Juan T. Burns, consul general at New York for the de facto government of Mexico, disclosed an alleged conspiracy in which five Mexicans, including Burns, are charged in 3 indictments with shipping arms into Mexico in violation of President Wilson's embargo proclamation of October, 1915, and with evasion of customs regulations.

Captain Cochrane, U. S. A., Is Dead

El Paso, Texas.—Captain Percy M. Cochrane of the quartermaster corps, U. S. A., died at the base hospital here of pneumonia. He had been stationed at the quartermaster depot for several months. He was a native of Florida. He was promoted from the ranks.

Ideal American Fowl In Experiment

New York.—An ideal American fowl in which will be centered all the good points of all the good breeds of hens, is the object of experiments being conducted by the United States government, Harry M. Lamon, head husbandman of the government farm, has been working for the last five years on the new American product. According to Mr. Lamon, the new hen will have white plumage, yellow legs, red ear lobes and a moderate sized comb.

U-Boat Torpedoes French Battleship

Berlin.—A dispatch from Milan reports that the French battleship Verite has been torpedoed by a German submarine near Malta. The Verite, badly damaged, is lying near the port of Malta. The battleship Verite was built at Bordeaux in 1907, and is one of a class of four warships of which the Liberte was destroyed by an explosion ir 1911. The battleships of this class displace 14,630 tons, with a water line length of 439 feet, beam 79.5 feet and draft 27.6 feet.

SENATE APPROVES PRESIDENT'S NOTE

By Vote Of 48 to 17 The Reqnest For Statement Of Peace Terms By Belligerents Is Endorsed.

WAR PREDICTED FOR U. S.

Senator Lewis Of Illinois Says Country Will Not Stand For Additional Submarine Outrages

Washington.—Approval of President Wilson's request for a statement of peace terms from the European belligerents was voted by the senate at the conclusion of three days of stirring debate. Action came with dramatic suddenness when Democratic leaders decided to accept a form of resolution that would not commit the senate to indorsement of the whole of the president's note, and ten Republicans of the Progressive group joined the majority in making the vote 48 to 17.

Senator Marine of New Jersey was the only Democrat to vote in the negative.

Discussion of the subject had reached a climax during the day with a sensational declaration by Senator Lewis, chief spokesman for the Democrats, replying to Republican criticism of the president's course. Without referring directly to the submarine controversy, the senator said the United States could not keep out of the war if it continued, and that America would not again accept misconception of orders or zeal of an officer as an excuse for an injury to a citizen or property.

The chief objection urged against the original resolution offered by Senator Hitchcock was that it would indorse the president's offer to join in a movement to guarantee world peace and his declaration of the interest of the United States in small nations. Progressive Republicans joined Senator Lodge and others in this contention.

The resolution adopted was proposed by Senator Jones (Rep.) of Washington, and was accepted by Senator Hitchcock as a substitute for his own. It resolves:

"That the senate approves and strongly endorses the request by the president in the diplomatic notes of December 18 to the nations now engaged in war, that those nations state the terms upon which peace might be discussed."

DENIAL BY TUMULTY THAT HE "LEAKED" ON THE PEACE NOTE

R. W. Bolling, Brother Of Mrs. Wilson, Denies That He Gave Wall Street Advance Information

Washington.—Sensational rumors of a "leak" to Wall street in advance of President Wilson's peace note were related to the house rules committee by Representaive Wood of Indiana in support of his resolution for an inquiry. He prefaced his testimony with the statement that he had nothing but hearsay evidence to offer and vainly protested against an open session of the committee.

Names and rumored details of the alleged "leak" came thick and fast when Mr. Wood began his story. He mentioned Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson; R. W. Bolling, a brother-in-law of the president; Bernard Baruch of New York and various brokerage houses, crediting most of his information to a letter received from "A. Curtis" of New York.

Statements were issued after the committee meeting by Secretary Tumulty and Mr. Bolling flatly denied the reports regarding them, and Mr. Tumulty demanded that Representative Wood publicly apologize for mentioning his name. Mr. Wood followed with a statement pointing out that he had desired to testify in private, but that those whose names were the subject of the rumor should court the fullest investigation.

Austrian Ambassador Coming Over

Washington.—Count Tarnow-Tarnowski, the new Austro-Hungarian ambassador to the United States, will sail January 13 from Amsterdam.

300 Killed; 1,000 Homes Destroyed

Tokio, Japan.—Three hundred persons have been killed and many injured in a disastrous earthquake in central Formosa, according to special dispatches from Taihoku, the capital of Formosa. It is estimated that one thousand homes have been destroyed. The city of Nanto has been damaged extensively by fire. The island of Formosa lies between the Philippine Islands and Japan and is owned by Japan. The city of Nanto is situated in the central part of the island, and is an important trading center.

Russians Driven Out Of Dobrudja

Paris.—The Roumanian province of Dobrudja now is in the hands of the central powers, whose armies continue to advance through Great Wallachia into Moldavia. Braila, in Great Wallachia and on the west bank of the Danube below Galatz, has been captured by German and Bulgarian troops. Several villages on the outskirts of Braila have been occupied, and Field Marshal von Mackensen's troops have taken over four hundred prisoners in their latest dashes in that bloody sector.

CHANGES REGARDING MEXICO

Certain a New Policy Will Be Adopted In Dealing With The Southern Republic

Washington.—All the threads of the tangled situation between the United States and Mexico are held by President Wilson. The American members of the Mexican-American joint commission have made to him late a personal report of their negotiations, which reached a deadlock, and whether the conferences of the commission shall continue is a question the president has added to those already under consideration, the determination of which will shape the administration's future policy toward the de facto government

Although an authoritative admission to that effect was lacking, it became known that Secretary Lane, Dr. J. R. Mott and Judge George Gray, the American commissioners, considered useless further attempts to effect a settlement of questions at issue through the joint commission.

They submitted to the president a written report of their failure to have ratified by Carranza the protocol providing for withdrawal of the American troops from Mexico and for a cooperation control of the border, and asked him to decide whether they should continue their conferences on other subjects as suggested by Carranza.

It seemed certain that some radical changes in policy would be adopted by the United States. The president continued his consideration of withdrawal of General Pershing's force regardless of Carranza attitude, and of the sending of Henry P. Fletcher to Mexico City to represent the government as ambassador. It is known that neither of these steps would be regarded as inconsistent by the American commissioners.

In anticipation that orders will be issued soon for recall of the troops the war department has prepared a tentative plan of withdrawal. General Scott chief of staff and General Bliss, assistant chief of staff, conferred at length with Secretary Baker, and it was said they discussed a request by the president for a report on what effect, in the opinion of military men, withdrawal of the troops would have.

PEACE CONDITIONS OF TEUTON ALLIES KNOWN TO PRESIDENT

Count Andrassy, Formerly Premier Of Hungary, Says Terms Have Been Stated To President Wilson

London.—President Wilson now knows the peace conditions of the Teutonic allies and the entente powers can learn what they are from him, Count Julius Andrassy, formerly premier of Hungary, is quoted as asserting in a dispatch from Budapest, forworded by way of Amsterdam.

The statement attributed to Count Andrassy was made in a New Year's speech. He said:

"As the entente alleges that our peace proposal was only a maneuver and was not made with any earnest desire to bring about peace. I am able to declare that President Wilson now knows our peace conditions and the entente can learn them from that source."

The version of the Budapest dispatch quotes Count Andrassy as saying that the peace conditions of the central powers will be communicated to President Wilson, the quotation being as follows:

"If the entente rejects our peace offer only because they maintain that our offer is not honestly meant but is a maneuver and that they cannot enter into negotiations before knowing our conditions, they can learn these from President Wilson, to whom they will be communicated."

To Entertain Contest For Governor

Jefferson City, Mo.—Democratic leaders in the Missouri legislature virtually agreed to entertain the gubernatorial contest petition signed by Judge Henry Lamm, of Sedalia, who on face of the returns was defeated by about 2,200 votes.

Wilson Makes Appeal For Red Cross

Washington.—Americans are besought to refill the almost empty European war relief fund of the American Red Cross in an open letter by Woodrow Wilson, as president of the Red Cross, just made public here.

Eight Hours Adopted By Railroad

Laurel, Miss.—The eight-hour day has been put into effect on the Gulf and Ship Island railroad. Switching crews have received notice that eight hours will constitute a day's work, but the pay will remain the same as when ten hours' service was required. A representative of the employees said they do not believe the company contemplates compliance with the general terms of the new law until its validity has been determined by the United States supreme court.

Progress For British On The Tigris

London.—Further progress has been made by the British on the Tigris front, where offensive operations recently were resumed after a long period of quiet during the hot weather Since December 26 operations on the Tigris front have been impeded by heavy rain, which has fallen almost daily and reduced the ground to a morass. In spite of these adverse conditions progress has been made on the right bank of the Tigris, east and northeast of Kut-el-Amara.

ABSOLUTE DENIAL MADE BY TUMULTY

PRIVATE SECRETARY OF PRESIDENT APPEARS BEFORE THE RULES COMMITTEE.

LANSING ALSO MAKES DENIAL

No Definite Knowledge Obtained From Thomas W. Lawson as to the Leak.

Washington.—Through a bewildering maze of intimations and heated colloquies, which turned the hearing into an uproar, the House rules committee wrestled for several hours with Thomas W. Lawson, of Boston, without obtaining any definite information to substantiate the stories of a "leak" on Wall street in advance of the President's peace note.

Earlier in the day, Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson, whose name was mentioned by Representative Wood in the rumors he laid before the committee last week, appeared to give an emphatic statement, indorsed by the President, that he had no knowledge of the peace note before it was given to the press. He also denied the report repeated by Mr. Wood that Mr. Tumulty and Bernard Baruch, a New York broker, had conferred in a New York hotel a few days before the note was made public. Mr. Tumulty denounced the action of Representative Wood in making public charges based on a letter from an unidentified man and declared from the witness stand, looking Representative Wood in the face, that he was still awaiting the congressman's apology.

Lansing is Questioned.

Secretary Lansing of the state department also took the stand to assert that he had no knowledge whatever of advance information having been circulated regarding the peace note. Mr. Lansing, relating the physical history of the note, how it was prepared, through whose hands it passed, and of his participation in its preparation. He also told of a statement he had given in confidence to newspaper men on the morning before the note was made public in which he told them to expect a note at 5 that evening for publication Thursday morning. He did not go into details with the correspondents, he said, but did say that it was not a proposal for peace nor an offer of mediation.

The secretary further stated that he had not given the possible effect of the note on the stock market the least thought, but that he had cautioned secrecy because of the courtesy due to the foreign nations that the communication should not be published here before it had been received abroad.

PROHIBITION WINS VICTORY

Webb-Kenyon Measure Is Upheld by United States Supreme Court.

Washington.—In the most sweeping of all decisions upholding prohibition laws, the supreme court upheld as constitutional and valid the Webb-Kenyon law prohibiting shipments of liquor from "wet" to "dry" states. It also sustained West Virginia's recent amendment to her law prohibiting importation in interstate commerce of liquor for personal use.

After having been vetoed by President Taft, who held it unconstitutional, and having been repassed by Congress over his veto, the law was sustained by the supreme court by a vote of 7 to 2.

Leaders of the prohibition movement declare it is to their fight second only in importance to the proposed constitutional amendment. Lawyers for liquor interests who heard the decision admitted it upheld and applied the law "in its fullest sense."

"BUFFALO BILL" DYING.

Brave Old Plainsman Meeting Death for the Last Time.

Denver.—Cod. William F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) is dying in Denver, facing death in the same manner that he has faced it many times on the plains in the west in conflicts that made his name famous. The colonel heard of the approach of the end of his life from Dr. J. H. East, his friend. He had summoned the physician to the home of his sister, where he is sepnding his last hours.

American Soldiers In Battle.

Laredo.—Four alleged Mexican filibusters were either killed or badly wounded in an encounter with the troops of the First New Hampshire infantry at Zapata, Tex., according to a report reaching Laredo. Army officers here stated, however, that they had no information of the reported fight. The New Hampshire troops, under command of Maj. Orville, doing patrol duty in the vicinity of Zapata, came upon an indefinite number of filibusters crossing the Rio Grande at Zapata.

MEMORABLE YEAR FOR EDUCATION

GREAT VICTORY IN 1916 OF LOCAL TAXATION OPENS WAY FOR PROGRESS.

STATE CAPITAL NEWS ITEMS

—Montgomery.

William L. Feagin, state superintendent of education, took the people of Alabama into his confidence. Simultaneous with the filing of the original of his annual report for the fiscal year of 1917, he made it public and revealed a story of a successful year for the education of the youth of Alabama and predicted a year that would break every precedent if the voters will use the powers and avail themselves of the machinery which was provided for them during the year which has just gone into history.

Mr. Feagin's report goes into every detail of the work of the state department of education. The school population of the state, according to the school census of 1916, was 780,336. Of this number 444,060 were whites and 336,306 were negroes. Total enrollment in the various departments of elementary and high schools was 503,102, or 64 per cent of the total school population. Of this number, 344,481 were whites and 158,621 were negroes. The students were taught in 6,222 school buildings, 4,534 being for whites and 1,688 for negroes. The number of teachers employed was 10,737, of the number 8,142 being white and 2,615 negroes. The school buildings are worth more than $8,000,000, while the amount spent for instruction alone during the year was more than 3,500,000.

Mr. Feagin said the greatest work of the year was the adoption of the constitutional amendment for local taxation and the election of a board of education in each county which will have complete charge of the public school system, including the election of the county superintendent of education. The superintendent declared the new county boards would prove to be an important move upward as they are made up of persons who are interested in the public school system. No member of the board will receive a salary.

Total school funds for the year amounted to $4,595,440, an increase of more than $150,000 over the amount of the year ending September 30, 1915.

Spur Ordered by Commission.

The Alabama Public Service Commission in the case of J. Bice et al. against the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, ordered that a spur or side track be placed on the lines of the road at Bice, about 44 miles north of Montgomery, between Clanton and Tohrsby.

Probate Judges Will Be Changed.

Last election created about the greatest upheaval among Probate Judges of the State that has ever been known in the history of Alabama, according to old statesmen here. Judge J. T. Gorman, State Examiner of Public Accounts and a follower of events in Alabama, figured out the list of counties where there will be new Probate Judges January 15. There ar forty in all.

No Commissions on Dog Tax.

State Auditor M. C. Algood has been in receipt of communications from Tax Assessors asking if, under the law, they are entitled to commission on dog taxes. Mr. Algood is now referring his correspondence to a ruling of Attorney-General W. L. Martin in this connection. That official decided that he could not find any provision in the statute giving the Assessor pay for making such assessments.

Banks Will Handle Funds.

January 15 sixty-four counties will be without a treasurer, and banks will assume the duties of these officials. Three counties retain such officials, Jefferson and Mobile, by reason of the population being over fifty thousand, and Perry County. A local bill was passed by the last Legislature retaining the Treasurer of this county.

Medical Examiners Meet.

The State Board of Medical Examiners met here and held examination of medical students desiring to obtain their diplomas. The board is composed of Dr. W. H. Sanders, chairman; D. L. Wyman and B. S. Talley, of Birmingham; F. W. Welch, of Talladega; I. L. Wattins and Glenn Andrews, of Montgomery; D. P. Gaines and C. A. Mohr, of Mobile; S. P. Gay, of Selma, and L. W. Johnson, of Tuskegee.

Dalvanie Is Paroled.

Governor Charles Henderson issued a parole to A. R. Dalvanie, sentenced to two years charged with forgery from Geneva County, conditioned upon his future good behavior and also that he remain in the service of the State and assist A. A. Strock in the work of prison welfare and to co-operate with Mr. Strock in his efforts to educate and entertain the prisoners of the State. Dalvanie is a man about 40 years of age and an interesting character. He is a magician and sleight-of-hand man.

CHOOSES HORRIBLE MEANS TO END LIFE

BIRMINGHAM MAN SETS OFF STICK OF DYNAMITE IN LAVATORY OF TRAIN.

KILLS SELF AND TWO OTHERS

Several Passengers Are Hurt—Explosion Wrecks Rear End of Steel Coach.

Birmingham, Ala.—Spurred to an act of desperation it is alleged, by the accusing finger of murder, Louis D. Walton of Birmingham determined to end it all behind the locked door of the lavatory of a day coach on the Birmingham Special train of the Southern railway while it was speeding past Fiftieth street in Woodlawn.

But in freeing his being of the pangs of conscience that followed the bitter accusation he set off and unknown high explosive that tore his body into a hundred parts, killed James Davis Oliver, 1512 South Twelfth avenue, and J. Shelby Shelton, 36 Longhorn street, Atlanta, fatally injured, another man and caused superificial wounds to more than 10 passengers who were making ready to halt their journey at Birmingham, Shelton died of a fractured skull and other injudies at St. Vincent's hospital.

J. D Russum, of West End, a cripple before the explosion, is in a serious condition at the hospital, his right ear blown off and his head gashed, a large splinted in his side and his right leg fractured.

James L. Lee, 2731 College street, son of Sidney W. Lee, president of the Alabama Grocery Company, and H. J. Perkner, 231 South Pryor street, Atlanta, were dazed and shocked by the force of the explosion that wrecked part of the all-steel passenger coach, bent steel angle bars and shattered 30 glass windows in the ill-fated car.

Fifteen or more passengers in the coach were cut by the storm of broken particles of glass and fragments of wood that the mighty detonation, with its muffled roar, set into a fury.

The mystery of why Louis Walton elected to blow himself into 100 particles by exploding a heavy charge of dynamite while aboard the Birmingham Special train of the Southern railway was cleared if statements made are true. It was stated that two days before he shattered his body into infinitesimal bits, Walton availed himself of a $10,000 accident policy with the Pacific Life Insurance Company of Los Angeles. The provisions of the policy provided that in event of death or accident on a railroad or other common carrier, the insured was to receive a double indemnity.

New Association in Etowah.

Gadsden.—A livestock association was formed at a meeting held in the courthouse. B. A. Case, of Attalla, was elected president and O. H. Alford, of Alabama City, Secretary. Dr. C. J. Becker, Alabama representative of the federal tick eradication campaign, and Dr. C. E. Morris, county representative of the tick eradication campaign, made addresses. Tick eradication, purchasing highgrade stock and marketing of livestock were named as the steps to be taken in the work.

Albany May Work For New Road.

Albany.—The Albany Chamber of Commerce is expected to take up the matter of building a railroad from here to Somerville at an early date, following the announcement that a rich bed of oil is being worked in the Somerville section. The bed lies in the east end of Morgan county.

Brooks' Body Found.

Mobile.—The body of Chas. Brooks aged 20 years, employed by the New York Central lines, was found drowned in Bayou Jonas. Brooks came here about two weeks ago and went to the home of relatives at Grand Bay to recover from nervous trouble, brought on by over work.

Sand, Indicating Rich Paraffin Oil.

Cordova.—Sands that are indicative of a rich paraffin oil are now being [illegible] out of Well No. 1, near Cor[illegible], by the operations being put on [illegible] former Governor Haskell and associates from Oklahoma, and there [illegible] hopes that when a shot is fired a gusher of oil will be struck.

Mobile.—Representatives of the various railroads entering Mobile, report that there is a big improvement in the car shortage situation due to the change in demurrage rates.

Dothan Struck by Heavy Cyclone.

Dothan.—A cyclone struck Dothan passing through the heart of the city. Considerable property damage was done. Several people were blown down, but deaths resulted.

Many Vessels Dock.

Mobile.—More vessels entered and cleared from the port of Mobile during the past month than at any time since the beginning of the European war ,according to figures made public During the month 62 vessels entered the port and 60 cleared.

IRON PRODUCTION IN 1916.

Birmingham. — The Birmingham District produced in 1916, according to authoritative figures just made up, 2,714,272 tons of pig iron, the largest amount of metal for twelve months in the history of the industry.

The production in December went to 238,360 tons, above the expected tonnage, and in comparison with 233,879 tons of the month before, an increase of 4,481 tons was shown.

The production in the Birmingham district was greatest during October, when 246,827 tons of iron were produced. December was second with 238,360 tons, and November third with 233,879. Had not several blast iron furnaces been banked during the last week of December and some changes made in another furnace or two, the production might have broken the record during the last month of the year.

The iron production in 1915 went to 2,049,453 tons, or just 664,819 tons less than in 1916. The make of iron in 1913 was the greatset for twelve months heretofore, the make then being 2,057,911 tons in Alabama. In 1914 the make went to 1,826,929 tons

OIL DRILLS BEING SET UP.

Entire Western Part of State Deeply Interested in Development.

Birmingham.—Moving of drills already in Walker and adjacent counties in what is termed the oil belt of the district is now well under way, and men or firms with drills are finding no trouble in making contracts for work.

Rigging is now going up on property of the Empire Coal Company while the Banner Oil Company, recently organized, is making a contract for their drilling. The S. A. Hobson Oil, Gas and Pipe Line Company, and the Alabama-Mississippi Oil, Gas and Pipe Line Company have operations under way in Fayette, Winston, Marion, Franklin, Colbert and Lawrence Counties, either drills at work or examinations being made to get a tracing of oil. S. A. Hobson, who has been working on the oil project for many years now in this State, announced that at Atwood, in the northwestern part of the State, the well is down 2,606 feet and at Hamilton, in Marion County, down about 2,000 feet.

GOOD ROADS MEN MEET.

Feasibility of Two Routes in Alabama for Jackson Highway Discussed.

Birmingham.—Good roads advocates from practically every county in northern Alabama attended the meeting in Birmingham January 11 of the Jackson Highway Association. The meeting was held primarily to discuss the feasibility of naming two Alabama routes for the highway.

At the meeting in Nashville last fall the highway was routed through Florence, Ala., and Mississippi to New Orleans. Birmingham, Montgomery and Mobile were not satisfied with the ruling, and have been making a fight for two routes, one along the way of original selection, and the other to come through central Alabama.

These matters were discussed at the meeting in Birmingham January 11, and besides President Peter Lee Atherton, of Louisville, all the members of the Board of Directors were here.

May Own Its Terminals.

Mobile.—After months of planning and investigating various projects suggested for constructing more facilities to meet the needs of the port of Mobile, the city commission has received an opinion from City Attorney R. H. Smith holding that the city cannot guarantee interest on $500,000 bonds to the sum of $25,000 per annum. The attorney also held that the city may issue bonds after approval by the electorate for building such facilities, but not for the purpose of any site to be purchased and held in the name of the state harbor board.

Flagman Hurt in Wreck.

Demopolis.—The west bound freight which arrives at Demopolis at about 9 o'clock, had a wreck in which 12 solid heavily loaded cars of coal left the track and all but one turned over. The wreck occurred about a mile east of Gallion, where the train was making its usual time. The flagman was thrown against the window and cut by glass.

Whiting Concern Formed.

Mobile.—The Gulf States Whiting Company, with a capital of $25,000, has filed incorporation papers in the probate court. The concern will manufacture whiting products at a plant in Crichton, a suburb of Mobile. The whiting will come from beds in Clark county.

Rates Are Suspended.

Washington.—Freight rates on cattle from Birmingham, Ala., and Florida points to Memphis were declared unreasonable by the interstate commerce commission.

Atkinson Is Caught.

Mobile.—Dave Atkinson, a white man, wanted at Monroeville, Monroe County, for breaking jail and grand larceny, has been returned to that place. The prisoner escaped in September, 1915, and was captured at Livingston, Tex.

TRAINING TODAY'S BOYS AND GIRLS

Concerning Your Child's Promises and Their Value.

USED TO AVOID PUNISHMENT

When He Discovers That They Mean Quick Release From Unpleasant Interviews, Then They Will Become Worthless.

By SIDONIE M. GRUENBERG.

"WELL, I won't do it again."

What is there to say after that? You kiss and make up, and in a few minutes the disagreeable interview is forgotten. You do your best to impress your child with the unwisdom or the wickedness of what he has done. You try to be impressive, but you do not feel sure that you have altogether purged the little soul of temptation. You wish, however, to make sure that the offense is not repeated, and you exact a promise. Another time it is something else—assuming authority to punish the younger brother or taking something from the pantry without permission. And again there is an unpleasant conference and again it ends with the promise that the evil deed would not be repeated.

In the course of time your child—who is quite as intelligent as others of his years—learns that the last word in a disagreeable interview has to do with "promising" not to repeat the offense. And as he is anxious to terminate these conversations he applies his knowledge by offering his promise even before you get around to asking it. Not that the child reasons out the connection between the promise and the return of sunshine—there is no more reasoning involved here than in the case of the kitten that learns to come to the saucer of milk.

A dozen times—yes, twenty—your child has promised "not to do it again." And has he kept his promise? Alas, no; for he is just like other children. Up to the present "promise" has meant to him only the ritual that people perform when a prisoner is about to be restored to freedom or when parental displeasure is about to yield to forgiveness and reconciliation. The child has been too young, too inexperienced, to divine your more remote, your more subtle, thought.

But you have been patient. And every broken promise has been forgiven. Until one day it comes upon you suddenly that your child has acquired the habit of making perfunctory promises which neither he nor you expect to be kept. And the fault has been entirely yours.

The futility of asking a child to promise "not to be naughty again," or "to go to sleep at once," or "to come straight home from school" must be apparent to any one who has given the matter a little thought. Is it not sufficient to request the child's immediate return from school? Is it not enough to urge the child to go to sleep at once? Is it not enough to arouse the child's desire to avoid naughtiness? It would seem that we resort to promises in our desire to impress the child with the seriousness of what is expected of him, but in most cases we succeed only in impressing him with our own discomfiture.

If the child is too young to attach any meaning to "promising," there is, of course, nothing wrong in his failure to keep his promises. But in the course of his mental development you expect him to know what a promise is. When this stage is reached the word and the associations should not have cheapened the performance for him. For this reason neither the word nor the act should be forced upon the young child. We should neither exact promises from him as a condition for restoring him to grace or as the cost of favors, nor should we label our promises to him.

It goes without saying that the parent's promises to the child should always be kept. But the temptation to yield to importunities or to distract the child's attention from immediate desires often makes us prophesy favors and indulgences that we do not fully intend to have realized. And it is so easy to concoct a plausible evasion! But it is a dangerous advantage that the parent takes when he thus imposes upon the ignorance and the ingenuousness of the child. For, however plausible your excuses may be, each experience with a parental promise that ends in disappointment drives home the thought that promises are intended only for immediate advantage and not for future obligations.

As the child grows older and comes to understand that "promise" does carry with it an obligation, we should be careful not to burden him with promises that are too difficult to keep. Have him promise less and keep his word up to 100 per cent, rather than get a larger total performance at the cost of a few broken promises. The ability to look forward, to gauge his strength and resources, to plan his time, must not be too heavily strained. It is only gradually that the child learns what he may undertake with a reasonable probability of accomplishment. And in the meanwhile it is unfair to urge the making of promises that must be broken, in whole or in part. The danger, of course, is not that the child will fail in his undertakings, but that he will become indifferent to the sacredness of his promises.

Not only in the gradation of his ability and foresight but also in the evolution of the child's temptations should limits be found for the promises exacted. Don't ask Mabel to promise "never to chew gum;" it is enough to get a promise for a day at a time—never is too long a period, and carries more temptations than the child can anticipate. So with promising to "behave mannerly at table" or to hang up the outer wraps on coming into the house—fix the attention on a single unit of performance, and slowly increase the length of time to be covered by a promise until promises are made unnecessary by suitable habits.

Promises may be helpful instruments in the training of children, but they should not be mere convenient coins with which to bargain for advantages.

MERELY HAD TO RESPOND

Manufacturer's Wife on the Telephone Could Be Trusted to Do All the Talking.

"Take this letter, please, Miss Mushy," said Adam Adamsonny, head of the famous Adamsonny vinegar foundry.

"'Seattle Wicks, Wicksburg, Wick County, Va.—Dear Sir: Yours of the 23d instant received and contents noted, and would say—"

"Wanted on the telephone, Mr. Adamsonny," said Ariovistus, the office boy. "It's Mrs. Adamsonny, sir."

"Tut, tut," tutted Mr. Adamsonny. "This is my busy day. Ariovistus, follow me with the talkaphone. Put in Record No. 33456."

And he went to the telephone and said into it: "Hello, Rhubarba. Yes, my dear. Yes, my dear. Yes, my dear."

Rather quickly for an office boy, Ariovistus appeared with the talkaphone. Mr. Adamsonny adjusted it to the telephone, and, returning to his desk, resumed his dictation. Three times a minute the talkaphone said "Yes, my dear," in Mr. Adamsonny's voice, and Ariovistus stood by to start the record over each time it ran down.

At the end of twenty minutes Mr. Adamsonny rose again, went to the telephone, and said: "Really, my dear, I'm afraid I'll have to return to work now. Yes, my dear, good-by."

And he hung up and winked at the talkaphone and Miss Mushy, who giggled two or three giggles.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

The Fourth Dimension.

The fourth dimension of space is a supposed or assumed dimension whose relation to the recognized dimensions of length, breadth, and thickness is analogous to that borne by any one of these to the other two. Four-dimensional space may be regarded as a hypothetical conception to explain equations of the fourth degree in analytical geometry or as an entity beyond the limitations of ordinary existence. The treatment of the fourth and higher dimensions belongs to the geometry of hyphenface. The conception has been used by some investigators to explain certain superphysical phenomena, which seem otherwise inexplicable.

Filter Used Gasoline.

Because gasoline is so high one wants to save it in every way possible. To prevent waste of gasoline when cleaning garments or other household articles, do not throw the gasoline away. Before you start cleaning get several sheets of filter paper from your druggist. Ask him to show you how to make a funnel; then, when you have finished cleaning, pour the used gasoline through this paper and it will be as free from foreign particles as before used. You will have less in quantity but the same in quality.—Modern Priscilla.

They Didn't Part.

A man out of all patience with one of his servants called him in, and after giving him a sound scolding wound up with the stereotyped phrase: "We must part." The servant stood scratching his head for a moment and then said, with a look of much concern:

"Sorry am I that we must part, yer honor, but if we must, may I make so bold as to ask where yer honor is going?"

The radical got another trial.—Pittsburgh Chronicle.

Secrets of Success in Hair Dressing

The secret of success in hairdressing lies in the accomplishment of graceful lines, no matter by what means, more than in any other particular. The artist in coiffures must study the head and face of his patron and with the resources he has at hand make the contour of the head graceful from every angle of view. A beautifully shaped head may look its best with the hair wrapped about it as closely as possible, so as not to interfere with its contour.

Often the hairdresser succeeds best by placing the hair high, but sometimes this arrangement will not do at all, and he must build the hair out on the crown or mass it at the nape of the neck. Nearly always waves and curls add a charm, but there are exceptions even to this rule.

A coiffure whose inspiration has been handed down through centuries is built on classic lines, as shown in the accompanying picture. The hair is waved for it and brought over the forehead and out on the cheek in accordance with the vogue of the hour. A small knot at the back is surrounded by short curls, and a sparkling pin emphasizes them. A narrow headband of ribbon is a requisite of this lovely style. It might be in satin or velvet in any color, or a narrow band of gold or silver, plain or jeweled. This is one of the coiffures which vie with others at the opera this season, where honors are not easy. For hairdressers are searching the past for ideas and turning out coiffures in many modes.

Many Styles in Furs

The choice in fur sets for this season includes neckpieces and muffs in familiar styles, and many new patterns. In neckpieces especially the designs are odd and novel, including scarfs and capes and fancy collars. The capes are square and extend across the back, with tie ends at the front, as a rule, although there are short, full capes that cover the shoulders. Fancy collars have been developed in the short-haired furs and lined with crepe or chiffon.

Muffs are medium or small, and are usually either flat or melon shaped. But when they are made to match the fancier neckpieces they are brought into harmony by ruffles or drapings of fur. For the smaller neckpieces and muffs that are made up in odd styles, hudson seal, ermine, mole, squirrel, and other smooth furs are chosen.

However attractive these novelties, they are not in the running, so far as popularity is concerned, with scarfs and muffs of fox and other long-haired furs. These are very smart in short, broad neckpieces, with barrel-shaped muffs to match. The scarfs fasten close about the neck and protect the throat and much of the face. Nothing is better liked than a single pelt of the fox, lined with crepe and provided with fastenings that allow it to be worn either high about the neck or draped about the shoulders.

Fine furs should be selected in simple styles with a view to long service. Scarfs of medium width and length and plain muffs never suffer by comparison with more fanciful designs. A handsome fox set is shown in the picture having a flat scarf finished with a head and tail and a muff with a scarf-like drapery. The memory of woman runneth not back to a season when this model would not have been as good style as it is today.

Large Collars Useful.

Large collars make the bodice so negligible a quantity that they are useful things for furbishing up an old frock or for trimming a bodice otherwise plain and unattractive.

There are also certain bib collars that are as voluminous and as kind to a shabby bodice as the cape, and are as a rule rather more becoming than the latter because they do not give the primly severe, long shoulder line. A pretty model in this class has a choker collar of black velvet ribbon knotted at the back. Around the top of this stock run two narrow plaited frills of fine cream net.

The wide, ivory-toned, washable satin collars are still much in evidence and are cut in various shapes and sizes.

PEOPLES TELEPHONE 96.

Have you paid your poll tax? It must be paid by Feb. 1.

We wonder if Mr. Wilson is "watchfully waiting" to hear what Tom Lawson has to tell next in regard to the "leak" investigation.

There will, in all probality, be some important matters to be voted on in this country this year. It might develop that we would have an election to decide on tick eradication, educational tax or comething else equally as important to the voters. You had better not miss paying your poll tax. You would want to vote on such things if they should arise for consideration.

WAR PROFITS IN CORN

A bulletin of the Department of Commerce, just issued shows that for the eleven months ended with Nov. ember, the United States exported corn to the amount of 47,075,000 bushels, valued at $40,791,000 or an average of a little more than 86 cents per bushel. During a corresponding period in 1913, we exported 44,500,000 bushels, valued at $25,900,000 or about 58 cents per bushel. The increase in the quantity of corn exported is slight, but the increase of 28 cents per bushel in the export price is great. It means an increase of about $15,000,000 in income to the corn growers and corn dealers of the country. And this is part of the prosperity that the European war has brought.

"DON'T COUNT YOURCHICKENS"

It is nearly a year before the Sixty-fifth Congress will assemble, if Mr. Wilson can help it—and he controls that situation. Much water, will, meantime, run down the Potomac. Consequently we cannot evoke much interest in the various plans for Republican conferences to determine who shall have our nomination for Speaker when the time comes to select such an officer. It seems to be even-Steven anyway, with the membership of the House; there are just the same number of Democrats as Republicans, and a few unclassified members will hold the balance of the power. Maybe when the time arrives for them to vote, we shall have conditions which shall preclude them for voting for any Democrat for anything. This is a good time to practice, "watchful waiting."

TO REGULATE LIQUOR ADVS.

Hon. James W. Good of Iowa is an enthusiastic prohibitionist. As one of the means to accomplish his ends, he has introduced a bill making it a misdemeanor to send through the mails any advertisement, in a newspaper or separately, of intoxicating liquors for sale. The measure provides a fine of $1,000 and two years' imprisonment for the first offense, and five years' imprisonment for the second offence. A fine of $500 is also imposed on any postmaster who accepts such advertisements for mailing. Mr. Good believes that the severe penaltis provided in the bill will insure its rigid inforcment if enacted into law. Congressman Good has been reelected to the next congress, and while he fears that his bill may not be reached during the present short session, owing to the necessity for the Democrats taking time to pass some sort of revenue legislation, he will reintroduce it at the next session and press it for consideration.

DEMOCRAT POINTS TO DEFICIT

Congressman Fitzgerald, of New York, is rapidly qualifying as the infant terrible of the Democrats. Just whenever some of the majoritystatesmen wishes to make free with the public money, up bobs Fitzgerald to point out an approaching deficit in the Federal Treasury of $300,000,000 and to offer a few pungent remarks on the necessity of piling on more taxes to get the money. There is no doubt about the bad management of the national finance in the last four years. A huge deficit will be the chief contribution which the Democrats can make to the campaign of 1918.

Carranza having recalled Ambassador Arredono from Washington, and Ambassador Fletcher never having gone to Mexico City, maybe the slate can now be wiped out clean and we can begin all over again with the First Chief.

WANTS MORE MEN FOR ARMY

Congressman Thomas S. Butler of Pennsylvania feels that radical means should resorted to to increase the personnel of the Navy so that the new ships recently authorized can be properly manned when put into commission. In Mr. Butler's opinion, after the completion of the present ship building program, we will have a lot of big ships on our hands that will have to be placed in reserve for want of men to handle them. "The personnel is what concerns me more than docks or ships or anything else," said he. "I want to help get these men, and I want to quit running around in circles." Congressman Butler believes that houses should at once be offered to induce men to enlist, and not waste any more time in trying out the theories evolved in the fertile mind of Secretary Daniels.

THORSBY PUBLIC SCHOOL

About six weeks ago each child in the school was given one penny, and asked to increase it as much as possible. This money to be given to the School Improvement Association. $11 was realized. The largest amount raised by one child was one dollar, by Vernon Carlson.

The Honor Roll for the week ending January 5, was as follows:

First Grade: Ostrid Ekblad, Anna Nelson, Loula Gerald, Wilburn Collins.

Fourth Grade: Clyde Robinson, Curtis Billingsley.

Seventh Grade: Earl Collins, Ruth Gerald.

Pay your poll tax before the first of February. You can't pay for this year after that date.

CO-OPERATION AMONG SENATORS' SECRETARIES

Senator William P. Dillingham of Vermont is taking a fatherly interest in the social club which has been formed among the Senators' secretaries, having for one of its objects the holding of a weekly lunch in one of the large hotels in the vicinity of the capitol. Mr. Dillingham has voiced his cordial approval of the organization, remarking that closer acquaintance among the secretaries will result in increased efficiency in each. Senator Dillingham has been invited to attend the next gathering as a guest of honor, and has signified his intention of doing if his senatorial duties will permit.

We have succeeded in making arrangements for two Club Subscription offers during 1917 that are by far and away the best we have ever had to offer our subscribers in connection with THE UNION-BANNER.

The Clubs include the best reading matter the farmer can buy and we offer them to you at remarkably low, and most reasonable prices, as folows:

Club No. 1.

The Union-Banner
Progressive Farmer
Weekly Age-Herald
$1.50

Club No. 2.

The Union-Banner
The Tri-Weekly Constitution
$1.75

Everybody is acquainted with the superb character of the newspapers included in the above clubs. You are bound to know, without any argument or question that there is a wealth of reading and educational matter included in the list (either club) which is of the greatest value to every farmer in the county.

The Union-Banner gives you the news of Chilton county every week, in the true and characteristic fashion of its own attractive local style. It ranks among the best county weekly papers in the state, and we do not hesitate to say that every farmer in the county should read it.

The Progressive Farmer is known all over Alabama and the South as the best farm paper in existence.

The Tri-Weekly Constitution is to the farmer what the daily paper is to the man in the city. It covers the news of the world and brings it to your door 3 times a week.

These two club offers are the only ones we make for this year, and they are made on a strictly CASH IN ADVANCE basis, but they may be applied to either new or renewal subscriptions. If you are already taking either of the papers in the clubs, we can take your renewal at these rates, together with The Union-Banner, and apply it to your subscription for another year.

Orders sent us by mail, when accompanied with money order for the amount of the club, will be looked after promptly, and receipt mailed you to cover same.

FIFTH SUNDAY MEETING

Which was held by the Chilton County Missionary Association, at New Salem Church, December 31, 1916.

10:45. "How to get people to Attend Church," was ably discussed by A. P. Oslin and J. L. Johnson. Many splendid suggestions were offered by these brethren.

11:15. Rev. J. D. Hughes preached an inspiring sermon from 1st Kings, 19th, 9th. His forceful presentation of the question, "What doest thou here?" and his illustration of the Christian going into the "cave" were well worth the sacrifice that anyone made in attending the meeting.

Rev. W. P. Lowery made a very appropriate conclusion.

12:00. At this hour a bounteous dinner was served on the grounds by the people of the community.

1:30. "Importance of Ministers and Deacons attending Fifth Sunday Meetings," was presented by Rev. T. J. Deason. Bro. Deason brought out several good points. One of these was the fact that ministers and deacons were the ordained leaders of the cause, and should meet and exchange ideas and formulate plans for the furtherance of the work.

2:15. The subject of Missions was ably discussed by Rev. Howard Roper for about thirty minutes, and then the subject of orphanage was discussed by Rev. H. G. Williams. The congregation gave good attention and seemed to be intensely interested in these subjects.

After these talks a collection was taken for the orphans home, and $5.25 was contributed.

1. Be it resolved by the visitors that we tender our sincere thanks to the people of the community of New Salem for the manner in which they have entertained the Fifth Sunday Meeting.

2. We commend them for closing the year, 1916 in serving the true God, and we urge all people to fear the "Still, small Voice, saying serve the true and living God.

3. We heartily commend them for the clean grave yard. It has been said by an eminent man that you may know the progress of a community by the appearance of the grave yards.

WM. J. BILLINGSLEY, Chm.
HOWARD ROPER, Secy.

SHERIFF'S SALE, REAL ESTATE

THE STATE OF ALABAMA,
Chilton County.

By virtue of an execution issued out of the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Ala., and to me directed whereby I, as Sheriff of said County, was commanded to make the sum of Three Hundred ($300) Dollars, principal and interest, and to-wit Twenty-two and 15-100 ($22.15) Dollars, costs of suit, the amount of a certain judgment and costs therein obtained at the Fall Term, 1916, of said Court of said County, Alabama, in favor of John W. Mims against P. O. Barrett, I have levied upon and will sell to the highest bidder for cash, at public sale, at the Court House door of said County, between the hours of 11 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m., on Monday, the 22nd day of January, 1917, all the right, title and interest of the above named P. O. Barrett in and to the following described real estate, viz:

Lote two and three and four in block number sixteen of the Gowan addition to the City or Town of Clanton, Chilton County, Alabama, according to the map or plat of said addition now on file in the office of the Judge of Probate, Chilton County, Alabama.

That the levy and sale of said lot four in block sixteen is made subject to a certain mortgage executed by said P. O. Barrett and wife J. Mae Barrett, to J. W. Standfield, and now held by Sam Kaufman as transferee, said mortgage being recorded in Volume 144, Page 237, Probate office of Chilton County, Alabama.

This 19th day of December, 1916.

H. A. HARRIS,
Sheriff.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of that certain mortgage executed on the 12th day of December, 1911, by J. W. Lockhart and his wife, Josephine Lockhart, which said mortgage is recorded in Book 108 of Mortgages, at page 570, in the office of the Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama, I, the undersigned mortgagee, will proceed to sell the following described real estate conveyed to me in said mortgage, at public outery to the highest bidder for cash, in front of the Court house door of Chilton County, Alabama, during legal hours of sale on Monday the 15th day of January, 1917, to-wit:

The Southwest ¼ of the Southwest ¼ of Section 15, Township 21, Range 14, in Chilton County, Alabama.

Said sale is being made to pay the balance due secured by this mortgage and the costs incident to this sale, including a reasonable attorney's fee.

J. P. HAYES,
Mortgagee.

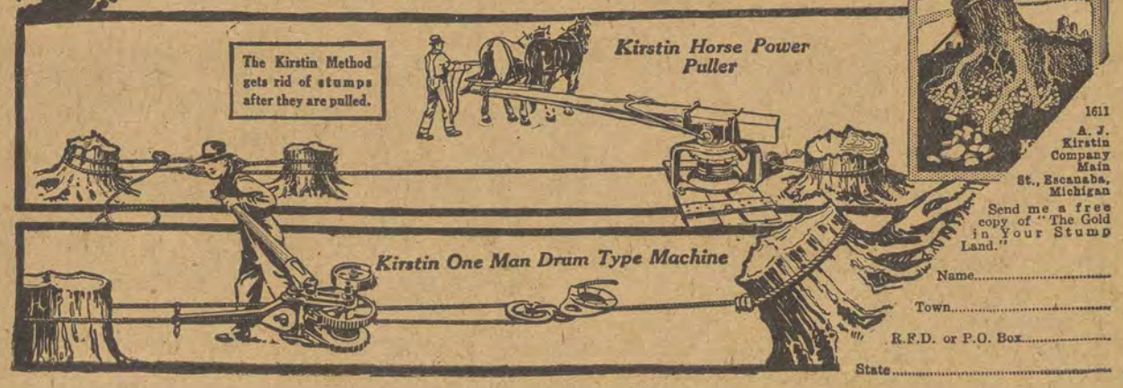
Kirstin Stump Puller
One Man — Horse Power

Every Kirstin is guaranteed for 15 years, flaw or no flaw. Your money back if the Kirstin bond does not live up to its promise. The Kirstin method clears land from 10 to 50 percent cheaper than any other. We guarantee this, too.

For nearly a quarter century the Kirstin Horse Power Stump Puller has proved its superiority on Southern stump lands. Thousands of Southern farmers have been started on the road to prosperity by a Kirstin.

It is designed for Southern work and will pull anything it tackles, be it a thick, green pine, a deeply imbedded tap root or a field of hundreds of heavy stumps. The new triple power and automatic take-up enable it to perform the heaviest work with rapidity, certainty and without strain on man, horse or machine.

The One Man Puller gets the biggest stumps, too. Horses unnecessary. Double leverage gives you a giant's power; a push on the handle means a pull of tons on the stump. Clears an acre from one anchor and clears it ready for the plow.



Have used another well-known make of puller but don't like it as well as my Kirstin. The Kirstin triple power method is much better. I know because I have cleared over 100 acres.

Cripple Who Forgot "Can't."

Twenty-eight years ago F. R. Bigler, who is familiarly known as Bob to hundreds of his friends and admirers in Kansas City, Mo., was conductor on a Western railroad. One day on duty he suffered an accident that resulted in the loss of his right arm just below the elbow and his left foot just above the ankle.

Instead of bending or breaking under the blow Bigler straightway began a most remarkable uphill fight—one that was destined to be of great importance to cripples all over the world. Let him tell you the story of that fight just as I persuaded him to tell it to me:

"The first thing a cripple should make up his mind to do," said Bigler, "is to forget there is such a word as 'can't.' The key to all doors is not 'I will,' but 'I must.'"—American Magazine.

ENTIRELY WILLING TO WAIT.

"Suppose your country needed you at the front. What would you do?" asked the jingo.

"First of all," answered the cautious citizen, "I would estimate the distance between the place where I happened to be and the front. After that I would put my private affairs in order, take fond leave of my family and join the army."

"Umph! By that time all the real patriots would be in the thick of the fray."

"No doubt. As I'm not particularly anxious to die for my country, if it can be avoided, I should hate to stand in the way of large numbers of young men who vow that nothing would suit them better."

Dull Crowd.

"How was the banquet?"

"Rather dull."

"No bons vivants there? No raconteurs?"

"Well, don't know about the waiters, although I suspect some of them were pretty lively fellows, but there were no persons of that sort seated about the board."

Money in It.

"Now, your friend Jibway evidently thinks he knows a great deal, but nobody ever pays any attention to what he says."

"With a few exceptions."

"Name them."

Perhaps some young men yearn
To get into the scorcher's class
So that money they can burn.

"No. I discovered the reason later."

"What was it?"

Heiny—Why do you think so?

Omar—Because they're always advancing.

A Misguided Patriot.

"There goes a stout party worker."

"So they say."

"You ought to hear his wife's opinion."

"Yes?"

"She says if he would work for his family more and his party less, she wouldn't have to run a boarding house."

The Practical Side.

"Ah!" exclaimed the poetical person, "Hark to the footbeats of the rain. 'Tis a pleasant sound."

"Umph," replied the crusty landlord. "So far as I'm concerned, the footbeats of the rain are merely a prelude to the footbeats of tenants, hurrying to my office to complain about roofs leaking."

At the Opery House.

"In the last act the villain was shot and writhed on the floor for nearly five minutes."

"Yes. And he succeeded all right. By the time he finished flopping about the air was thick with dust."

His Turn.

"Pa, I heard ma tell her friends that her silk gown came from a worm, and then she laughed and said you gave it to her. Now she wants another one."

"So I was the worm, eh? Well, just tell her the worm has turned."

Easy Money.

"I am working my way through college."

"Brave girl! How do you earn money?"

"Well, father gives me $10 for every singing lesson I don't take."

How It Happened.

"Dubwaite seems to think well of you."

"That's kind of Dubwaite, but—er—what time did he express a favorable opinion of me?"

"I was talking to him about four o'clock yesterday afternoon."

"Exactly. And not later than five o'clock Dubwaite was in my office asking for the loan of $10. He was simply working himself into a frame of mind which he thought would justify the 'touch.'"

From Bad to Worse.

Hyker—I'd give anything I possess if I could get rid of this case of gout.

Pyker—That's easy. Just move over to my boarding house and I'll wager that liver complaint will soon take the place of the gout.

Hyker—Liver complaint! How's that?

Pyker—Well, our landlady feeds us liver every other day, and it has come to pass that all the boarders are complaining.

Father Was Prepared.

"Did father seem surprised when you told him you wanted to marry me?"

"How does he act when he's surprised?"

"He doesn't say anything."

"No. He wasn't surprised. In fact, he spoke at length."

Moral Sickness.

"Here's a pathetic letter from a 'shut-in.'"

"Ah! One of those unfortunates doomed to spend a lifetime in bed or an invalid chair?"

"Um. Let me read further. It seems he's shut in for ten years, with time off for good behavior."

Yea, Verily!

"As the poet says," remarked the moralizer, "this world is but a fleeting show."

"True," rejoined the demoralizer, "but that doesn't seem to detract the small boy's attention from circus posters."

Popular Air.

Tom—I pulled the governor's leg to the tune of one hundred dollars this morning.

Jack—Would you mind teaching me the tune?

STILL LIFE.

"A moving picture man was out here trying to take some pictures of life on the farm, but he left kinder discouraged."

"Pictures not a success?"

"Not entirely. He couldn't ketch the hired man in motion."

Talented Assistant.

"Now, that was what I call realism on the stage. The villain's death rattle was positively blood curdling."

"True, but don't give the villain credit for it. That noise was made in the wings by a versatile stage hand."

Realistic Touch.

"What's the dancer doing now?"

"She's portraying the advance of autumn."

AFTER 14 YEARS OF SUFFERING

This Lady Tried Cardui. Let Her Tell You in The Following Statement The Results She Obtained.

Wise, Va.—Mrs. J. M. Elam, of this place, in writing of her female troubles, says: "This trouble went on for 14 years, often I was unable to work and suffered badly at . . . times, when I could not be on my feet at all. Really in bad health all the time during those 14 years, and was never without pain, with awful backaching, had no appetite, was nervous, but at that time my husband's sister . . . recommended that I try Cardui, which I began to take . . . and which has caused me to be in better health ever since. In a few days I felt that improvement had begun. My back got stronger and less painful. I got less nervous and my appetite began to improve. In a few weeks my improvement was noticeable, and I got into better health than I had had for 14 years. . . My walking before had been very painful, and could not stand on my feet to do any good. After using these medicines, however, I could walk without pain and was able to do the work and housekeeping for an ordinary family. My back and appetite were better and also my nerves."

IMPORTANT MATTER OF LIGHT

Excellent Reasons Why It Should Always Fall From the Left Side of Writer or Worker.

A well-known fact that, when using the eyes for any near work, the illumination should come from the left side rather than the right, is often disregarded.

Let anyone who considers the matter of little importance once demonstrate to himself the difference and he will never forget it. Take a pencil and paper and try to write while in such a position that the light will fall from the right side.

The shadow of the hand or pencil or both is thrown on the paper in such a way as partly to cover the characters one is making. This necessitates a closer viewpoint and a conscious strain on the eyes. Now let the position of the writer be reversed so that the light falls from the left side.

He will notice that the shadows fall away from the work he is doing and leave the field unobscured. In making the change of ease that immediately is experienced by the eyes.

This applies to any other kind of near work in which the fingers act under the guidance of the eyes. This fact should be remembered in planning schoolrooms, workrooms, offices and any places where steady, close work is to be performed.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET.

A well known actress gives the following recipe for gray hair: To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off. Adv.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of the Sunday School Course in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR JANUARY 14

JOHN THE BAPTIST AND JESUS.

LESSON TEXT—John 1:19-34.

GOLDEN TEXT—Behold, the lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world.—John 1:29.

John began his public ministry in the summer of A. D. 26 and the baptism of Jesus probably took place in January, A. D. 27. The delegation from Jerusalem to interview John must have appeared along toward the latter part of February.

I. John the Witness (vv. 15-18). John's ministry created great excitement. The people were in expectancy. All classes were reasoning as to who this strange but marvelously forceful man might be. Some thought perhaps he was the Christ (Luke 3:15). To settle this question a committee was sent to Jerusalem to investigate. Malachi, the prophet, has suggested the coming of Elijah (Mal. 4:5) before the Messiah should come, and another prophecy indicated that the prophet should be like unto Moses (Deut. 18:16-18). John freely confesses to this delegation that he is not the Christ nor Elijah nor the prophet predicted by Moses. How foolish and silly are those modern ones who profess to be the messenger of the covenant or some other fanciful title, indicating the return of the witness which is to precede the coming of Christ. John exercises humility in the way he states his real position though he does apply to himself the prophecy of Isaiah (Isa. 40:3-5) which sets forth what his mission was to be. A voice can be heard but not seen. With our bodily eyes we never see a spirit. No man ever saw the soul of his nearest friend. We do see God, however, in his works, in his marvelous deliverances and his guidance of the world and his answers to prayer.

II. John the Baptizer (vv. 19-29). As John had denied that he was the Christ or Elijah, the priests and Levites made bold to question his authority at a later time (Matt. 21-23), and still later the authority of the apostles and the priests (Acts 5:28). John answers them with another display of his humility. His baptism in water was nothing to the baptism of the coming one (See Matt. 3:11; Acts 1:5). Though Christ was in their midst, they were blind and did not recognize him. (See vv. 10, 11; ch. 8:19; 16:3). John's baptism of repentance denotes a baptism which a penitent submitted to that he might receive the pledge and assurance that his sins were forgiven. Baptism meant the cleansing of the people from past sins that they might be fitted for entrance into the kingdom. Baptism is not conversion. It is a witnessing and a symbol of a spiritual truth that we are dead unto sin, and have risen to newness of life (Rom. 6:3-5). Like John, our voice must be not only that of humility but it must be really a voice with a message from God, one that sounds an unmistakable note, one that can be heard wherever we go, one that will make men happier, stronger, braver, more like God, to prepare the way for Christ in the hearts of men.

III. The Witness of the Spirit (vv. 28-34). The writer is very explicit, stating the exact time that these things occurred, for he was an eye witness. John first testifies that Jesus was the Lamb of God, referring of course to the sacrificial lamb, the atoning sacrifice of the Old Testament (Gen. 22:7-8; Ex. 12:3; Isa. 53:7). As the Lamb of God, Jesus would take away the sins of the world; thus the thought is primarily that of atonement, a substitution of another and the deliverance from the guilt of sin. The next day after John's witness to the delegation from Jerusalem, he saw Jesus coming unto him, and said to the assembled people, "Behold the Lamb of God." This refers not so much to his character, that of innocence, meekness and patience, as to his office, his completed work of atonement by the sacrificial death wherein he takes away the sins of the world. On the ground of the propitiation for sin which Jesus wrought (I John 2:2; Matt. 20:28; II Cor. 5:21; Gal. 3:13) sin is removed from the sinner as far as the East is from the West. God dealt in mercy with men before Christ's time because of the lamb which was slain from the foundation of the world (Rev. 13:8). Here John says that at first he did not recognize Jesus as the Messiah, but he does bear record that he saw the spirit descending at his baptism, and it abode upon him.

The work of Christ is for the whole world till all its sin is removed.

He is actually removing sin from the world, and when he comes again, sin will be banished. Luke's record adds that this same Messiah is to baptize with the Holy Ghost and fire.

Christians are to be on fire for God.

The gift of the holy spirit at Pentecost was the first and most manifest expression of this power of Christ who is the real baptizer. Begotten of God (Luke 1:35), possessed of all the attributes of the Father (Phil. 2:6), the one in whom the fullness of the Godhead dwelt bodily (Col. 2:9) he is to be honored and worshiped as God (Heb. 1:6).

A GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY

About one year ago two of my children suffered badly from weak kidneys. They would have severe spells of dizziness and were all run down in health. I was just about discouraged. I tried several remedies and finally a doctor but, they did not seem to improve. I knew of a friend who was taking Swamp-Root for kidney trouble with good results and I decided to get some for the children. I had noticed that there was some improvement after they had taken two large bottles and continued to give it to them until they had taken one-half dozen bottles and were well on the road to recovery. I think Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root has done more for my children than any other medicine I have tried and recommend it to anyone having children that suffer as mine did.

Very truly yours,
R. W. LISENBY,
Dothan, Ala.

Personally appeared before me, this 2nd day of July, 1909, R. W. Lisenby, who subscribed to the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and fact.

Prove What Swamp-Root Will Do For You

Send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample size bottle. It will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention this paper. Jack's Substitute.

Jack attained his fifth birthday last summer and in the fall attended school for the first time, wearing kilt skirts. Some of the larger pupils plagued him about wearing dresses, and it was not long before his pleadings for a real boy's suit were granted. He was very proud indeed when he went to school a few days later arrayed in his knickerbockers. One of the girls wrote him a note saying he looked like a little man. That night he was telling his mother about it.

"Mother," said he, "Frances Wright wrote me a note telling me I looked like a little man, and I wrote her one and told her she looked like a daisy, only I couldn't spell daisy, so I spelled cat."

IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.—Adv.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!—Adv.

Johnnie on the Spot.

The young teacher had been living a trying time with her nature-study class because Johnnie had discovered he knew more than she did about birds and frogs, and had assumed a derisive attitude in consequence. She appealed to the man principal, who replied:

"Next time you have the class let me know. I think I can settle Johnnie."

He was duly called in, and all went well at first. With confidence the principal said at the conclusion of the lesson: "Now, you may each ask me one question."

Johnnie had been silent up to this time. When it came to his turn he rose and asked:

"Has a duck eyebrows?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Pink Boll Worm Discovered in Coahuila, Mexico.

GREATEST MENACE TO STAPLE

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The pink boll worm, the presence of which in the state of Coahuila, Mexico, 200 miles south of the Texas border, has recently been determined by specialists of the U. S. department of agriculture, is a comparatively new cotton pest, having spread from India to Egypt about eight years ago.

It has already spread to practically all cotton-producing countries in the world except the United States.

And its establishment in Mexico presents one of the greatest menaces which has come to American cotton culture in its history. This insect in India, Egypt, Hawaii and other foreign cotton-producing countries, has shown a capacity for damage exceeding that of the boll weevil.

Recognizing the possibility of introducing the pest into this country in cotton seed, seed cotton, and cottonseed hulls, the United States has prohibited for several years the importation of these products from all cotton-producing territory except six states of northern Mexico. For the same reason cotton lint from such countries has been admitted into the United States only at certain northern ports and after fumigation. New amendments to quarantine regulations, which became effective November 4, extended the prohibition against importing seeds, seed cotton, and hulls to the previously excepted Mexican territory, with the exception of that portion of the Imperial valley south of the Mexico-California line. This area is continuous with the Imperial valley of California, is devoted to the culture of the same kind of cotton, and is largely settled by Americans. In view of the unity of cotton culture in the valley and the entire separation of the Mexican portions of the area from continental Mexico by the Gulf of California and wide expanses of desert country, it was not considered necessary to change the existing regulations there. The growers of this valley on both sides of the international line, however, have been warned of the danger and it is expected naturally will refrain from any traffic, if such exists, in cotton or cotton seed and seed products from those parts of Mexico against which the quarantine has been promulgated.

Movement of Cotton Seed.

As to continental Mexico, however, involving the five states of Nuevo Leon, Coahuila, Durango, Chihuahua and Tamaulipas, the discovery of the pink boll worm in the Laguna district makes it absolutely imperative that further movement of cotton seed and hulls be stopped. This has been effected by the order issued by the secretary of agriculture, revoking the amendments to the cotton seed quarantine which permitted such movement of seed from these states. The control of the movement of lint cotton from these states of northern Mexico has been effected by a revision of quarantine regulations which will necessitate the transportation by water route of Mexican cotton intended for the United States to specific northern ports of entry where disinfection and compliance with the other features of the regulations can be made.

The Laguna district, where the insect has been discovered, represents one of the most important cotton-producing areas in Mexico. It is an elevated plateau region near San Pedro in central northern Mexico. Cotton culture is there more intensively prosecuted than anywhere else in Mexico, and it is possible that this very interest in cotton culture has led to the introduction of the pink boll worm in the effort to get improved cotton varieties from Egypt or other foreign sources. The discovery that the worm exists in Mexico resulted from the sending by a planter of the Laguna district to the federal horticultural board for determination some cotton bolls from his plantation which he supposed to be infested with the common boll weevil. An examination of this material showed that the infesting in-

The pink boll worm hibernates in the larval state in the seed, and in this way is readily carried to any quarter of the world by seed exportation. The adult insect is a small moth. The worm attacks the immature cotton bolls, and, in severe cases, reduces the yield 50 per cent. In addition to this, the amount of oil obtained from the seed of infested cotton is lessened from 15 to 20 per cent.

The department of agriculture urges that all cotton interests give assistance to the federal authorities in preventing any movement in violation of the new amendments of cotton seed, cottonseed hulls, seed cotton or cotton lint from Mexico into the United States.

ROTATION AND MANURE BEST

To Maintain Economical Productiveness of Land It Should Both Be Manured and Rotated.

(By M. F. MILLER, Missouri College of Agriculture.)

In one of the experiments at the Missouri agricultural experiment station corn has been grown for 25 years on the same plot of ground with an application of manure averaging about seven tons annually. In comparison with this, corn has been grown in various rotations without manure. A summary of the yields for the last six years on these plots shows that the average yield of corn on the rotated plots is greater than the average yield of corn which has been grown continuously with manure. In other words rotation has been somewhat better than heavy manuring in this experiment. The last six years of the quarter century have been chosen for comparison since one of the rotations is a six-year rotation and since this number of years is sufficient to largely overcome seasonal variations.

It should not be understood from these results that rotation is sufficient to maintain the yield of corn. As a matter of fact there are other plots in this same experiment which have been both rotated and manured. The average yields of these plots is very materially above rotation alone. The important points are, that rotation is more important than fairly heavy manuring in the long run, but that it is not all-sufficient; that in order to maintain land in productiveness economically, it should be both rotated and manured, while in many cases commercial fertilizing materials applied in addition to the manure will give still further return.

LAYING PLANS FOR ORCHARD

Select Site and Get in Touch With Experiment Station as to Best Varieties to Plant.

We hope you're laying plans now to have a "sure-enough" orchard hereafter. Why not select your orchard site, get in touch with your state experiment station in regard to the best varieties, determine how many of each you will need, order at the proper time, and then by the right kind of attention insure plenty of healthful, wholesome fruit hereafter?

And while we're talking of tree-planting, one of the finest investments you can possibly make will be to buy some paper-shell pecan trees. In nuts yielded, as a shade tree and as an ornament, the pecan is one of the very finest of trees. You, your children and your grandchildren will bless the day you plant them.—Progressive Farmer.

WHITE GRUBS ARE NUISANCE

When Pests Once Get Into Field There Is No Way of Protecting Crop—Rotation Is Best.

When white grubs are once in the field there is no way of protecting the crop. There are, however, methods that will greatly reduce the damage in succeeding years. Crop rotation and fall plowing are best.

Hogs and chickens like the grubs and quickly reduce the number in fields in which they are kept.

MAN WINS BACK BRIDE HE LOST

Secret Vow Made in Divorce Court Led Husband to Make Good.

HAD LIVED TOO HIGH

L. F. Reynolds of Los Angeles Weathers Business and Family Crash and Returns After Three Years to Wife and Son.

Los Angeles.—Renewing a romance which hinged on a secret agreement made at the time of their divorce in Denver, Colo., three years ago, Linn F. Reynolds of this city and his former wife have just been married the second time.

"She told me that if I would go away and make good we would be married again," said Reynolds. "Now we have carried out our promises to each other—promises known to none but God and ourselves. Three months before the decree was granted, our little son, John David, was born, and it was that little mite of humanity, more than anything else, that determined us to live down the past and make a new home."

Lived Beyond Their Means.

When Louise Lawlor married Linn Reynolds, she was a popular society girl, just twenty years old, the daughter of a wealthy manufacturer of Denver. Reynolds, twenty-two years old, was in business and was making $4,000 a year. But he and his bride had not learned to value money, and lived far beyond their means. Soon the crash came. Reynolds was left without a dollar and heavily in debt. This, with other complications, made trouble for them which ended in the divorce court. But before they parted they agreed that, if the husband lived down the past, some day they would marry again.

"For awhile after the divorce," said Reynolds, "I kept slipping until I was down and out completely. Everybody was knocking me, and the world looked pretty blue. Finally I borrowed enough money to leave Denver and go to San Francisco. But I failed in every effort I made to get along. Discouraged and almost penniless, I went to Los Angeles, and there for six months I all but starved, working as an extra at six dollars a week in motion picture studios. It seemed as if fate had decreed that I must never again see my wife and baby."

Husband "Came Back."

But one day Reynolds saw his chance, took advantage of it, and won out. Stories of his success reached his former wife. Yet not one word did they write each other until a short time ago, when Reynolds sent her a letter reminding her of their secret promise, declaring that he still loved her, and that he wanted to hear his little boy call him "daddy."

The very next mail brought the girl's answer, and a few days later she was in Los Angeles with curly-headed John David.

WANTED SON IN CHAIN GANG

Georgia Mother Preferred That to Having Him Sent to the Reformatory.

Atlanta, Ga.—"Try my boy for bootlegging and send him to the chain gang, judge, but don't send him back to that reform school," was the plea made before Judge Johnson by the mother of D. A. Dougherty, an eighteen-year-old boy, who was brought before the recorder on a charge of having failed to return to the reformatory after having been given a leave of absence to have his teeth fixed at Atlanta.

His mother charged that he had been given 30 lashes and put on bread and water and that he had been forced to work "like a dog" at the reformatory.

Just an Accident.

Two boys had indulged in a physical encounter on the playground. At the end of the affray they were summoned before the teacher to give an account of their misdeeds. One of them had a bloody nose. The teacher looked upon this sanguinary feature with horror, and endeavored to instill in its inflictor certain pacific principles.

"Now, Bill," she said, "I think you ought to apologize to Jimmie."

"Huh! I ain't a-goin to apologize for no accident!" Billy answered.

"Accident. Why, Billy, how can you call it an accident? Didn't you intend to hit Jimmie on the nose?"

"No, mom, I didn't. I swung fer his eye an' missed!"

Naturally.

"Hence the howl about it?"

Marjorie—"What do you think John said, Daddy, when I told him that when we were married I wanted a city residence, a country place, six autos and a lot of servants?"

Daddy—"Well, what did the paragon say?"

Marjorie—"He said that if I would sleep more on my right side I wouldn't have such dreams."

How Gallieni Cut Infant Mortality.

When the recently deceased General Gallieni became governor general of Madagascar in the early nineties, he was appalled at the unsanitary condition and the high death rate. Though a soldier and not a physician, he set about to remedy these conditions.

He obtained the happiest results in his campaign against infant mortality. He had native women trained as midwives and he established and popularized maternity hospitals. He regulated marriages and restricted divorce. He exempted the fathers of five children from taxation and he taxed bachelors instead.

These and many other works produced such a change that the French Academy of Medicine awarded him a gold medal, a most exceptional distinction for one who was not a doctor.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" FOR LIVER AND BOWELS

Cure Sick Headache, Constipation Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath—Candy Cathartic.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get relief with Cascarets. They immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean; stomach sweet and head clear for months. They work while you sleep.—Adv.

A Great Discovery

(BY J. H. WATSON, M. D.)

Swollen hands, ankles, feet are due to a dropsical condition, often caused by disordered kidneys. Naturally when the kidneys are deranged the blood is filled with poisonous waste matter, which settles in the feet, ankles and wrists; or under the eyes in bag-like formations.

As a remedy for those easily recognized symptoms of inflammation caused by uric acid—as scalding urine, backache and frequent urination, as well as sediment in the urine, or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, gout, it is simply wonderful how quickly Anuric acts; the pains and stiffness rapidly disappear.

Step into any drug store and ask for Anuric, many times more potent than lithia and eliminates uric acid as hot water melts sugar.

A WOMAN'S BURDENS are lightened when she turns to the right medicine. If her existence is made gloomy by the chronic weaknesses, delicate derangements, and painful disorders that afflict her sex, she will find relief and emancipation from her troubles in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. If she's overworked, nervous, or "run-down," she finds new life and strength. It's a powerful, invigorating tonic and nervine which was discovered and used by an eminent physician for many years, in all cases of "female complaints" and weaknesses. For young girls just entering womanhood; for women at the critical "change of life;" in bearing-down sensations, periodical pains, ulceration, inflammation, and every kindred ailment, the "Favorite Prescription" is guaranteed to benefit or cure.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure biliousness.

THORSBY ITEMS

Mr. Austin Parsons, who has been attending Howard College, stopped over in Thorsby last week, on his way to other points in Chilton and Kilmore Counties.

The annual meeting of the United Protestant Church was held last Wednesday night. The members of the church and congregation gathered at the churchfor an informal supper and social occasion, after which came the annual business meeting, with the election of officers for the ensuing year. Reports from all departments of the church work indicated that progress had been made during the past year. The Treasurer reported sufficient funds in the Treasury to meet the obligations and a small balance left over. The following officers were elected: Deacons, S. E. Norton and C. A. Peterson, Clerk, E. W. Butler, Treasurer, P. K. Villadsen, Sunday School Superintendents, J. L. Winslow and Uriel Williamson, Trustees, M. J. Barrett, J. M. Graham and S. E. Norton.

At the Congregational church last Sunday the following new members wer received: Mrs. Martha B. Hunter, Messrs, Uriel Williamson, Cowan Woodham, Raymond Kicklighter and Walter Morgan. The communion service was also celebrated with a sermon by the pastor on the topic, "In Remembrance of me." Rev. J. M. Graham preached at the evening service on the topic, "Walking with God."

Mrs. George Phalan, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Sweeny Howard, returned to her home in Tuscaloosa the latter part of last week.

The following new pupils registered at Thorsby Institute last week: Buren Brown and Carl Wood of Phil Campbell, Cary Speer of Maplesville and Albert Linderman and Rube Kilgore of Joppa. Some other students are expected this week.

Dr. Howard C. Junkerman, who has been practicing dentistry in Gadsden for some months past, has moved his office back to Thorsby.

The Thorsby Institute basket ball team defeated the Pleasant Grove team in an exciting game on the court of the Pleasant Grove School Saturday afternoon by the score of 13 to 9. A wagon load of girls from the dormitory accompanied by Prof. Herbert and some of the young men from the Institute showed their interest in the team by accompanying them to the game. The following is the detailed score:

The entertainment by Miss Bargelt of the Redpath Lyceum last Monday night was well attended and enjoyed by all present. The next number of the entertainment will be given by Edward Reno, the Magician, Monday, Feb. 12.

The Executive committee of the Christian Endeavor Society met at the home of Miss Lorena Graham last Sunday afternoon, and planned some forward movements in the work of the society. They voted to observe Christian endeaver week, Jan. 28 to Feb. 4, by some special services, to be announced in detail later.

There will be no preaching service at the Congregational church next Sunday night. The congregation are urged to attend service in one of the other churches. Morning services and Christian Endeavor will be held as usual.

Louis N. Kent Has Cut Out Doctors

Honoraville Man Writes How He Does It

Up until a short while ago Mr. Kent gave a large part of his salary to doctors, but now he spends that money for more useful things. He writes: "I deem it only just to say a few words in praise of Granger Liver Regulator. It is a great saver of doctor's bills. I have tried the Regulator and I know what I am talking about. I shall keep it in my house as long as I can get it." If you want to save your health and your money, ask your druggist about Granger Liver Regulator. He'll tell you.

TELEPHONE NOTICE

The Directors of the several telephone lines are requested to collect and pay in the POST RIGHT funds as early as possible, in order that 'phone holders can pay the central fee and get their receipts when they come in.

The time for paying central service is extended to January 15, 1917.

A SMOOTH, HAIRLESS SKIN FOR EVERY WOMAN

From Beauty Secrets.

With the aid of a plain medol paste it is an easy matter to rid the skin of unsightly haiary growths. The paste is made by mixing some water with powdered medol. This is applied to the hairs not wanted and after 2 or 3 minutes rubbed of and the skin washed, when every tarce of hair will have vanished. When you go to your druggist for medol be sure you get the genuine article, and if he will not supply you, the American Proprietary Co., of Boston, will send you a 50c or $1.00 package by mail.

A WEEKLY FARM LETTER WRITTEN FROM AUBURN ON INTERESTING TOPICS

News of Progress of Scientific Farm Methods will be Given our Readers.

Auburn, Ala. Jan. 27.—Announcement has just been made that Hon. William Jennings Bryan will deliver an address before the students and townspeople of Auburn on the thirty-first of January.

Mr. Bryan was to have been the speaker in the great Auburn Home-Coming in 1913, but the affairs of State prevented his attending. In expressing his regrets, he stated that he would like to appear before an Auburn audience at some future time so, when it was announced that he would be south on a trip in January, Dr. Thach invited him to address the Auburn students on January 31, and in accepting the date, Mr. Bryan expressed his appreciation of the invitation.

Mr. Bryan is one of the most eloquent orators on the American platform, and is a leader in all great moral movements. He has been credited with the securing of the nomination of Woodrow Wilson at the Democratic Convention in Baltimore, and with having been an important factor in the great Democratic victory last fall.

That Alabama can produce the very finest grade of butter was shown in the recent butter contest held at the Georgia Agricultural College. Alabama had four creameries represented and they received the four highest scores, which were as follows:

Selma Creamery—93½; Kratzer Creamery 93;Auburn Creamery 93; Talladega Creamery 92.

The success of Alabama Creameries in taking all four of the "places" in the contest, with entries from Georgia and Florida, has elicited much favorable comment, and it is a stimulus to the dairy movement.

Auburn was well represented at the State Horticultural Society meeting in Mobile this week. Among the men in attendance were Prof. G. C. Starcher, Prof. J. C. C. Price, Prof P. O. Davis, Dr. George W. Pelter, Dr. W. E. Hinds, Dr. W. J. Robbins, Prof. R. U. Blassingame.

Problems of the Southern farmer were discussed at the meeting of Agricultural workers in New Orleans during the week. President C. C. Thach, Dr. C. A. Cary, Prof. M. J. Funchess, Dr. B. B. Ross, and Prof. J. F. Duggar represented Auburn at the conference, which is the eighteenth annual convention of Southern Agricultural Workers.

Prof. J. C. Ford, Pig Club Agent, is now in North Alabama where he has much interest in the Pig Club work.

Prof. M. Thomas Fullan, Department of Machine Design and Drawing is preparing "Working Drawings" to be used in the Manual Training Departments of the High Schools of the State.

TRUSTEES-TEACHERS ASSOCIATION MEET

A meeting of the above Association is called to meet at the high school auditorium, at Clanton, on Saturday, February 10th, 10:00, a.m.

The officers are to be elected and some matters of importance are to discussed. No Program has been arranged.

Any member can propose any subject or ask any question in line with the occasion. Every trustee, especially, is urged to be present.

FROM CHILTON BOY WITH UNCLE SAM IN ARIZONA

The Union-Banner has been handed a letter from Stoughton Bice, who is with the U.S. National Guard, in Arizona, which he wrote his brother at home. We were requested by his father, Mr. J. Bice, to print some parts of the letter, which might interest the friends of the young soldier.

His Letter.

Among other things he says:

"Nobody has a hard time in the army, if they act right. If anyone gets it in their head to do as they please and disobey orders at will, then it gets very warm and disagreeable.

"Uucle Sam always provides for his men, and furnishes plenty of body and bed clothing. Of course, it is not like a bed at home, but I have no kick to make. and every soldier gets the same allowance.

"The fellows that write back home squeak about getting rough treatment and being cold at night. They are not men enough to stand the army life. The army would have a higher standard if they could get rid of all such.

"It is true that there is a few in the hospital, but you know that every man is boss of his own body, and if he chooses to expose himself and catch all kinds of dicease, that is just his hard luck.

"There is no better climate than this, but at the same time, it is very dangerous until one becomes climatized. There is no cure for pneumonia in this altitude, and if anyone contracts it, they might as well swap their overcoats for the 'black box" for it is only a matter of a few days.

"All troops stationed here have been ordered to stay away from town after 5:00 o'clock, and if they are in town any time during the day, they are bidden to go to any pool-room or picture show.

"That is an account of a very dangerous disease raging just across the line called Typhus. It starts with the back-ache, then pimples break out on the abdomen, then the fever sets in. After the fever starts the victim only lasts about 24 hours.

"The people at home need not worry about me, for I take the doctor's advice, and am very careful, because I am still young and life is very sweet.

"I put in application for a discharge in order to enlist in the 12th Infantry Band. I don't think they will transfer me until the Alabama troops start for home. In case they should, I would be granted a thirty day's furlough.

General Funston, commanding the entire eastern division of the U. S. Army, accompanied by Captain Fitz Hugh Lee will be here Tuesday, and inspect our boys and the 12th Infantry.

"Will be glad of the chance to see some of the old fighting boys that descended from the blood that did so much toward making our history.

The "Alabama" Boys.

In another letter he gives an idea of how "Alabama" Boys are regarded on the border, as follows:

"Everything is on the quiet around here. Sometimes an Alabama boy will get a little boozy and beat up a regular or a Mexican. Our outfit sure has a rough name. All you have to do is to yell 'Alabama,' and no one wants to bother you, for this sure is a fighting bunch. The regulars are all friends to us now for they have found out that it pays.

"We leave here Tuesday for a ten days hike. When out that way, we live as if in war, every man carrying his whole outfit on his back,

"From our camp we can see the target range in the distance and it is quite a treat to watch the big shells burst as the artillerymen practice. Last night I saw the search light practice. This affair is a bomb-shaped object and when fired into the air, after attaining a certain elevation, it explodes and drifts slowly back to the earth, casting a brilliant light for miles around. In case of a night attack these automatic searchlights quickly disclose the enemy, and warfare can be carried on as in the day-time. All this preparedness is costing the government an immense sum of money, but at the same time, will rank the United States with the leading military powers of all the world."

"With best regards,

"STOUGHTON BICE."

NEGRO WOMEN ENGAGE IN CUTTING AFFRAY

Two Clanton "Yaller gals" got into a mix-up the other day—Friday, we believe, and the result was that one of the dames emerged in a somewhat sliced condition.

One of her ears was amputated, the side of her face split open, and half a dozen stabs and cuts on the arms and other parts of the body.

One was taken in charge by the Sheriff, and the other by the doctor.

They were fighting about "Slick" McCall.

MINOOKA

Minooka is steadily forging to the Front.

Our Sunday School is the best ever known at Minooka. We are developing our push, and of course the pull is taking care of itself.

Have you tried this method? If not, do so, and you will have as good a Sunday School in winter as in the milder seasons of the year. There is nothing better than a good community leader, and have it in the person of Prof. F. B. Williams.

Our public school was on a boom last week. We had with us for the week-end the charming and efficient teacher of Oak Grove, Miss Phala Belle Roper. And believe me, what a team she and Prof. Williams make. We would like to have them both to teach for us all the time, and then, what a fine school we would have!

Come again, Miss Roper. We will be delighted ot have you with us again.

We are working hard for a library and have almost enough now to get it. This shows the interest and efforts of our teacher in the school.

Here is the list of those that have contributed to the funds:

Prof. F. B. Williams, $1.00; Mrs. Kinman, public collection, $.50; W.M. Kinman, $.50; W.E. Broadhead, $.50; Dourice Anderson, one hen, $.40; Charlie Busby, one hen, $40; Dock Horton, one hen, $.40; Burber Kinman, one hen, $.40; Jessie Creel, one hen, $.40; Louis Busby, eggs, $.25; Harris Anderson, eggs, $.10; Pupils, eggs, $.50; Profit on cold drink stand by L.F. Broadhead, $3.25; Mrs. McDonald of Clanton High School, $.25; Mrs. Bertha Howard, $.25; Lorenzo Cobb, $.25; J.W. Blankenship, $.25. Total Collections $9.70.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your patience, I will close.

RURAL SCHOOL PROGRESS IN ALABAMA AS IS SEEN BY THE SUPERINTENDENT

Feagin Mentions Many Things Of Important Note From All Over the State.

A compilation of the results secured from the Uniform Seventh Grade Examination held in the state for the season of 1915-'16, compared with the results of the year 1914-'15, shows remarkable progress in this important rural school movement.

During the session of 1915-'16 examinations were held in fifty-five counties; 4,668 pupils took the examinations and 3,048 seventh grade diplomas were issued.

During the session of 1915-'16 sixty county boards authorized examinations; 6,136 pupils stood and 3,961 passed successfully.

Butler, Coffee, Franklin, Hale, Limestone, Morgan, and Perry are the only counties in which examinations were not held in the year 1915-'16. The Department has assurance that at least three of these counties will hold examinations during the present school year.

Many of our boys and girls have left the rural schools because of the lack of a definite goal toward which to work. The Seventh Grade Diploma, to some extent, supplies this goal. If our county boards will give them proper official recognition, and County Superintendents will sufficiently popularize the uniform examinations, we shall soon find a great percentage of the boys and girls of the rural schools of Alabama completing the course prescribed.

Franklin County Blazes the Way.

Just two months and sixteen days after the passage of the local tax amendment, Franklin County demonstrated to the people of Alabama her willingness to tax her wealth for the education of her children.

Last year the rural districts of this county enjoyed school privileges for only seventy-five days with fees and supplements.

The splendid majority given the three mill levy in Franklin County alone justifies the position taken by the local tax advocates.

Should Our Rural Schools Run Six Days in a Week?

We give below a clipping from an article in the January issue of the North Carolina Education, which was written by M.L. Eearly, of Clemmens, N. C.

"Regardless of what other states may do, it seems to me that the southern rural school, on account of our system of farming and our climate, is chained to a comparatively short term for the present and future. Our larger boys are needed on the farms much of the year. Frankly, who is to hired to take their place, and often, where is the pay for hiring to come from? We had just as well face the facts.."

"But I do see one sensible way by which we can lengthen our school work and still keep the terms short—run six days in the week, just as all other business enterprises do. Why not? Verily I do believe our children would not be overworked. From personal observation and experience this seems to be the best present means of lengthening our rural terms. To the five-day system (taken from the ancients) we are bound only by custom. To the six-months term we are bound largely by the necessity of our system of farming and climate."

Is not the thought set forth by Mr. Early applicable to conditions in Alabama as they exist today? If so, then would it not be well for our county boards to take the matter under consideration before the beginning of another school year? We are coming more and more to believe that good common business sense is desirable even in school affairs.

COMMISSIONERS WANT TO CONFER WITH THE PEOPLE

Meeting called for Discussion of Financial Condition of the County. ..Will try to find Remedy.

THE STATE OF ALABAMA,
County of Chilton.

Whereas Chilton County has a past due indebtedness of $70,000.00, or more, and no money in the Treasury with which to pay it; and the County is three years behind with its payments and its warrants are discounted at 40 per cent; the County's credit is such that it is paying for material and work forty per cent above a cash basis;

Therefore, be it resolved by the Court of County Commissioners, in regular session, on this the 15th day of January 1917, that a mass meeting of all voters of said county is hereby called to assemble at the Court House on Saturday, February 3, 1917, at 10 o'clock a.m. for the purpose of considering and devising ways and means to pay off debts and restore the credit and put the County on a cash basis.

OBITUARY

On December 31, 1916 the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Tippett, and wafted the spirit of their little daughter, Hattie Belle to the great Beyond.

She was sick with meningitis for about three weeks. Her sufferings which were great were endured patiently.

She was a bright, sweet-tempered little girl of seven years.

She will be greatly missed, but we should remember that the Lord doeth all things well.

A MILLION BALES OF COTTON FOR ALABAMA NEEDED THIS YEAR.

Wade Says Farmers Can Bring Back Favorable Conditions By Using Proper Efforts.

It will take a million bales of cotton per year to keep Alabama in a normal financil condition. This sum can be grown in excess of the diversified crops sufficient to produce a living at home, and in spite of the boll weevil. Alabama farmers have seen the worst of it last year with the boll weevil all over the state as bad as they will ever be and the worst July weather ever known. Conditions will improve as favorable seasons return. Help us make a million bales of cotton this year and help yourselves to enjoy prosperity once more.

How?

1. Begin at once to destroy the old stalks and ohter litter by plowing them under or burning them. Burn the hedge rows, ditch banks, and burn around dead stumps, trees and logs. Utilize every pretty day this winter, cleaning up and plowing as the soil will permit. Thorough preparation, a medium early start, and determined efforts will make cotton. They succeed in all other states that have boll weevils. Why not in Alabama?

2. Reduce your crop to six or eight acres to the plow, and make the rows one foot wider than you expect the cotton to grow in heighth.

3. Prepare a well pulverized seed bed and plant as early as the season will permit.

4. Plant pure seed of early varieties like Triumph, Cleveland Big Boll, Toole, King and Simpkin.

5. Fertilize a little heavier and put part of the fertilizer in with the seed to start the crop quickly. If only two hundred pounds of fertilizer are used per acre, apply with the seed.

6. Keep cotton off of damp, rich land that makes too much weed, as moisture, shade and tender growth is the weevil's ideal place.

7. Pick the weevils out of the buds of the plants a week before squares begin to form.

8. Pick up and burn the infested squarest he same week that the first blooms apear.

9. Cultivate shallow and once a week until August or later.

10. Successful cotton culture is now a matter of the man, his intelligence, determination and ability to apply his efforts at the time which will accomplish the greatest results.

11. Do not forget your food and feed crops, hogs, and cattle.

J. A. WADE,
Commissioner of Agriculture.

DR. GRAGG MOVING

Dr. Gragg is moving his office from the Hayes building, across the Street to the office formerly occupied by Dr. Hopkins. In his new location, he will have the advantage of ground floor accommodations, and invites his friends and patrons to call on him at any time.

ROBINSON GETS COMMISSION

Mr. James E. Robinson, who was recently appointed as postmaster of Clanton, to succeed Mr. B. M. Roberts, resigned, received his commission Wednesday signed by President Wilson and Postmaster General Burleson. Mr. Robinson now carries full responsibility and authority of his position.

SAYS OFFICERS NEGLECTED DUTY

GOVERNOR HENDERSON ASKED RECALL OF EVERY ONE NOT ON DUTY.

DID NOT LOOK WELL TO HIM

Chief Executive Says Absence of So Many Officers and Illness of Troops Looks Bad.

Montgomery, Ala.—Declaring that while sickness was at the greatest point among the Alabama soldiers on the Mexican border, ranking officers were away on leaves of absence, Governor Henderson, in a statement on conditions among the soldiers announced that he had requested the commanding officer of the division to revoke the leaves of absence and to require the Alabama officers to return to their commands among their soldiers.

"It did not appear to me as the best for the spirit and moral of the brigade that the officers should absent themselves at such tiime, and I have requested the commanding officer of the division to revoke all furloughs heretofore issued commissioned officers," said Governor Henderson. "As I view the situation, the officers need the training more than the men. The officer's first duty being to look after the men.

"No matter how well trained the rank and file may be, unless they have efficient officers they can never render efficient service."

Road Survey to Start.

Eufaula.—The survey of the proposed highway from Eufaula to the Bullock County line, by way of Clayton and Mt. Andrew, will be started by Civil Engineer Garrett. It is expected that between $15,000 and $20,000 will be sent on this road, the major portion to be furnished by the state and government. The total length of the road will be 30 miles and will open up some new farming territory along a distance of about fifteen miles, which is now without a good road and has been held back from development on that account.

Hutchin's Death An Accident.

Tuscaloosa.—That Rev. John Hutchins, the Birmingham Baptist minister that was killed more than a week ago at Cottondale, was first injured by the train from which he had just alighted and placed in a condition from which he was not able to move himself from the track is the belief of the office of Sheriff Watts. It is the belief of Sheriff Watts, who has been investigating the minister's death, that he attempted to board the south bound passenger train from which he had alighted after the train was under headway.

To Vote on Wharf Bond Issue.

Tuscaloosa.—The city commission of Tuscaloosa has passed an ordinance and has given notice of election to be held on March 5, for the issuance of $50,000 bonds for the erection of a wharf and appurtenances needed for the landings and for furnishing and equipping such wharf or wharves. The commission named the officers for holding the election and have arranged all of the details for the issuance of the bonds if the issue carries.

Coal Production Greater Than Ever.

Birmingham.—While the car situation on some of the railroads in the Birmingham District is far from being what it should be, coal production in the Birmingham District is now greater than it ever was, and if continued through the present year will break all records. Almost every coal company in a position to deliver is shipping coal, and railroad officials are being pleaded with to furnish cars.

Man Is Electrocuted.

Montgomery.—Colquitt Miller, a lineman for the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, was electrocuted while at the top of a high pole on Butler street, North Montgomery. While stringing wires he came in contact with a live wire. He was dead before assistance could reach him.

Gadsden Wants Woodmen.

Gadsden.—Gadsden and Alabama City will be in the fight to get the 1918 convention of the Woodmen of the World. This was decided at a meeting of the Alabama City Lodge. Delegates from the Gadsden lodge have beeen selected and they expect to fight for the next convention.

Many Cases Are Set.

Gadsden.—Eighty-one cases were set for the February term of the Circuit Court, when the members of the bar were called to meet Judge J. E. Blackwood, presiding Circuit Court. Several cases were passed until the June term of court, but Judge Blackwood stated that because the farmers would all be busy in June he wanted to have as light a term then as possible. The February term of Circuit Court will be the first since the consolidation of the courts.

NEW SYSTEM OF LAND TITLES

Talladega Man Says Torrens System Would Aid Farmers in the Borrowing of Money.

Mongomery.—Declaring that bankers of Alabama hesitate about lending money on farm lands because of the trouble in proving clear titles to the property, H. L. McElderry of Talladega, banker and business man, suggested to farmers attending the second annual conference for safe farming that this state should adopt the Torrens system of state registration and thus remove all trouble.

Mr. McElderry said the system had proved effectiye in many other states and that the trouble no longer is had in determining whether or not a person who claims ownership has a clear title to the property. All deeds and records would be kept by the State and it would be little work to go to the proper state official and obtain a complete abstract. He mentioned the fact that bankers themselves could establish to their own satisfaction a person's title to certain property but that in case of a financial stringency when a bank needed money, it would have trouble in convincing other monetary powers that funds lent on the property would be reasonably safe.

J. E. Quinerly of Auburn, dairy extension agent, urged all small farmers to give some attention to dairying and pointed out the benefits which will come from this work.

Many practical farmers made talks on various phases of the farmer's life much attention being given to discussions about the proper forage crops for this state.

Summer Course Announced.

Auburn.—The Alabama Polytechnic Institute has announced their summer school term, beginning June 14 and continuing through July 25. This is the fifth annual summer session. The purpose of the school is to aid teachers in advancing themselves in their work and for more efficient training. Also to allow persons desiring to take up work to do so, offering an opportunity for regular students to do work at the same time.

Farmers Form Loan Association

Anniston.—At a meeting held in the director's room of the Anniston City National Bank, the Caluhoun County National Farm Loan Association was formally organized, with 29 farmers present from various sections of the county. Under the provisions of the Federal Farm Loan Act the subscribers to the association will borrow about $64,000 from the farm loan bank at New Orleans and use it for farm improvements of various sorts.

Morgan to Issue Bonds.

Albany.—Increased valuation of assessable property amounting to more than $4,000,000, will entitle Morgan county to issue additional road bonds in the sum of $100,000. Already a movement has been initiated for a second bond issue in order that the Morgan county link of the Bee Line Highway may be built at an early date.

Lead to Be Mined.

Gadsden.—High grades of galena ore from which lead is obtained have been discovered in Cherokee county, about 30 miles north of Gadsden, and analysis show that this lead can be mined on a profitable scale, according to Thomas H. Stephens, former postmaster at Gadsden. "A company has been formed to develop this industry and work will begin soon on smelting," he said.

Land to Be Developed.

Gadsden.—A number of Gadsden men, forming a company to develop and prospect land in Jefferson, Walker, Fayette and Tuscaloosa Counties have perfected the titles to about 40,000 acres. Contracts have been closed with three Oklahoma companies to bore a number of wells. The lands are parts of the estate of the late Major Thomas Peters.

Shortage In Cars Reduced.

Birmingham.—By recent order of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the matter of freight car shortage, a decrease of 50 per cent has been brought about since November 1, according to L. K. Plosser, manager of the Alabama Demurrage and Storage Bureau. Mr. Plosser gives as the authority for this assertion, the Traffic World.

Walker County Youth Drowned.

Jasper.—Ozdie Orear, aged 15 years, son of Bill Orear, prominent Walker county citizen, was drowned near here. He and his younger brother were out in the steam in a boat, when it capsized. The younger boy saved himself, but when he reached aid, the older brother was drowned.

Quo Warranto Appealed.

Huntsville.—Judge Archie McDonnell has taken an appeal from the decision of Judge Kyle, of the Circuit Court, which upheld quo warranto proceedings that were instituted by Probate Judge-elect Thomas W. Jones. In the meantime Judge McDonnell remains as Judge of Probate. A supersedes bond in the sum of $1,000 has been filed by Judge McDonnell to protect Mr. Jones from loss in the event the Supreme Court upholds his claim for the office.

NAVAL BATTLE IN NORTH SEA

Seven German Warships Sunk By The British And Several Others Badly Damaged

Ymuiden, Holland.—An encounter is reported to have occurred in the North sea between fourteen German torpedo boat destroyers and a British flotilla. Sixteen severely wounded Germans have been landed here by a Dutch steam trawler which took them off the badly damaged German torpedo boat V-69. The torpedo boat was afterwards towed here with twenty dead aboard. The commander died before reaching port, both of his legs being shot off in the engagement.

Action Opened At Short Range

London.—Reports from Yumiden, received here say that German torpedo boats at night attempted to leave Zeebrugge to avoid the ice, which was very thick. They were immediately attacked by a large British squadron. The action opened at short range and early in the fight the bridge of the German destroyer V-69 was swept away by a direct hit, the commander and two other officers being killed.

The V-69 fired one torpedo and was then hit by another British shell, which knocked the funnel flat on the deck. Still another shell put a hole in the forepart of the vessel. Her guns appear not to have been damaged.

The crew of the V-69 numbered about sixty. It would appear from the statements of the men that seven other German vessels were sunk. The V-69 belonged to the home fleet.

The sinking of a British torpedo boat destroyer in another engagement with German torpedo destroyers in the vicinity of Schouwen bank, with the loss of three officers and forty-four of the crew, also was announced.

The text of the official announcement says:

"While our light forces were patrolling the North sea not far from the Dutch coast they met a division of enemy torpedo boat destroyers. A short engagement took place during which one of the enemy torpedo boat destroyers was sunk and the rest scattered, having suffered considerable punishment. Darkness prevented the full results of the action from being observed.

"There was also a short, sharp engagement between enemy torpedo destroyers and our own destroyers in the vicinity of Schouwen bank. During this engagement one of our torpedo boat destroyers was struck by a torpedo, the explosion killing three officers and forty-four of the crew. She subsequently was sunk by our own ships. Relatives of the victims have been informed. Our ships suffered no other casualties."

NEW THRUST MADE BY INVADERS IN ROUMANIA

Bulgarian Troops Have Moved Northward In Dobrudja Across The Danube

Paris.—Berlin says the Bulgarians in northern Dobrudja have crossed the southern estuary of the Danube near Tulicha and have maintained themselves on the northern bank against a Russian attack. This brings the invaders closer to the Bessarabian frontier. Elsewhere in Roumania there has been only a continuation of small isolated engagements.

On the Russian front in the region of Lake Kuggerion and near Kalnzem, in the Riga sector, the Germans have delivered attacks against the Russians Both attacks were repulsed, the latter with heavy casualties, according to Petrograd. In Volhynia, the Germans successfully carried out trench raids against the Russians.

The fighting fronts in France and the Austro-Italian theater continue to witness bombardments, spirited at some places, and small engagements.

Widow Of Sitting Bull Dead In Fargo

Fargo, N. D.—Small Woman, former wife of Sitting Bull, noted Indian chief whose band annihilated Custer and his command in Little Big Horn in 1876 and who was killed fifteen years later at the battle of Wounded Knee, died at the Fort Berthold Indian reservation, North Dakota, of burns suffered when fire destroyed her shack at Lucky Mound. Small Woman escaped from her burning cabin uninjured, but returned to rescue an old shawl which she prized highly and her clothing caught fire.

Donald Confirmed For Shipping Board

Washington.—The nomination of J. A. Donald of New York as member of the new federal shipping board is confirmed. When the nominations of the other four members were confirmed, that of Mr. Donald was held up by opposition of Progressive Republicans and some Democrats. The opposition was based on the employment of Chinese crews on ships under British registry operated by a company formerly headed by Mr. Donald. Organization of the board will be effected shortly.

Millions In Gold Sent To Raiders

Baltimore.—It was reported in local shipping circles here that three steamers which left Baltimore recently, presumably with coal, also took out several million dollars in gold eagles and half eagles. The gold, it was reported, was for Germany and was to be transferred at sea to the raiders sweeping the South Atlantic. The report was based on the departure on December 24 for Norfolk of the steamer Ausable with $2,000,000 in gold. She left Norfolk on December 28 for Buenos Ares, but has not arrived.

SPIRITED FIGHTING ON THREE FRONTS

Germans Gain Against French In Verdun Region And Have Driven Russian In Riga District

BRITISH BATTLE WITH TURKS

Turkish First Line Trenches On 1,000-Yard Front Captured By The British Force

New York.—Spirited fighting has taken place northwest of Verdun on the front in France; near Riga, on the Russian front, and southwest of Kut-el-Amara, in the Mesopotamian theater.

German forces have been successful in the operations in the first two regions, while the British troops have taken positions from the Turks along the Tigris in the latter.

Attacking in force on a front of sixteen hundred meters against Hill 304 northwest of Verdun, Teuton soldiers stormed French trenches and took 500 prisoners. French troops, the latest French communication says, have recaptured most of the trench positions. Counter attacks by the French failed, as did further attempts to regain the lost ground according to Berlin. German troops also gained ground on Le Mort Homme and Avoncourt.

Heavy Fighting In Riga District

West of Riga in the Tirul swamp region and along the River Aa, the Germans and Russians continue heavy fighting. German attacks, Berlin says, were successful, and additional ground and 500 prisoners were taken. Counter attacks by Russian troops were repulsed in both sectors with heavy losses to the attackers along the Aa. Petrograd announces that the Russians, after advancing more than a mile in the battle zone, were forced to return to their positions.

Turkish first line trenches on a front of 1,100 yards were gained by the British in their attacks southwest of Kut-el-Amara. In addition, London says, some second-line positions on the bank of the Tigris were taken.

There has been no great activity in Roumania. On the northern portion of the French front British troops have carried out several successful raids.

ALLIED GOLD FLOOD FOR UNITED STATES

Allies Entitled To Seven Billion Two Hundred Million Loan, Says Sir Edward Holden

London.—Speaking at the annual meeting of the London City and Midland bank, Sir Edward Holden, managing director of the bank, said that 232,000,000 pounds of gold which had flowed into America up to the end of 1916, about 212,000,000 pounds represented the amount contributed by the entente allies to form the basis of loans.

Of the total foreign loans of America since the beginning of the war, amounting to about 460,000,000 pounds, he said, 423,000,000 pounds were borrowed by England and her allies. The amount of gold required for reserve on this basis, he added, would be only 69,000,000 pounds, and therefore 143,000,000 pounds of the entente allies' gold had been used for some other purpose and it would appear that 76,000,000 pounds were locked up under the federal reserve system. Continuing, he said:

"After the allies had so handsomely contributed to the gold reserves of the United States, thus facilitating the exportation of American commodities to the extent of 1,913,000,000 pounds between July, 1914, and November 30, 1916, it seems difficult to understand why the federal reserve board should have endeavored to place difficulties in the way of American bankers creating further loans and particularly when they could have had collateral security for new loans."

Highest Ocean Cotton Rate Ever Paid

Galveston, Texas.—An ocean freight rate of $4 a hundred pounds will be paid on one thousand bales of cotton booked for export from Galveston to Havre. This is believed to be the highest rate ever paid for transportation of cotton from this port.

National Forest Reserves Enlarged

Washington.—Enlargement of the national forest reserves by 23,709 acres acquired through purchase in the Southern Appalachian and White mountains was announced by the reservation commission recently. This brings the total added to the public forests in the east and south under the Week's law up to 1,373,131 acres. The largest single purchase among those announced was a tract of 8,000 acres on Mount Mitchell, N. C. In the White mountains of New Hampshire 4,500 acres were purchased.

$350,000,000 Must Go To Reserve Banks

Washington.—An amendment to the federal reserve act, proposed by the reserve board, to make immediately effective the provision requiring all reserves of member banks to be kept in federal reserve banks was approved by the house banking and currency committee. It is estimated that this provision, which as the law now stands, would take effect November 17 next, will force the transfer of some $350,000,000 to reserve banks and increase the loaning capacity of the system by nearly $800,000,000.

NO BRITISH SHELLS FOR U. S.

English Government Orders Redfields, Lim., Not To Fill Contract With Uncle Sam

London.—The British government has refused permission to the Hadfields, limited, to proceed with work on the contract for shells for the American navy "so long as the exigencies of war continue."

The announcement is made in the form of an official notice by Dr. Christopher Addison, the minister of munitions, in which attention is called to the fact that the entire steel output is under his control.

Contracts Involved Over Three Million

Washington.—Contracts were awarded Hadfields, limited, for $3,141,000 worth of 14-inch and 16-inch armor piercing shells at about $200 apiece less than the lowest American bid. As these shells are for reserve ammunition, it is possible that no further efforts to let contracts for them will be made pending construction of the government's projectile factory already authorized. Secretary Daniels had not received official notice that the British government had declined to permit Hadfields to fill its contracts.

"I will wait until I get official announcement," he said, when asked what alternative presented itself.

The secretary pointed out that the department now has available $1,500,000 for a government projectile factory. Plans are being completed and it has already been determined to locate the factory with the armor plant for which a site is still to be selected. It will take about a year to complete it. Secretary Daniels said that the bids from Hadfields had been received on the distinct understanding that there would be no question of the right to deliver, regardless of the war situation in Europe.

FOR LIQUOR CONSUMPTION 1916 THE BANNER YEAR

The Use Of Cigarettes Also Reached The Highest Mark Ever Known

Washington.—The amount of whiskey consumed by the American people in 1916 apparently was greater than in any previous year since 1909, according to tax returns to the treasury department, and the amount of revenue collected by the government on whiskey, beer and cigarettes during the year was the greatest on record.

While returns show that the tendency toward prohibition has not lowered the government's revenue from whiskey, officials believe that a portion of the increase—nearly $24,000,000 more than in 1915—is attributable to the fact that the government is at present collecting taxes on all the whiskey produced in the country, whereas, because of extensive frauds, such was not the case a few years ago.

Consumption of cigarettes in 1916 reached the highest mark ever recorded. The tremendous increase—more than 40 per cent over 1915—is attributed to two main causes: Increased prosperity of the country and the growth of the cigarette habit among women. Many millions of cigarettes made for feminine users were produced in this country and imported during the past year, whereas a few years ago production and importation of such cigarettes were negligible by comparison.

Three Persons Killed; Score Injured

Memphis, Tenn.—Three persons were killed and more than a score injured, two probably fatally, when a St. Louis-Southwestern railroad engine collided with the rear car of a Rock Island passenger train, eastbound from Little Rock Ark., to Memphis, late in a dense fog at Mound, Ark., near this city. R. L. Leonard, a planter of Memphis; A. H. Williams, an employee of a lumber concern at Hurlbert, Ark., and Benjamin Owings of Forest City, Ark., were killed.

Armor Plant Sites To Be Inspected

Washington.—The board designated by Secretary Daniels to inspect proposed sites for the government armor plate factory is expected to leave Washington soon for a tour of locations already held to be safe in time of war. Alabama and Georgia will be visited first and returning the board will go through the Southwest and Kentucky and Tennessee. Later a second tour will be made through northern and middle western states.

Publishers Fighting Checks On Papers

Washington.—Frank P. Glass of Birmingham, vice president of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, voiced his objection to restrictions upon newspaper publishers in the Owen corrupt practices bill, before a senate sub-committee. He said he hoped to have the bill considered by the association at its meeting in Chicago and resolutions adopted outlining the publishers' views. Legal prohibition against printing news of election betting, he said, might be a steppingstone toward further restrictions.

No Prohibition Placed On Strike

Washington.—For the second time since it began consideration of railroad legislation to supplement the Adamson law, the senate interstate commerce committee declined to approve a provision suggested by President Wilson forbidding a strike or lockout pending investigation of a labor controversy. The vote was ten to five, with three Democrats—Senators Underwood, Smith of South Carolina and Thompson—voting with the Republicans in the negative.

WEATHER CAUSES LULL IN FIGHTING

KING WINTER REIGNS IN EUROPE AND ALL BATTLES COME TO A HALT.

ARTILLERY FIRE CONTINUES

Representatives of Entente Allies Meetin Petrograd and Hold War Council.

London.—With winter weather prevailing on nearly all the battle fronts, military operations have been held to virtually small engagements when compared with the battles that have taken place under more favorable conditions.

Snowstorms, for the moment, have brought thee operations southwest of Riga, where apparently a great general engagement was in the making, almost to a halt. To the south, in Volrynia and across the linee in Galicia, some spirited isolated fights have taken place, but only with the capture of trench elements respectively by the Russians and Teutonic allies reported. In Rumania only the most minor operations are chronicled.

On the front in France and Belgium, except on the sector of Hill 304, near Verdun, artillery duels alone have taken place. Near Hill 304 the artillery bombardments on both sides have been rather severe and grenade fighting also has taken place. Several Frnch attacks against the Geerman defenses in this region broke down with heavy casualties, according to Berlin.

While berlin says the British in their attacks against the Turks on the Irak front in Asiatic Turkey suffered heavy losses and in addition met with repulse, a London official communication asserts that the Britishers in attacks gained complete possession of Turkish first and second line trenches southwest of Kut-El-Amara on a front of 4300 yards, and also took third and fourth line trenches on a front of 600 yards. A large number of casualties were reported.

Among the vessels which Berlin officially announces have been sunk recently by submarines is an "armed hostile transport steamer," 250 miles off Malta. The steamer, "crammed with troops," is reported to have sunk within 10 minutes.

LAWSON'S STORY IS DENIED.

Financiers Discredit Boston Man's Claim That There Was a Leak.

New York.—Some of the most sensational charges Thomas W. Lawson made in testifying recently in the House rules committee "leak" investigation were vehemently denied by Pliny Fisk and Archibald S. White, two widely known New York financiers, before the congressional inquisitors.

Fisk, named by Lawson as the banker member of an alleged trio composed of a cabinet member, Secretary McAdoo, a member of Congress, known as "Senator O.," and a banker, would have a joint account in Wall street declared no such combination ever existed.

White, who Lawson said told him that Fisk had boasted that the controlled Secretary McAdoo and hand offered to call the secretary from his bed by telephone at 1:30 o'clock in the morning to prove his assertion, insisted that Lawson was "romancing."

DEFENSE BUDGET PASSES.

Bill Representing Expenditures fo Navy Goes Through House.

Washington.—The administration's $800,000,000 defense budget began to take final shape in Congress when the House passed the fortifications bill, carrying more than $51,000,000 for coast defenses, and the House naval committee completed its 1918 naval appropriation bill with a total of more than $351,000,000.

The army appropriation bill, the third element of the programme, still is in the House military committee, which is expected to complete it next week. Estimates for the army reach more than $360,000,000, exclusive of numerous deficiency measures resulting from the border mobilization and the rising cost of war materials.

Immigration Bill Vetoed.

Washington.—President Wilson vetoed the immigration bill passed recently by Congress, because of its literacy test provision.

British Cruiser Is Sent to Bottom.

London. — The British auxiliary cruiser Laurentic, of 14892 tons, has been sunk by a submarine or as a result of striking a mine, according to an official statement by the British admiralty. Twelve officers and 109 men were saved. Before being acquired for the service of the British admiralty the Laurentic was in the Canadian service of the White Star Dominion Line. The vessel was owned by the Ocean Steam Navigation company of Liverpool.

TRAINING TODAY'S BOYS AND GIRLS

The Dabbling Adolescent and Value of Her Fads.

ADVENT OF NEW POWERS

Period When All the Possibilities of the Child Come to the Front and He Feels He Can Do Anything.

By SIDONIE M. GRUENBERG.

AFTER dinner the grown-ups sat about on rockers down on the lawn while the younger people danced on the wide veranda to the music of a phonograph.

A father was saying that so far as he could observe the chief reason for the high cost of living was to be found in the fact that the young people are so fickle in their tastes. He did not remember just how many dollars—but they were many—his son Percy had invested in cameras and ruby lights and dishes and chemicals less than a year ago, and now he did not care a bit for photography—was going in for geology, and had decided to go to college just to have a chance to study that.

Father thought that he might have stuck to photography and finally worked into the business—it is a pretty good business—or he might have made up his mind about geology last year and have saved all that money.

Mrs. Darling felt the same sort of grievance, for her Genevieve had made such a muss about the house with her photographs and things, and now she hardly ever takes her camera out. Indeed, Genevieve has had four hobbies since she took up with the camera—there was raising pansies, and hand-painted china, and the foreign missions, and now it's dancing. The Darlings never mention the cost of anything; but such shifting and restlessness is very distracting.

Another mother observed that after all we have to expect to do a great deal for our children, but she did fear that her son was frittering away altogether too much time in ways that would prove to be unprofitable. He gave up collecting stamps when his album was far from full, and there it was, after all that work, doing nobody any good. And it was the same way with his wireless telegraph. They had had so much trouble getting a permit for the masts, and he had worked so hard studying the codes until he was able to pick up all sorts of curious and interesting messages (the mother could not conceal her pride behind her complaints), and now all was abandoned since he met that North boy, who interested him in ants! What all this would lead to goodness only knew, and she was patient enough, goodness also knew.

And Mr. Burrowes, who dreaded the water, felt the same way about it; for had not his son dabbled about in a dozen—yes, a score—of useless hobbies, only to turn around suddenly with his mind made up to enter the Naval academy next year, when he would be old enough? As if there were not a hundred excellent things to do on the solid earth! And he proceeded to enumerate some of them, though he stopped long before he reached ten.

But the fathers and mothers in the party worried together more than they had a right to. Or at least, if they were entitled to all that worry they worried in the wrong direction. The young people, if they are fairly healthy, and if they are fairly free to find out about what's going on in the world, and if they are fairly free to go in for things that do not bring in money—or especially if they have a chance to go in for things that cost money—are quite sure to take up one absorbing hobby after another. It is just because there are so many excellent things to do on the solid earth—and in the air, and in the water, too—that they need several years to find out which they would rather do. And apparently the only way to find out is by trying the feel of them all.

Of course, this is rather expensive, because the things with which they clutter up the house are never used up entirely, and they form a worthless collection of junk to mark the meanderings of the adolescent mind. But the most serious concern is not the cost in money, for where the money is not to be had we find the same tendency to jump from one interest to another. The fear of adults is always that the growing girl or boy will become a dabbler, a "rolling stone," an unsettled wanderer without definite purpose or goal. And it must be admitted that once in so often a person reaches years of maturity without having found a guiding aim in life.

For the adolescents in general, however, this rapid shifting of interest seems to be the normal manifestation of the rapid development going on within the organism. The changes in the nervous system bring forth a multitude of new interests and new impulses, which simply cannot all find expression at the same time and which crowd upon each other in such fashion that now one and now another breaks to the surface in quick succession.

To people of comparatively fixed habits and conventionalized standards these fickle ways are not only annoying but often even alarming. Those of us who cannot remember the golden days when we wavered between the operatic stage and a lonely island in the South sea, or between saving the world from selfishness and sin and becoming the chief of a band of brigands simply cannot understand this fickleness. It does seem so inconsistent, so unreasonable; and what will it all lead to?

The adolescent years are those in which the child feels that he can do anything that older human beings can do; and, in truth, no one has yet found the limits of what he can do. The rapid growth in physical and mental strength gives rise to the feeling of unlimited growth; and past performances quickly lose their interest with the advent of new powers. All the possibilities of the child come to the front, and it is only as these are tried out that the most profitable lines of development can be discovered.

The danger for most children during this period of growth and impression is not in the dissipation through contact with too many lines of interest, but in the lack of opportunity to try out enough to give a broad sympathy in sentiment, a wide outlook in intellect and a wise choice of permanent interest.

Let the children dabble while the dabbling is good; soon it will be too late.

HONOR ACCORDED TO GREEKS

Believed to Have Been the First People to Introduce Written Almanacs to the World.

The first written almanacs probably were complied by the Greeks of Alexandria between 100 and 150 A. D. Calendars are much older, the ancient Romans having proclaimed the first of the month and posted a notice of its occurrence in a public place. The first of the month thus came to be called The Kalends, from "I call" or "I proclaim," and thus the world "calendar" was derived.

Probably the oldest calendar in existence was found in the ruins of Pompeii. It was cut upon a square block of marble, upon each side of which three months are registered, each headed by the proper sign of the zodiac. The first almanac printed in Europe covered the years 1475, 1494 and 1513 and was published at Buda, Hungary. The first printed almanac in England was the "Sheapheards Kalender," printed in 1497. In the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries almanacs became comparatively common in Europe. The early almanacs contained many prognostications regarding "the Dispocission of the People and also of the Wether"—to quote one of them, as also instruction in "Phisike and Surgerye" and information about "infortunate Times to Bie and Sell, take Medicine, Sowe, Plant and Journey, etc."

They were on leave from the front, and they had dined well and wined well, and finished at a theater.

Outside they separated, and the leader of the party was lucky enough to secure a taxi. Half way home, however, he discovered, on putting his hand in his pocket, that he was penniless. What was to be done!

The British army is never at a loss, and in a few moments he saw a way out.

He caught up the speaking tube and shouted "Stop!" Then, jumping out, he told the driver to wait.

"I just want to pop into this tobacconist's to get a box of matches. I've dropped a sovereign on the floor of the cab and I can't find it in the dark."

He entered the tobacconist's and the moment he was through the door the driver and the cab softly and suddenly vanished into the night, as he had anticipated.—Exchange.

WOULD CALL EXTRA SESSION OF SOLONS

WANT WHISKEY QUESTION SETTLED BEFORE STATE CAMPAIGN OPENS UP.

STATE CAPITAL NEWS ITEMS

—Montgomery.

Governor Charles Henderson is considering the question of calling an extra session of the Legislature to give that body an opportunity of passing "bone dry" prohibition laws under the Webb-Kenyon anti-liquor shipping law recently upheld by the United State Supreme Court, according to information obtained from the closest friends of the Governor.

It was stated that some of the Governor's strongest supporters are urging him to assemble the Legislature in extra session.

It is said the chief reason for bringing up the subject is the desire of Alabama political leaders to have the question settled before the campaign opens up. Those in touch with the movement declare Alabama does not want to trail along two years behind other Southern States in settling this question, simply because the Legislature does not hold another regular session until 1919.

Welch is New Health Officer.

Dr. S. W. Welch, of Talladega, member of the Alabama Medical Association, and a prominent worker in the organization for many years, became state health officer as the successor of Dr. W. H. Sanders, who resigned because of ill health.

The new health officer believes the people of Alabama should know at all times what the state health department is doing and has informed friends and workers in the department and in the medical association that it is his intention to keep all proper information before the people. He thinks much of the opposition which has come up in years gone by has been from a failure to understand what the health department was attempting to do.

Pasteur Hospital Treated 294.

The state pasteur department has just completed a map showing the points in the state where rabid dogs were found during the year and the points from which persons were forced to come to Montgomery for treatment as a result of bites from rabid animals. Two hundred and ninety-four persons were treated during the past 12 months. Fifty-three others were scattered throughout the state. Examinations showed that 193 animals sent to the department were arflicted with rabies. Jefferson furnished 24 while others were scattered throughout the State.

White Prisoners Increase.

Although the total number of prisoners confined in the State prisons, mines and lumber camps as decreased during the last year the percentage of white prisoners has increased by large figures, according to Dr. R. A. Smith, phyisician-inspector of the state convict board.

"The percentage of white prisoners has increased from 10 per cent to the total of 33 1-3 per cent," said Dr. Smith. "This is an unfortunate condition, but the figures of the Convict Department show that the number of white convicts has increased to that extent."

Franklin Pride of School.

Franklin county became the pride of the educational department when news came that it had voted overwhelmingly in favor of the 3-mill special school tax and thus had taken the lead over all other counties. Franklin gave a majority of 601 for the amendment when it was submitted in Novembeer and now comes forward with a majority of about 250 levying of the taxmfwypamfwyoppo for the special tax. Through the levying o fthe tax, the county will increase its educational fund about 60 per cent, the special tax in Franklin county amounting to about $12,000.

New Incorporations.

Noticee of th incorporation of the Co-operative Oil and Gas Company at Mobile, with an authorized capital of $3000 and a paid in capital of $2060, has been received by the secretary of state. The company will devote its attention to the drilling of wells in an ieffort to find oil and gas in Mobile county.

Martin Rules on Persions.

According to a ruling by Attorney General William L. Martin made at the request of the State Auditor, any insane woman confined in the asylum at Tuscaloosa, who otherwise might be entitled to a pension, must be paid. This ruling is looked upon as a very liberal interpretation of the law of 1915, which says: "The widow of a veteran, who may be confined in an asylum is entitled to receive the pension rightfully due her husband."

WOMAN, 28, TRAPS BOY CAVE MAN

Nifty Neighbor Child She Smiled at Writes a Threatening Letter.

TRACED BY PHONE CALL

Boy's Explanation Is He Wished to Be Detective or Reporter and Wanted to Get Into Atmosphere of Mystery.

Chicago.—Mrs. Guy Edwards, twenty-eight and pretty, used to smile casually at the boy across the hall at 4542 North Racine avenue. He was a nifty child of fourteen years, with cheeks like the rosy wax clothiers' dummies, and the graces of a dancing master. His name was Harold Gunn.

Three weeks ago Mrs. Edwards stopped smiling altogether and was headed for a hysterical nervous breakdown. A Black Hand love suit introduced itself through her mail. The letters were dark with threats where they weren't flowery with love. This line appeared in all three received by Mrs. Edwards:

"I'm a friendly ally, but a dangerous enemy. Your husband, Guy Edwards, is an old-time wife deserter. Come to me, love. If you will meet me put a personal ad in the Tribune."

Lay Trap for Him.

All the letters were written on tissue paper. They were followed by a telephone campaign. Mrs. Edwards received three or four calls a day at her place of employment.

Yesterday she and Mr. Edwards decided to trap the anonymous letter writer. Mrs. Edwards agreed to meet her mysterious pursuer when he called over the telephone as usual. She and Mr. Edwards then secured the services of Detective Sergeants Thomas Cassin and John Mason from the bureau. The detectives went to the Sunnyside exchange and traced the next call to Mrs. Edwards' apartment. It came from a drug store at Racine and Wilson avenues. Cassin and Mason jumped into an auto and raced for it while Mrs. Edwards kept her suitor on the wire.

As the detectives reached the booth

Boy Admits Charges.

The boy admitted the whole matter when faced with the charge. He said he had no reason for doing it, except that he wished to be a detective or newspaper reporter and wanted to get into an atmosphere of mystery. He was taken to the central bureau, where he refused to see Mrs. Edwards when she called. Young Gunn's mother swooned when told her boy was arrested. She said he had been brought up as a home boy and had never been allowed to have sweethearts. The one girl he had gone with he met last summer at the Wilson avenue beach.

"I permitted him to take her to the theater once," she said. "That was his only love affair, and he has always been a kind, dear boy to me."

Harold, who is fourteen, quit high school several months ago, and is employed with a real estate firm.

RICH GIRL BECOMES NURSE

She Says It Is Fine to Be Doing Something Besides Spending Money.

Kansas City, Mo.—Miss Letitia Curtis, owner of valuable oil lands, descendant of a United States Osage chieftain and relative of Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas, has given up a life of luxury to help the poor. She is a nurse at St. Mary's hospital.

Instead of a luxurious apartment to which she had been accustomed, Miss Curtis rooms with another nurse, both sleeping in one bed. No more dances nor social affairs for her.

"I haven't seen my motor car for a week," says Miss Curtis. "I don't care. I love this new life. It is fine to be doing something. It is better than just spending money and hunting fun."

LAD OF TEN YEARS IS REAL "COWBOY"

Did His Share of the Work in Driving a Large Herd to the Ranch.

Pierre, S. D.—Perhaps the youngest "real cowboy" in the Northwest is Maurice Paul Gowdy, ten, son of Chester Gowdy, who, with Bert Waite of Sioux City, is the owner of the Fort Sully Cattle company, the biggest cattle ranch in the central portion of the state, located along the Missouri river, 26 miles northwest of Pierre.

Maurice is ten years old. He and an older cowpuncher took a trainload of cattle from Pierre to the ranch over the river buttes. The boy did his full half share of the work of driving the cattle the long distance, so as to miss no school day. It required riding from about 3:30 o'clock in the morning until nearly sundown.

The ranch grazes thousands of heads of cattle, both on the lowland and the highlands along the Missouri. It is probably the last of the really big ranches in this section of the Northwest. The ranch was owned formerly by Tom Steel, Bert Waite of Sioux City, and Chester Gowdy of Tarkio, Mo., but at present is owned by Waite and Gowdy only.

FORTUNE IN ELOPEMENT

San Francisco, Cal.—Through publicity attending the wrecked romance of their eighteen-year-old daughter Signe, the Gerstad family of Bellingham, Wash., it was said here, is about to come into a fortune.

The girl recently became a temporary ward of the police through the arrest of D. M. Delmas, with whom she had eloped on his promise to marry her. After being arrested on a bad-check charge, Delmas was identified as an escaped convict from a penitentiary in Texas, where he had wrecked a bank. The girl was sent home.

Attorney Sydney P. Robertson of this city told recently of having received a letter from a firm of Chicago attorneys asking for the address of Hilgar Gerstad, the girl's father, sought for years as heir to an estate in Sweden. The Chicago attorneys, the letter said, had read of the girl's escapade in a Chicago paper.

GIRL WILL CLAIM $1,000,000

Quits Job as Domestic and Hurries to Bedside of Dying Godmother.

Pittsburgh.—Mary Gooda, aged seventeen, a domestic employed in the residence of Dr. H. H. Turner, Swissvale, departed for Whiting, Idaho, carrying in her grip a letter which told her of the impending death of her godmother and of her inheritance of an estate of $1,000,000. The girl received the letter and left so hurriedly that she neglected to tell her employers the name of her godmother.

The letter stated that the only heir to the godmother's estate, consisting chiefly of coal lands, died a week ago, and that the girl's godmother had requested that her will be changed to read in favor of the girl. She also requested that the girl be brought to her bedside immediately.

Oscar Helbig Tries to Save Girl From Man in Her Room, Police Say.

Chicago.—Oscar Helbig, sixty years old, former owner of a rooming house at 759 Milwaukee avenue, was shot and killed while struggling with John Budziak, nineteen years old, in an effort, the police say, to prevent him from mistreating a woman roomer. After killing Helbig, Budziak fired a shot into his own head and will probably die. Miss Pauline Seldus, nineteen years old, the woman, told the police Budziak attacked her and Helbig came to the rescue.

"CASCARETS" FOR SLUGGISH BOWELS

No sick headache, sour stomach, biliousness or constipation by morning.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out to-night and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse your stomach; remove the sour fermenting food; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret to-night straightens you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean, healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love Cascarets because they never gripe or sicken. Adv.

Really Annoying.

STOMACH MISERY GAS, INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" fixes sick, sour, gassy stomachs in five minutes.

Time it! In five minutes all stomach distress will go. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas, acid, or eructations of undigested food, no dizziness, bloating, or foul breath.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest and most certain indigestion remedy in the whole world, and besides it is harmless.

Please for your sake, get a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any store and put your stomach right. Don't keep on being miserable—life is too short—you are not here long, so make your stay agreeable. Eat what you like and digest it; enjoy it, without dread of rebellion in the stomach.

Pape's Diapepsin belongs in your home anyway. Should one of the family eat something which doesn't agree with them, or in case of an attack of indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis or stomach derangement at daytime or during the night, it is handy to give the quickest relief known. Adv.

Just a few more of these balmy spring-like days, and the revelation in our ears of one or two "yellow cat" stories from the river, and you will see this editor marching off across the field with his pole and line and a box of "yearth" worms to the bank of a favorite stream for a few hours of the greatest sport the world affords.

Newspapers in large cities are announcing an increase in price of from one cent to two cents, the high cost of print paper being offered as the principal reason. Yet we observe no tendency to reduce the bulk of the metropolitan journals. The one-cent paper, with its comics, and its vast expanse of slushy feature sections, began the agitation years ago for the removal of the duty on paper. But paper becomes no cheaper. Canadian paper mills prospered at the expense of our own, that was all. Raising the price will enable the publishers to go on as they have been—even after the war. But when that time comes, the American paper manufacturer will be no better off.

WEEKLY FARM LETTER

We are pleased to announce to our readers that we shall have every week from now on, a letter about farming in Alabama, written from the Experiment station at Auburn. This will be an interesting feature for our farmer friends. There are always new ideas and methods being tried out and advanced at Auburn, which the tillers of the soil in Alabama need to be informed of, and we hope to be able to bring to our readers the very latest every week through this letter. The first one appears in this issue.

MERIT DOES NOT COUNT

Of course, Lieutenant-Doctor Cary Crayson will be confirmed, even tho his promotion jumps him over 114 other men of greater age and longer service and higher professional attainment. The President admits that the appointment is "personal." Everybody knew this before the President said it; and the announcement now merely means that the tag will be put upon every Democratic Senator who refuses to vote for Grayson.

VERMONT'S TRIBUTE TO DEWEY

No finer eulogy has ever been uttered in the House than that delivered by Congressman Porter H. Dale, the Republican Representative from Admiral Dewey's old home in Vermont. "With no attemp to become conspicuous in other positions," said Mr. Dale, "Admiral Dewey passed from his achievements followed by the homage of the whole people of this country to the glory that awaits him over the unknown sea."

WHAT WOULD BE SAVED?

You hear much being said now-a-days about Chilton County's business being put on a cash basis; and the question must have occurred to you about how much the county would save in a year's time if it were running on cash instead of credit.

We learn that the county's expenses are about $30,000.00 a year, or a little over. Now, under the present basis of credit and debt, we (as a county) are paying about 30 to 40 per cent. advance of the cash price on everything. At this rate, you see in round numbers, the county would save upwards of $10,000.00 a year if it could pay cash for what it buys.

Well, a loan on bonds to the amount of $100,000.00 would pay up the debts of the county which are now due. Then, by instituting a cash basis, the county would save ten thousand dollars a year, which in ten years would amount to enough to pay the loan.

Study about this from every angle, and figure on it in every way you can think of it.

On Feb. 3rd, the Commissioners are going to lay all the conditions before the people, and they want everybody to be prepared to offer them some good suggestions as to what is best to be done.

Leon McCord, Judge of this Judicial Circuit was in Clanton Monday to draw the jury for the February term of the court, which he will hold here for two weeks, beginning Monday, February 11th. The session is the first of the court under the new calendar, and will last for twelve days. First week will be for civil cases and the second for criminal cases. The Grand Jury will sit during the first week.

The Editor questioned Judge McCord on the matter of publishing the names of the Jurors as has heretofore been the custom in this county. He said that he preferred that his jury be unknown to the public until court sets. In that way, he said, the jury could have no outside influence brought to bear upon them relative to any particular cases before the convening court. The Judge expressed a wish that all cases in his court might be disposed of in a fair and impartial trial, and it is to this end he is striving by prohibiting the publication of names of the jury before court convenes.

Circuit Clerk M. D. Foshee has been in Montgomery this week, attending to business in connection with the duties of his office.

In conversation with the Editor the other day, Judge Reynolds said he was anxious to get as many people of the county here Saturday as possible. He wants to open up the whole situation of Chilton County as he found it upon entering the office, and let the people know exactly where they are. The Judge has some interesting and very important matters to place before the citizens on that day (next Saturday) and a good gathering should be present.

A DIFFERENT JERSEYITE

Gov. Fielder of New Jersey, Democrat, in his valledictory asserts that his administration saved $1,900,000 in a year for the taxpayers of the state. If this is true, it is evident that the transplanting of a New Jersey Governor to Washington was tried with the wrong man. Former Governor Wilson has shown nothing like this.

EFFECTIVE PROTEST BY A REPUBLICAN

A recent attempt of the Democrats to give a $1,000 raise in salary to a Federal official in Rhode Island, in spite of the fact that the increase was not recommended by the Department in which he workd was brought to a halt by Representative Louis C. Crampton of Michigan. "I am one member of the House" exclaimed Mr. Crampton, "who really believes it is time the House took economy as its watchword, and I have been doing a great deal of voting that way." It is to such men as Mr. Crampton, who have the courage to brand the hypocracy of the Democrats in their constant cry of "economy" and their equally constant vote of extravagance, that the country will be indebted if there is anything left from the wreck when this administration comes to a close.

WANTS DELIBERATION BEFORE LEGISLATION

Another attemp of the Democrats in the House to rush through an important bill with scarcely any debate was frustrated by Republican Representative Edward E. Dennison, of Illinois. The measure referred to relates to the issuance of securities by carriers, and affects the entire interstate commerce of thec ountry. The Democratic Chairman of the Ininterstate commerce of the country. that it be considered immediately and put upon its passage, but Mr. Dennison objected. "I do not think" said he "that a question that effects all the railroads of the country ought to be settled in an hour". The bill being on the unanimous consent calendar, Mr. Dennison's opposition was sufficient to carry it over until a more propitious time for its consideration.

DEMOCRATS OPPOSED TO DELIBERATION

Following out the Democratic policy, so successfully delivered in the House, of jamming through important legislation without adequate debate or a full understanding of its provisions, the Democrats in the Senate made streneous objection to even the reading of the committee report on the water-power bill, claiming that the republicans, who requested it, were filibustering. Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan very appropriately observed, "It seems to me that there could be no better place for the careful, deliberate, painstaking conclusions of the committee having the mater in charge to have their to have their views read that before the Senate. I have listened to these reports," continued Senator Smith, "with a great deal of interest, and have often been convinced by them." Mr. Smith laid emphasis on the fact that the report stated that the bill was one of the most important to be considered by he Senate, and he finally succeeded in having it read at length by the Secretary.

Reuben Lowe informed us that a certain passage from the Bible was found in the twenty-first book of the first chapter.

Miss Durrett—Reuben, who wrote "Irvin's Sketch Book?"

Reuben—Rip Van Winkle.

Miss Key—Its wonderful what some insects can do. A grasshopper can jump one hundred times its length.

John Allen—Pshaw, that's nothing. I once saw a wasp raise a two-hundred pound man three feet off the ground.

Miss Durrett—Can someone give me a sentence using the word 'each'?

Mary Mullins.—I can. "Does your head each?"

TIME

Some time is consumed in making all the money any one or more individuals possess. But time is too valuable to devote all of it to the material things of life.

Men and women, if they are to be healthy and happy, must devote time to rest, to relaxation found in sleep, to recreation, to reading, to studying, to thinking, to the amenities of social life—things which money may make more enjoyable, but things which in themselves are much more valuable than money.

Therefore, recognizing the great value of time, the L. & N. has placed at the disposal of the traveling and shipping public adequate and efficiently managed transportation facilities—

Heavy steel rails, low grades, a minimum of curves, well trained and well paid operatives. Substantial freight cars and substantial and comfortable passenger cars transport articles of commerce and the traveling public from one point to another with the greatest possible saving in time, and in safety and comfort.

Not only does the L. & N. co-operate with the general public by supplying the standard of excellence in railway facilities, but likewise in saving much valuable time.

PENSION FOR AGED VETERANS

Washington, Jan. 31.—Cangressman Harry H. Pratt of New York has introduced a bill which, if enacted into law, will afford relief to many old soldiers who enlisted in the first call for volunteers, but who, because of some technality, cannot secure an adequate pension either through the Pension Bureau or the Pension Committees of Congress. The measure provides that such volunteers, if they have reached the age of eighty years, or were honorably discharged because of wounds or disease contracted in line of duty, shall be given a pension of $50 per month. Mr. Pratt, in his first term of Congress, was quick to see the injustice in the present law, which allows but $30 per month for the men described in his bill, and hastened to do what he could to correct the matter.

Yo: Ho; Freckle Face

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

Do you know how easy it is to remove those ugly spots so that no one will call you freckle-face?

Simply get an ounce of carpol, extra strong, from your druggist, and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of freckles and get a beautiful complexion. The sun and winds this month have a strong tendency to bring out freckles, and as a result more carpol is sold in these months. Be sure to ask for the extra strong, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove the freckles.—Carpol Laboratories, Boston, Mass., Sta. M. Mail orders filled.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF HAIR STOPS FALLING

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable luster, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any store, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Adv.

LATEST COIFFURES SHOW NEW TOUCHES

Ingenious Disposition Made of Hair Which Is Abundant but Not Particularly Long Strip of Malines Used Effectually—Riding Habit Which Is About the Last Word in Such Togs.

Here is one of those new coiffures that dispose of the ends of the hair in some mysterious way without coil or braid or twist or any other visible means, except two soft curls at the nape of the neck. We look at it to admire and to ponder the ingenuity that made so beautiful a disposition of hair which is abundant but not long. The secret of dressing the hair in this way appears to be in parting it off in the right way.

New Departure in Coiffures.

The front hair for this coiffure is parted off and combed forward as for a pompadour. The remainder of the hair is combed to the back of the neck and tied, and the ends are separated into two strands and curled. The front hair is parted at each side above the temples, and waved. At the top of the head the hair is brought back in a small pompadour, the ends loosely twisted and pinned to the crown. The side hair is combed down over the ears, spread over the back of the head, and the ends turned under at the nape of the neck. It is held in place with invisible wire pins. A single strand above the left temple is left free, however, until a larger shell comb has been thrust in at the crown. It is brought back over the comb and its ends are concealed by pinning them under the top of the comb.

In this coiffure there is a short finger of hair across the forehead, which is slightly curled. The shell comb is brightened with two rows of rhinestones.

Coiffures of this character are in evidence at the theater, and there is a pretty fashion of covering them with a strip of the finest malines as like the hair in color as possible. This is almost invisible, like a hair net, and just where it begins or ends keeps one guessing. But it keeps the hair neat and supports the coiffure.

Riding Togs for 1917.

A model to which you can pin your faith, if you are contemplating a new riding habit, is pictured here. It is made in one of the new weaves that have been so much promoted for sports wear, but probably as good a choice as can be made for practical service is covert cloth. A dark tan color in this material, cut on the same lines as those of the habit shown here, will furnish its owner with the best of style. She can wear it with the assurance that it is correct.

The coat is cut on the trimmest of lines and is as severe as the art of the tailor can make it. In some of the new habits coats are a very little longer than in this conservative model. But this is a matter of personal taste, and a difference of an inch and a half perhaps covers the latitude of choice. The waistlines are very long and the skirt moderately full.

The hat is less stiff than the regulation hat for riding, but has not displaced its rigid predecessors. Like the material in the habit it is a new arrival in the realm of apparel, and is comfortable and elegant. It fits the head snugly and is so constructed that it may be made to measure. This is a boon to women who have abundant hair.

There are "dress" habits and polo habits in which the most vivid reds and greens demonstrate a courageous use of color in riding togs. These high-colored coats are worn with white trousers, and the polo coats are sleeveless. But they are another story.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of the Sunday School Course in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 4

JESUS THE SAVIOR OF THE WORLD.

LESSON TEXT—John 3:1-18.

GOLDEN TEXT—For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten son, that whosoever believeth in him, should not perish, but have everlasting life.—John 3:16.

This most famous interview in history occurred probably in some room in Jerusalem where Jesus was a guest, a room reached by an outer stairway so that he could receive visitors privately.

I. The Teacher of the Jews (vv. 1, 2). Nicodemus was a member of the sanhedrin (Ch. 7:50). He belonged to the Pharisees who were much devoted to the scriptures, and in whose hand the political affairs were largely placed by the Romans. There are several reasons why Nicodemus came to Jesus by night. Prudence dictated secrecy, but that he came at all was encouraging. He was more apt to find Jesus at home in the evening. He had much that he wished to learn, and needed a quiet hour, removed from the crowd. The things that Jesus had done and taught made Nicodemus think that Jesus might be the Messiah. Nicodemus wanted to know how to be blessed or happy.

II. A Teacher From God (vv. 3-8). A great majority of the disciples of Jesus came from the common people (I Cor. 1:26) yet for all classes he had the same message, "Ye must be born again." The answer of Jesus was according to the condition of the man before him, the deepest need of his soul. Literally, he said, "Most assuredly, except a man (anyone) be born again (anew or from above) he cannot enter the kingdom of heaven." To be born anew means to be born again. It matters not what your parentage may have been. If any man could do without a new birth, Nicodemus was that man. He was moral, religious and sincere. The instrument through which this birth is effective is the word of God (I Peter 1:23; James 1:18; John 15:3) and the author is the Holy Spirit (v. 5; Titus 3:5). Water is a symbol of the word (Eph. 5:26). Literally translated, this passage would read, "Except one be born of water and wind." And as wind "by universal consent refers to one factor in regeneration, the Spirit, so the water manifestly refers to the other element of regeneration, the word." The main contention is that the word is the instrument in the regeneration. Although not expressly mentioned here, it is elsewhere. Nicodemus was a teacher of Israel (v. 10 R. V.) and yet he did not know so fundamental a truth as the new birth, though the Old Testament taught it.

III. The Pupil's Difficulty (vv. 9-13). The works of the flesh as contrasted with the fruits of the Spirit are brought out in the Epistles, yet, like Nicodemus, people are asking today, "How can these things be?" Jesus challenges Nicodemus with the words, "Art thou a teacher of Israel and understandest not these things?" What Jesus said to Nicodemus (vv. 11-13) is true of the scriptures now, especially of the New Testament. They testify to the facts which Jesus knew and revealed, he having been in heaven, and come down from heaven for the purpose of making them known. To be born implies that it is the starting point of a new life, that we must grow as a child grows to be a man until it reaches to "a perfect man unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ" (Eph. 4:13).

IV. The Lesson Illustrated (vv. 14, 15, 18). Jesus believed in objective teaching, and he here refers to a memorable event in the early history of the Jews as illustrating his teaching. The journey through the wilderness to the promised land became weary and discouraging, and the Israelites complained bitterly of their hardships, complaining against God and against Moses. Punishment came in the form of fiery serpents, called fiery from the burning, stinging sensation caused by their bite. So intense was the venom of the bites that they became fatal in a few hours. This punishment made the people realize the awful evil of sin. They acknowledged their sin, and prayed for forgiveness. Moses made a brazen serpent, and carried it through the camp so that all could see, and looking became an act of faith, implying repentance and return to obedience and to God. Thus our salvation is literally, "Look and live;" believe and have eternal life; doubt and perish (Mark 16:16; John 3:36).

Coffee Cakes.

After beating together about four ounces of butter and four ounces of sugar, stir in gradually half a pound of sifted flour, two well-beaten eggs and a little milk. Add six ounces of plumped currants. Make a small quantity of strong coffee and when cool, add a good tablespoonful to the mixture. Then mix in a heaped teaspoonful of baking powder. Put into greased patty tins and bake in a brisk oven for about fifteen minutes. While warm they should be iced with an icing flavored with coffee.

MOTHERHOOD WOMAN'S JOY

Suggestions to Childless Women.

Among the virtues of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the ability to correct sterility in the cases of many women. This fact is well established as evidenced by the following letter and hundreds of others we have published in these colums.

Poplar Bluff, Mo.—"I want other women to know what a blessing Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been to me. We had always wanted a baby in our home but I was in poor health and not able to do my work. My mother and husband both urged me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, my health improved and I am now the mother of a fine baby girl and do all my own house work."—Mrs. ALLIA B. TIMMONS, 216 Almond St., Poplar Bluff, Mo.

In many other homes, once childless, there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong

Rear Guard Removed.

Doris was rather backward in her studies. One day when her father was inquiring into her standing at school she admitted that she was lowest in her class.

"Why, Doris, I am ashamed of you!" her mother exclaimed. "Why don't you study harder and try to get away from the foot of the class?"

"It isn't my fault," Doris replied in tones of injured innocence. "The little girl who has always been at the foot has left school."

ANY CORN LIFTS OUT, DOESN'T HURT A BIT!

Sore corns, hard corns, soft corns or any kind of a corn, can harmlessly be lifted right out with the fingers if you apply upon the corn a few drops of freezone, says a Cincinnati authority.

For little cost one can get a small bottle of freezone at any drug store, which will positively rid one's feet of every corn or callus without pain.

This simple drug dries the moment it is applied and does not even irritate the surrounding skin while applying it or afterwards.

This announcement will interest many of our readers. If your druggist hasn't any freezone tell him to surely get a small bottle for you from his wholesale drug house.—adv.

Is Work Too Hard?

Many kinds of work wear out the kidneys, and kidney trouble makes any kind of work hard. It brings morning lameness, backache, headache, nervousness, rheumatism and urinary troubles. If your work is confining, strains the back, or exposes you to extreme heat or cold or damp, it's well to keep the kidneys active. Doan's Kidney Pills are reliable and safe. Thousands recommend them.

Japanese Trade in Manchuria.

Mr. Yoshida, who was selected by the Japanese government to investigate commercial conditions in Manchuria, has made a report giving details of the trade. About one month is required to transport goods from Osaka to Harbin, even by passenger train. The principal Japanese products that are sent from Harbin to European Russia are hosiery, underwear, shoe soles, cotton textiles, medicines, isinglass and insulated electric wire. Since the middle of August an import tax has been assessed upon hosiery and underwear by the Russian Manchurian customs. The trade of North Manchuria is on the road to prosperity, on account of the increased population and the development of agriculture, Harbin is regarded as the center of business.

EGG MASH SHOULD BE KEPT BEFORE HENS

FARM FLOCK OF DIFFERENT BREEDS.

Hens that do not lay when eggs are selling at the present high prices and then take delight in trying to beat the record when their eggs are only worth 15 or 20 cents a dozen, are like a good many other things that cannot be depended on at the time of greatest need. However, the hens should not always receive the blame, because, in many instances, they do not receive the food products from which they can manufacture eggs.

The extension division of Clemson college has been recommending an egg mash containing one-third by weight of prime, bright cottonseed meal and the remaining two-thirds to consist of equal parts of cornmeal, wheat shorts and ground oats. This mash is a satisfactory food to make eggs, and it is kept dry before the hens in a hopper or box constantly. Then a mixture of whole grains is scattered in litter twice daily to force the hens to exercise.

For those who cannot obtain the ingredients to mix the above mash, it is possible to prescribe a simpler method of feeding hens for eggs that will give satisfactory results. Buy a few bushels of cowpeas. Make a mixture of 40 pounds whole or cracked cowpeas and 60 pounds of whatever other whole grains you are now feeding. A formula we have used (but others are equally good, provided the cowpeas are 40 pounds) is: Cowpeas, 40 pounds; corn or cracked corn, 30 pounds; cane seed, 20 pounds, and wheat, 10 pounds. Feed this mixture liberally twice daily in litter and do not give the hens any mash at all. You will need only ground oyster shells, broken plaster, or ground limestone to supply the lime for making the shell. Keep the lime product in a box where the hens can eat it constantly. And last, but not least, keep a bucket of fresh water before the layers, as eggs contain 65 per cent of water.—Clemson College Bulletin.

COTTON GRADE LOSSES

Producers Can Have Large Share in Improving Conditions—Great and Inconsistent Variations in Prices Paid.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The more or less general failure of cotton buyers and cotton producers to take grades into account in the primary sales of the fiber probably results in losses to the growers amounting to millions of dollars each year. Studies of market specialists of the department in representative towns in the nine principal cotton producing states of the South indicate that the losses probably totaled seven and a half million dollars in 1913-14 alone.

Cotton producers themselves can have a large share in improving these conditions. The growers should familiarize themselves with grades and should insist that the proper classification be given their bales by buyers. The economic importance of securing proper ginning, adequate baling and covering, the proper storage also should be recognized.

Great Variations Found.

Surveys conducted by the specialists have showed that there are great and insistent variations in prices paid for cotton of different grades. The average of prices on observed transactions in Alabama for one month, for example, was 13.51 cents for strict good ordinary and 13.47 cents for strict good middling, the latter being six grades better than the former. The higher grade of cotton thus sold for 20 cents less per bale than that of the lower grade, when on the basis of New Orleans differences, it was actually worth $7.50 per bale more. The inconsistencies and differences were especially apparent among the higher grades above middling. This is most unfortunate since it shows a failure to recognize the value of improvement of cotton varieties by growers and in effect puts a premium on careless and indifferent farming.

Marked differences in the prices paid for cotton of the same grade in the same markets on the same day also were disclosed by the survey. Thus middling cotton of 1 1-16 inch staple in a certain market brought 13 cents a pound, while middling of 1⅛ inch staple at the same place and on the same day brought only 10.05 cents. The latter cotton should have brought one-half cent more than that of the shorter staple bale. Therefore, if the 1 1-16 inch bale brought its true value, the other bale sold for at least $17.50 below its real value. While all variations observed were not as great as this, wide differences were found in numerous instances in every state where investigations were conducted.

Geographical Price Variations.

Inconsistencies in the valuation of tinged and stained cotton also were observed, the differences made in some cases between two bales of cotton of the same grade on the same market being greater than the amount paid for the cheaper bale.

The survey showed that for the some grades the prices paid were on the whole considerably greater in the eastern cotton states than in those west of the Mississippi. These differences, according to the specialists, were much greater than differences in freight rates to mills alone would account for. The other factors in favor of the East are believed to have been the direct purchase by mill buyers, the existence of good storage facilities, the availability of relatively cheap money, and the more general knowledge of grading among farmers due to longer establishment of cotton-growing in the section.

The investigators found that the producer received an appreciable advantage in prices when he was able to make "round lot" sales of 10 or more bales of cotton at a time. It is suggested that still greater advantages can be secured by selling where possible in lots of bales of the same grade.

TO PREVENT TOOLS RUSTING

Paste Made of Tallow or Lard and Graphite Will Prove Efficacious—Have Surface Dry.

No matter if tools are kept out of the wet, even the dampness of the air will cause them to rust. A paste made of tallow or lard and graphite, with a little camphor gum will prevent rust when applied and afterwards rubbed dry. Mix two parts grease to one of graphite. Add about one-fourth as much camphor gum as there is of the graphite.

Get the tools quite clean and dry, apply the paste and allow it to remain on all metal parts for 24 hours or longer, then rub dry. Tools treated in this way will not rust for several months, though exposed to damp air. Treat in this way every two or three months, not only tools, but any steel or iron surface.

REGULARITY IS RIGHT PLAN

Farm Stock, Once Accustomed to Routine of Living, Show Unrest at Any Change in Program.

Farm animals are creatures of habit, and once accustomed to a routine of living show unrest at any change. The feed stable or lot, therefore, should be free from disturbance, and the providing of feed and water should be uniform in time and manner.

Animals soon learn when these are to occur, and as feeding time approaches the secretions begin pouring from the various digestive glands in anticipation of the coming meal.

The system of feeding and watering and the character of the rations should be changed gradually, and only for good cause. In feeding operations a changing period is usually a losing period.

PEANUT IS PROFITABLE CROP

Plant Will Thrive on Poor Land Unsuitable for Cotton, and Will Improve the Soil.

Southern planters have other reasons for being complacent besides the high price of cotton. A Texas paper says that peanuts have reached $1.33 a bushel at some Texas markets, and everywhere are a dollar or better, and adds that peanuts that yield 40, 50 and 60 bushels to the acre are not to be sneezed at, even by cotton producers who are selling their cotton at $100 a bale, because the peanuts not only thrive upon poorer land hardly suitable to cotton, but build up the soil as well.

FRESH WATER FOR CHICKENS

Permanganate of Potash Acts as Antiseptic in Preventing Transmission of Disease.

Chickens need a constant supply of fresh water. Running water is best, but if this is not available keep the water fresh. Add enough permanganate of potash to make it a wine red. This amount will act as an antiseptic in preventing the transmission of disease through the water and will aid also in keeping down intestinal parasites.

DANGEROUS CALOMEL IS SELDOM SOLD NOW

Calomel Salivates! It Makes You Sick and You Lose a Day's Work—Dodson's Liver Tone Acts Better Than Calomel and Is Harmless for Men, Women, Children—Read Guarantee!

Every druggist here, yes! your druggist and everybody's druggist has noticed a great falling-off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it while Dodson's Liver Tone is safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist. A large family-sized bottle costs only 50 cents and if you find it doesn't take the place of dangerous, salivating calomel you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine, no sick headache, biliousness, ague, sour stomach or clogged bowels. Dodson's Liver Tone doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all next day like calomel.

Take a dose of calomel tonight and tomorrow you will feel sick, weak and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work!

Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up with your head clear, your liver active, bowels clean, breath sweet and stomach regulated. You will feel cheerful and full of vigor and ready for a hard day's work.

You can eat anything afterwards without risk of salivating yourself or your children.

Get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and try it on my guarantee. You'll never again put a dose of nasty, dangerous calomel into your stomach. Adv.

IS CHILD CROSS, FEVERISH, SICK

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Adv.

Why Rheumatism Comes With Cold Weather!

BY VALENTINE MOTT PIERCE, M. D.

A close connection exists between these two—cold weather and rheumatism. Prof. Alex. Haig, of London, has the most followers in the medical profession in the belief that the presence in the system of uric acid, or its salts in excess, is the real cause of rheumatism. Everyone has recognized the difference in the appearance of their water as soon as it gets cold; there is often a copious sediment of brickdust.

Several causes may lead up to an accumulation of uric acid in the system, which, in turn, causes rheumatism or gout, or creaky joints, or swollen fingers, or painful joints. For one reason the skin does not throw off the uric acid, by profuse sweating, as in the hot weather, and the kidneys are unable to take care of the double burden. Another reason is that people do not drink as much water in cold weather as in summer, which helps to flush the kidneys. Again, they eat more meat in cold weather, and some people are so susceptible that they soon develop rheumatism after eating meat.

At all such times persons should drink copiously of hot water, say, a pint morning and night, and take Anuric three or four times a day. This Anuric comes in tablet form and can be had at almost any drug store. It dissolves the uric acid in the system and carries it outward. I would advise everyone to take Anuric occasionally, and continue for three or four weeks, and in that way avoid rheumatism, gout and many of the painful disorders due to uric acid. —Adv.

IN MEMORY OF JAMES BURNETT

On the 7th day of January, 1917, at 11 o'clock, p.m., the death angel visited our home and took from our midst, a kind husband and loving father. He had been sick for nearly a year, but was confined to his bed just two weeks before his death, which was not at all unexpected.

He had told his home folks that he was going home; that he could not stay here.

He leaves a widow, one son, three daughters and ten grand children.

He joined the Missionary Baptist Church about 38 years ago, and he lived a Christian life until his 72nd year. We should not weep after this kind husband and father, for he lived such a life here that makes us feel perfectly satisfied about him. He was always good and kind to his family, and not merely to his family but to everybody with whom he had dealings. If he has an enemy, it is more than we know, for he always tried to live in such a way as to have friends everywhere he went.

He was ever ready to lend a helping hand to those in need, so far as he was able. He was born and raised in Chilton County, and lived here up to 13 years ago, when he moved to Elmore County, where he resided until his death.

His remains were laid to rest in the Hebson Cemetery.

OBITUARY

Norma, little daughter of James and Tempie Crumpton, residing a few miles east of Randolph, died on the 11th inst. She was 12 years old, a good and studious child,

We sympathize with the sorrowing relatives. They will miss her so much. Loving friends and physicians did all they could for her, but her young life is ended, and she sweetly sleeps undisturbed by the toils of this life, waiting for the due time when she will be awakened in the beautiful day, where the death shades never fall; where under the wise administration of the Heavenly Kingdom. Whosoever will, may drink the water of life and live forever, among that vast multitude. We expect Norma to be found in the golden day to come

Half Your Living Without Money Cost

A right or wrong start in 1917 will make or break most farmers in the South. We are all facing a crisis. This war in Europe puts things in such uncertainty that no man can foresee the future with any degree of clearness.

The sure and certain increase in cotton acreage means lower cotton prices next fall. Cost of all food and grain products is high, so high that no one can afford to buy and expect to pay out with cotton.

It's a time above all others to play safe; to produce all possible food, grain and forage supplies on your own acres; to cut down the store bill.

A good piece of garden ground, rightly planted, rightly tended and kept planted the year round, can be made to pay half your living. It will save you more money than you made on the best five acres of cotton you ever grew!

Hastings' 1917 Seed Book tells all about the right kind of a money saving garden and the vegetables to put in it. It tells about the field crops as well and shows you the clear road to real farm prosperity. It's Free. Send for it today to H. G. HASTINGS CO., Atlanta, Ga.—Advt.

BEST FOR ALL CROPS

SOUTH ATLANTIC GUANO COMPANY
(SUBSIDIARY MORRIS FERTILIZER CO.)
ATLANTA — MONTGOMERY

Every farmer has it in his power very largely to prevent crop failure. By proper selection of seed, timely cultivation and, most important of all, a careful selection of dependable fertilizers, he gives his crop a good, healthy start and keeps it vigorous throughout critical seasons.

The South Atlantic Brands are made of high class materials, selected with a view to giving service when service is needed. They start the crops off quickly and maintain the growth and fruit till harvest. The high grade animal ammoniates we use insure late fruiting and development, and also liberate potash from the soil.

By their liberal use. the cotton crop is brought to a quick and healthy maturity, thus escaping shedding losses and the ravages of the boll weevil.

Don't risk your crop on inferior fertilizers, but demand and insist on getting the South Atlantic Brands.

DEVELOP TALENTS OF THE BOYS AND GIRLS

Set yourself to work that Alabama boys and girls may find themselves.

The School Fair

The school fair occupies an important place in the scheme of education. We are glad to note its growing popularity in Alabama as evidenced by recent reports from several counties throughout the State.

This office received the following brief but interesting report from a Morgan County school man last week:

"A few months ago the Morgan County Fair Association offered a prize of $25 for the best school community exhibit, the money to be used for library purposes. The offer was supplementd by a like offer on the part of the First National Bank of Hartselle.

"The teacher, pupils, patrons, and citizens in general of Rural Grove School took an active part and put on a display that would have done credit to a State fair. Notwithstanding six schools, three of which were town schools, entered this contest, this one-room school, located in the poorest district of the six, won the prize and now enjoyes the use of a $50 library, all because there was behind the movement community pride, harmony, and cooperation."

Please note that:

First, it was a "school community" exhibit.

Second, a small out-of-the-way community did the big thing.

Third, a wise dispositions was made of the funds received.

Fourth, one bank gave $25 to a rural school library.

A Fifteen Year Old Boy Who Has Found Himself.

Roy Robinson is the fifteen year old cartoonist of the Tanner School in a rural community of Limestone County, and he is a good one. His two drawings representing the evolution of a school building in his community are evidences of remarkable talent and skill. In fact, these drawings proved of such interest to a newspaper man, who chanced to see them on Superintendent Feagin's desk, that they were appropriated for use in the Montgomery Advertiser. You perhaps saw them in the Monday issue, January 29th.

Roy, though young, is one of the progressives of his community. He has talent, as is shown by his drawings and is to be commended for using his talent in advancing the cause of better schools.

Recently, in the face of seemingly insurmountable obstacles, the citizens of the Tanner district succeeded in raising $800 with which they will soon secure State aid and erect a modern $1200 State plan building. Roy's cartoons were quite a factor in overcoming the "It was good enough for me" idea in his home community, thereby aiding in raising the fund and making the new building possible.

AN ESSENTIAL OF PREPAREDNESS

Further proof of the sound economy involved in raising the salaries of Government employees to keep pace with the action of private concerns is given by Senator William E. Borah of Idaho. He attributes the great fighting qualities of the Germans to the fact that for the last 40 years their government has seen to it that there were no paupers in the country and that every man received proper nourishment. When the call to arms came it was answered by vigorous men eager to meet the enemy. England, on the other hand, found that the stamina of her fighting men had been so undermined by long years of proverty, that the standards for enlistment had to be reduced. "You can not fit a man," declares Senator Borah, "for the duties and responsibilities of citizenship in a great Republic like this upon an income of six or seven hundred dollars a year when he has a family to rear."

FOR AID OF VETERANS' WIDOWS

To introduce a bill one day, and have it unanimously reported to the House by the committee on the following day is seldom accomplished. Such a feat, however, has been performed by Republican Representative Charles E. Fuller of Illinois. Many claims of widows are held up at the Pensoin Bureau because of their inability to furnish record evidence of marrriage to their soldier husbands, and much injustice has resulted. Mr. Fuller provides in his bill that when a woman has been recognized as a man's wife for a period of twenty years she shall be considered his lawful widow when he dies. The prompt and unanimous endorsement of the Committee on Invalid Pesions is a flatterig testimonial to the esteem and confidence in which Congressman Fuller is held.

LITTLE SAND MOUNTAIN

Health of this community is very good except colds.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely under the careful manayement of Mr. W. M. Oden as Supt. We are certainly proud to see so many of our young people take an interest in Sunday school.

We are very sorry to hear that one of our faithful Sunday school workers has left us. We wish him God speed.

Our literary school is doing some fine work. We have just three more weeks.

Miss Eva Hall spent the night with Miss Mae Hamrick Saturday night and reported a nice time.

Miss Alice Bearden dined with Miss Eva Hall Sunday.

Misses Janie Oden, Myrtle McAfee and Ida Walker spent Saturday night with Miss Lois Collins and reported a grand time.

R. L. Kenan, former road engineer of Chilton county was here Wednesday. He is now engaged in Federal aid road work in Coosa county, stationed at Rockford. He came over to confer with Judge Reynolds in regard to securing some federal aid on our roads.

AGRICULTURAL LETTER FROM AUBURN SCHOOL

Montgomery, Ala., was selected as the next meeting place of the Association of Southern Agricultural Workers at the close of the meeting in New Orlenas. Montgomery won out in the contest with Richmond, Va., and the success of Montgomery in landing the honor is considered a compliment to Montgomery as the agricultural center of Alabama and to the many Alabama agricultural workers who had prominent places on the program.

Prof. W. R. Dodson, Director of the Experiment Station of Lousiana, was elected President for the ensuing year and Dr. C. C. Thach, of Auburn, was elected Vice-President. Dan T. Gray, of North Carolina, was elected Secretary.

The velvet bean was endorsed as a product of economic value for feeding and fertilizing by Dr. B. B. Ross, State Chemist, in an address on "The Feeding and Fertilizing Value of Some Crops Adapted to Boll Weevil Conditions." The results of experiments conducted in West Alabama under the direction of Prof. Geo. S. Templeton, of the Department of Animal Husbandry, show that velvet beans in the pod at $18.00 per ton, when fed along with corn silage, give practically the same returns as cotton seed meal at $35.00 per ton. During the present season cotton seed meal has sold at figures far in excess of those given above, while velvet beans have continued to sell around the figure above mentioned, so, under present conditions, velvet beans have been even more valuable, comparatively, as for feeding purposes.

Analyses showing the composition of velvet beans, ground with and without the hulls; analyses of ground velvet bean hulls; analyses of a number of varieties of peanuts; analyses of peanut meals, ground peanut hulls, and peanut vines with hulls attached, and ground; analyses of soy bens and vines, dried and ground together; analyses of velvet bean hay; and also, analyses of several vrieties of cowpes and pea-vines have been completed by the Chemical Department and are being published in bulletins from the Alabama Experiment Station.

Dr. Cary, State Veterinarian, Mr. Quinnerly, Prof. Templeton, and Prof. Ferguson will attend the meeting of the State Live Stock Association in Huntsville next week. Dr. Cary is President of the Association.

County Short courses for members of the Boys Corn Club are being held weekly in connection with the regular Teachers' Institute. Much interest is being manifested in the Community Organization.

Old graduates of Auburn are planning a great time at the 1917 Commencement. Reunions of the classes of 1867, '72, '77, '82, '87, '92, '97, 1902, '07, and '12 will be held. Reunion of "The Old Guard", composed of all men who attended Auburn more than twenty-five years ago, has been called.

Ed Gandy, violating prohibition law, fined $50 and costs.

ENGLAND WANTS BEET SUGAR INDUSTRY

Great Britian is rapidly learning sound economics from America. She is now proposing to grant guarantees of interest upon capital in order to develop a beet-sugar industry. She has had a demonstration of the folly of being dependent upon other nations for her sugar supply when there are 4,000,000 acres in Great Britian that have gone out of cultivation in the last 25 years. The United States is still an importer of sugar, but we have built up a very extensive industry through the aid of bounties or a protective tariff. The Democratic party proposed to remove the sugar duty but thought better of it when a year of depression demonstrated what the effect would be.

COLLINS CHAPEL

Health here is not very good at present.

Owing to so much bad weather our prayer meeting has been dull for the last few Sunday nights, but we hope to have a large crowd with us next Sunday night.

Our Sunday school is still progressing nicely.

We are all wondering what was the matter with Uncle Jack Robinson that he was not in this community Sunday.

Mr. C. C. Murrah of Siluria visited Mrs. W. P. Murrah Wednesday.

Miss Pearl Oslin dined with Mary Collins Sunday.

Mr. Porter Barker of Sylacauga was a pleasant visitor at Misses Ada and Flossie Burnett's Sunday.

Miss Mollie Murrah visited home folks Saturday night and Sunday.

Mr. Julius Smith spent Sunday night at Mr. J. M. Mims'.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Vance dined with Walter Benson and wife Sunday.

Misses Ida, Rilla, and Annie Lee Vance of Sylacauga spent a few days in this community last week.

Mr. Simuel Mims spent Sunday with his brother.

Miss Eva Childress has returned home from Sylacauga where she has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Jim Honeycutt.

J. D. Collins, Jr., of Clanton visited his grand mother Saturday night and Sunday.

Lets not forget about our singing every Second and Fourth Sunday afternoon.

Much success to The Union-Banner.

Rev. S. U. Turnipseed, of Montgomery, Sunday School Field Secretary for the Alabama Methodist Conference, held services at the Methodist church last Sunday. He preached at 11 a.m., and lectured to the Sunday School teachers and officers at 3 p.m. At the close of the afternoon services the officers and teachers held a counsel meeting the following were present:

Gentlemen, J. B. Atkinson, Supt., Prof. Owens, V. J. Elmore.

Ladies, J. C. Killebrew, J. C. Jones, T. G. Jones, Lida Jones, F. C. Lewis, I. V. McQuaig, Glennie Evans, M. M. Brockman.

A home department was organized and Mrs. Lida Jones was elected Supt. of the department. Also a Cradle Roll with Mrs. J. C. Killebrew Supt. The teachers decided to take up the Teachers Training Course and the following were enroled for the course:

Messrs. V. J. Elmore, J. B. Atkinson, Prof. Owens.

Ladies, M. M. Brockman, Glennie Evans, J. C. Killebrew, I. V. McQuaig, Lida Jones, F. C. Lewis, T. G. Jones.

JAPAN IS FORGING TO THE FRONT

The Yokohama Chamber of Commerce reports a gain of $5,000,000 in exports of cotton yarn and $7,000,000 in exports of cotton hosiery, for Japan, 1916 over 1915. The preeminence which Japan is achieving in the Far Eastern markets on cotton gods will give our manufacturers something to reckon with after the war.

R. L. Clark of Mt. Creek was here last Saturday attending the public meeting at the court house.

THE SAFE PLAN FOR A SUCCESSFUL FARM

Food, feed, and fertility are the foundation of safe farming, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. A circular sent to farmers, bankers, and business men in cotton territory by the Chief of the Office of Extension Work in the South says: "Let us feed the people, feed the live stock, and feed the soil. When we have done these three things, then raise such acreage in money crops as we have the labor to tend."

The circular points out that the true value of cotton to the farmer is to a great extent the amount of food and feed that it will purchase. The price of cotton has risen, it is true, but so has the retail price of all other farm produce. "By growing all cotton," says the author, "and exchanging it for a living you are simply swapping a high-priced product produced by your labor for a high-priced product produced by the labor of the other fellow. When you follow safe farming, however, you produce your own food and feed at cost and sell your cotton for the other fellow's dollars."

Safe farming is defined in the circular as including these items:

(1) A home garden for every family on the farm, from one-tenth to one-fourth acre, well located, well tilled, and tended as carefully as any other crop on the farm, planted in rotation to time the vegetable crops so as to have a continual supply for the family table as many days in the year as possible. To this should be added one-fourth of an acre potatoes, either Irish or sweet, both, to be used as food for the family.

(2) Enough corn on each farm to last the family and the live stock one year, with a little extra for safety.

(3) Sufficient oats and other small grain to supplement the corn as food for one year with certainty. These small grains conserve the soil in winter and provide summer grazing for live stock.

(4) Hay and forage crops to supply the live stock on the farm for one year, with a little excess for safety. The legumes, which add fertility to the soil and produce the best hay, should not be forgotten.

(5) The necessary meat, eggs, and milk for the family. The meat should be produced by increased attention to poultry and hogs because of the rapidity with which these can be produced. Every family should have at least two cows, so that one can be in milk all the time. A sufficient number of brood sows should be kept to produce the pork for the family with some excess for sale. The average number of poultry per farm should be gradually increased to at least 50. There should be eggs and poultry for the home table, with sufficient excess for sale. The live stock on the farm should be gradu

SEVER RELATIONS WITH THE KAISER

MAY LEAD TO REAL WARFARE

Hopes Germany Will Avoid Any Overt Act That Will Mean Actual Warfare—Joint Session of Congress Hears Message.

BERLIN.—(Via London.)—Germany has acceded to the American demands for the release of the 72 Americans taken from ships sunk by the raider in the Atlantic and brought to a German port aboard the steamer Yarrowdale.

Washington.—All diplomatic relations with the German empire and the United States have been severed. In an informal address before a joint session of congress President Wilson announced to the world that conditions between the two countries had reached a place where it was necessary to sever all direct communication.

Fervently invoking the guidance of Almighty God in the step he has just taken, President Woodrow Wilson detailed to the congress why the United States can not continue relations of amity with a warring power which repeatedly invades its sacred rights and ruthlessly takes the lives of its citizens.

With the senators and representatives before him in the historic halls of the house of representatives, the president in a 10-minute speech spoke the words that may carry this country into the world conflict. Calm and with a sense of absolute right in what may prove the most somber moment of American history President Wilson explained the course in the now admittedly unsuccessful diplomatic struggle to dissuade Germany from her campaign of wanton ruthlessness.

Excellent attention the grim commander-in-chief of the nation's lawmakers listened while the president told of the course for law and humanity. ...on and not for power ... recalls pledges made ... ruthlessly broken and ...ted States cannot contend with a power that has ...ered rights on high seas ...ates the lives of our citizens.

TREATIES NOT SUSPENDED.

Rights of Individuals Not Affected by Severance.

Washington.—The breaking off of diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany will not affect the rights of Germans in the United States and of Americans in Germany. No treaties are terminated or suspended, but remain in full force in effect unless either government decides to denounce them, which by international practice generally requires for a notice of one year.

There is no change in commercial relations, already badly crippled by the war. Individuals and corporations may continue their usual affairs, provided they do not deal in contraband, and their obligations are as binding as ever. The courts still remain open to them for redress, but they have no authority for direct intervention of their diplomatic officials. They may, however, be represented by the friendly power selected to care for the interests of the respective governments.

WARFARE STARTS AGAIN

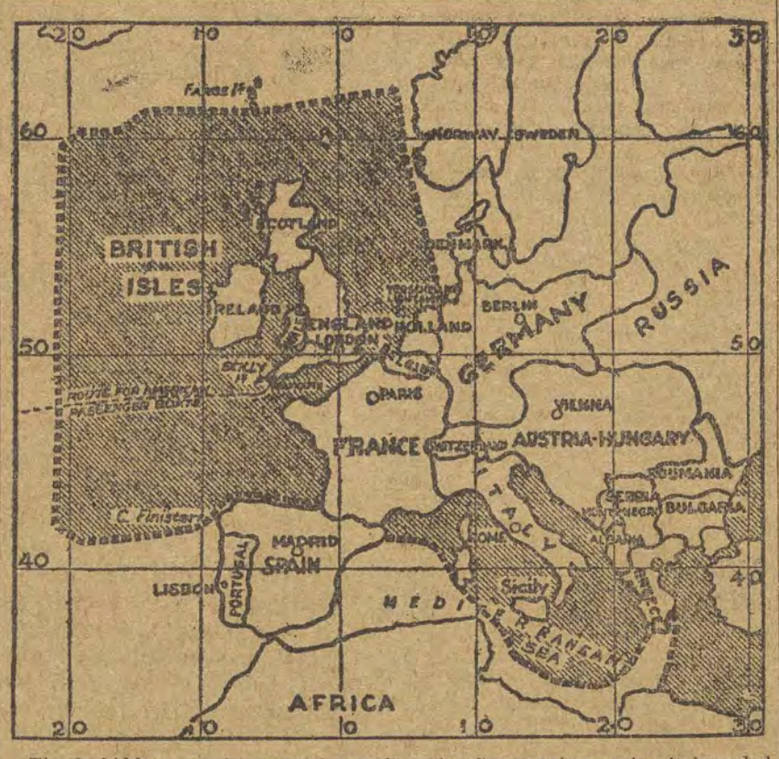
Drastic Move On Part of Germany Since Starting War Nearly Three Years Ago.

...shington.—Germany has declared ...restricted submarine warfare. ...nveyed to the world as her answer to the refusal of the entente allies to talk peace, Germany's latest ...g says:

"...m Feb. 1, 1917, within barred zones around Great Britain, France, Italy and in the eastern Mediterranean all sea traffic forthwith will be attacked."

"...tarvation blockade of England, ...e of which the world never has ...s announced, beginning Feb. 1, ...s delivered to American Ambassador Gerard in Berlin and to the ...department here by Count von ...torff.

"...s begin... the long-feared campaign ... of ruthlessness conceived by ...denburg, on a magnitude never ... contemplated by Von Tirpitz. ...y's action is the supercrisis ... those that have stirred the ...an government in two and a ...ears of world war. Peace and ... of preserving peace have gone ...ering."



...manitarian Tasks Effected.

...ington.—There is one relation ...owever, between the United ... and Germany which ceases ... diplomatic rupture. It is the ...arian task of guarding the ... of soldiers in the prison ... their enemies.

Precedent For Break.

...ington—Precedent for the severing of diplomatic relations is found ...n history only between lesser ... and between first class ... lesser ones.

BLOCKADE ZONES DECLARED BY GERMANY

The forbidden area for neutral vessels under Germany's warning is bounded by a line running from practically the center of the Netherlands coast northward, blockading all Denmark and the entrance to the Baltic, to the outside point of Norway, thence due west, skirting the southern part of the Faroe islands; then west and then south in a grand square 300 or 400 miles to sea off the British isles, to the junction of Spain and Portugal, apparently leaving the latter country open and affording a 20-mile safety zone along the northern Spanish coast to France. Practically the whole Mediterranean is declared dangerous except a narrow strip almost paralleling the African coast to a point directly south of Greece, from which a 20-mile path to Greek territorial waters is declared open.

GERARD IS RECALLED

ALL RELATIONS BETWEEN GERMANY AND UNITED STATES HAVE BEEN SEVERED.

Withdrawing of the Ambassador and All American Consuls Does Not Necessarily Mean War—Treaties Are Not Suspended and Individual Rights Are Unaffected.

Washington.—James W. Gerard, American Ambassador to Germany, has been recalled, with all his staff and all American consuls in Germany. All American interests have been turned over to the ambassador from Ambassador James W. Gerard.

Spain, who will have charge of all property and represent the personal interests of Americans in the German empire. Foreign diplomatic interests which the United States had in charge have been turned over to various neutrals.

Diplomatic negotiations extending over a period of more than two years, marked with frequent crises and attended with the loss of more than 200 American lives on the high seas, have at last been culminated with an act which in all the history in all the world has always led to actual warfare.

Believes In Direct Primary.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—To expend $100,000 and devote a part of his attention for more than 12 years to providing his state with a primary election law are outstanding features in the career of R. O. Richards, of Huron, father of the primary law system of South Dakota.

Neutral Countries Notified.

Washington.—Neutral governments have been notified of the action of the United States and have been openly invited to follow its action if the new submarine campaign violates their rigths.

No Change in Mails.

Washington—Mails will continue to move under the Geneva convention and other existing special conventions. There should be no restrictions upon the free movement of travel between the two countries.

INCIDENTS CAUSING BREAK

New York—Main incidents of U-boat war that led to rupture:

The main incidents, including the loss of American lives and the destruction of sihps by submarines, that led up to the diplomatic break are cited below:

First American Killed—Leon T. Thresher, passenger aboard the British steamship Falaba, torpedoed March 27, 1915, off Millford, England.

The Gulflight, oil tanker, torpedoed off the Sicily Islands, May 1, 1915; two men, drowned; captain died of heart disease.

The giant Lusitania, torpedoed without warning May 7, 1915, off the Old Head of Kinsale. Out of 1,257 passengers 1,198 were lost, including 124 Americans, many of them of national prominence.

The Italian steamship Ancona, sunk in the Mediterranean Nov. 7, 1915. Out of a total of 308 passengers lost, nine were Americans.

The British steamship Persia, sunk Dec. 30, 1915, southeast of Crete. Mr. McNeeley, American consul to Aden, among the 335 slain.

The French channel steamship Sussex, torpedoed in the English Channel March 16, 1916. It was this act of German submarine warfare that caused President Wilson to exact a promise from Berlin to discontinue illegal attacks at sea.

Establishment of starvation blockade and announcement that submarine warfare would be resumed Feb. 1, 1917.

REFUGES FOLLOW PERSHING

"Pancho" Villa Occupying the Camps Abandoned by Army—Many Refugees With Troops.

El Paso, Tex.—With "Pancho" Villa within 50 miles of the rear guard of the American punitive expedition, Gen. Pershing's withdrawal movement is under full swing. He has completely abandoned Colonia Dublan, his field base. Traveling in the refugee column are 800 American colonists and 700 or 800 Mexican, Chinese and other foreigners.

More than 100 American-Mormon residents of Colonia Juarez have declared they will stay with their property and take chances with Villa, despite his threat to massacre all American-Mormons found in Mexico after Pershing departs. They fear if they abandon their homes Villa will loot and destroy them.

Gen. Pershing has offered the protection of his column for all foreigners who desire to leave Mexico and is assisting in transporting them in army trucks. He has arranged for the transportation of the sick in army ambulances.

Another Strike Threatens.

Chicago.—It is announced here that a strike vote would be taken by switchmen in a few days unless grievances against four roads—the Atchinson, Topeka & Santa Fe, the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, and the New York Central—are adjusted.

British Casualties Less.

London.—The total of British casualties, as reported in the published lists during January, are 960 officers and 31,394 men. British casualties for January show a considerable decrease over those of the preceding month. No lists were published during the Christmas holidays, but the total for the first 23 days of December was 815 officers and 36,350 men. The January total brings the sum of British casualties since the beginning of the Somme offensive to 552,371.

HOUSATONIC SUNK; CREW TAKEN OFF

AMERICAN STEAMER IS TORPEDOED WHILE PRESIDENT IS MAKING HIS ADDRESS.

OFFICERS AND CREW SAVED

British Armed Steamer Picks Up Officers and Crew—Crew Taken Off Before Vessel Was Sunk—News Created Sensation.

London.—The American steamer Housatonic was sunk by a German submarine near the Sicily Islands. All the officers and crew were saved by a British armed cruiser.

The Housatonic sailed from Galveston early in January for London, via Newport News, Va. She left Newport News on January 16. There were approximately 15 Americans in the crew and 24 of other nationalities.

The Housatonic was 3,143 tons gross and was built in Glasgow in 1890. She was 238 feet long, 40 feet wide and 20 feet deep. She was formerly the Hamburg-American line steamer Georgia, and American registry was granted to her in April, 1915.

The steamer was carrying contraband, and as she was destroyed after proper warning and provision for the safety of her crew, the United States will merely have a claim for damages, as in the Frye case.

WILL CHECK CONSPIRACIES.

Acts of German Sympathizers Will Be Vigorously Prosecuted.

Washington.—The American government has set every agency in motion to protect the entire country against acts of German sympathizers. These moves are, of necessity, being kept secret.

At the request of the president, congress immediately began work on new laws framed by the department of justice to check any conspiracies and plots against the United States which cannot now be reached under existing laws.

300 SUBMARINES IN ACTION

Final Effort of Germany to Crush Entente Allies Is Made With Resumption of Undersea Warfare.

New York.—Germany plays her trumps. Three hundred or more submarines have plunged into the waters of the North Sea to make the final effort against Great Britain. They mobilized from Kiel, Hamburg, Wilhelmshaven and Bremerhaven, where, for months, picked crews have trained with anxious thoroughness. They go in confidence, for they are the deadliest of all the brood of sea monsters. They form the world's first diving battle fleet, a navy equally prepared to fight above or beneath the waves. The pride of this strange fleet is a powerful fighting craft. A thoroughgoing cruiser designed to make its prowess felt upon the surface as well as in the lower ocean.

It is plain fact, the magnificent submarine fleet that the Germans finally have unleashed is the supreme labor of Central Europe to wring victory from the hand of a reluctant fortune. The leaders in Berlin have long since admitted to themselves that this war cannot be won in the clash of armies, millions strong. They have

AMERICANS IN WORLD WAR

Larger Number Assisting Entente Allies Than Were In Spanish-American War.

London.—Nearly 50,000 Americans are estimated to be fighting for the allies, and nearly four-fifths of these are in the khaki-clad British army commanded by Field Marshal Haig.

It is computed that the actual fighting force of Americans now in France under the Union Jack is probably larger than the United States army which was actually engaged in hostilities in the Spanish-American war. Hundreds of Americans have given their lives for the allies, and hundreds bear permanent scars, but each new battalion and each group of reinforcements arriving from overseas brings numbers of their fellow-countrymen to take their places.

All have fought with a pluck and determination which have won them universal respect and admiration.

ATTORNEY GENERAL ISSUES STATEMENT

SAYS LAW VIOLATIONS EXIST, BUT HAS NO MONEY TO WORK.

STATE CAPITAL NEWS ITEMS

—Montgomery.

Asserting that intolerable conditions exist in Mobile, Montgomery and Rusell counties and that drastic and persistent efforts must be begun if the sovereignty of the law is upheld, William L. Martin, attorney general, in a statement declared that he was ready to do the work if either Governor Henderson or private individuals furnished the money to be used in the campaign. He mentioned the fact that the supreme court had held that his accounts must receive the approval of the governor and declared that he has the assistants and is willing to begin the work at once, but must have expense funds.

Attend Sunday School February 11.

Governor Henderson issued a proclamation to citizens of Alabama urging them to attend Sunday school on February 11, which has been set apart as "Come-to-Sunday-School Day" in Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina Mississippi and Arkansas.

Come-to-Sunday-School Day was designated by the Alabama Sunday School association and schools of all denominations are being urged to observe it and to see that as many peosons as possible are present on that day.

Governor Henderson's proclamation called "upon all Alabamians as well as visitors in our midst, to attend Sunday school in the church of their choice on February 11, 1917, that those engaged in conducting these schools shall receive proper encouragement and find their work in the service of their God prospering."

Henderson Wins Mandamus Case.

The Supreme Court of Alabama affirmed the decision of the Circuit Court of Montgomery in the mandamus proceedings instituted against Governor Henderson by Attorney General W. L. Martin, Assistant Attorney General Perry W. Turner and James R. Daly of Birmingham. The mandamus was instituted in an effort to make the Governor pay traveling expenses of the officials to Girard and Huntsville.

In handing down the decision the Supreme Court said: "It is hardly necessary to say, that with one accord, this court denies its power to coerce the Governor on any act calling for the exercise of judgment or discretion."

The decision ends a case that has been before the public for several months and proves the contention of the Governor that he could not be mandamused to pay the expenses of the Attorney General and his assistants.

Treasurer Makes Monthly Report.

Figures furnished by the State Treasury Department show the receipts for January amount to $2,551,123, and the disbursements for the month $2,194,557. The excess of receipts over disbursements is sufficient to take care of the monthly payroll of school teachers, and leave a surplus of about $50,000.

Warrants have been issued for Confederate pensions for the first quarter, amounting to $289,847, of which $267,848 has been paid. The payment of the remaining $21,999 awaits the presentation of warrants.

Health Report Made.

Vital statistics for the month of December furnished by the State Board of Health shows a total of 4,636 births in the State during the month. Of these 3,147 were white and 1,489 were negroes. The total birth rate was 23.04 per 1,000 of population. The rate for the whites was 27.08 per 1,000 and for the negroes 18.07. There were 2,048 deaths reported, of which 1,273 were white and 775 negroes.

Murder Verdict Affirmed.

The supreme court affirmed the judgment of the Jefferson criminal court which fixed a term of life imprisonment on Mary Lucinda Osborn, who was convicted of murder in the first degree.

Registrar Named.

H. P. Walker of Tuscaloosa was appointed registrar of Tuscaloosa county by Governor Henderson following the approval of the selection by the state registration commission composed of the governor, auditor and commissioner of agriculture.

Parole Amended.

Governor Henderson issued an order amending a recent parole of John Cross of Shelby county for relieving Cross of a $50 fine and hard labor sentence for violations of the prohibition laws. Governor Henderson said Cross had reformed since the cases were brought against him and only recently had lost a leg from a disease. He didn't think it for the best interests of the county and Cross to force him to complete the hard labor sentence.

GAS, DYSPEPSIA AND INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" settles sour, gassy stomachs in five minutes—Time it!

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable, you mustn't injure it.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; its harmlessness; its certain but failing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any dealer and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them; if what they eat lays like a lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eructations of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.—Adv.

Plays Many Pieces Without Stopping.

Application for patent rights has been made for a phonograph that is capable of playing several disk records in succession without requiring the attention of an operator, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The machine also will select special records and render them, or reproduce a single one as many times as desired. Small regulating knobs permit an operator to emit, repeat or stop any particular selection. Furthermore, it is possible to set the machine to stop automatically after playing any record.

New York's Bridges.

Irrespective of the elevated railroad system comprising the Second, Third, Sixth and Ninth avenue lines and the elevated portions of the Broadway and Lenox avenue sections of the subway, New York city has 42 bridges spanning the East and Harlem rivers, Newtown creek, and other waterways. These roads over rivers, including the Brooklyn, Manhattan, Delancey street and Queensboro spans, among the greatest in the world, represent, with the real estate requisite for their approaches, an investment by the municipality of more than $135,000,000.

YES! MAGICALLY! CORNS LIFT OUT WITH FINGERS

You say to the drug store man, "Give me a small bottle of freezone." This will cost very little but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

A few drops of this new ether compound applied directly upon a tender, aching corn relieves the soreness instantly, and soon the entire corn or callus, root and all, dries up and can be lifted off with the fingers.

This new way to rid one's feet of corns was introduced by a Cincinnati man, who says that freezone dries in a moment, and simply shrivels up the corn or callus without irritating the surrounding skin.

If your druggist hasn't any freezone tell him to order a small bottle from his wholesale drug house for you.—adv.

Coffee Cakes.

After beating together about four ounces of butter and four ounces of sugar, stir in gradually half a pound of sifted flour, two well-beaten eggs and a little milk. Add six ounces of plumped currants. Make a small quantity of strong coffee and when cool, add a good tablespoonful to the mixture. Then mix in a heaped teaspoonful of baking powder. Put into greased patty tins and bake in a brisk oven for about fifteen minutes. While warm they should be iced with an icing flavored with coffee.

STRIKING CONVICTS GO BACK TO WORK

OPERATIONS AT BANNER MINES RESUMED AFTER BRIEF SHUT DOWN.

ILL FEELING HAS SUBSIDED

Grievances of Men Considered and Differences Patched Up—No Further Trouble Expected.

Birmingham.—Operations at Banner Mines, where a "strike" among more than half of the State convicts working there occurred, have been resumed. The feeling among the convicts has about subsided; the State Convict Board, headed by P. J. Rogers, has considered the grievances of the men and it was stated that the men have all been pacified.

The negro convicts who went on "strike" at the Banner mine and held four white men as prisoners beneath the surface, capitulated to the state convict board, after being below the surface, and without food, for more than 24 hours, according to a statement made by J. W. Kyser, a member of the board.

The board members made no promise of any kind to the negro convicts except that they would hear their grievances. The complaint of the negro convicts was against the warden, J. D. Hall, and they allege that he did not show them any consideration, Mr. Kyser stated. P. J. Rogers, president, J. W. Kyser and Dr. R. A. Smith compose the state convict board.

W. P. Barron and L. C. Brown, fire bosses, and James Ford and Robert Russell, who were held prisoners in the mine by the negro convicts, with the threat that they would not release the white men nor would themselves come to the surface until the warden at Banner was removed, were released by the convicts and came to the surface.

They were pretty well exhausted by their enforced incarceration and by the lack of food. There was no food in the mine during the time the convicts held sway there.

Few Accidents Mar Coal Mining.

Birmingham.—Figures for fatal accidents in coal mines of Alabama for the first month of the year, with an almost record breaking production of coal, are around a low mark, two deaths. There have been several months in the past few years during which only two or three fatal accidents were recorded. Coal production now is on a heavy scale. Cars are being furnished with greater regularity than for some time, according to one of the smaller operators, and there is a most healthy output. It is still estimated that the output at coal mines now is on the basis of 1,500,000 tons a month, or around 18,000,000 tons for the year.

Alabama Butter Leads in Contest.

Auburn.—Four Alabama creameries won the highest scores in a recent butter scoring contest held at the Georgia Agricultural College in Athens. The contest was open to the creameries in Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina. Only four creameries in Alabama sent butter to the contest. It is rather remarkable that every creamery in the contest from Alabama made a higher score than any one from Georgia or South Carolina. The Alabama creameries scored as follows: Selma, 93 1-2; Auburn, 93; Kratzer, of Montgomery, 93; Talladega, 92.

Livestock Meeting.

Tuskegee.—The meeting of the Macon County Livestock Association was held here. The following questions were discussed: "The best plan of farming to follow under present conditions," "What are we to do about fertilizers?" "A discussion of the workings of the new Farm Loan Bank, and how to organize a local association to borrow money at a low rate of interest.

Parsonage To Be Built.

Tuskegee.—Plans have been made for the building of a new Methodist parsonage to be constructed at a cost of $4,000. Work will be begun at an early date.

Military Science Added to School.

Mobile.—Military science and hygiene will be added to the curriculum of the School of Medicine of the University of Alabama at Mobile. The trustees of the college so decided at a meeting called by the dean of the faculty, Dr. T. H. Frazer. The trustees endorsed the action of Dr. Frazer, who pledged the college to the adoption of such a course of study to the Secretary of War, at a conference held at Washington, January 6, provided his action was sustained by that body.

Child Falls Into Well; Uninjured.

Tuscaloosa.—The 2-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Kyzer had an almost miraculous escape from death when it fell into an old well and was rescued practically uninjured. The child had been playing in the garden with some other children and ran on to the covering of an old well, which gave way and the child fell to the bottom of the dry well, 40 feet below. The child was brought to the top smiling.

To Drill For Oil Near Albany.

Albany.—Announcement was made by Mrs. G. A. Nelson, wealthy land owner, that boring for oil will begin on her farm, one mile from here, within three weeks. The well will be put down near Indian Springs on her property. It was there that the first oil in the United States was found early in the eighteenth century and sold as petrol on the streets of London. Mrs. Nelson estimated the cost will reach approximately $10,000.

Campaign Starts For School Tax.

Anniston.—The campaign to wipe out illiteracy in Calhoun County, and to pave the way for the adoption of a three-mill tax for educational purposes is again under way. Miss Esther Foster, of the State Department of Education, has returned from Montgomery, and is cooperating with the local school authorities in this campaign.

Voting Strength Increased.

Gadsden.—The voting strength of the Alabama Equal Suffrage association, when it holds its convention in Birmingham February 12 and 13 will be about 130 as compared with 76 at the Gadsden convention last year. These figures are compiled by Miss Annie Coates, state treasurer. The membership of the association in the state is now about 1,500.

Stave Mill to Start.

Selma.—A new stave factory will soon be in operation at Marion Junction. A contract has already been made with a gin and warehouse company there to furnish space for the operation of the mill. The stave mill will work a number of men, and will be used in the consumption of large supplies of hardwood.

Tuscaloosa After Armor Plant.

Seed To Be Distributed.

Washington, D. C.—Representatives Heflin and Oliver, of Alabama, called on the Secretary of Agriculture to obtain an additional supply of field seed to distribute in the flood region of Alabama. They requested that bulletin on soy beans and peanuts be liberally distributed in that section. The Secretary promised to distribute through local farm demonstrator all the seed that he had for that purpose and to distribute in the same manner the bulletins desired.

WILSON CONVEYS NEWS OF BREAK TO LAWMAKERS

President Tells Congress of Severance of Diplomatic Relations.

RECITES KAISER'S PROMISES

Says He Refuses to Believe Submarines Will Commit Overt Acts Against American Lives and Ships.

Washington, Feb. 3.—President Wilson this afternoon addressed a joint session of congress, outlining the events that led up to the diplomatic break with Germany. He said:

"To the congress, February 3, 1917.

Gentlemen of the Congress:

"The Imperial German government on the 31st of January announced to this government and to the governments of the other neutral nations that on and after the 1st day of February, the present month, it would adopt a policy with regard to the use of submarines against all shipping seeking to pass through certain designated areas of the high seas to which it is clearly my duty to call your attention.

"Let me remind the congress that on the 18th of April last, in view of the sinking on the 24th of March of the cross Channel passenger steamer Sussex by a German submarine, without summons or warning, and the consequent loss of the lives of several citizens of the United States, who were passengers aboard her, this government addressed a note to the Imperial German government in which it made the following declarations:

"'If it still be the purpose of the imperial government to prosecute relentless and indiscriminate warfare against vessels of commerce by the use of submarines without regard to what the government of the United States must consider the sacred and indisputable rules of international law and the universally recognized dictates of humanity, the government of the United States is at last forced to the conclusion that there is but one course it can pursue. Unless the imperial government should now and immediately declare and effect an abandonment of its present methods of submarine warfare against passenger and freight carrying vessels, the government of the United States can have no choice but to sever diplomatic relations with the German empire altogether.'

Recalls Assurances Given By Germany.

"'The German government is prepared to do its utmost to confine the operations of the war for the rest of its duration to the fighting forces of the belligerents, thereby also assuring the freedom of the seas, a principle upon which the German government believes, now as before, to be in agreement with the government of the United States.

"'The German government, guided by this idea, notifies the government of the United States that the German naval forces have received the following orders: In accordance with the general principles of visit and search and destruction of merchant vessels recognized by international law, such vessels, both within and without the area declared as naval war zone, declared as naval war zone, shall not be sunk without warning and without saving human lives, unless these ships attempt to escape or offer resistance.

"'But,' it added, 'neutrals cannot expect that Germany, forced to fight for her existence, shall, for the sake of neutral interests, restrict the use of an effective weapon if her enemy is permitted to continue to apply at will methods of warfare violating the rules of international law. Such a demand would be incompatible with the character of neutrality, and the German government is convinced that the government of the United States does not think of making such a demand, knowing that the government of the United States has repeatedly declared that it is determined to restore the principle of the freedom of the seas, from whatever quarter it has been violated.'

Refused To Be Bound By Any Conditions.

"To this the government of the United States replied on the eighth of May, accepting, of course, the assurance given, but adding:

"'The government of the United States feels it necessary to state that it takes it for granted that the imperial German government does not intend it to imply that the maintenance of its newly announced policy is in any way contingent upon the course of results of diplomatic negotiations between the government of the United States and other belligerent governments, notwithstanding the fact that certain passages in the imperial government's note of the fourth instant might appear to be susceptible of that construction. In order, however, to avoid any possible misunderstanding, the government of the United States notifies the imperial government that it cannot for a moment entertain, much less discuss, a suggestion that respect by German naval authorities for the rights of citizens of the United States upon the high seas should in any way in the slightest degree be made contingent upon the conduct of any other government affecting the rights of neutrals and noncombatants. Responsibility in such matters is single, not joint; absolute, not relative.'

"To this note of the eighth of May the imperial German government made no reply. On the thirty-first of January, the Wednesday of the present week, the German ambassador handed to the secretary of state, along with a formal note, a memorandum which contains the following statements:

"'The imperial government, therefore, does not doubt that the government of the United States will understand the situation thus forced upon Germany by the entente allies' brutal methods of war and by their determination to destroy the central powers, and that the government of the United states will further realize that the now openly disclosed intentions of the entente allies give back to Germany the freedom of action which she reserved in her note addressed to the government of the United States on May 4, 1916.

"'Under these circumstances Germany will meet the illegal measures of her enemies by forcibly preventing after February 1, 1917, in a zone around Great Britain, France, Italy and in the eastern Mediterranean all navigation, that of neutrals included, from and to England and from and to France, etc., etc. All ships met within the zone will be sunk.'

No Alternative Consistent With Country's Honor.

"I think that you will agree with me that, in view of this declaration, which suddenly and without prior intimation of any kind deliberately withdraws the solemn assurance given in the imperial government's note of the fourth of May, 1916, this government has no alternative consistent with the dignity and honor of the United States, but to take the course which, in its note of the eighteenth of April, 1916, it announced that it would take in the event that the German government did not declare and effect an abandonment of the methods of submarine warfare which it was then employing and to which it now purposes again to resort.

"I have, therefore, directed the secretary of state to announce to his excellency the German ambassador that all diplomatic relations between the United States and the German empire are severed and that the American ambassador at Berlin will be immediately withdrawn, and in accordance with this decision to hand to his excellency his passports.

Cannot Believe Germany Will Carry Out Threats.

"Notwithstanding this unexpected action of the German government, this sudden and deeply deplored renunciation of its assurances, given this government at one of the most critical moments of tension in the relations of the two governments, I refuse to believe that it is the intention of the German authorities to do in fact what they have warned us they will feel at liberty to do. I cannot bring myself to believe that they will indeed pay no regard to the ancient friendship between their people and our own or to the solemn obligations which have been exchanged between them and destroy American ships and take the lives of American citizens in the willful prosecution of the ruthless naval program they have announced their intention to adopt. Only actual overt acts on their part can make me believe it even now.

"If this inveterate confidence on my part in the sobriety and prudent foresight of their purpose should unhappily prove unfounded; if American ships and American lives should in fact be sacrificed by their naval commanders in heedless contravention of the just and reasonable understandings of international law and the obvious dictates of humanity, I shall take the liberty of coming again before the congress, to ask that authority be given me to use any means that may be necessary for protection of our seamen and our people in the prosecution of their peaceful and legitimate errands on the high seas. I can do nothing less. I take it for granted that all neutral governments will take the same course.

Purpose Only Defense Of American Rights.

"We do not desire any hostile conflict with the imperial German government. We are the sincere friends of the German people and earnestly desire to remain at peace with the government which speaks for them. We shall not believe that they are hostile to us unless and until we are obliged to believe it, and we purpose nothing more than the reasonable defense of the undoubted rights of our people. We wish to serve no selfish ends. We seek merely to stand true alike in thought and in action, to the immemorial principles of our people which I sought to express in my address to the senate only two weeks ago—seek merely to vindicate our right to liberty and an unmolested life. These are the bases of peace, not war. Grant that we shall not be challenged to defend them by acts of wilful injustice on the part of the government of Germany."

SUBMARINE SINKS EEGLISH STEAMER

NOT CONSIDERED OVERT ACT

Incident Will Be Thoroughly Investigated Before Any Action Is Taken.

London.—The British steamer Eavestone, of 1781 tons, has been sunk and the captain and four members of the crew killed, says a Lloyd's announcement. It is officially announced that Richard Wallace, an American seaman belonging at Baltimore, was killed in the shelling of the boats which left the sinking steamer Eavestone.

The official statement says:

"Survivors of the steamship Eavestone, who landed report that their ship was sunk by shell fire from a German submarine. The crew abandoned the sinking ship and were shelled in their boats by the submarine.

"The master and three seamen were thus killed and the second mate was severely wounded. Among the killed was Richard Wallace of Baltimore."

Newport News, Va.—The British steamer Eavestone, reported sunk by Lloyds, left here December 25 with a cargo of lumber in transit from Texas City to Loverpool. Her agents stated that she apaprently had discharged her cargo and was on a return trip from Liverpool when sunk.

Washington.—The news of the killing of an American seaman in the shelling of the boats of the British the steamer Eavestone is not now regarded as the long feared overt act. It will be thoroughly investigated before it is assigned to its proper place as a factor in the situation.

SITUATION AT A GLANCE.

Washington.—The crisis between the United State ansd Germany possibly may become more acute through the reported killing or an American citizen by the guns of a German submarine.

An official statement issued in London, says an American, Richard Wallace, of Baltimore, and the master and two seamen of the British steamer Eavestone, met death through the shell fire of a submarine as they were leaving the steamer in small boats as she was sinking from the gunfire poured into her by the underwater craft.

Two other British steamers, the Isle of Arran and Hurstwood, have been submarined and a British sailing ship, the Garnet Hall, is believed to have been sunk. Five fatalities resulted from the torpedoing of the Hurstwood which is said to have been done without warning. The Danish steamer Lars Kruse, with a cargo of wheat for the Belgian relief committee, has gone to the bottom near the Belgian coast, either having ben torpedoed or struck a mine.

The situation arising from the severance of diplomatic relations with Germany remains virtually the same as when President Wilson made his momentous announcement to Congress. The status of Austria and her adherrence to Germany's submarine warfare, has not yet been determined. Meanwhile the American ambassador to Germany has demanded his passports and is making preparations to leave Berlin and plans are afoot for the German ambassador and his retinue to depart for Germany next week.

Advices from Manilla say that the 23 German vessels in Philippine waters have been seized by American naval officers at the request of the customs authorities, who considered as wanton and lawless the attempts to the German crews to destroy the vessels in Philippine harbors.

Atlantic Fleet Prepares for War.

Philadelphia.—A squad of eight marines left for Tuckerton, N. J., to guard the German wireless plant there and navy yard officials said they were sent on receipt of orders from the navy department.

Feverish activity on the ten battleships of the Atlantic erserve fleet at the navy yard began upon receipt of orders from Secretary Daniels that the fleet be prepared for immediate service. Necessary steps were made to bring the complements of each vessel to war footing and complete whatever repairs are necesary.

Eighteen Million Men Available

New York.—In a serious emegency nearly 18,000,000 me are available for military service in the United States, according to an estimate made by the committee on national defense. There are now physically fit for service in the field, 10,535,940 men between the ages of 18 and 45 years. Upon the basis of experience of other countres where universal military service prevails the committee estimates that out of 900,000 men annually reaching military age in United States 690,000 are fit for service.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of the Sunday School Course in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 11

JESUS AND THE WOMAN OF SAMARIA.

LESSON TEXT—John 4:5-14, 24, 26.

GOLDEN TEXT—Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners.—1 Tim. 1:15.

This is a lesson of one of the wayside ministries of Jesus. It occurred incidentally while he was on his way to his great preaching and teaching experience at Galilee. It was a by-product of his very busy life, yet it is one of the most famous interviews and one of the best examples of how to do personal work that is found in the scriptures. The larger part of the first year of Christ's ministry was spent in Judea. Jesus did not baptize, but his disciples did, doubtless for the same reason, though in a less degree, than why Paul refused to baptize converts (I Cor. 1:13-16). All but one of the disciples of Jesus were Galileans and Jesus spent about a year and nine months of his ministry in that place.

I. Jesus Rested (vv. 4-6). To reach Galilee from Judea Jesus "must needs go through Samaria," not that there were not other ways that he might have traveled, but rather that it was worth while to go out of his way in order to bring the water of life to this needful woman. Jacob's well was at a parting of the roadway near to the city of Sychar. Few places in the land save Jerusalem had so much Bible history connected with them (Gen. 12:6; Joshua 8:33; Acts 7:16; I Kings, 12:1, etc.). The well was originally about 100 feet deep and 7½ feet in diameter, but it has been filled up with accumulations of rubbish so it is now only about 75 feet deep. Christ was wearied in his work, but not of it, and "sat thus" (by) the well; literally, on the low wall built around it. The sixth hour was probably about midday There is comfort in consideration of the fact that as a man Jesus was willing to meet this woman of bad character.

II. Jesus Holds Conversation (vv. 7-14). Notice the gentle way in which Jesus speaks, and that he began on the ground of their common need. He asks this needed favor that he might confer a greater one, ignoring the prejudice which existed against the Samaritans. Water was the thing uppermost in the woman's mind. She did not grant his simple request, and her reply indicated that racial differences were a very real barrier. They hinder our work even yet. The surprise, perhaps pleasure, that a Jew should ask a favor of her seems to have greatly impressed the woman, and aroused her curiosity. In verse 10 Jesus tells the woman that there are two things she must needs know: (1) the wondrous gift of God, that is the Holy Spirit (Luke 11:13; Acts 2:23-38); (2) the wonderful man who had asked of her "Give me to drink." Had she known these things she would have asked him for the living water. All that was needful was simply to ask. The Holy Spirit is the living water (John 6:63). The woman does not seem to have comprehended what Jesus was trying to teach, yet he was patient, and won her as a convert. He told her that everyone who came to that well would thirst again (v. 13). The world's fountains do not satisfy, fountains of wealth, fame, pleasure or carnal gratification, or even learning. He then tells her of the living water (v. 14)) of which the drinker should never thirst, that it would satisfy whosoever drinks, and was to be everlasting (John 7:37-39). The one who receives the Holy Spirit within has a perennial, eternal spring of life, joy and satisfaction springing up within him. Before the woman received the water of which he was speaking there had to come a conviction of sin (vv. 16-19); hence his remark, "Go call thy husband." This was a sharp thrust into her life and heart. She tried to parry the thrust with a technical question, yet he comes back with a great revelation of the nature of God and the worship which God accepts, revealing his Messiahship (vv. 15-26). As is indicated, she does not seem to have comprehended the nature of the request which Jesus had made (v. 15); therefore he began this searching of her life in order to prepare her to receive the water of life which he wanted to bestow. This knowledge of her secret life by a perfect stranger who had never even seen her before was an evidence to the woman of spiritual endowment: "Sir I perceive that thou art a prophet." She then entered upon a theological argument (v. 20) which Jesus answered very simply, saying that the worship of the Father is not to be restricted by time or place (v. 21).

At this point the disciples return and the woman goes into the villege.

Jesus, lifting up his eyes to the citizens who were coming out at her invitation, exclaims, "Lift up your eyes and look on the fields, for they are white already to harvest," thereby emphasizing still further the "personal evangelism" thought which is uppermost in this lesson.

She thirsted (v. 14), she received (vv. 25, 26), she became a spring (vv. 28-29) which supplied others (v. 39).

The water of life fully satisfies, and it is a spring (v. 10); it continually satisfies.

BOND ISSUE DISCUSSED.

In response to the call of the court of County commissioners as issued for last Saturday, a meeting of citizens was held at the court house Saturday to engage in discussion of the remedy for Chilton county's financial distress.

Judge Reynolds placed before the meeting the facts as to the way things exist with the county financially.

The individual voice of every man in the meeting was heard, and it was about the unanimous opinionn that a bond issue by the county for the purpose of carryig its indebtedness to be the best plan to pursue.

Accordingly the meeting authorized the commissioners to call an election to decide whether or not the county should issue bonds for this purpose.

The commissioners have the matter pending till next Tuesday, when they will take it up again, and will probably be ready after that to anounce further plns in connection.

TO MY FRIENDS AND PATRONS:

I wish to announce my removal.

You will now find my offices in the Hopkins Building across the street from my former office. I am prepared to do all kinds of surgery that does not repuire the patient to remain in a hospital. My hours for all such work will be arranged by appointment.

GIRLS CLUB WORK

The new club year begun Feb. 1st. Girls help make it the best on record, you can do it and I feel sure you will.

Let each member do her best for home and county.

The following clubs have been organized: Clanton, 18 members; Mt. Pleasant, 27; Union Grove, 12; Minooka, 5; Collins Chapel, 20; Cross Roads, 15; Evergreen, 8; Cooper, 6; Bakers school, 7; Pletcher, 4; Center Hill, 7; Mineral Spring, 18; Pleasant Grove, 6; New Cedron, 9; Farview, 7; Vermont, 4; Lawley, 13, making a total of 17 clubs with 186 members club age and over 50 Home Denonstration members.

The poultry work has proven as popular as the canning club, with 10 clubs and 136 members the county will have much bettre poultry than in the past. By studying the proper feeding and housing the members are endeavoring to bring the poultry on the farm to a self sustaining basis at the present and in the near future make it profitable.

A daily record is kept of the poultry products, also of the expense of feeding and caring for them and the amount used and sold which is the only intelligent way to do business. Let us know what we are doing.

A Community Boys' Agricultural Club was organized at Evergreen with 16 members, this is an innovation in their work, it combines both pig and corn club members, and any other agricultural product on which a boy wishes to specialize. All that is required is to study the literature keep a record and make a report. We wish for them unbounded success.

Girls keep a watch on these agricultural clubs, or else they may outstep you in their work, see what your tenths can make in competitions with their acres.

With plenty of canned vegetables and fruit in the pantry another year and some to sell, poultry to supply the table with fresh eggs, corn and pigs to eat and some to spare, let us specialize on milk and butter from pure breed cattle well cared for, why need the farmer worry concerning the boll weevil.

May the years' work be crowned with success for each member enrolled.

LONG TIME LOANS TO FARMERS ON IMPROVED REAL ESTATE

ally increased so as to consume the otherwise wasted products and make productive the unproductive and untillable lands.

(6) Cotton for the main money crop after the living has been amply provided for.

(7) The sale of the surplus products of the garden, the orchard, the poultry, the live stock, and the feed crops to cover the necessary running expenses of the farm, leaving the cotton as the real cash crop.

The present prices of cotton, says the circular, should not be permitted to tempt any farmer to depart from this program. It is the only safe plan to follow, no matter what the price of cotton may be.

MINOOKA

Health of this community is very good.

The farmers are getting behind with their work on account of so much bad weather.

We are sorry to say our Ladies Home Demonstration Club is getting a little behind with their work owing to the bad weather but we hope to get busy soon. We want to do our best on gardening and poultry raising this year.

Keep the boys and girls on the farm. Give them some chickens, learn them how to can all kinds of fruit and vegetables, give them a chance and above all send them to school. Give them a good education and then they will enjoy doing their work.

Our school is moving alnog nicely under the management of Prof. F. B. Williams.

Every body is invited to Minooka Sunday, Feb. 11th, Alabama-Come to-Sunday-School Day. Our program is arranged for Sunday a.m. only. Lesson will be "Jesus and the Woman of Samaria." If you cannot come to our Sunday school go to some other Sunday schol and carry some one with you. What is there any nicer than a good lively Sunday school. It helps to build up your community, makes better men and women, boys and girls.

Just another word to fathers and mothers go to Sunday school and carry your children, they need your help there.

TONOLINE IS BEAUTY AID, ANNOUNCES SPECIALIST

Mildred Louise Talk of Interest to Women.

As health is a first aid to beauty this story, told by Mildred Louise, beauty specialist, of Boston, Mass., is of unusal interest.

"I can recommend no better health giver than tonoline," said Mildred Louise.

"I was for many months a victim of stomach trouble and nervousness. I had suffered terribly from pains that followed eating. Headaches would also add to my worries. Poor digestion finally brought on nervousness.

"Relief came, however, when I took the advice of several women who said, 'Take tonoline.'

"Not long after I started the tonoline treatment, my patrons began to remind me of the improvement in my condition. And because health is the quickest way to beauty, the improvement was particularly noticeable in in my face.

"What tonoline really did for me I cannot say. I am so grateful that I am very willing to reccommend tonoline publicly."

Tonoline is a purely vegetable preparation which goes to the seat of common maladies—stomach and kidney troulble, catarrhal affections of the mucous membranes, liver ailments and impurities of the blood—and quickly restores proper action. Tonoline is being explained daily to many people at your druggist.

Notice:—As tonoline is a wonderful flesh builder it should not be taken by anyone not wishing to increase his weight ten pounds or more. Although many reports are received from those who have been benefitted by tonoline in severe cases of stomach trouble and nervous dyspepsia, chronic constipation, etc.

were eased by the dogs who licked the infected places, but they were not cured. Many modern people employ the same method in their treatment of boils, pimples, rashes, carbuncles, eczema and other skin diseases. They apply a salve or lotion to the sore places and fondly imagine they have cured them. The important fact which they fail to recognize is, that these skin diseases are diseases of the blood, and that no external treatment can permanently cure them, because they are essentially internal ailments. S. S. S. is the only proper remedy for this breaking out of the skin, because it acts upon the blood, cleansing and revitalizing it, and removing the cause of infection. It should be borne in mind that S. S. S. is purely vegetable, made from native roots, herbs and barks, and that it contains no habit-forming drugs or other injurious ingredients. Obtain a bottle of S. S. S. from your druggist and if you need the advice of a physician, write to the Medical Department, Swift Specific Co., 301 Swift Building, Atlanta, Ga.

GEORGIA FARMERS CHEERFUL OVER THE OUTLOOK

Planning to Beat Boll Weevil. Not Alarmed at Scarcity of Potash.

Reports from South Georgia and Southern Alabama reflect a decidedly optimistic disposition on the part of the farmers who, at one time, were deeply concerned over the menace of the boll weevil and the scarcity of potash fertilizers.

There has been a general awakening of sentiment all along the line in favor of co-operative measures in combating the spread of the boll weevil and in ridding the fields of any present infestation, so that it is now thought that this pest will have quite rough sledding next summer.

Many well informed planters in the section referred to express themselves as feeling decidedly independent of high price potash and are not worrying over the scarcity of that material.

This view of the matter is presented by an interview with Hon. M. E. Rushin of Vienna, Ga., who is one of Dooly County's most extensive farmers and also one of that county's representatives in the legislature. Dooly county being a distinctively typical South Georgia county, may be considered fairly representative of all that section of Georgia and Alabama where it was once thought that cotton could not be grown without liberal applications of potash.

Mr. Rushin states that on his entire farm, in the Spring of 1916, he did not use any fertilizer containing potash, but that he made the best crop in all of his experience. He, of course, realizes that his success is due to the use of a class of fertilizer that contains potash in itself, and, in addition, has the power of liberating large quantities of potash already present in the soil and he urges the farmers to select this class of fertilizers for this purpose.

When asked by a representative of Morris Fertilizer Company, of Atlanta Ga. and Montgomery, Ala., for a more extended expression of his views, he said: "I used one hundred tons of the Supreme Brand 12-4-0 Ammoniated Super-Phosphate last spring, manufactured by Morris Fertilizer Company, of Atlanta, Ga. and Montgomery, Ala., (this grade being pure Blood, Bone and Tankage Ammoniated goods without potash) and found that these goods gave me the fullest measure of satisfaction as I have the best crop I ever made and I give those goods full credit for my success.

As an evidence of what they did I will say that I made 350 bales of cotton on 350 acres and an average of forty bushels of corn per acre. Land of the same nature as mine, just across the road, and fertilized with a different class of fertilizer made only one-fourth bale per acre.

I am so thoroughly convinced that the Morris Ammoniated Super-Phosphate, without potash, fully supplied the needs of crops of this soil that I am going to buy them next year and I take pleasure in urging my neighbors to do likewise."

Farmers who wish to use this class of fertilizers should call on their local dealers at once and engage what they need as the supply is not large, or if the local dealer cannot supply the demand, any grade desired may be ordered direct from the nearest office of the manufacturers.

Every now and then some western legislator makes clear his opinion that it ought to be possible to hold a perfectly good investigation without the help of a New York Lawyer.

At one time discussion of the liquor question was confined to "What will you have." "Thim were the happy days."

For One And One Half Years. Confined To Bed Most of This Time. Suffered Intense Pain.

Sheffield, Ala.—"About four years ago," says Mrs. J. T. Stonecipher, of this town, "I got in very bad health . . . became irregular, and I was pretty bad off for a year and a half . . . had difficulty and pain in walking—could scarcely walk at all. I got awfully thin and was confined to my bed most of the time for 1½ years—could scarcely ever do any work. I suffered dreadfully, and I suffered intense pain in the right side.

We had in attendance first Dr. ——, of ——, who pronounced my trouble. . . . , and he wanted me to have an operation performed, but I could not bear the thought of submitting to such a thing. . . He gave me medicine which did me no good. I then had Dr. ——, of ——, who gave me medicine which gave me no permanent relief.

My neighbors said how bad off I was and advised me to take Cardui. . . My husband was so worried about me that he went and called in Dr. ——, of ——, . . . On his second call I told him . . . I had taken about a bottle of Cardui, which had been improving me a great deal . . . He said: 'Well, leave off my medicine and take the Cardui, it's a good medicine.' After the use of the second bottle I was cured and the cure was permanent."

Cardui should help you, too. Try it. —Adv.

SWAMP-ROOT FOR KIDNEY DISEASES

There is only one medicine that really stands out pre-eminent as a remedy for diseases of the kidneys, liver and bladder.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root stands the highest for the reason that it has proven to be just the remedy needed in thousands upon thousands of even the most distressing cases. Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription for special diseases, makes friends quickly because its mild and immediate effect is soon realized in most cases. It is a gentle, healing vegetable compound.

Start treatment at once. Sold at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes—fifty cents and one dollar.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

JOKE SENDS YEGG ON A LONG TRIP

TRIES TO KID CLERK

Tells Penitentiary Clerk He Was Born in Calcutta—When Released He Is Shipped Off to India.

St. Louis.—Jimmie Ryan of Kerry Patch is back in town—Jimmie Ryan, alias "Ohio Jimmie," yeggman, four-term ex-convict and Irishman.

"And I've got a new name this time," said Jimmie. "I'm a globe trotter, I am now.

"It all begins when Detective Sergeant Kaiser, spied me in the Patch in January, 1912. He sez to me that they had room for me down at headquarters.

"Me and some of the boys had just cracked open a nice little baby over in Swayzie, Ind.

"They soaked me quick—five years in Leavenworth.

"They had a musher receiving clerk there—a kinda fresh guy. Imagine kiddin' me, me that had been there before and knew more about that cage than he ever would.

"So, when he asked me too sassy like where I wuz born, I sez to him. 'On the border, on the ragged edge between Calcutta and Bombay.'

Back to the "Black Hole.

"'Hum,' he sez, 'British subject.'

"I got out in three years, five months. Right at the door was a U. S. dick and he took me.

"'We're goin' to send you home,' he sez.

"Me, I had visions of Kerry Patch. But he put me on the wrong train and I went toward Frisco.

"'Where you takin' me?' I asked.

"'Back to the black hole of Calcutta, where you come from,' sez he.

"S' help me that shiner at Leavenworth had swallowed bait and all.

"I couldn't do nothing and I watched 'em put me aboard the Nippon Maru and heard the United States shiner tell the captain: 'Don't you let him set foot in America again. Me, a loyal subject of Kerry Patch.

"German Spy"—He Sez.

"'Twas a long trip across the ocean. I had time to kind uv look myself over and I sez to myself, sez I, 'Jimmie, you brace up and wherever they take you, when you step off the water, you be a gentleman.'

"I had a bit of down on my upper lip, and I trained it up a bit and smoothed out my clothes.

"The boat stopped at Hongkong and a bull boat came up. One of them foreign coppers looked at my mustache.

"He knew me right away. 'German spy,' he sez. An' they took me.

"It took them fourteen days to find out me Irish talk was better identification than me German fringe.

In the Kerry Patch Again.

"On the way to Calcutta, I wuz, again. They met me at the boat, they did. Polite like they were and a fellow they called the 'charge of affairs' he took me up to his house where there was a lion floating on a flag and he sez:

"'Welcome home.'

"They threw me in the original black hole of Calcutta. I was put turning a crank.

"I stood it three days. Then I made 'em take me to the charge of affairs and I sez to him:

"'Look here,' I sez, 'I wuz born in Kerry Patch, St. Looie, and I want to go back.'

"'You're a British subject,' sez he.

"'British,' sez I. 'I'm American.'

"He found it out a month later.

"They took me down to the boat again. S'help me if it wasn't the old Nippon Maru.

"I got to Frisco a month ago and to Kerry Patch as soon as Uncle Sam's money they'd given me in Frisco would get me here.

"Now, look at me," said Jimmie. "Fine welcome they give me. But it's better than Calcutta."

Jimmie has been released. The police found out he had been working with a wrecking crew ever since he arrived.

SHE CAN'T GET A CORK HEART

Though Girl Who Sues for Breach of Promise Has a Cork—

Chicago.—This is a tough sort of a story for a gallant young man to write because Miss Loretta De Visco, the heroine, has a cork—

Well, let's start all new. Miss De Visco, who formerly lived at the Lorraine apartments, filed a breach of promise suit for $50,000 against Hugo L. Kline. Hugo L. Klein of the firm of Sterne & Klein admits he is the "Kline."

Mr. Klein also admits he knows Miss De Visco, but he says he had an idea, all the while, that he was doing a charitable act by way of helping her buy a new cork—

A Girl Waved.

There it goes again. Bad form. But he says one day he was motoring down and at Sheridan road and Wilson avenue a girl waved. He gave her a ride. He felt sorry for her because she limped. And she told him her struggles and her poverty, and her cork—

Well, anyhow, Klein says he gave her money so she could get a new one. But she didn't get a new one, so he quit giving her money. Then one day Mrs. Leonora Z. Meder, attorney, called him up, he says, and told him Miss De Visco wanted to sue for breach of promise. Mrs. Meder didn't take the case.

"I'm married and happy," said Mr. Klein. "I hear now that Phillip Sheridan Rowe, another lawyer, has taken her case. But, I didn't propose to her. Why, she's got a—she limps. I'm sorry, but I couldn't propose to a girl with a cork—".

Anyhow, Mr. Klein says hereafter he'll be shy of any girl with a cork—

Well, you know—

BRIDEGROOM HAS HIS WOES

Kidnaped by Friend in Milwaukee and Left in Taxi With Pretty Girl.

Milwaukee.—Kidnaped by his former classmate, left in a taxicab with a pretty girl, then fated to discover that he had lost the money received for a honeymoon, and all the strange circumstances occurring while his bride of five days was grieving for the husband who failed to return after buying tickets for their wedding trip—these were a few of the troubles that recently beset a young bridegroom.

The exciting events followed the elopement to Waukegan, Ill., of Miss Hallie Mae Ure, daughter of a rich Milwaukee family, and Arthur Brooks McClave, scion of a wealthy business man of Scranton, Pa.

Back of the story is a romance of a meeting at an eastern college function of the Milwaukee girl and the Scranton young man while Miss Ure was at an eastern school for girls.

The elopement escaped attention until the kidnaping took place. Then the whole story became known. The young husband had sent word to Scranton that he had presented his dad with a daughter, and a handsome present in the form of cash for a wedding trip was received. But the kidnaping spoiled things for a while, and police were put on the trail of the missing bridegroom before he was returned to his young wife.

ADVERTISES FOR BLOND WIFE

Oklahoma Minister Who Has Been Widower for Three Years Wants a Mate.

Muskogee, Okla.—Rev. T. W. Eastham of Beggs, Okla., lives on a farm near Beggs and preaches at four different churches on his circuit, but has not met a woman since his wife died three years ago, whom he would "particularly care to have for a wife." Recently before leaving for his home, after attending the East Oklahoma Methodist conference, Mr. Eastham inserted an advertisement for a wife in a local newspaper.

"I prefer a blonde," the advertisement says, "but I don't particularly care about her size and build, except that she must not be too small or too large. I want her to be about my own age, or younger, but she can have any color of eyes."

IMPORTANCE OF ABUNDANT FRUIT SUPPLY

"COVE" ORCHARD, LOCATED IN VIRGINIA.

(By H. P. GOULD, Pomologist, United States Department of Agriculture.)

Perhaps the best reason why fruit should be grown on the farm is that a good supply of fruit contributes to the welfare of the home and to the health and enjoyment of the family. The farm orchard is not usually a direct money-making enterprise, though it may sometimes be a source of small income.

A farm orchard or fruit garden, if planted to suitable varieties and well cared for, tends to give a continuous and regular supply of fruit. Even though the quantity actually used in the average farm home could be bought more cheaply than it could be raised, it would not take the place of the home-grown supply. The purchased supply would usually be obtained spasmodically; in a great many instances it would not be obtained at all. The recognized usefulness of fruit in the diet emphasizes the importance of insuring an abundant supply.

Locating the Orchard.

No fruit will thrive on poorly drained soil. Very sandy and heavy clay soils should be avoided if possible. The sandy loams, loams and clay loams are preferred. Fruits require fairly productive soils. A measure of fertility commonly and fittingly used in this connection is a "soil that will grow a good crop of corn."

The subsoil is fully as important as the surface soil. It should be deep and of such a texture that water will soak into it readily. It is partly for this reason that heavy clay soils are undesirable. Then, too, the roots penetrate a fairly friable subsoil much more readily than they do a very hard one.

In most sections an orchard should be located on a relatively high spot. This is largely to avoid as much as possible the danger of injury from late spring frosts and also to insure better drainage. But there will be many instances where there is no elevated place on the farm; and, if there is, it may be too far away from the buildings to be convenient. Some things may need to be sacrificed for the sake of convenience.

Having selected the place where the orchard is to be planted, the preparation of the soil to receive the trees is next in order. If the land is in sod, it is better to break it a sufficient length of time in advance of the planting to permit the sod and grass roots to decay.

Before the trees are planted, the soil should be harrowed or cultivated until it is as well pulverized as it would be for planting corn or growing grain. This at least should be done over a strip several feet wide where the rows of trees are to stand. The advantages of having the soil finely pulverized when the trees are set in the ground will amply repay the cost of doing it.

Trees for Planting.

The quality of the trees that one plants has very much to do with the results which follow. It is not possible to so describe a good tree that one unfamiliar with nursery grades can be sure of fully safeguarding himself against accepting undesirable stock, should it be delivered to him. However, some of the important features may be named.

While small, weak, stunted trees should always be avoided, the other extreme in size is about equally undesirable for ordinary purposes. As a rule, well-formed, well-rooted, medium-sized trees, which have the characteristics of the variety, are best.

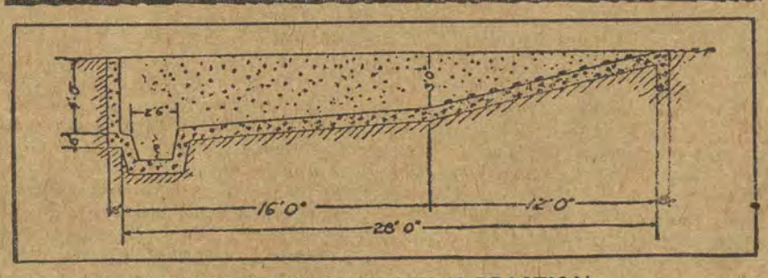
Such trees can be transplanted more successfully; they usually start into growth more readily and develop more symmetrically than trees of either of the extremes.

The roots should be abundant and well distributed from the base of the tree. If there are but few, and these are all on one side, the tree will not be well braced when it is planted.

Carefully Inspect Trees.

There is less danger now than a few years ago of getting trees affected with disease and insect pests on account of improvements in the nursery inspection service of the various states and the higher standard generally adopted by the nurserymen. In the past many diseased trees have been sent out and there is still danger of unnecessarily planting diseases along with the fruit trees. All trees should be looked over carefully when unpacked. In case diseases or insect pests are found, the trees should not be accepted and the nurseryman at once notified that the trees are held subject to his order. When in doubt, consult an expert, preferably on the ground, but samples may be mailed to the nearest experiment station or to the department of agriculture.

Most fruit trees, including apples, pears, plums and cherries, are planted when they are two years old; that is, after they have made two seasons growth in the nursery. Peach trees, however, should be but one year old when transplanted from the nursery. There is a growing tendency among commercial orchardists to plant apple and some other fruits when only one year old.



Deal With Nurseryman.

Probably the trees for the majority of farm orchards are bought from fruit tree agents. Such agents often represent long-established and thoroughly reliable nurseries, and do business year after year in the same territory. But many agents represent jobbers who do not grow the stock they handle, but purchase it wherever they can buy it to the best advantage. In many cases, they have no very permanent headquarters and frequently do not expect to do business in the same sections for more than a season or two.

It is usually more satisfactory in the end, if the purchaser, even of very small quantities of stock, makes up his mind as to what he wants and then places his order direct with some nurseryman who has a well-established business and who is so located geographically that he can conveniently ship the order to the point where it is to be delivered.

Other things being equal, the nearer the nursery is to the place where the stock is to be planted, the better. But sometimes, because of better prices or for other reasons, nearness of points of production and planting can well be disregarded. Trees of the same variety and on suitable stocks, which are equally well grown, may be expected to be of equal value for planting in any place, whether they are grown nearby or in a distant state, so far as hardiness, the adaptability of the trees to conditions, etc., are concerned.

CONVENIENT MANURE PIT FOR THE FARM

SHALLOW MANURE PIT IS PRACTICAL.

In nearly every case the farmer will find the shallow manure pit the most convenient and practical. The sectional drawing shows the construction of such a pit of slightly larger size than will be needed on the average farm, but the type of construction is much the same as for the smaller ones. In building this size of a basin use the team with a plow and scraper to dig the pit. Trim up the walls with a spade and put in the framework for the concrete forms.

To give the teams a sure footing on the incline, imbed in the concrete the turned up ends of iron cleats, made U-shaped with one-inch clearance. Space these cleats 14-16 inches on the incline. Corrugate the bottom every 6 inches with the edge of a 2 by 4 inch piece to make a V-shaped corrugation.

If a shed roof is required, insert in the top of the concrete walls while still soft several half-inch bolts two and one-half inches long, to which the roof timbers may be fastened.

Nerves All On Edge?

Just as nerve wear is a cause of kidney weakness, so is kidney trouble a cause of nervousness. Anyone who has backache, nervousness, "blues," headaches, dizzy spells, urinary ills and a tired, worn feeling, would do well to try Doan's Kidney Pills. This safe, reliable remedy is recommended by thousands who have had relief from just such troubles.

Ten Billions in Coal.

The Nenana coal fields, Alaska, will be tributary to the government railroad now under construction from Seward to Fairbanks. Though the coal in this field is lignite, and hence of low grade, yet it has great value as a source of fuel and power for Fairbanks and other Yukon placer camps. The field is about sixty miles south of Fairbanks. It is estimated by the United States geological survey, department of the interior, that the Nenana field contains some ten billion tons of lignite. The Nenana coal field lies in what is known as the Bonnifield region, which also contains some gold placers that have been mined in a small way for the last ten years. This district is described in a report entitled "The Bonnifield Region, Alaska" (bulletin 501), which can be obtained on application to the director of the geological survey, Washington.

THOSE AWFUL CRAMPS

Suggestions that may save Much Suffering

Marysville, Pa.—"For twelve years I suffered with terrible cramps. I would have to stay in bed several days every month. I tried all kinds of remedies and was treated by doctors, but my trouble continued until one day I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for others. I tried it and now I am never troubled with cramps and feel like a different woman. I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly and I am recommending it to my friends who suffer as I did." —Mrs. GEORGE R. NAYLOR, Box 72, Marysville, Pa.

Young women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands have been restored to health by this root and herb remedy.

MOTHER! LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is ofttimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Adv.

Taffeta Frocks Remain Popular

Taffeta has outlasted several seasons in popularity, and present indications are that it is fixed in the good graces of women for some time to come. The good-looking frock in the accompanying picture is of French blue taffeta, bordered and otherwise decorated with blue taffeta having a crossbar of white.

There is nothing startlingly new in this design, but there are several interesting details in its construction. It may be confidently copied by anyone, since Paris is authority for its main characteristics, which are first the material itself, then the normal waistline, the open throat and the tunic-skirt effect, made by the overdress. Paris has other loves, but this is one to be reckoned with.

The combination of a plain fabric and a stripe or check in other fabrics is noticeable in the new spring models in all sorts of clothes. The skirts and sweaters or skirts and coats for sports wear are conspicuous examples, and the afternoon frock in the picture shows how well such combinations work out in semi-dress frocks. In this model the underskirt is plain and just wide enough for comfortable walking. The overskirt and bodice are cut in one, and they fasten at the left side. The bodice opens along the shoulder and underarm seam, and the skirt along the same line at the hip. The opening terminates in the pocket.

The belt is made of the plain taffeta, laid in narrow side plaits and bound at each edge with a narrow binding of the silk. Similar plaits appear in the silk below each pocket. The pockets, by the way, of the large patch-pocket variety, are genuine, practical pockets. The collar and cuffs are made of the crossbar, the collar opens in a shallow V at the front.

Everyday Dresses of Plain Linen

Among the dresses for little girls of three years or more, designed for everyday wear, there are many models in plain linens. They are mostly in light blue, rose pink, or natural linen color, and are rather plain, especially when compared to the dressier frocks made of sheer cottons. Embroidery, in cross stitch, and considerable other fancy stitching, is relied upon for pretty finishing touches that give an element of elegance to these little frocks; a flavor that is important because it lifts them out of the commonplace.

Even a little carefully done handwork adds considerably to the price of these little dresses. The frock in the picture is of blue linen and it is made with a short yoke to which the body of the dress is shirred. There is nothing unusual in the pattern. There are three rows of feather stitching on the yoke done in white floss, and there is a collar of white organdie. A pretty finish at the front is made by a row of very small pearl buttons set on in pairs. Any needlewoman who knows how to sew neatly can make an exact copy of this little model, for all the pattern companies carry patterns like it.

The short white socks worn by this little dainty maid are held up by garters covered with pink satin ribbon and finished with rosettes of baby ribbon at the front. They are an item of importance in the success of her appareling. The crisp bow on the hair is of wide pink taffeta ribbon.

Your Figure.

One hears a great deal about the "perfect 36," and it really isn't 36 at all. Here are the alleged measurements:

Neck, 13½ inches; bust, 37 inches; waist, 26 inches; hips, 40 inches. The length of the skirt from the waist line to the floor is four inches.

The perfect 36 should measure 19½ inches inside the sleeve measure. The line down the back from the base of the collar to the waistline should be 15½ inches. These figures are for the average, but the measurements, of course, can vary. For instance, the perfect 36, according to tailors and dressmakers, range from 36 to 38 inches, although 37 is the ideal.

Seventy-five per cent of women are below the 36 standard and most of the rest are over. This is because they have permitted their muscles to become flabby and loose from lack of exercise, and have either taken on weight or lost it.

CALOMEL WHEN BILIOUS? NO! STOP! ACTS LIKE DYNAMITE ON LIVER
I Guarantee "Dodson's Liver Tone" Will Give You the Best Liver and Bowel Cleansing You Ever Had—Doesn't Make You Sick!

Stop using calomel! It makes you sick. Don't lose a day's work. If you feel lazy, sluggish, bilious or constipated, listen to me!

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile, crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you feel "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store or dealer and get a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it cannot salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste. —Adv.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF
Girls! Beautify Your Hair! Make It Soft, Fluffy and Luxuriant—Try the Moist Cloth.

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable luster, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any store and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all. Adv.

100 Years Old

"The kidneys play a most important part in causing premature old age and death—the more injurious the poisons passing thru the kidneys the sooner comes decay"—so says a distinguished physician, who further advises all people who are past thirty to preserve the vitality of the kidneys and free the blood from poisonous elements, such as uric acid—drink plenty of water—sweat some daily and take Anuric before meals.

This Anuric is put up in tablet form, and can be obtained at almost any drug store. For that backache, lumbago, rheumatism, "rusty" joints, swollen feet or hands, due to uric acid in the blood, Anuric quickly dissolves the uric acid as hot water does sugar. Discovered by Dr. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y.

Prevent premature old age by simply sipping a cup of hot water every morning before breakfast, taking a little Anuric before meals and live to be a hundred.

Don't forget Reno, the magician, Feb. 12th.

Miss Grace Maxwell of Joppa, Ala., who has been attending Thorsby Institute, was called home last week on account of the ill health of her mother.

Dr. Frank E. Jenkins, of Demorset, Ga., President of the Board of Trustees of Thorsby Institute, was in town Friday of last week for a meeting of the Board.

As a result of the Belgian Relief Week observed by the students of Thorsby Institute the funds collected for the relief of the starving Belgian children amounted to over $33.

Mr. Ole Johnson, of Archer, Iowa, spent Friday and Saturday in Thorsby, returning to his home Sunday.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Congregational Church met with Miss Hoopes at the Dormitory on Friday of last week. On account of bad weather only a few were present.

Mr. D. J. Flummer came down from Birmingham to spend Sunday with his family.

A company of young people from Thorsby visited the Sunday school at Cedar Grove last Sunday afternoon and aided in the organization of a Christian Endeavor Society there.

Rev. Brooks Lawrence, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, has promised to come to Thorsby for a Sunday night in March. More definite announcement will be made later.

A house-to-house canvass of the community was made Sunday afternoon in the interest of Alabama Come-toSunday-School Day Feb. 11, at which time it is hoped, as far as possible, that everyone in the community will atend Sunday school in one of the churches.

Mrs. J. M. Horn, of Newark, N. J., visited friends in Thorsby last week and went from here to Birmingham to visit her mother.

Mrs. Sam Collins whose condition was quite serious a week or so ago, is much improved.

The pie social which was to have been held at Bates Hall last Saturday night for the benefit of the Public School has been indefinitely postponed.

Everybody is coming to see Reno, The Magician, next Monday night, Admission 25 and 50 cents.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Gerald of Clanton spent the week end in Thorsby with Mr. Gerald's mother.

DEATH OF MRS. S. HOWARD

Mrs. Sweeney Howard, who had been in poor health for the past two and one-half years, but who had been confined to her bed for only about two weeks, died on Wednesday, Jan. 31st, and was buried on Thursday in the city cemetery. A brief funeral service was conducted at the house by Rev. E. W. Butler. The floral offerings were unusually beautiful, conspicious among them being one from her children bearing the word "MOTHER". Mrs. Howard, whose maiden name was Louisa Frederica Lear, was born in Milwaukee, Wis., March 31, 1852. She was married in 1873 and moved to Thorsby with her husband from Manitowoc, Wis., 18 years ago. Here she has made many friends and her loss from our midst will be keenly felt. She leaves five children Fred, Charles, and Louis Howard of Thorsby, Mrs. Geo. Phalin of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Mrs. LeClaire, of Bellingham, Washington.

DOVE RISES PHEONIX-LIKE FROM ASHES

Edward Reno, the Magician, has the usual light pharaphernalia, but performs his tricks while in ordinary evening dress, and so adroitly as to escape detection in every case. In this respect he is a wonder. He does things that seem absolutely impossible of execution without the aid of supernatural agency.

One of his performances that never fails to amaze his audiences is known as the "dove trick." He burns a piece of common paper, and a dove rises phoenix-like from the ashes. He apparantly tears the dove in two, only to find that he has two doves in his hands. He throws a glass of water into the air, and it changes into a dove and flies away.

See him at Thorsby Monday night, February 12th.

BEST FOR ALL CROPS

SOUTH ATLANTIC GUANO COMPANY
(SUBSIDIARY MORRIS FERTILIZER CO.)
ATLANTA — MONTGOMERY

It is not sufficient that your crop gets an early start to enable it to win the race against drouth, excessive rainfall, rust, shedding and boll weevil. It must have a steady, healthy growth which constant nourishment alone can give, if it is expected to come in ahead on the homestretch.

The South Atlantic Brands not only give all crops a quick start, but by reason of the scientific linking together of the best and most dependable fertilizing materials, they afford constant and steady feeding of the plant and enable it to resist such diseases and conditions as are usually fatal to a weakly, stunted plant. A healthy plant should be kept healthy and that is the office of the South Atlantic Brands.

REV. H. T. CRUMPTON SENT A LETTER TO HIS FRIENDS

Former Pastor of the Clanton Bastist Church Writes a Letter from Arkansas.

For a long time I have wanted to write to Clanton friends but there are so many I choose the columns of the paper to reach many.

Jan. 4th we left Clanton at 8:45 a.m. and reached Memphis at 10 p.m. in a driving wind and rain storm. In the party were five children, one wife, one white rabbit, eight suit cases and packages and your humble servant. I lost my hat but found five in place of it so there was no kick coming—that is on my part. We took a taxi to the Chisca Hotel and on arriving a curious and exceedingly inquisitive brother wanted to know if all those children were mine or was it a picnic? Whereupon I informed him they were all mine and it was no picnic. The two oldest children had just been baptised at Clanton the night before we left and the next night were sprinkled, which seemed like a little too much of a good thing in such quick succession.

The next night we arrived in Batesville, which is now our happy home. Speaking of weather, yes, we have it out here, and lots of it. Our fuel bill is enormous, everything is high and prices still rising on everything except preaching and I am joyously anticipating a big rise there soon (it does not cost anything to anticipate you know. That is like kicking on everything and everybody in one's home town and any guy, wise or otherwise can do the stunt whether it ever gets him any thing or not.)

Batesville is the County seat of Independence County. Has about 5,000 people. We have city mail delivery with three carriers, many rural and two star routes I think. There are four hotels but none in a class with Clanton's. We have three garages, three drug stores, broom factory, Ice plant, laudnry, stave mill, hull mill, excelsior mill, flour mill seed mill, variety shop, etc. There are three wholesale groceries, one wholesale dry goods store, and by all means the biggest industry of all is the Pfeifer Marble Quarry. The State Capital in Little Rock just 90 miles away is made of this stone, as are also the Odd Fellows Orphans' and Widows' home, and the Masonic Orphans' home here.

Prof. Sidney Pickens is city Supt. of schools with three Pricipals under him and an efficient corps of teachers with about 1200 total enrollment, besides the Arkansas Presbyterian College for boys and girls.

We have two papers, the Batesville Daily Guard and Batesville Weekly Record.

The government building is a beauty, built of gray brick trimmed with Pfeifer marble. I guess it must have cost about $75,000. Then of course we have such things as electric lights and water works owned by the city; a good telephone system and moving picture shows. Streets are all named and houses numbered.

Within a radius of 12 miles there are numerous manganese and zinc mines which are operated at immense prifit because of the war situation and resultant demands on American made products. This is therefore a splendid distributing point and base of supplies for a large territory.

We are on the White river which is navigable 30 miles up and 40 down, largely because of the five locks the government has put in.

Lots of wheat, oats, corn and cotton are grown here; lands are high, mules are very high, horses are dirt cheap in comparison.

There is one Catholic church, one Presbyterian, one Holy Roller, one Episcopal, two Christian, two Methodist and three Baptist, but the Baptist do not lead in numbers or wealth or what we call prominence. The east end church will likely come to the first. The first Baptist is known as the smoothest running and best regulated of all, Oh, how refreshing. One leads the social life another the political and we the religious life, now choose. My constituency is as thorough going a bunch of christians as can be fount anywhere. I want to get inoculated completely and go back to dear old Alabama and distribute it about as a starter. My church hs 221 members. Less than the Clanton church you see. There is not so much wealth as back there, but they do much in the way of raising funds for the cause of Christ.

Mrs. Crumpton and our boys expect to drop by to see you when they go for the annual visit to kinsfolk in Bay Minette, Baldwin county. Our five children left at least one sweetheart each in Clanton and we all have many warm, loved and loving friends there whom we shall never forget. In fact I may want to return to Clanton when the people there get together. That is what you need, get close to the Lord first and there will be no cleavage and no animosities, rub out the old scores, build nice church houses, stand by your schools and work for the public weal. When you do send for me.

God bless you all always.

H. T. CRUMPTON.

DID THE RECENT COLD KILL YOUR FALL OATS?

Auburn Experts Offer Suggestions to Farmers Regarding Spring Sowing.

The opinion of a great many observers in this section of the State is that the recent cold weather killed practically the entire crop of fall-sown oats.

In a letter which we receive from Auburn, the following is said relative to the subject:

"Agricultural experts are of the opinion that the extreme cold weather of the early days of February destroyed a large proportion of the fall sown oats in central and northern Alabama. Prof. Duggar, of the experiment Station, has urged the farmers, however, to wait until February 20th before plowing the oats under as they might show indications of being alive before that date, although seemingly dead now.

Oats sown in February cannot be expected to yield as good returns as fall sown oats and so it is very important that the stand be free from oat smut. Oat smut can be prevented at a small cost per acre, if the oats are dampened with a solution consisting of one ounce of formaldehyde in every three or four gallons of water. The pile should be left damp and covered for four to eight hours. Press bulletin No. 67, of the Ala. Experiment Station, deals more fully with this subject and will be mailed out on request."

FITTING THE SCHOOL TO COMMUNITY NEEDS.

The high school visitor from the office finds some of the high schools administering a valuable service to the farmers and stock men of their respective communities by helping to prevent hog cholera and to eradicate the cattle tick. In some instances the teachers and pupils are giving demonstrations in vaccination against hog cholera for the benefit of the farmers without cost, except for the necesary material. One high school has on its own grounds a dipping vat to which the cattle from the surrounding country are brought and dipped under direction of the school authorities. Let's see some more of this kind of work.

One county Superintendent informs us that he and the demonstration agent visit the schools together and that this agent is doing a splendid work with the boys and girls of the county. What offices offer a better opportunity for co-operation than the County Superintendent and the Farm Demonstrator?

Does your teacher know how to explain in a simple way the Rural Credits Law? Has he told you that you can secure a primer explaining the application of this law in detail by writing to the Federal Farm Loan Board, Washington, D. C.? Ask him about it.

The Clarke County Teachers' Association is divided into community groups, and each group meets regularly at places designated by the Association. It is the purpose of each meeting to discuss the problems of fundamental importance to the schools of the county. At present Betts' and Hall's "Better Rural Schools" is being used as a basis for the discussions.

The School Improvement Association of Jefferson County have taken up the subject of sanitation and the health for their special work for the winter and spring months. These associations hope soon to see sanitary drinking founts and sanitary closets in every school in the county.

The conference of home economics teachers held at the Alabama Girls Technical Institute February 25-27 was participated in by teachers of home economics from every class of schools of the Alabama system. The state and national workers were present and delivered addresses.

The keynote of the conference was "Service." Every phase of home economics was thoroughly discussed and and the rural problem especially was considered from every angle.

The Montevallo institution is doing a service for the homes of the state in its sucesful effort to encourage the teaching of home-making in all classes of schools.

COMMISSIONER VVADE SAYS PLANT GARDENS

Says to make Vegetables Help Out on the High Cost of Living.

The middle of February is the usual time for planting early vegetables. The necessity for a good early garden has never been so important as now. It is the quickest and best crop that can be grown, and the only dependable thing that will reduce the cost of living in the near future. A good garden will supply forty per cent. of living expenses, and can be increased to sixty per cent. by adding a good milch-cow and forty or fifty hens. In fact such a combination provides for everything actually necessary for the living except bread, meat and clothing. Do not neglect to start early, prepare well, and plant plenty of such vegetables as will survive spring weather.

Make Garden Long.

The garden plot should be twice as long as it is wide, so as to permit the horse and plow. This will facilitate cultivation and reduce the damage from turning by fifty per cent. The soil should be deep loam full of humus and well drained. Stable manure is the best garden fertilizer because it supplies humus and opens soil, causing it to absorb heat and moisture, in addition to the fertilizer value. Garden soil should be prepared very deeply and well pulverized. Plant early vegetables on beds or small ridges, because the elevation supplies drainage and better temperature, than in planting level. Make the beds and rows long and equal distance apart, so as to systematize cultivation.

What to Plant.

Irish potatoes, onions, mustard, lettuce, beets, english peas, radishes, spring turnips, early corn, should be planted and cabbage set. Plant a few early bunch beans and cover up on cold nights. They might get kiled, but if they do, what is the loss of a few bean seed compared with the early beans, if they succeed?

Prepare Hot Beds.

Prepare hot beds for sweet potatoes, tomatoes, etc. Tomato plants can be grown in green houses, plate glass windows, or in boxes kept in the sunshine during the day and moved into the house at night. Be sure to grow plenty of all vegetables. Begin early and keep it up till late. As one crop is exhausted, plant another on the same land. Vegetables are healthful, invigorating, relishable and reduce the cost of living. Now that the coldest weather is probably past, show your thrift by the garden you will produce.

RESOLUTION PASSED BY THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

Asking for Another Meeting of The People in Regard to the Issuance of Bonds by the County.

THE STATE OF ALABAMA,
Chilton County.

Whereas Chilton county has a past due indebtedness of over $70,000.00 and no money in the Treasury with which to pay it, and the county is three years behind with its payments and its warrants are discounted 40 per cent., and the commissioners court is up to the statutory limit, as prescribed by law, and cannot issue any more warrants until some way is provided, by which some of the present past due warrants can be paid.

And whereas a mass meeting was called for the 3rd day of February 1917, and owing to the unfavorable weather conditions it was impossible for the people to attend said meeting:

Therefore be it resolved by the Court of County Commissioners in regular session on this the 14th day of February, 1917, that another mass meeting of all the voters of the county is hereby called to assemble at the court house on Saturday the 3rd day of March, 1917, at 10 o'clock A.M., for the purpose of considering and devising ways and means to pay off debts and restore the credit and put the county on a cash basis. All voters who are interested in the welfare of the County are requested to attend.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS SEEK A FURTHER PUBLIC CONFERENCE.

More Advice Wanted in Solution of the County Financial Situation.

The court of county Commissioners have asked the people for another consultation in regard to county finances before they take final action in regard to the calling of an election on the bond issue to take care of the county debt.

Their reasons for not acting upon the authority of the former conference is because the state of the weather prevented a great many atending the other meeting.

The date for the second consultation with the people is set for Saturday, March 3rd, and the court has passed a resolution especially urging all of the people of the county to be present.

As was done before the financial status of the county will be gone into with detailed thoroughness by those ocicially acquainted with existing conditions, matters of the public debt etc, and an explanation of the whole affair will be made to the public.

And further, the advisability of a bond issue to take care of the county's obligations will be brought up for public discussion.

The court of commissioners are sincere and conscientious in their efforts to do the best that they can for the county, and in the grave situation that confronts them in regard to financing the county business they are rightly cautious of their steps in taking action.

The people should welcome an opportunity to consult among themselves about what to do, and if possible every well-meaning citizen should come to the meeting on March 3rd and lend his heart and his mind toward the best solution of the great question that stands out like a mountain in the path of progress in Chilton county.

HAMPTON

Health of this community is fairly good at present.

People have been busy making some preparations for the new crop.

Oats and wheat seem to be hurt badly by the freeze in these parts.

Our school is doing fine this year. Prof. J. H. Scott is our teacher and the pupils and patrons seem to like him fine.

We have prayer meeting at this place every Saturday night and Sunday school every Sunday afternoon, but neither are very livelf at present. We would be glad to have all who are interested in this work visit us.

CONCERT

There will be a roncert at Pleasant Grove on Friday night Feb. 23. The concert will consist of plays, readings and music by a string band. Admission ten cents to non-residents of the district.

MERCHANT SHIPS TO MOUNT GUNS

Way Will Be Found By Government To Put Weapons At The Disposal Of Owners

COMMERCE MUST CONTINUE

German Proposal To Reopen Discussion Meets No Favor At Washington

Washington.—American ship-owners who have been holding their vessels in port because of inability to obtain guns for defense against submarines probably will have their difficulty solved in a few days. Strong intimations were given in official quarters that, while the government will not actually arm merchant craft or even formally advise arming, a way will be found to put weapons at the disposal of owners who desire to prepare for defense against illegal attack.

The enforced idleness of the American merchant fleet is being viewed with growing disquiet, and the general view here is that not only the export trade, but the nation's standing before the world demands that American vessels continue to ply the high seas without regard to the German proclamation which the government has repudiated with the most severe means in its power short of war.

The German proposal, delivered to the state department that means be discussed to prevent the break in relations from resulting in war apparently has struck no responsive chord here. No official would indicate whether a reply already had been given, but there was no disposition to deny that the proposal had been made or that the American government regarded it as an effort on the part of Germany to befog the issue. It was made clear everywhere in government circles that there was nothing to discuss unless Germany desired to stop abridging American rights and illegally menacing life.

In connection with the German suggestions, special interest attached to cable dispatches announcing that Emperor William had called a conference, presumably to discuss the submarine campaign and the position of neutrals. It was suggested that out of the conference might come something more that Germany would like to discuss means of preventing the addition of another nation to her long list of enemies.

AMBASSADOR GERARD OUT OF GERMANY

Zurich, Switzerland.—The American ambassador, James W. Gerard, arrived at the Swiss boundary at Schaffhausen at four o'clock in the afternoon, February 10. He was met by the American minister to Switzerland, Pleasant A. Stovall, and representatives of the Swiss army, including Colonel Brugger and Capt. Rudolph Isellin. A Swiss military guard of honor was also in waiting and a big delegation of citizens greeted the former American ambassador to Germany.

Mr. Gerard disembarked at Zurich with about one hundred and twenty other Americans intending at first to remain there, but when he was assured of accommodations at Berne, he left immediately for that city. He will remain in Berne for two or three days arranging for his trip to Paris.

BRITISH DRIVE GERMANS FROM STRONG POSITIONS

New York.—The British continued their objective. A strong system of trenches to the north of Beaumont-Hamel, in the Ancre region, extending over a front of more than three-quarters of a mile, was captured and many Germans made prisoner. South of the river, near Pys, other trenches were taken and German attempts to recapture their lost positions south of Sailly Saillisel were frustrated by the British guns. Elsewhere along the line trench raids, bombardments and aerial activity have featured the fighting.

In Mesopotamia the British in their operations against the Turks have occupied a new front of more than six thousand yards, pushing back the Turks for a depth varying from 800 to 1,000 yards.

CUBAN TROOPS MUTINY AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT

Havana, Cuba.—The Cuban government makes the official statement that about thirty men of the Seventh and Eighth companies of infantry stationed at Camp Columbia, near Marianao, had revolted and escaped with their arms. At Canas, Havana province, Commander Jose Castillo was killed by a group of rebels. It is alleged that Castillo was heading the uprising there. Lieutenant Larrabia is reported as having been wounded.

GERMANY EXPECTS TO FIGHT AMERICA

Copenhagen.—Little hope prevails in Berlin that war with the United States will be averted, or that a modus vivendi reconciling the policies of the two governments can be found. The authorities and a vast bulk of the people desire to avoid actual hostilities in any way consistent with the general lines of the present submarine policy, but only in such a way. It is stated new instructions have been given submarine commanders.

WILSON'S ACTION APPROVED

Five Senators Oppose Resolution Endorsing Diplomatic Break With Germany

Washington.—President Wilson's severance of diplomatic relations with Germany was approved formally by the senate.

By a vote of 78 to 5 the senate expressed confidence in the president's course, adopting a resolution submitted by Chairman Stone of the foreign relations committee, endorsing the withdrawal of American Ambassador Gerard from Berlin and the giving to German Ambassador Bernstorff his passports.

Senators who voted against the resolution were: Democrats, Kirby of Arkansas and Vardaman of Mississippi; Republicans, Gronna of North Dakota, Works of California and LaFolette of Wisconsin.

Five hours of debate preceded the vote, but the only active opposition came from the five senators who stood out against the resolution when the roll was called. The ranking Republican leaders joined the Democrats in declaring their whole-hearted support of the president.

PERSHING IN COMMAND OF EL PASO DISTRICT

El Paso, Texas.—Major General Pershing assumed command of the El Paso patrol district, relieving Brig. Gen. George Bell, Jr., who resumed command of the Eleventh division. General Pershing's first official announcement was that there would be no change at present in the organization of the border patrol. Distribution of General Pershing's force will be under the direction of Brigadier General Slwift, at Columbus, and the force will be divided among fourteen stations from Yuma, Arizona, to a point near the eastern end of the border. General Pershing reports at Columbus 3,749 refugees who accompanied the force from Mexico. Lieutenant Ord, in charge of the refugees, already, has found employment for about half of them. Of the refugees there are 2,030 Mexicans, 833 of whom are men, 574 women and 623 children under 12 years of age. There are 197 Americans, 80 men, 49 women and 68 children. The Chinese, numbering 522, will be held temporarily.

NO PROSPECT FOR EARLY REDUCTION OF PAPER COST

New York.—There is no immediate prospect of cheaper paper, according to reports made to the National Paper Trade Association and the American Pulp and Paper Association, which held annual conventions here. "The snow is hampering cutting in the pulp districts of Canada," says Frank L. Moore of Watertown, N. Y., who is vice president of the Pulp and Paper Association. "Where wood is cut there are not enough cars to haul it out and there is a great shortage of motive power on Canadian railroads. Everything that enters into paper has gone up and up."

GENERAL DUVALL EXPECTS GENERAL CALL TO COLORS

Augusta, Ga.—That every able-bodied man in the country will be called upon for service in the event of hostilities between the United States and Germany is the opinion of Maj. Gen. William P. Duvall, U. S. A., retired, as expressed by him at his home in Augusta. Further than to make that statement, General Duvall would not discuss the present strained relations between the two countries. General Duvall, although retired six years ago and not subject to call into service, has volunteered to the war department for any services he can render in case war is declared.

FRANCE TAKES STERN STEPS TO RELIEVE COAL FAMINE

Paris.—The government has decided upon the following measures which will go into force February 8, to relieve the coal shortage: Theaters, concerth alls and other places of entertainment will bec losed for four days of each week; street cars, omnibus and subway service will cease at ten o'clock at night instead of a quarter after eleven, except Thursday, Saturday and Sunday, which are school holidays national galleries and museums will be closed until further notice.

College Men Rally To Government

Philadelphia.—The plan announced here for the organization of an intercollegiate intelligence bureau to put at the disposal of the government the trained resources of the American college world has received the endorsement of Secretaries Baker and Daniels and a conference of college men will be held in the state, war and navy building at Washington February 10. William McClennan of the University of Pennsylvania, in making the announcement, says there will be representatives from leading colleges.

Committee Of 50 To Work For Nation

New York.—Leading representatives of all industrial classes, capitalists, labor leaders, agriculturists and professional men will compose the committee of fifty that will be appointed in New York to co-operate with the federal government, if the necessity arises, for national defense. The organization is in the hands of the National Civic Federation. V. Everit Macy, president of the federation, has been authorized to name a committee of three to remain in Washington as representatives of the comimttee.

RIGHT OF TRAVEL TO BE ENFORCED

Germany Must Decide Issue Of Peace Or War By Actual Interference With American Rights

TO ARM MERCHANT SHIPS

Probable Course To Be Followed If Germany Commits Overt Act Decided Upon

Washington.—The course to be taken by the United States if Germany compels the use of force to safeguard American lives and rights has been determined. It was learned authoritatively after a recent cabinet meeting that in the event President Wilson goes before congress again it will not be to ask for a declaration of war, but to follow literally the words of the address in which he announced the break of diplomatic relations and request authority to use means deemed necessary to protect American seamen and people.

President Anxious To Avoid War

The president, it is stated, is as anxious as ever to avoid war with Germany, but also is as determined as ever that American citizens and ships shall be free to travel the high seas unmolested. His next step, if taken will be to enforce that right and even then the issue of war or peace will be with Germany. Any hostile action will have to come in the form of an interference with an American right. Details of the government's plans are not discussed. It is known, however, that convoying and arming of merchant ships are being considered.

BELGIUM MUST STARVE WITHOUT AMERICAN AID

Philadelphia.—Herbert C. Hoover, chairman of the commission for relief in Belgium, told members of the City Club in an address that there is no starvation in Belgium at present and that there would not be any "as long as the commission is given the funds to continue its work." He said that the Belgians are now health. "But," he added, "it is the vital duty of all Americans to give aid that this health may be maintained. Without this aid Belgium must starve." Mr. Hoover said the relief commission is short between four and five million dollars a month in its budget. "This is due largely to the fact that we have taken on additional loads," he said. "Recently we have been feeding 1,200,000 school children at a cost of more than a million dollars a month. We must raise this money by some means other than government subsidies and we appeal to the citizens of the United States to help with the burden."

BANKHEAD SEES GOVERNMENT AS A GOOD ROAD BUILDER

Atlanta.—That the appropriation of $85,000,000 by the federal government for a period of five years for the aid of states in the construction of roads is but the beginning of one of the biggest and most far-reaching undertakings for the development of the nation, is the opinion of United States Senator John H. Bankhead of Alabama, author of the bill making this appropriation. So important is this work, now only in its beginning, thinks Senator Bankhead, that, instead of this one appropriation of $85,000,000 to be disbursed over a period of five years, before the expiration of the five-year period the federal government will be making regular annual appropriations of from $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 for road construction.

MUNICIPAL VOTE DENIED NORTH CAROLINA WOMEN

Raleigh, N. C.—A bill which would permit women to vote in municipal elections was killed by the lower house of the North Carolina general assembly. The action of the house, it is said, practically settles the suffrage question at this session. The house also refused to send back to committee for reconsideration a bill which would limit the possession of liquor by individuals to two quarters per year and which had been unfavorably reported.

R. R. Employees Have Right To Strike

Washington.—After many weeks' consideration the senate interstate commerce committee has approved and reported to the senate a bill to supplement the Adamson railroad law, providing for investigation of controversies on common carriers and giving the president authority to take over railroad, telegraph and telephone lines in times of military necessity. There is no prohibition in the measure against the right to strike or lock out to which the railroad brotherhoods have vigorously objected.

39 Airplanes Lost In January Fighting

Berlin.—The Germans lost 34 airplanes in January and the British, Russians and French 55. The aviators, notwithstanding the severe cold, fulfilled in January their important tasks of observation, reconnoitering and attacking. Last month the Germans lost 34 airplanes. The British, Russians and French lost 55 airplanes in aerial engagements or by being shot down from the ground. Of these 29 fell beyond the German lines, as was seen plainly, and 26 are in German possesesion.

NEUTRALS TO ONLY PROTEST

Scandinavian Nations Decide To Not Follow Wilson's Lead In Breaking With Germany

Stockholm, Sweden.—Sweden and other Scandinavian nations have decided to unite in a joint protest to Germany over the latter's submarine blockade.

The answer of the Swedish government to the note which the American minister, Ira Nelson Morris, delivered to K. A. Wallenberg, the foreign minister, has been communicated to Mr. Morris, and, it is learned, from a well-informed source, that Sweden is just as firmly resolved now as she has been from the first to maintain the strictest neutrality. While Sweden will protest against the tone of Germany's new blockade, she will content herself with a protest and will take no step which could make it more difficult to maintain her neutrality.

Responsible statesmen declare that, even if Swdeen desired to follow the lead of the United States her situation would render this impossible while the United States is so favorably situated geographically and so mighty in resources that it could limit its participation in the war to such extent as it might desire. Sweden, on the contrary, they assert, is exposed to great possibilities of harm on either side and certainly would be obliged to suffer great hardships without any sure prospect of concrete gain. Mr. Morris had a long conference with the foreign minister, after which he would say only that President Wilson's note to neutrals was one of the subjects discussed.

WARNING IS GIVEN TO INAUGURAL VISITORS

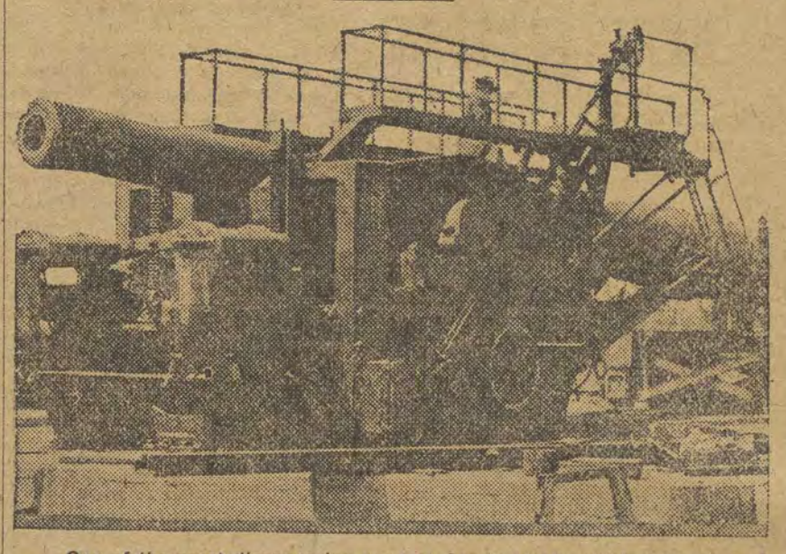
Washington.—Civic and military organizations which are contemplating taking part in the next inauguration of President Wilson are advised to make their intentions known to Robert N. Harper, chairman of the inaugural exercises, or they may be disappointed in getting quarters here and a position in the line. This is the word handed out from headquarters in reply to information that several Southern bodies were arranging independently for accommodations and confidently expecting to participate in the parade. Mr. Harper urges all such bodies to advise inaugural headquarters at the New Willard hotel, Washington, giving particulars as to numbers and the nature of the organization, and especially whether horses are desired, so that mounts may be provided. President Wilson signed the bill appropriating about thirty thousand dollars for expenses in connection with inauguration ceremonies. Suggestions that public ceremonies be abandoned because of the international situation seem to have been put aside.

$500,000 ASKED TO AID AMERICANS IN EUROPE

Washington.—An emergency appropriation of $500,000 for relief, protection and transportation of American citizens in Europe has been asked of congress by Secretary Lansing. The secretary did not mention specifically the situation in which many Americans in the Teutonic countries are placed by the break with Germany, merely calling attention to the continued extraordinary expenses of the state department on account of the war and suggesting that the necessary money be provided immediately "in view of the important developments in the international relations of the United States within the past few days." Secretary Lansing also asked for the appropriation of $4540,000 for the purpose of embassy property at Petrograd.

GERMAN TROOPS ACTIVE ON 1,200-MILE FRONT

Berlin.—Although army headquarters statements of late have announced that there have been "no incidents of importance, the fighting activity has not ceased at any place even for one moment. On the whole 1,200-mile front in Belgium, France, Russia, Roumania and Macedonia troops with rifle in hand are ready at any hour of the night and day to repulse the besieged enemy's attempts to break the iron ring.



Policy Of Washington Obsolete—Taft.

Philadelphia.—The policy of Washington and Jefferson with reference to entangling alliances and the theory that America "has been favored by fortune with splendid isolation," were declared to be utterly inapplicable to present conditions by former President Taft at a dinner here under the auspices of the League to Enforce Peace. "In the light of the present national crisis, prepare to disregard the warnings of Jefferson and Washington against entangling alliances,' said Mr. Taft.

Great Thief Catcher Must Go To Jail

Chicago.—John J. Halpin, former policec aptain and chief of detectives, convicted in 1915 of bribery and conspiracy, must serve from one to five years in the penitentiary at Joliet. The Illinois supreme court refuses to grant him a rehearing and this removes his last hope of escaping prison. Halpin, who, in his day, was noted as a thief catcher, has been working as a night watchman since his removal from the police department. The expenses of the case, it is stated, have practically pauperized him.

MILITARY SCHOOLS TO GIVE OFFICERS

Many Cadets in Private Institutions Available for War.

CIVILIAN AID IS IMPORTANT

Engineering, Signal and Aviation Corps of United States Army Could Be Quickly Recruited in Emergency.

By KENNETH MACDOUGALL.

New York.—In the event of the calling out of militia and volunteer troops, there are many cadets in the various private military institutions in the United States who could speedily be made available for second lieutenancies and some higher ranks in the volunteer forces.

One of the most prominent institutions in the country from a military standpoint is Norwich university, at Norwich, Vt., which has graduated numerous men into the army as second lieutenants. The graduating class is between eighty and one hundred and twenty men every year, and the institution has kept fairly good track of its available sons after they have left college. At a conservative estimate, Norwich could furnish a thousand men who have passed an examination required as entrance to the regular army as second lieutenant of infantry, five hundred second lieutenants of cavalry and about three hundred artillery second lieutenants.

Many of the men have kept well informed in military matters, while others, of course, would need considerable brushing up in modern tactics. Norwich has maintained the same standards of study and execution of military drill that the cadets at West Point are held to, and fully a sixth of its graduating classes have followed an army career.

In training, the graduates are probably superior in knowledge and executive ability to two-thirds of the militia captains and some majors in the National Guard.

They have served under military officers of the highest type for a four-year course, and during that time have had to work hard and faithfully in order to graduate.

7,000 Men Available.

A like condition is true of perhaps twenty-five other private military schools in the United States designated by the war department as "distinguished institutions." These schools could bring to the colors, about 7,000 fully or partially-trained lieutenants. Besides these there are some ten thousand college men who have attended training camps like Plattsburg, and who in a short time could be whipped into good enough shape to take command of volunteer infantry.

The Culver school at Culver, Ind., is perhaps a close second to Norwich university as regards cavalry material. The showing made by Culver boys while stationed on the border in the recent mobilization attracted widespread attention among army men.

The Engineering corps of the regular army could be readily recruited in officers and men from the civil population engaged in similar pursuits as a daily occupation. The supremacy of concrete construction in this country would indicate there would be no trouble in securing enough capable engineers and non-commissioned officers to erect or construct necessary gun emplacements and additional defenses.

The Signal corps picked from civilians engaged in like work would soon be as good as the regular units, in fact probably better, as the class of men in the New York militia units of that branch of service made the regulars on the border recently sit up and eat humble pie.

There are more civilian aviators than there are regular army aviators, and from present indications the former are more experienced.

The European war has shown that it does not take long to instruct military aerial observers and these could be trained in a short time.

Transport Difficulties Small.

As for transport and quartermaster corps there would be little or no difficulty in finding plenty of business men who would be capable of handling these branches of service in fitting manner. The system of supply and transportation might be slow at first, but when one is acquainted with the fact that in New York state alone there are 310,457 automobiles, fully half of which could be utilized as light or heavy transport trucks, and the remainder converted into cars for officers and for courier service, it will be understood that there are no very great obstacles in the way of supply trains.

Railroad transportation on account of the length of our coast line would present some difficulties at first, but without doubt could be remedied with great speed.

The mobilization of the manufacturing industries of the nation has already been worked out by the authorities at Washington.

Of men we have plenty. Materials in the crude state we have sufficient, but rifles, heavy artillery and ammunition enough, let alone uniforms, blankets, equipment, medical supplies, etc., are a different story.

The Red Cross has plenty of nurses to put on the field for the first line hospitals. Ambulance corps such as were formed in France could be quickly put into commission and would undoubtedly do good service.

The militia of the country is probably in better shape from a military standpoint than it ever was in the history of its organization. If enough regular army officers were available to distribute among the various commands, it would be a fairly efficient fighting force. Unfortunately there are many officers in the militia of the country who have no right from military or mental qualifications to wear shoulder straps.

American Legion Intact.

The American Legion, while officially disbanded, is still intact. On the books of the organization, which have been preserved, are the names of some 18,000 men who have seen active service in various parts of the world, either as officers or enlisted men. Catalogued under proper headings are about 33,000 men or boys who are experts at some trade necessary to the army. There are telegraph operators, miners, high explosive men, railroad engineers, civil engineers, ammunition makers, draughtsmen, wagon makers, automobile mechanics and drivers, cowboys, hotel stewards, men in all branches of life suitable for the commissary departments, electricians, etc. This list should be of decided value to the war department.

These are but few of the ways, manners, men and materials which can be called into play if the country finds it necessary.

In conclusion, I would call attention to the Boy Scouts of America, who could help in the event of war in any number of ways, and who, I am sure, would rise to the emergency in the same plucky manner as their little brother scouts have done in every country in Europe.

That the women of America would shoulder their share of the burden, no true American for a minute doubts; they have done it in the past and can do it in the future.

To mobilize all the industries, men, organizations, etc., would of course require more time than it has in the countries of Europe, but it would be done. The American people have a habit of taking a lot for granted, but when an emergency arises they generally are able to meet it.

HOW OUR FIGHTING SHIPS ACTUALLY STAND TODAY.

The following table shows the United States warships completed and which are ready for service or will be with a few days' overhauling:

Battleships, first line	11	1	0	12
Battleships, second line	3	20	3	26
Armored cruisers	3	6	1	10
First class cruisers	1	4	0	5
Torpedo boat destroyers	38	11	1	50
Submarines	38	..	..	38

The super-dreadnaughts New Mexico, Mississippi and Idaho, each of 32,000 tons, are now about 60 per cent completed. Work has been started on the super-dreadnaughts Tennessee and California, both of 32,300 tons.

The first line battleships include these super-dreadnaughts: Pennsylvania, Arizona, Arkansas, Nevada, New York, Oklahoma, Texas and Wyoming—8.

Of the twenty-three second line battleships in full or reserve commission all could quickly be made ready for active service.

MAIL CLAIMS OF SIXTIES TO BE PAID

WILL BENEFIT ALABAMIANS—BILL CARRIES AN APPROPRIATION OF $196,000.

ENOUGH TO PAY ALL CLAIMS

These Claims Have Been Pending Before Congress For Over 55 Years.

Washington. — Senator Vardaman has succeeded in securing the passage of a bill authorizing the United States government to pay the amounts due contractors for mail services performed for the United States in the states of Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas, from July 1, 1860, to May 31, 1861, and in the state of Kentucky, Missouri and Tennessee from July 1, 1860, to June, 1862.

The bill carries with it an appropriation of $196,000, sufficient to pay the claims. Where the contractor is deceased the amount of the claim may be paid to the executor or administrator of the estate upon the filing with the auditor of the postoffice department proper evidence of his appointment and qualifications.

These claims have been pending before the congress for fifty-five years. Senator after senator has taken his turn in an attempt to have a similar bill passed.

Alabamians or their heirs who will benefit by the bill, which now must go to the House for ratification, are as follows:

Oat Crop Is Damaged.

Selma.—According to reports reaching this place, the oat crop has suffered in all parts of the county. The heavy rains preceding the coal wave caused the water in the ground to freeze about the roots, in many cases kiling them.

WALKER PERCY DEAD.

Prominent Lawyer of Birmingham Believed to Have Suicided.

Birmingham.—Funeral services fo Walker Percy, one of the leading attorneys of the south, who killed himself with a shotgun at his home, were conducted from the family residence.

"Walker Percy, 2217 Arlington avenue, city, came to his death by shooting himself with a No. 12 bore shotgun pressed against the left breast," is the official statement issued by Assistant Coroner J. R. T. Rives.

While one of the foremost citizens of Birmingham for over 30 years, Mr Percy was a native of Mississippi He was born on November 18, 1864, in Washington county, Mississippi. Mr Percy at one time was a member of the Alabama legislature.

Funeral Is Held for Judge Pitts.

Uniontown.—Funeral services for Judge William Pitts, aged 45 years, who was found dead in his bed at Marion were held here. Judge Pitts had been prominent in Alabama politics for many years and was well known, having toured the state several times in political campaigns. He was born in Uniontown, Ala., August 31, 1872. He was for 14 years chairman of the democratic executive committee of Perry county, and a member of the state democratic executive committee for four years.

Mines Are Bought.

Haleyville. — The Mascot-Delmar Coal company, a new corporation, has taken over the holdings of the Mascot and Delmar coal companies, near Haleyville, and are making preparations to mine the lands extensively. Several thousand acres of coal lands were transferred in the deal. The new company has in view, it is reported, to place steam shovels on the ground, and will strip the surface of the coal instead of the usual methods.

Cattle Still Being Dipped.

Troy.—Notwithstanding the fact that the cattle tick quarantine has been raised against all except a few portions of Pike county, Pike is still dipping cattle for the benefits the cattle receive from the dipping. In Pike county during the month of January 1917, there were 5440 head of cattle dipped, representing 601 herds. Eleven herds of cattle are still under quarantine.

Citrus Fruit Not Damaged.

Mobile.—While an investigation into the damage done to citrus fruit trees along the gulf coast is not yet complete, many growers are hopeful that the loss will be comparatively small. Where the soil has been banked around the trees, practically no damage resulted from the unseasonable weather.

Fire Loss Is Heavy.

Guin. — Heavy damage followed breaking out of fire in a livery stable here. Several head of mules were burned and the following stores were burned: Reese & Roberts, H. M. May & Co., A. W. Anthony & Son, J. M. Wesley & Co., J. W. Knight jewelry store, Dr. Sizemore & Bro., and damaging several others.

Select Mobile for Next Meeting.

Huntsville—The Aabama Livestock association came to a close here with the final decision in favor of Mobile as the meeting place for the year 1918. The officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: Dr. C. A. Cary of Auburn, president; George S. Temple of Auburn, secretary; J. S. Kernachan of Sheffield, treasurer.

Colect $9,000 Road Tax.

Troy.—Pike county collected 2,402 road taxes $4 each up to February 1. Nine thousand, six hundred and eight dollars was turned into the road fund for the county. The county will spend this money in the beats in which it was paid in.

Health Conditions Good.

Montgomery.—According to the annual report of B. A. Taylor, city bacteriologist, during the year 1916 Montgomery had less typhoid fever than for any year during the past 15 years.

BIRMINGHAM BATTERIES ARE NOW ON WAY HOME

Douglas, Ariz.—In accordance with revised schedules of the dates of departure for the majority of the National Guard organizations recently ordered to their home states for muster out of federal service, Birmingham batteries, A and C, of the Alabama National Guard, entrained here February 14 and are on their way home.

Bauxite Being Mined in DeKalb.

Gadsden.—Announcement has been made that valuable discoveries of bauxite and fuller's earth have been found in DeKalb county near Ft. Payne. The bauxite, or aluminum ore, is being mined in small quantities and shipped north. This property recently changed hands and the development of the bauxite discoveries is said to be only the beginning of the work of the company. The strata of fuller's earth were found on the property of the Southern Refactories company.

WILL NOT DISCUSS U-BOAT QUESTION

REPLY SENT BERLIN THAT A CHANGE IN THE RUTHLESS POLICY IS NECESSARY.

U.S. SAILORS HELD PRISONERS

Seamen Taken From Stemship Yarrowdale Held By German Government.

Washington.—The United States has flatly rejected Germanys offer to discuss differences between the two nations while the ruthless submarine campaign is in progress.

In a note the Swiss minister, who presented orally the German proposal, Secretary Lansing said the United States "does not feel that it can enter into any discussion with the German government concerning the policy of submarine warfare against neutrals, which it is now pursuing, unless the German government renews its assurances of the 4th of May (the Sussex note) and acts upon the assurances."

The state department made public the Secretary's reply, together with a memorandum, which, at Mr. Lansing's suggestion, Dr. Ritter, the Swiss minister, had prepared, setting down in writing the suggestion originally transmitted orally. Previously officials had declared to confirm the announcement by the Associated Press, that such a proposal had been delivered by Dr. Ritter.

The communication is as follows:

"Memorandum: The Swiss government has been requested by the German government to say that the latter is, now as before, willing to negotiate formally or informally, with the United States, provided that the commercial blockade against England will not be broken thereby.

P. RITTER."

This memorandum was given immediate consideration and the following reply was dispatched:

"My Dear Mr. Minister: I am requested by the President to say to you in acknowledging the memonrandum which you were kind enough to send to me on the 11th inst., that the government of the United States would gladly discuss with the German government any questions it might propose for discussion were it to withdraw its proclamation of the 31st of January, in which suddenly and without previous intimation of any kind, it cancelled the assurances which it had given this government on the 4th of May last, but that it does not feel it can enter into any discussion with the German government concerning the policy of submarine warfare against neutrals which it is now pursuing, unless and until the German government renews its assurances of the 4th of May and acts upon the assurance.

"LANSING."

The question of whether guns shall be provided for American shipowners desiring to arm their vessels for defense against submarines has been submitted to President Wilson by the state and nazy departments. It is understood that the state department, the government's spokesman on international problems, has recommended that the guns be provided.

There is said to be no authority under which the navy department can actually supply the guns, though there are precedents for the loaning of weapons and bond for their return.

Americans Held as Hostages.

Washington.—Formal notification of the detention in Germany of the 72 American sailors brought in as prisoners on the prize ship Yarrowdale, was given to the state department by Dr. Paul Ritter, Swiss minister here acting for the German government, together with an inquiry as to the status of the chews of the German warbound ships in American harbors.

Germany, Dr. Ritter said, had decided to hold the Yarrowdale prisoners until she had had definite assurance that German crews in American harbors would not be held or imprisoned.

WILLIAM F. FEAGIN RESIGNS.

State Superintendent of Education Will Give Up Work October 1.

Montgomery, Ala.—William F. Feagin, state superintendent of education since November 30, 1913, will resign October 1 to become superintendent of education of Montgomery county and will be succeeded by Spright Dowell of Birmingham, state director of teachers' institutes. Superintendent Feagin announced the acceptance of the position and Governor Henderson immediately afterward issued a written statement of his intention to appoint Mr. Dowell in order that the work started by Mr. Feagin might be continued.

Fletcher Leaves For Mexican Post.

Washington.—Henry P. Fletcher left here for Mexico to present his credentials as American ambassador, accompanied by Capt. Frank R. McCoy, military attache of the embassy. He will enter Mexico at Laredo, traveling to Queretora, the country's new capital, over the National railway. Official and unofficial reports continue to indicate growth of the anti-government movement in Mexico. Although the active forces re those headed by Villa, Zapta and a few others less widely known.

PAPOOSES GET RIDE DE LUXE

COACH IS PICKED UP

Much Weeping, Much Distress and Trying Times for Frantic Railroad Officials—Papoose Special Puffs Back Bringing Happiness.

Great Falls, Mont.—Another yarn comes out of the wild and careless West. It has to do with trespassing, kidnaping and violation of all the interstate commerce regulations regarding free transportation. It has a happy ending, however.

Ten squaws gathered together their labors of a month in beadwork, moccasins, baskets and those things that Indian women make so well, and started to Great Falls, Mont., the nearest town. Where the squaw goes, there goes the papoose, and ten little brown babies were strung over the backs of the Indian women.

Part of the journey of the squaws led along the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway tracks and as they reached the freight yards they noticed an empty coach on a siding. The channels of commerce are not as free to the trader who has an infant strapped to its back, and the squaws were anxious to sell all of their wares in order to take home bacon and flour and cornmeal, and perhaps a little tobacco.

Thought It Was There to Stay.

To them the moving house of the railroad seemed as immovable as though it had been built upon rock instead of upon steel, and they deposited the papooses upon the red plush seats and glided on toward the markets of trade.

After a time, the Indian women, having sold their wares, returned to the railroad yards. But the coach was gone. The babies were gone. There was much weeping. There was much distress.

The ten squaws ran to the railway station, crying for their babies. They were told that the coach had been sent to Lewistown to meet the through train for Chicago.

Ten expostulating Indian women indicated in a measure to C. L. Whiting, division superintendent, the value of ten cute Indian babies, and the wires became warm immediately. The trainmen who made up the Lewistown cars had not noticed their infant passengers.

Happy But Hungry.

Thirty or forty miles down the line, the coach was stopped, and an engine was ordered to bring it back with all dispatch. The squaws waited anxiously.

An hour later, as the papoose special came puffing into Great Falls, the Indian women rushed into the coach. There were the babies, cooing and happy—but hungry. They had had their first train ride and in a private car at that.

An informal papoose repast was ordered, and after that the babies were strung over the shoulders of their mothers. Division Superintendent Whiting wiped his perspiring brow as he waved farewell to the railroad's guests.

Sheriff Blew Out the Gas.

Elizabeth, N. J.—John W. Davis, sheriff of Ocenee county, S. C., and W. C. Foster, superintendent of prisons there, were found dead in a hotel here the other morning from the effects of inhaling illuminating gas. The men had come to Elizabeth to get a negro accused of murder. It is believed that they blew out the gas in their room when they retired.

Boy, Eleven, an Expert Cakemaker.

Bolton, Conn.—Harry Mussey, age eleven, is claimed to be the best cakemaker for his age in the state. He started in making cakes when he was ten, and has become so skillful he now does all the cake-making for his family.

PET SUCKER DROWNS IN WATER BUCKET

Lived in Canary Cage So Long Contact With Liquid Proved Undoing.

Oakland, Cal.—All Oakland regrets the death of Horatio, a famous sucker of the fish species, which defied all natural laws and was able to live out of water for a considerable period. A few nights ago Horatio met a tragic death, due entirely to his own carelessness. Here's the story complete:

S. H. Masters one day found the fish flopping in the mud in the Oakland estuary, put it in a can of water and took it home. Masters performed one of the scientific wonders of the age by getting the fish to live out of water.

By keeping a constant temperature and removing a millimeter of water each day from Horatio's pool in the back yard of the Masters' home, the man was able to get the sucker to breathe the atmosphere. The fish was kept in a cage until the arrival of cooler weather, when he was taken into the kitchen.

While cavorting about the room a few nights ago Horatio found a bucket of water. He heard the call of the wild and flopped into the bucket, where he was found next morning by Masters, drowned.

SLEEPS WITH DEAD SISTER

Woman Tells Doctor Julia "Had not Stirred for Six Days and Nights."

Gorham, Me.—After Dr. George F. Gear, medical examiner, and Harley Day, a selectman, had forced their way into the old Warren home here, the other day, they found that Miss Sabra Warren, seventy years old, had slept for six nights with the dead body of her sister, Miss Julia Warren, who was sixty-five years old.

In the room with the aged woman and the body were a dozen cats and a flock of hens. Miss Warren would not admit that her sister was dead.

"She has not stirred for six days and nights," she told the medical examiner, "but it's none of your business."

The women, who had at least $7,000 in Gorham banks, had lived alone many years and rarely permitted anyone to enter their home.

LIFE RACE WITH WOLVES

Standish, Mich.—Three trappers, Charles Leonard, George Weston and Bert Parker, reached here the other day from a hunting trip in the Lake Superior region and told of a race for their lives with a wolf pack while returning from their traps. The men were on skates three miles from the nearest cabin when the wolves appeared.

One of the trappers fired his rifle when the pack approached them, and the wolves quickly tore one of their wounded members to pieces, giving the hunters time for a start.

Several times when the wolves were nearly on them this was repeated, the men said, until they finally reached the cabin.

TRAMP PROVES TO BE WOMAN

After Being Arrested One of Two Hoboes Is Shown to Be Wife of Other.

Thomasville, Ga.—Investigation of two supposed hoboes, who had been arrested and placed in the barracks here, revealed that one of the pair belonged to the gentler sex.

Upon being arrested the pair gave their names as Mat Smith and Bill Searey, but when Bill was found to be a woman they confessed to being Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bessent of Jacksonville, Fla.

They said they were on their way to Milwaukee, Wis., and as they did not have funds sufficient to pay their way there they decided to tramp it, the wife being unwilling to be separated from her husband. She felt that she could make the trip better and easier in the guise of a man.

GOVERNOR NAMES GIRARD OFFICIALS

THREE MEN SELECTED BY HENDERSON FOLLOWING ELECTION TO CHANGE FORM.

AT THE STATE'S CAPITAL

Interesting News Budget of Happenings in Various Departments of State.

—Montgomery.

The three City Commissioners for Girard, Ala., were named by Governor Henderson.

The body is to be composed of D. C. Foster, a merchant, for the term ending October 1, 1918; George D. Walace, factory superintendent, for the term expiring October 1, 1919; and Woodson Knowles, real estate man, for the term expiring October 1, 1920.

Successors to these commissioners will be elected by the people of Girard each year, commencing for the term expiring October 1, 1918, the Commissioner to hold office for three years. These commissioners will elect their own Chairman. The citizens of Girard voted to change from aldermanic form of government several wees.

Probate Judges Hear Engineers.

Probate judges from all portions of the state met here and heard the exposition of good roads and federal aid by State Highway Engineer Keller and Federal Highway Engineer Bullen. The consensus of opinion is that this meeting will be followed by a new era of road development throughout the state. This state has an appropriation of $104,000. Three times as much money as is available has been requested and the purpose of the conference was to map out a plan for the use of the appropriation in a way that will best serve the people.

Will Pay Martin's Assistants.

Following the decision of the supreme court that the contract between the state and Perry W. Turner and Lawrence E. Brown, assistant attorney generals, must be carried out and that the appropriation in the attorney general law is constitutional, Governor Henderson approved vouchers for $1000 each for salaries of Mr. Turner and Mr. Brown from September 1 to December 31, and personal expense accounts of Attorney General Martin, Mr. Turner and Mr. Brown incurred since the controversy and attorney general's department began. However, Governor Henderson declined to approve vouchers for the salaries of Mr. Turner and Mr. Brown for January pending an investigation which will determine whether or not the governor has the right to abrogate the contracts.

Colbert Is Fifth.

Action of voters of Colbert county in giving a majority of about two to one in favor of a special 3-mill tax for public school purposes under the educational amendment to the constitution has caused a general demand for another election in Marshall county, where the 3-mill tax was defeated by a small majority. It is probable another election will be called later in the year and if it is the state educational department will make a campaign in an effort to show the voters the advantages to be obtained by the adoption of the levy. Colbert is the fifth county in the state to levy the special 3-mill tax since the constitution was amended in November.

Railroad Suit Begun.

Trial of the suit involving the claim of the state that the Louisville and Nashvile railroad should pay franchise tax on $56.000,000, instead of $13,000,000, was begun before Judge Gaston Gunter, in the circuit court. This is the first of several cases instituted by William L. Martin, attorney general. Law points only are involved and no jury is necessary.

Bond Issue Upheld.

The supreme court ruled that the city of Eufaula, Barbour county, may issue bonds to the amount of $15,000 for the construction of public school buildings. George H. Dent and other voters of Eufaula attacked the validity of the election on the question of issuing the bonds, contending that the ballots were not properly prepared.

Paroles Issued.

Governor Henderson has issued paroles to Percy Ransom, J. A. Craig, and Henry Black, who were convicted of violating the prohibition laws in Tallapoosa county. In reference to Ransom and Craig the governor said the trial judge had recommended their release.

We regret to note the resignation of Hon. W. F. Feagin as State Superintendent of Education. Mr. Feagin has proven his wonderful ability as an educator and head of our school system since he has been in the position, and his friends and associates over the State will regret to see him retire. His resignation takes effect Oct. 1st, when he will be succeeded by Spright Dowell.

HELPING "POOR WHITE TRASH."

We hope that a hearty welcome will be given to all new-coming tenants and renters in your community. It is maifest that no church or Sunday school can neglect giving such a welcome if it is worthy of the name of Christian, nor can any individual of generous spirit neglect his duty. And even if you find cases where the parents seem shiftleass and careless, do not lose faith in the children. Moreover, if there is a spark of race pride in your being, never let yourself utter the most discreditable phrase that is common in the south—"poor white trash." Rather let us remember that the index to the power and possibilities of every boy and girl is found, not in the achievement or non-achievement of two or three immediate ancestors, but is found rather in his or her racial heritage;—let us remember that in the blood of every child born of our race there beats the spirit of the long, long centuries of toil and struggle, achievement, discipline, moral restraint, and spiritual aspiration, which make up the body of the Caucasian civilization, and no one knows when or where or in whom the genius of that race may again "burst full-blossomed on the thorny stem of time."

Welcome these stranger-children into your school and Sunday school and the parents into your church, Sunday school and farmers' clubs, and ask for their co-operation in everything that makes for education, co-operation and progress in the community. —The Progressive Farmer.

DEMOCRATIC PRECEDENT

There is direct Democratic lineage for the President's demand for "peace without victory." In the Democratic platform of 1864, adopted by the convention which nominated George B. McClellan as Lincoln's opponent in the election of that year, will be found these words: "After four years of failure to restore the Union by the experiment of war, justice, humanity, liberty and the public welfare demand that immediate efforts be made for cessation of hostilities to the end that peace may be restored on the basis of the Federal Union of the States."

Dr. Cary Grayson's promotion to the rank of rear admiral, over the heads of 114 older officers of longer service than he, is by divine right. He was born in Virginia.

PRINTED STATIONERY PAYS.

What about that up-to-date farm stationery you were to have made? We recently heard of two farmers who happened to apply at about the same time for loans from a trust company. Farmer A had printed stationery, and wrote his letter on a typewriter: Farmer B, just as well off as A in the world's goods, used a pencil and scratch paper, and wrote on both sides of the sheet. The result was that B's letter made so bad an impression that he experienced considerable trouble and delay in getting his loan, while A's was granted almost immediately. In getting results from correspondence, the neatly written letter on printed stationery is as far superior to a pencil scrawl on a bit of scratch paper as a twelve-cylinder automobile is to an ox cart.—The Progressive Farmer.

As a hint to some of our farmer readers who ought to have printed stationery, we will say that The Union-Banner is equipped to print you good stationery at the lowest prices. You should take the advice of The Progressive Farmer, and have us to fix up your order right away.

INCREASE OF FREE IMPORTS

Washington, Fbe. 14.—A $10,000,000 increase in importations under the maunfactures groups, over 1913, and $39,000,000 over 1912 is the record for the calendar year 1916. The year 1912 was under the protective policy, business being somewhat disturbed by the noise of the Democratic hammers as they played an anvil chorus on the Republican tariff law of 1909. Three months of 1913 witnesed the Democratic party issuing passes to foreign competitors to enter the American market. During five months of 1914, and since that time, a gang fight in Europe tied up exportations, to what extent, will not ever be known.

As trade competitors Germany, Belgium and Austria have been temporarily eliminated from the markets of the world, and thirty per cent of our European imports come from those three countries during normal times, practically all of them manufactured products. But Great Britain and France have scored increases over previous records, which, considering the amount of energy expended, in the war, are the marvel of the commercial history, while Japan has doubled sales to us. The Wilson-Underwood tariff law has played its part in making these increases possible.

Last year (1916) our imports of manufactures for further use in manufacturing, and manufactures ready for consumption totaled $763,438,000, of which fully 60 per cent was absolutely free of duty, (the remainder paying revenue rates only) compared with a total for 1913 of $753,700,00 of which 37 per cent came in free, and $724,000,000 for 1912, with the same per centage free of duty. In short, the year 1916 shows an increase of free goods coming under these two groups of between 60 and 70 per cent, and on these goods is expended the cheap labor of Europe and the Orient.

But the Democratic party views the situation complacently enough. Its leaders see no reason for alarm. They say that American manufacturers need no protection; that what they need is a corporations tax, a munitions tax, and a tax on any profits that may exist in excess of 8 per cent, after that. If manufacturers are energetic enough to chalk up a profit of 8 per cent they must pay a penalty for pernicious industrial activity. If post-war competition puts them out of business it is because theirs is not legitimate enterprises. It is all very puzzling to the business man who was assured a year or so ago by President Wilson that there would be no more baiting of business.

This much is certain: If the end of the war finds this country with the present tariff law firmly rooted in our industrial structure, the Democrats might as well bid farewell to adequate revenue returns from income taxes, let alone a tax on excess profits. If the American market is to be swamped with foreign products, which it certainly will be under a tariff law but 9 per cent above absolute free trade, there is going to be a woeful decrease in the number of assessable incomes.

It must have been ground into the minds of every producer in this country by now that in dealing with questions of industry and finance the party in power is hopelessly incompetent, and that the only way to save the patient from the effects of the relapse last November is to put the legislative functions of this Government into the hands of the Republican party.

A WISE MOVE

The Republican members of the ways and means committee have done wisely in preparing a tariff bill along protective and Republican lines with which to combat the vicious and sectional plan of direct taxation which Chairman Kitchin and the Democrats propose to fasten upon the country and to compel the major payment to be made in the Northern States.

The new Republican bill has been drafted under difficulties inasmuch as the official statistics of business at the custom houses are in the hands of the Democratic bureau chiefs, who are most dilatory in giving them to the public, who refuses to allow Republicans to have access to them in advance of publication—a privilege which is not denied to Democrats—and whose methods of classification are such that it requires superhuman intelligence combined with no small amount of psychic ability to divine their real purport.

Neverthless, the Republican proposal will well withstand scrutiny, for it is based upon the fundamental theory of securing revenue for the Treasury through protection to the American wage-earner. No bill framed upon such principles can be far wrong, even if individual schedules of it do not meet the opinions and expectations of everyone. In any event, the new Republican bill affords opportunity to rally the party strength to a fundamental party principle. It destroys the Democratic cry that the minority in Congress is a mere group of negations. It presents what soon must be the greatest economic issue which the country has ever faced; and it prepares the way for larger measures of party unity in action in the next Congress. It is a wise move.

TO CUT THE CATTLE TICK ARMY JUST HALF IN TWO

Broad Strip of Free Territory is to Serve as Object Lesson in the Benefits of Eradication.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 12.—The army of catle ticks is to be cut into half this year, and a wedge of tick-free territory driven through the infested area to the Gulf of Mexico. By the end of 1917 it is expected the entire state of Mississippi will be released from quarantine and a broad highroad opened for the unrestricted shipment of cattle to the outside market.

The effect of this upon the whole campaign for the total elimination of the pest throughout the south is expected to be great. In order to secure for the newly freed counties the full benefits of eradication, it has always been the policy to plan, as far as possible, the releases from quarantine so that the cattie may be brought in and out without passing through the ticky country. The new Mississippi law, however, requiring all tick-infested counties to begin eradication work, enables this policy to be carried out on a larger scale than ever before. Not only will the tick cease to exist for the people of Mississippi but the results that invariably follow its disappearance will prove a stimulating object leson for its neighboring areas that may still be infested.

These results are too apparent for even the most prejudiced to ignore.

For one thing the average value of cattle increases, at once and almost automatically, to an extent which makes the cost of dipping negligible. As to the exact amount of this increase opinions vary. Recently a large number of farmers in freedterritory were asked to give their opinions on this point, and the average of their replies was $9.25 a head. This, however, the Federal authorities belive to be a little high for a conservative estimate for the entire south, and they have fixed $7.50 as a safer figure for the general use. The increase varies of course, in different localities, and in Alabama, for example, it has been placed t $8.00. On this basis, in the twenty-eight counties which have already been freed in that state, the cattle are now worth $5,600,000 more than in the old days. Since the cost of eradication is insignificant in comparison, it is obvious that dipping vats are an investment that returns liberal dividend to the citizenship.

That these dividends are real, not theoretical, is indicated by a corresponding rise in land values. In one Mississippi county the local authorities were not at first convinced that the eradication of the tick actually had put money into the pockets of the people. An investigation showed that the coming of the boll weevil and the consequent falling off in the cotton crop had greatly depressed farm values. After the tick had been eliminated, the increased profits from live stock were sufficient to restore the price of land to its former level.

The farmers of Mississippi have not been slow to realize the new opportunity. Fifty-one counties in the state are now free from ticks, and into these a large number of pure-bred animals for breeding purposes have been brought. Both the grand champion international bull, and the grand champion international juior heifer owned in the state, and one Mississippi herd has won more prizemoney than any other herd of the same breed. Not every farmer of course can go in for stock of this character, but the improvement in the general run of catle is marked. As long as the tick remained, little or no progress was possible because of the susceptibility of imported breeding stock to the fever conveyed by the tick.

Improvement in the quality of the herds is also opening up new sources of revenue. In Mississippi, for example, fifteen creameries are now in operation, and through these the sale of more than 1,500,000 pounds of butter have brought the dairymen over $500,000. Baby beef clubs, too, have been organized in many of the tick-free counties. These are having a marked influence upon the beef industry. One boy said that before he joined the baby beef club he did not know what a fat calf was, for his father never had any such stock.

LITERACY TEST FOUR TIMES ENDORSED

Four times an immigration bill with a literacy test in it has been passed through Congress. Four times it has been vetoed. Cleveland, Taft, and Wilson, the latter twice, refused to sanction the measure. The driving force behind the literacy clause in Congress has been the insistence of organized labor upon it, the theory being that a literacy test will reduce the flow of cheap labor into the United States. This time, though knowing the President's attitude, organized labor procured a second passage of the bill, which represents one of the fundamental principles for which labor organizations stand. Yet organized labor does not withdraw its support from the President because he vetoes the immigration bill. Is it because it receives from him other things of more immediate and perhaps more personal benefit to its leaders?

EVERGREEN

As it has been some time since I saw any thing from this community I will try and write some of the news.

Every body in this section has been down with the Grippe, but I am glad to say that all seem to be geting better now.

Mrs. Jones, the tomato agent was at the school house last Saturday and organized a Poultry club. Chickens and eggs are a fancy price at present.

The bad weather and sickness has weakened the Sunday school at Floyd but we hope it won't last always.

Rev. E. B. Prickett, who has been in Prattville attending a preachers meeting, is back at home. He looks better whether he is better other ways or not. He could preach before he went to Prattville.

A. A. Beaird has moved to Prattville where he has accepted a position with the Prattville Gin Co.

The talk with most all of the people is that their wheat and oats are killed.

People are not doing anything toward farming in our section on account of bad weather and Grippe. We hope to see the weather open up some for it is going to soon be time when the people must get busy, especially in Chilton county.

Up to four years ago there was some few people in Chilton that were out of debt, but the last administration has made debts which will be on the people for many years. Just four little short years, two commissioners and one Probate Judge fixed our clock, but it is going to keep striking and keep better time than it ever has. We have 4 more years and we have four commissioners and a Probate Judge in Chilton county.

Best wishes to the Union-Banner and its many readers.

W. S. BEAIRD.

UNION SPRINGS

The great freeze came down on us and temporarily upset some of our early aspirations. Cabbage plants are killed and we believe the wheat and oat crops are damaged somewhat.

Singing on the first Sunday afternoon in the Christian Harmony, at Freeman school house, on the third Sunday afternoon in the Sacred Harp at Union Springs chappel.

Mr. Robie V. D. M. a native of Vermont of the International Bible Students Association delivered a series of interesting lectures in this community last week. The subject of his first lecture was the three ways, the broad way, the narrow way and the high way. The latter not yet opened up.

Second lecture was the unchangable character of Jehovah's gifts and callings, impressing seven points, viz: Life, an Eden home, Man's dominion of Earth, the plan of Salvation, the redeemer through whom the plan was wrought, the holy spirit, the calling.

Third lecture was how to become a christian, consisting of sorrow and sin, repentance, restitution, consecration, believing, begetting of the Spirit. Mr. Robie is somewhat advanced in years, of fine intelligence, a lucid reasoner. The attendance was good, people were very much interested. He left for Anniston, Birmingham and other points north.

Mr. Alex Smith of Avondale visited here last week.

Several came down from Rocky Mount for the lecture last week.

Mr. Haygood Russ of Florida has a position at the turpentine camps of Mr. S. M. Russ.

Mr. H. Honeycutt will put in a new saw mill here.

The fertilizer question is going slow here.

Not much talk of cotton., but velvet beans, tomatoes, corn, syrup and poultry seem to be in the lead.

Long live the Union-Banner.

Half Your Living Without Money Cost

A right or wrong start in 1917 will make or break most farmers in the South. We are all facing a crisis. This war in Europe puts things in such uncertainty that no man can foresee the future with any degree of clearness.

The sure and certain increase in cotton acreage means lower cotton prices next fall. Cost of all food and grain products is high, so high that no one can afford to buy and expect to pay out with cotton.

It's a time above all others to play safe; to produce all possible food, grain and forage supplies on your own acres; to cut down the store bill.

A good piece of garden ground, rightly planted, rightly tended and kept planted the year round, can be made to pay half your living. It will save you more money than you made on the best five acres of cotton you ever grew!

Hastings' 1917 Seed Book tells all about the right kind of a money saving garden and the vegetables to put in it. It tells about the field crops as well and shows you the clear road to real farm prosperity. It's Free. Send for it today to H. G. HASTINGS CO., Atlanta, Ga.—Advt.

YES! LIFT A CORN OFF WITHOUT PAIN!

Cincinnati man tells how to dry up a corn or callus so it lifts off with fingers.

You corn-pestered men and women need suffer no longer. Wear the shoes that nearly killed you before, says this Cincinnati authority, because a few drops of freezone applied directly on a tender, aching corn or callus, stops soreness at once and soon the corn or hardened callus loosens so it can be lifted off, root and all, without pain.

A small bottle of freezone costs very little at any drug store, but will positively take off every hard or soft corn or callus. This should be tried, as it is inexpensive and is said not to irritate the surrounding skin.

If your druggist hasn't any freezone tell him to get a small bottle for you from his wholesale drug house.—adv.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its luster, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any store, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, luster and luxuriance which is so beautiful. Old Letters Throw New Light on American Revolution

Benjamin Franklin ☆ ☆ George Washington ☆

LAST year during the "Clean-up week" in Philadelphia, some descendants of Robert Morris, the financier of the Revolution, worked their way to an unused attic. Having decided to dispose of an old desk, curiosity caused them to search its drawers, with the result that a pile of yellow and faded letters, written by the men who created the nation, was uncovered. A glance through them showed their great importance, says Joseph Jackson in the Public Ledger.

A reading of some of the letters shows that there will have to be a rearrangement of values of some of the leading characters of the Revolution.

In the letters we see how cabals and intrigues and backbiting ranged through the whole governing and official classes. Washington's place as commander-in-chief was resented by some, Franklin was alleged by his companions in France to be too old and too indolent, one who should be sent home. Congress was removed to Baltimore before there was any necessity for the change, and the delegates murmured at being compelled to live in a town where there were such poor accommodations.

Morris evidently was regarded as the true friend of both Washington and Franklin, and to him came the tales of the intrigues against them and how the fate of the war hung in the balance for a time, for had Washington been deprived of his command the whole campaign would have been thrown into confusion and into the arms of the British commander. Had Franklin been removed from France at the instigation of his companions, the support that eventually made the nation free would have been withheld.

It is very well known, of course, that John Adams had declared that he was sick of the Fabian system and that he thanked God that it was another and not Washington that received the glory for the Saratoga convention. But, in a letter written by Benjamin Harrison, one of the signers of the Declaration, under date of Williamsburg, Va., December 18, 1777, it is found that both Samuel and John Adams were in league to get rid of Washington. The R. H. L. noted in the letter is, of course, Richard Henry Lee.

"We have a story circulating here," Harrison wrote, "that there has been a motion made in Congress to divide the command of the army and that R. H. L. was at the bottom of it. It makes much noise, and if true, will effectually do his business. We are also informed that Genl. Washington's character has been attack'd publicly by S. & J. Adams, and that the Genl. has been so inform'd.

"Your being sent to Camp gives me some reason to fear that these reports may be true, and that my worthy Friend resents such treatment, I know his Value & would not loose him. If we do, America will repent it by the loss of her Liberty. The Confederation is unanimously agreed to by both Branches of the Legislature.

"There is one part of it I confess I couldn't have wish'd to have alter'd, which gives the Congress power of regulating the Trades, and of course granting a monopoly of the whole, or any part of it to any Nations it pleases, tho' some of our connoisseurs say they have no such power, there being no express grant of it, which they say is necessary to constitute the right, and that it can't be obtained by implication. I shall be glad of your opinion on the matter.

"The Men of War still keep us Blocked up and I dare say will do so all the Winter, in which case many Vessels will rot with their Loads in them, and yours amongst the Rest, and my Ships I fear will share the same fate on the stocks, which will be a most deadly stroke to me, if they do stay the Winter, it will be on acct. of the Frigate at Baltimore which they seem determined not to let proceed to Sea.

"We have not a word of News, nor any thing that I know of worth your Notice, except that this Country will act an Example I hope to the rest of her Sister States, by sending her full quota of Troops, and raising as much money as the People can bear. If all the rest do so we may once again meet with joyful countenances and Cheerful Hearts."

In a letter dated February 15, 1778, Harrison says:

"It gives one great pain to be certainly inform'd that there are some in the Senate who dislike our General. I have long suspected it, nay, I something more than suspect it, but had my hopes that his continued Labours and the situation he has ever been in, of always being inferior to the Enemy in numbers, and his men in want of every necessary, circumstances well known in Congress, would in the end have made every man his friend, and have satisfied them that more than he has done would not have been done by any man, and that we have no one that could in any degree have equal'd him; I am as confident of this as I am of my existence that the favorite of the day [Charles Lee?] is as far inferior to him, as he is inferior to any officer in the army, and this truth America will experience to her cost, if ever he should be placed at the head of her armies. Certain I am of one thing, that if this measure takes place a great part of the strength of this Country will be immediately taken off.

"The General is fully inform'd of all these Cabals, they prey on his Constitution, sink his Spirits, and will in the end I fear prove fatal to him. If this should be the case excuse me for once more repeating it, America will loose perhaps her only prop. He well knows bad consequences would follow his resignation, or he would not leave it in the power of the wicked and designing, thus to insult him. With a few words more I shall finish this painful Subject, Be Ware of Your Board of War.

"I am truly sorry for the conduct of your brother, and the disagreeable Scrape he has brot you into, tho' it certainly can not operate to your disadvantage with thinking men.

"If you should be under the disagreeable necessity of removing your family this way, and you think I can in any Manner be Serviceable to them, I beg you will command me without reserve; and I think on this occasion you should not depend too much on what you expect Providence will do for us. Such Enthusiasm is very commendable in the Statesman, but may be carried too far in the Husband and Father.

"Let me earnestly recommend the immediate removal of your Family for it is my opinion Gen. Howe will open the Campaign by the first of April well knowing that our recruits can't join the army till May, in which case our Worthy General will once more be induced to the mortifying necessity of retreating."

There are several letters by William Hooper, one of the North Carolina delegation, in which one gets the idea that, more than even moderns do, the country then believed its fate depended upon the efforts of Washington as commander in chief, and that to change horses or to divide responsibility with another commander would be fatal to the American cause.

Three letters from Franklin, two of them written while the philosopher was in France, give a very comprehensive view of the difficulties he encountered through the jealousy of his companions. The first letter is dated at Paris, December 21, 1777, and shows that harmony was lacking among the American ministers sent there by congress.

"I remember that long before I was ordered here," he wrote, "you did me the Honour to say, you should not dislike being sent to France with me. Since being here, I have frequently wish'd that Appointment had taken place. I think I should have pass'd my time more comfortably. We are now five of us in this City, all honest and Capable Men (if I may include myself in that Description) and all meaning well for the Public, but our Tempers do not suit, and we are got into Disputes and Contentions that are not to our Credit, and which I have sometimes feared would go to Extremes.

"You know the natural Disposition of some of us, how jealous, how captious, how suspicious even of real Friends, and how positive, after suspecting a while, that the Suspicions are certain Truths, Confirmations strong as Proofs from Holy Writ. You will, therefore, I am persuaded, if Complaints of one another should come to your hands, make due Allowance for such Tempers, and suffer no Man to be condemn'd unheard, I do not write thus on my own Account, as I am not apprehensive of your receiving any Complaints of me; for tho' it is difficult to live in peace with such Characters, how much soever one esteems them for the Virtue and Abilities they otherwise possess, I have, however, done it tolerably hitherto; but as I am not sure it can last, I wish most sincerely that we were separated; for our being together seems of no Use, and, as we hinted formerly in a joint Letter, is attended with many inconveniences.

"Such Inconveniences being formerly experienced by other States, I suppose the Reason, that no Power in Europe, for a Century past, has sent more than one Person to one Court. Possibly this desirable Event may soon take place, for if France & Spain acknowledge us as independent States, the other Courts will follow, and receive our Envoys.

"I have the Pleasure to assure you, that all Europe is of our side except the King of England and his Placemen and Pensioners, Contractors and Expectors. There is, however, a furious Ferment in his Parliament about his Measures, and if you could be fortunate enough to treat Howe as you have done Burgoyne, he would be in danger of the old House falling on his Head."

In the next letter, which is dated from Passy, June 3, 1780, Franklin expresses himself upon the subject of free ships and free goods. What he had to say must be illuminating in the present European struggle and its effect upon neutral commerce of the world.

"We are impatient to hear from America, no Accounts of the Operations before Charlestown later than the 9th of March having yet came to hand. Everything here in Europe continues to wear a good Face. Russia, Sweden, Denmark and Holland are raising a strong Naval Force, to establish the free Navigation for Neutral Ships, and of all their Cargoes, tho' belonging to Enemies, except contraband; that is, military Stores.

"France and Spain have approved of it, and it is likely to become henceforth the Law of Nations, that free Ships make free Goods. England does not like this Confederacy. I wish they would extend it still further, and ordain that unarm'd Trading Ships, as well as Fishermen, and Farmers, should be respected, as working for the common Benefit of Mankind, and never be interrupted in their Operations even by national Enemies, but let those only fight with one another whose Trade it is, and who are armed and paid for the purpose."

The last Franklin item consists of a contemporary copy of a letter in cipher to Franklin acquainting him that Congress had passed a resolution expressing the sense of that body that he was not exerting himself with the Government of France in a manner to benefit America. On this Franklin added a line to Morris, saying, "I need not tell you that Messrs. Lee, &c., are among the foremost to make these assertions."

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 18

JESUS HEALS NOBLEMAN'S SON.

LESSON TEXT—John 4:43-54.

GOLDEN TEXT—As thou hast believed, so be it done unto thee.—Matt. 8:13.

This event occurred a few days after that of last Sunday's lesson. It was Jesus' second miracle in Cana. John the Baptist is still preaching, and Jesus is closing the first year of his ministry and beginning his work in Galilee. Teachers should bring a vivid picture of Galilee to their classes, as that was one of the important fields to which our Master devoted much of his time. (For description see some good Bible dictionary.) The people of that land were more worldly, less bound by conventionalities, and more accessible to the teachings which Jesus brought than those of Judea. Josephus says they were "fond of innovations, and disposed to changes."

I. Supplication (Testing) vv. 43-49. Jesus left the revival at Samaria (vv. 39-44) and returned to Galilee. His own people of Nazareth refused to accept him "for a prophet hath no honor in his own country." It was in Galilee that he had his great victories. Here he was welcome (v. 45) because they had known the things that he did at Jerusalem, the report of which was brought back by those who had visited the feast (John 2:14-17). In Cana (Ch. 2:11) one came to him who was a king's officer, one who was used to command, and whose great personal need overcame any prejudice (Matt. 9:18; Luke 7:2). God uses afflictions ofttimes to drive us to him, and the most effective way to induce men to come to Jesus is to bring them to recognize their need which he alone can supply. The lad was "at the point of death," hence the father's journey of twenty miles from Capernaum to Cana, seeking help. We have here the weakness of faith indicated in verse forty-eight, in that the man would not believe except he should see signs and wonders. We have also the earnestness of the man in verse 49. "Sir, come down ere my child die." Man's extremity is ever God's opportunity. Not only extreme cases of sickness can be brought to him, but extreme cases of sin as well (I Tim. 1:15; Heb. 7:25). He can heal not only those who are "at the point of death" but those who are already dead (Eph. 2:1). The child was dying, the father had not strength to wait to see wonders, but he could and did trust Jesus to heal his son.

II. Surrender (Trusting) vv. 50-51. When the soldier took Jesus at his word, he surrendered his previous conception, and accepted the word of God; literally acting upon his belief. He went his way because he believed. He did not ask Jesus again to go to Capernaum. We must not confuse this kind of faith, however, with his having accepted Jesus as Savior. He accepted Jesus only as healer. We have men today who will accept Jesus Christ in the perfection of his character and the purity of his teachings but who will not accept him to be their personal Savior. Such men want to receive the benefits of Christianity, failing to recognize its spiritual power and authority.

III. Satisfaction (Triumph) (vv. 52-54). The father's faith rose to the need for "he believed the word that Jesus spake." That word did not seem at all probable, but it was enough. The word of Jesus who is, himself, the truth, is a sure and more reasonable ground of faith than any amount of speculation. This father's walk from Cana to Capernaum was a walk of faith. He had nothing but a bare promise to support him, yet on his return he found his son living (v. 52). On this word of Jesus he, himself, believed, and his whole house. It seems improbable that this could be otherwise if he were an honest man.

IV. Suggestions (1) The living, personal presence of Christ is not needful. It was a wise provision of God's economy that Christ should have returned to heaven.

(2) Acts are the true indications of our faith. God's written revelation and the revelation of his son, the Living Word, and the witness of the experience of God's saints are sufficient facts upon which to base faith.

(3) Faith is progressive. Notice the growth from verses 48 to 50 and 53. At first the man believed in Jesus' power; then he beleived in Jesus' word, and believed in Jesus, himself; then he reaches the highest point in that he does not believe alone, for his whole house believed with him.

(4) Faith is the source of all Christian gifts and graces. We have an advantage over these Galileans of nearly nineteen centuries of what Christ has wrought among the peoples of the earth among those who have believed on him. He has been tried and proved, and the gifts of God's grace, eternal life, the gifts of the Spirit are all conditioned upon our faith in him and in the Lord Jesus.

Our salvation from sin, our effectiveness as disciples and followers depend upon our faith in Jesus Christ as our Savior from sin, and as our Lord and Master.

Meat Eaters' Backache

Meat lovers are apt to have backaches and rheumatic attacks. Unless you do heavy work and get lots of fresh air, don't eat too much meat. It's rich in nitrogen and helps to form uric acid—a solid poison that irritates the nerves, damages the kidneys and often causes dropsy, gravel and urinary disorders. Doan's Kidney Pills help weak kidneys to throw off uric acid. Thousands recommend them.

An Alabama Case

Ernest R. Malone, 312 N. Conception St., Mobile, Ala., says: "My kidneys were disordered and I had to get up often at night to pass the kidney secretions. My back ached terribly and the doctor said I had serious kidney complaint. I kept getting worse and had almost given up hope when I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills. Three boxes completely cured me."

Indian Battleax Found.

A copper banner stone or ceremonial weapon of ancient Indian days, which was recently unearthed in Fond du Lac during the digging of a sewer, is described and pictured in the last issue of the Wisconsin Archaeologist.

The weapon is shaped like an ancient battleax and has two blades and a hole for a handle. It was found six feet in the earth and is believed to have been lost on the lake shore many ages ago, before the lake receded to its present level, or buried by a later generation of Indians. A cache of interesting Indian relics and weapons was dug up in the same city several years ago.

Husbands Disposed Of.

They were seatmates in a traction car headed for the port of Terre Haute. The seats are rather narrow, and of course there had to be apologies based on sitting snugly.

"Narrow seats," he said.

That started them toward more intimate conversation. And before the car reached Coatesville she had confessed that she was a widow—twice.

"Had two husbands?" he queried.

"Yep, two of 'em,' she confessed. "Sodded one of 'em, and the court took the other one."

Outstanding Features in Spring Coats

Will a new suit be the uppermost thing in your thoughts in spring apparel, or do you intend to become a devotee of the one-piece dress and the separate coat? There is no getting away from the fact that the one-piece frock, or "the dressmaker's dress," as it is called, challenges our admiration on every side; everybody is wearing it. Likewise, just at present, everyone is covering up this graceful garment with a long coat, generous, enveloping, and becoming. Not within the memory of woman have coats been so ample and luxurious looking. It is all because they are of such soft-looking cloths and have such roomy sleeves, and, above all, such big collars.

In the new coats recently brought out for demi-season wear, collars remain extra large. There is a choice in lengths between coats that cover the dress and those that are three-quarter length. Some of them are accused of looking more like a bathrobe than anything else, with narrow girdles that are wrapped loosely about the figure. A few of them are pocketless, but the others make up for it with pockets of such size and pronounced style that all pockets that have gone before become insignificant.

In the coat shown in the accompanying picture the collar and the pockets are very conservative as to size, but the cuffs go to any length in asserting the generosity of things in coats.

It is of soft, heavy broadcloth. You may select it in one of the lovely shades of gray or perhaps in French blue, but you are more likely to buy it in a darker shade.

The collar is of the cape variety that looks so cozy when brought up about the neck. It is embellished with two bands of velvet, and similar bands appear on the cuffs. This is a girdleless model—the skirt set on to the body with a velvet piping. Two rows of small buttons make an admirable finish at the back, and the conical pockets are modestly satisfied with only one button each. This is altogether a very quiet garment, but if you want something else there are others in deep orange color or with other startling outstanding features.

Having the Charm of Simplicity

To design gowns that will suit the taste of the debutante and be suited at the same time to her youth, is something of a problem. Most very young women wish to clothe themselves in styles considerably too mature for them. This is like putting a dainty watercolor in a heavy overwrought gold frame. But mothers must emphasize and bring home to their daughters the charm of youth, which is best expressed in frocks that at least have the appearance of simplicity.

A pretty taffeta frock well suited to the young girl is shown in the accompanying picture. It is a demure, Quakerish-looking affair with only parallel rows of cords set in the bodice and skirt to relieve it of entire plainness. The skirt is plain and straight and is gathered to the bodice. The girdle is made of the silk and tied in a knot with two ends, at the front.

A plain organdie collar with hemstitched hem finishes the neck. This might be replaced by a collar of the less expensive laces, but to no special advantage, for the collar of organdie has the same style and character as the gown.

Dresses similar in style are made with a slightly raised waistline and worn without a girdle. In these the bodice usually buttons down the front, while in the model picture the fastening is on the shoulder and along the underarm.

Millinery Ideas.

While many hats are decidedly of Oriental origin, others are suggestive of the periods of Francis I and Henry IV. They should be set straight on the head and cover it equally, not leaving one side more exposed than the other, and be brought low down on the brow, in the exact center reckoned from one side of the forehead to the other.

If you are bilious, feel lazy, sluggish and all knocked out, if your bowels are constipated and your head aches or stomach is sour, just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone instead of using sickening, salivating calomel. Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headache and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and your bowels regular. You will feel like working. You'll be cheerful; full of vigor and ambition.

Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal guarantee that it will clean your sluggish liver better than nasty calomel; it won't make you sick and you can eat anything you want without being salivated. Your druggist guarantees that each spoonful will start your liver, clean your bowels and straighten you up by morning or you can have your money back. Children gladly take Dodson's Liver Tone because it is pleasant tasting and doesn't gripe or cramp or make them sick.

I am selling millions of bottles of Dodson's Liver Tone to people who have found that this pleasant, vegetable, liver medicine takes the place of dangerous calomel. Buy one bottle on my sound, reliable guarantee. Ask your druggist or storekeeper about me. Adv.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK?

Thousands of Men and Women Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Nature warns you when the track of health is not clear. Kidney and bladder troubles cause many annoying symptoms and great inconvenience both day and night.

Unhealthy kidneys may cause lumbago, rheumatism, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints or muscles, at times have headache or indigestion, as time passes you may have a sallow complexion, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, sometimes feel as though you had heart trouble, may have plenty of ambition but no strength, get weak and lose flesh.

If such conditions are permitted to continue, serious results may be expected; Kidney Trouble in its very worst form may steal upon you.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are among the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patients, who usually content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease may constantly undermine the system.

If you feel that your kidneys are the cause of your sickness or run down condition, try taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the famous kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because as soon as your kidneys improve, they will help the other organs to health.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at all drug stores. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., which you will find on every bottle.

SPECIAL NOTE—You may obtain a sample size bottle of Swamp-Root by enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. This gives you the opportunity to prove the remarkable merit of this medicine. They will also send you a book of valuable information, containing many of the thousands of grateful letters received from men and women who say they found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed in kidney, liver and bladder troubles. The value and success of Swamp-Root are so well known that our readers are advised to send for a sample size bottle. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

SYRUP OF FIGS FOR A CHILD'S BOWELS

It is cruel to force nauseating, harsh physic into a sick child.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Adv.

Hard Work.

"Does nobody smoke in this family? Can't you even give me a light?"

"Yes, but keep it dark."

Dr. B. F. Jackson, Celebrated Physician, handed down to posterity his famous prescription for female troubles. Now sold under the name of "Femenina." Price 50c and $1.00.—Adv.

Backache

In spite of the best care one takes of oneself, any part of the human machine is liable to become out of order. The most important organs are the stomach, heart and kidneys.

The kidneys are the scavengers and they work day and night in separating the poisons from the blood. Their signals of distress are easily recognized and include such symptoms as backache, depressions, drowsiness, irritability, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic twinges, dropsy, gout.

"The very best way to restore the kidneys to their normal state of health," says Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., "is to drink plenty of pure water and obtain from your favorite pharmacy a small amount of Anuric, which is dispensed by almost every druggist." Anuric is inexpensive and should be taken before meals. You will find Anuric more potent than lithia, dissolves uric acid as water does sugar.

BANISHED—pimples, blotches, sores, humors, and eruptions, by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. For a poor complexion, and for the poor blood that causes it, this is the best of all known remedies.

In every disease or disorder of the skin or scalp, in every trouble that comes from impure blood, the "Discovery" is the only medicine sold that does what it promises.

Scrofula in all its various forms, Eczema, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Enlarged Glands, and Swellings, and every kindred ailment, are benefited and cured by it.

THORSBY ITEMS

The number on the entertainment course will be a lecture by Rev. R.W. Gammon, D. D., of Chicago, on Saturday night Feb. 24th. Dr. Gammon is a very interesting speaker who is much in demand in all parts of the country and the people of Thorsby are fortunate in the opportunity to hear him. He will probably give his popular lecture entitled "When a Fellow Needs a Friend."

Mrs. Baumbach of New York City will deliver two lectures here under the auspices of the Luther League of Thorsby on Tuesday and Wednesday nights, Feb. 20 and 21st. These lectures will be given at Bates Hall and will be illustrated by stereopticon views. One lecture will bring views and information about Scandinavian countries and the other about the life of Luther and the Reformation. Admission, children and students 15 cents on night, both nights 25 cents. Adults 25 cents one night, both nights 35 cents.

More people attended Sunday school in Thorsby last Sunday than in many months past. Reports from the different Sunday schools of the city shows a substantial increasein the number present in all classes. The Congregational Sunday school had 126 present. The Baptist had 54 present and the Lutheran had 62 present.

The Boy Scouts of Thorsby celebrated the eighth anniversary of the Boy Scout movement by an all-day hike on Saturday and a special service at the Congregational Church Sunday night.

Rev. E. W. Butler left for Pittsfield, Ill., Friday of last week, having been summoned to the bedside of his mother who is not expected to live.

BEST FOR ALL CROPS

SOUTH ATLANTIC GUANO COMPANY

(SUBSIDIARY MORRIS FERTILIZER CO.)
ATLANTA — MONTGOMERY

A poor crop never pays. A farmer is not living up to his opportunities when he fails to make a good profit on his year's work. Outside of actual Providential casualties, there is no excuse for crop failure in these days of scientific methods of feeding the crop so that each plant is nursed and nourished from the time of sprouting till final maturity.

The methods of mixing and blending the South Atlantic Brands and the excellent class of materials used in them as actual food for the plant make them a scientifically perfect fertilizer. Their mechanical condition is so fine and free from lumps that each plant gets its full share of each element of plant food, thus insuring better stands and vigorous growth.

Their liberal use means larger yields, better profits and eminent satisfaction.

REPORT OF GRAND JURY FOR FEBRUARY TERM CIRCUIT COURT

26 CASES INVESTIGATED; 11 TRUE BILLS RETURNED.

STATE OF ALABAMA,
Chilton County.

In the Circuit Court of Chilton County Spring Term, 1917.

To Hon. Gaston Gunter, Judge of the 15th Judicial Circuit Court Presiding:

We, the Grand Jury duly empaneled and sworn for the Feb. term, 1917 of the Circuit Court of Chilton County, beg leave to submit to your Honor our report as follows: We have investigated 26 alleged violations of the law and return herewith to your Honor's Court 11 true bills.

The work of this Grand Jury has been exceedingly light and speaks well for the County, although it may be in large part due to the fact that it has been only about two and a half months since the Grand Jury convened in the County.

We have investigated the books and offices of the various county officers with the exception of the county Treasurer. The law abolishing County Treasurers just having gone into effect, no bank having bid for the County funds of this county, the Commissioners Court elected Mr. Bice as treasurer of the County's funds, and as this has been but recently done, we saw no occasion for making an investigation of his books at this time. We have no criticism or suggestions to make with reference to any of the county officers or of their respective offices.

The County property including the jail and court house we find in good physical conditions and both kept in a neat and sanitary manner. The prisoners are well fed and comfortably cared for. However, there are some slight repaires that should be attended to at once in the court house, consisting of some broken plastering, a leak over one of the witness' rooms and a broken pane in the office of the county Supt. of education. We call the attention of the commissioners court to these slight needed repairs and ask that they have the same attended to at the earliest convenience.

The committee investigating the County Poor House, report that they found 15 female and 7 male inmates, all white. They all expressed themselves as being wel provided for, and kindly treated. The committee recommends, however, that the county furnish a better and more comfortable bed for one of the inmates who is paralyzed, and the screening of a poarch for the comfort and protection against flies to be used by an afflicted child an inmate of the Poor House. The well at the Poor House also needs some slight work done on it. We trust that the commissioners will not neglect this, as at best our paupers are none too well cared for.

The roads of the county are getting in somewhat bad state of repair, this is largely due to bad weather and heavy traffic and the further fact that the overseers have not yet more than begun their regular spring working of the roads. It is the sense of this Grand Jury that the full ten days should be put on the roads of the county by every person liable to road duty during each period of twelve months, and we suggest and heartily recommend that the overseers of the variuos roads immediately put in six days work on their roads as their spring working and reserving four days to be used this fall, as work which can be done now in the way of repairs can be done more cheaply than if it is neglected till fall. Many citizens in various sections of the county, although not liable to road duty have, voluntarily furnished teams and hands for work on our pubic roads, and much good has resulted from this and we wish to speak in words of highest commendation for this patriotic and public spirited service on the part of these citizens of our county. We believe that there are other citizens of the county living on our public highways, and who own teams and machinery, yet who are not liable to road duty, who would gladly contribute in like manner if requested by our road apportioners and overseers.

The roads within the corporate limits of Cooper and Mountain Creek we are informed are in bad condition for travel. However, as these are incorporated towns the county has no jurisdiction over the citizenship of these towns as to their road duties, and we ask that the citizens of these two towns seek to so co-operate with the county authorities as to bring about better roads as to the main highways which pass through the two towns.

Believeing that we have accomplished all that could be required of us at this term of the court, we respectfully ask that we be discharged subject to the further orders of this court.

W. A. KEMP,
Foreman.

MARRIAGE OF DR. V. J. GRAGG AND MISS EULA ROPER

Dr. V. J. Gragg, that very popular and well known physician of our town and county, handed his many friends a surprise last Friday, when he began telling them that he had "got married" the night before. His bride was Miss Eula Roper, a lovely young woman who lived out at Fairview.

Dr. Gragg secured his licenses at the Probate office Thursday afternoon, and carried Judge Reynolds out to the home of the bride to perform the ceremony.

The happy couple have been receiving the congratulations of their many friends, and The Banner joins in with best wishes for happiness, prosperity, and all that goes with successful married life.

FREIGHT TRAIN WRECKED IN CLANTON SWITCH YARD.

About five o'clock last Thursday morning a fast southbound freight train wrecked at the south switch of the Clanton yards, completely demolishing about thirteen cars, which were loaded with flour, apples, Ford cars, roofing, and various other things. No lives were lost.

Traffice was tied up until late in the afternoon. All south bound passenger trains were held up here, and north bound trains were held up at Cooper.

Wreckers from both the north and the south came to the scene, and removed the debris, and a large corps of section hands repaired the long stretch of torn up track.

Whole car loads of flour and apples were spilled down the embankment and crushed in the mud.

IN MEMORY

Nathaniel A. Dobbs, commonly called Uncle Nattey, was born in South Carolina in 1825, and at the time of his death, Feb. 7th, only lacked a few months of his ninety-second birthday.

When he was a small boy he moved with his father's family to Georgia, and in 1842 he married a Georgia girl, Elizabeth Reynolds, "Aunt Betty" as we all have known her. She died in 1914, also in her ninety-second year. Of the union nine children were born, six boys and three girls. Seven of these children are still living.

Uncle Natty first began preaching the gospel soon after the civil war. While he was a Methodist, he preached the gospel and left off doctrine, in fact he was so fair along his line of preaching until he was often sought by other churches than his own, because of his ability to reach the people when others failed. The writer well remembers back in 1887 a great revival was held at Shiloah by N. A. Dobbs, methodist, and George Mills, baptist.

In music he was considered in his day a great singer, his voice was soft, clear and pleasing to all lovers of song He served his country in the Civil war between the states from the beginning until Lee's surrender, and it was here perhaps where his true worth to his country and to his God was at its best. We gather this from his comrades.

The writer lived a close neighbor to him for several years, and believes his greatest sin was being too lenient with his neighbors. His disposition was always looking for the better side of things of life; his advise always sound and on the side of right, as he saw it. On all questions coming up he always gave it careful study and after he reched a conclusion his stand was bold and open.

His fourth generation survive him.

One of our best and oldest citizens has gone to his reward.

A FRIEND.

SENSIBLE RULING OF THE COOSA SCHOOL BOARD

In Providing grave Necessity for Accommodation at the Rural Rchool Houses.

One condition that prevails in the rural schools of the State is reprehensible, namely, the lack of toilet facilities. In at least fifty per cent of the schools no outhouses are provided. The situation is embarrassing, as well as prejudicial to health and to morals.

At the several teachers' institutes now being held a departmental session is given over to a discussion of the conditions that prevail in the individual counties. The conductor of the institute meets with the men and the assistant meets with the women, and a frank discussion of this matter is held. At the recent Coosa County institute, held February 7-10, the men passed a resolution asking the county board to make obligatory the provision of sanitary outhouses in all of the schools of the county. A committee of three was appointed to wait on the county board, which it so happened, was in session on Friday of the institute week, and after hearing the report and recommendations of the committee, the board passed a regulation, the purpose of which is to require all schools in the county receiving public funds to provide two sanitary toilets for each school.

This action merits the approval of the people of the State and should serve as a stimulus to other county boards to do lkewise.

The Corn and Pig Club Library.

At the training schools held for boys in the corn and pig club work held in connection with the teachers' institute each week, one or more libraries are awarded to the schools in the county making the best showing. This award is made approximately upon the following basis: Thirty percent for enrollment of members, and seventy percent for members doing the work and reporting at the close of the year, provided no school competing shall have fewer than five members in its club. This puts the small and the large schools upon an equitable basis.

The value of the library is $10 and consists of the following helpful books for country boys and girls:

Southern Field Crops.....Duggar
Southern Field Crops.....Duggar
Productive Swine Husbandry.....Day
Poultry Keeping.....Lewis
Sub Tropical Vegetable Gardens.....Rolfe
Farm Boys and Girls.....McKeever

Special Days

The rural school teacher's responsibility does not end with the class room work. If he fulfills his mission he must be instrumental in developing better roads, better farming and better home environments; in fact he must become a real community builder.

February the 23rd has been designated as "Good Roads Day," and March 16th as "Better Farming Day" in Alabama. Bulletins containing programs and suggestions for the observance of those days are prepared by this office and placed in the hands of the county superintendents for distribution among the teachers at least three weeks in advance of the days appointed. It is hoped that every teacher will arrange and carry out an effective program, and write us a brief account of the results. This material will be filed for future use.

CONCERT

There will be a roncert at Pleasant Grove on Friday night Feb. 23. The concert will consist of plays, readings and music by a string band. Admission ten cents to non-residents of the district.

RESOLUTION PASSED BY THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

Asking for Another Meeting of The People in Regard to the Issuance of Bonds by the County.

The State of Alabama Chilton county

Whereas Chilton county has a past due indebtedness of over $70,000.00 and no money in the Treasury with which to pay it, and the county is three years behind with its payments and its warrants are discounted 40 per cent., and the commissioners court is up to the statutory limit, as prescribed by law, and cannot issue any more warrants until some way is provided, by which some of the present past due warrants can be paid.

And whereas a mass meeting was called for the 3rd day of February 1917, and owing to the unfavorable weather conditions it was impossible for the people to attend said meeting;

Therefore be it resolved by the Court of County Commissioners in regular session on this the 14th day of February, 1917, that another mass meeting of all the voters of the county is hereby called to assemble at the court house on Saturday the 3rd day of March, 1917, at 10 o'clock A.M., for the purpose of considering and devising ways and means to pay off debts and restore the credit and put the county on a cash basis. All voters who are interested in the welfare of the County are requested to attend.

"BY ALL MEANS SOW OATS THIS SPRING"

Advises Commissioner Wade. In the even your Fall Sowing is Killed by cold.

DO NOT RESIGN YOURSELF TO HIGH COST OF FEED STUFFS.

The recent cold weather has seriously damaged, if not destroyed a large percentage of the oat crop. This was unexpected and extremely unfortunate in view of the many successive disasters that have preceded it within the past two years. It is real discouraging, if we could afford to be discouraged. We have only the future left and discouragement will make matters worse. There is no other wise way but to try again. We have had many freezes as severe without such damage to crops. It was the long damp warm weather that preceded the freeze that created a tender growth in the absence of frost or sunshine to temper the plants that caused the freeze to be so disastrous.

There has not been enough warm weather since the freeze to determine what percent will recover. Opinions are conflicting. Some people contend that seventy-five per cent of the oats will spring from the roots. It looks now like fifty per cent or more are permanently dead.

After a week or ten days of favorable weather, one can tell whether or not it will be necessary to plant again. I would advise sowing Burt or Rust-proof oats from now until March 10th. Spring sown oats yield only half to two-thirds as much as those sown in the fall but will pay in the absence of the fall crop when compared with the present prices of feeding stuff. By all means sow spring oats in the event your fall sowing had been killed.

In the event you find seed oats hard to obtain, the land may be sown to soy beans. This is one of the best crops that can be grown. They improve the soil as do cow peas. The vines make excellent hay. The beans yield from fifteen to thirty bushels per acre and contain more and better oil than cotton seed. They can be planted after oats are hervested but do better when planted about the 1st or the middle of May. The Mammoth Yellow Soy Bean is one of the best varieties for this section and should be inoculated in order to get the best results.

Do not plant your oat land to cotton and over crop yourself. Remember that the boll weevil is waiting to trip the farmer who over crops himself with cotton.

J. A. WADE,
Commissioner of Agriculture.

GERMANS CHARGE THE BRITISH LINES

Kaiser's Troops Are Repulsed In Their Efforts To Gain Lost Ground North Of The Ancre

MANY PRISONERS ARE TAKEN

Berlin Admits Germans Were Forced To Abandon Some Advanced Positions

New York.—The Germans in the Miraumont sector of the Ancre front in France have striven hard to regain the positions the British took from them, but their attempts were fruitless, according to the British war office. Attacking in waves, the Germans came under the concentrated fire of the British guns and were swept back to their trenches suffering heavy casualties. At no place did the attacking forces reach the British line. The British suffered no casualties. They cautured 780 officers and men.

The Berlin war office says that in the Ancre fighting position several times changed hands, but that before abandoning their advanced crater positions the Germans took 130 prisoners and captured five machine guns.

Trench raiding operations and artillery duels continue. In Champagne, near Ripont, says Berlin, the French have shelled the Germans in the positions captured from the French, but have been unable to launch infantry attacks because of terrific artillery fire of the Germans.

Petrograd admits the entry of Germans into Russian trenches south of Dvinsk, but says later they were driven out. In the Carpathians a strong Austro-German work south of Okna has been captured by the Russians.

In the Austro-Italian and Macedonian theaters artillery activity predominates. Nothing new has crept through concerning the situation on the Irak the British with having taken additional positions from the Turks in the region of Kut-el-Amara.

THREE PEOPLE ARE SLAIN WHEN MADMAN RUNS AMUCK

H. Claude Anderson Kills Mrs. M. Zahn and Rev. G. R. Buford And Is Himself Slain

Atlanta.—Rushing into the home of W. J. Zahn, at 3 Hull street, where H. Claude Anderson, a madman, was running amuck, shooting everybody in sight, Rev. G. R. Buford, pastor of Moore Memorial Presbyterian church, and formerly a missionary worker, was shot through the heart and dropped dead in a corner of the house, while the madman continued his wild fusilade with fearful results.

In addition to killing Mr. Buford, Anderson slew his mother-in-law, Mrs. M. Zahn, and he himself was slain by his brother-in-law, W. J. Zahn, after he had tried to kill Zahn and the latter had knocked him down and taken his pistol away from him.

Anderson was released two weeks ago from the state insane asylum at Milledgeville. In November, 1915, he summoned his wife to meet him in Grant Park to discuss a reconciliation. There he attacked her with a knife and cut her in the hand. As the result of this affair, he was sent to the asylum.

Anderson seems to have blamed his wife's family for her separation from him. He went to 33 Hull street, where she lived with her brother and mother, and threatened them. About six o'clock he went back. Neighbors say he was drunk and had two pistols. He slipped into the house and hid.

Anderson opened fire on the three women when he was discovered—and beyond that nobody is clear. Mr. Buford, who lived nearby on Luckie street, and who was passing the house with his wife en route to call at the home of a friend, ran into the house.

When the shooting was over, Mr. Buford lay dead in a corner of the hall of the house. Mrs. M. Zahn was shot through the head, through the lungs and beaten over the head with some blunt instrument, presumably the butt of one of Anderson's pistols. She died later at Grady hospital.

No Plea To Germans By This Captain

Rome.—Captain McDonough and the crew of the American schooner Lyman Law recently sunk by a German submarine, arrived in Rome with Roger Treadwell, the United States consul at Turin, and were interrogated at the American embassy. Captain McDonough repeated his story of the sinking of the schooner, adding that the vessel had a large supply of canned goods, which doubtless attracted the officers of the submarines in their search for food.

Many Ships Sail For Submarine Zone

New York.—Twelve steamships, one of them flying the American flag, sailed from here in one day, presumably for European ports which will necessitate their passage through the "prohibited zone" announced by Germany.

Ambassador Fletcher Now In Mexico

Mexico City.—The American ambassador, Henry P. Fletcher, has arrived. He was met by officials from the Mexican foreign office, members of General Carranza's staff and a big delegation of government officials

ASKS RELEASE OF SEAMEN

Inquiry Concerning Redetention Of Americans Dispatched To Berlin

Washington.—An inquiry concerning the redetention by Germany of the United States seamen brouhgt in by the prize ship Yarrowdale was dispatched to Berlin by the United States preliminary to more vigorous action if the men are not promptly released.

The plight of these sailors occupied much of the time at a cabinet meeting, given over to the crisis growing out of Germany's submarine warfare. It was agreed that their liberty again should be demanded in most emphatic fashion. Pending complete reports as to the treatment of German crews on warbound ships in the Philippines, Hawaii and elsewhere, however, the government will content itself with the inquiry as to why the United States citizens are held and under what conditions.

Press dispatches from Berlin announcing that the seventy-two American seamen brought in by the Yarrowdale had been released caused the demand that the men be freed to be withheld pending official advices on the subject. A cablegram was sent to the Spanish ambassador at Berlin asking if the report was true.

The cabinet discussed every phase of the international situation. The question of providing navy guns for American shipowners desiring to arm their vessels for defense was considered, but it was stated officially afterward that no decision was reached. It is understood that there was a division of opinion, with most of the cabinet officers strongly favoring furnishing the guns, both on the ground that permitting American ships to remain idle in port suggests acquiescence in Germany's course and because the congestion of ocean-bound freight in the country's ports is assuming serious proportions. Two or three members are said to have contended that the policy would be unwise. The president will decide the question.

BERNSTORFF HOPES THAT WAR WILL NOT RESULT

German Ambassador And Staff Take Steamer—Hopes For Restoration Of Friendliness

Washintgon.—In a farewell statement before leaving for New York to sail for home, Count von Bernstorff expressed the hope that war between the United States and Germany might be averted and that the friendly relations between the two countries might soon be re-established. The former German ambassador said:

"In leaving the United States after a stay of eight years, I wish to extend to my many personal friends my heartfelt thanks for the great kindness and cordial hospitality they have shown me.

"My heart is full of gratitude to those whose personal feelings never wavered during the trying years of the war. In the last days I have received so many cordial farewell messages that it was impossible to send thanks for them individually.

"I hope that war may be averted and that the old friendly relations between the United States and Germany may soon be restored."

Bernstorff Ship Reaches Halifax, N. S.

Halifax, N. S.—The Scandinavian-American liner Frederik VIII, from New York, with Count von Bernstorff, the former German ambassador to the United States, and his party of German consular officials, homeward bound, on board, anchored in Halifax harbor at night. Powerful searchlights were played on her from both sides of the harbor as she steamed slowly to her anchorage convoyed by a swarm of naval patrol boats.

American Liner Braves U-Boats

Liverpool.—The Philadelphia, the first American liner to leave Europe since Germany's declaration of unrestricted submarine warfare, sailed from here February 14. She carried ninety-five passengers of all classes, of whom thirty-eight were Americans.

Looped The Loop In Hydro-Airplane

Pensacola, Fla.—Capt. Francis T. Evans, attached to the navy flying school here, successfully looped the loop in a hydro-airplane at a height of several hundred feet. It was said to be the first successful somersault in a hydro-airplane.

Bishop Nelson Answers Christ's Call

Atlanta.—Bishop C. K. Nelson of the Episcopal church, diocese of Atlanta, died very unexpectedly at the episcopal residence here. He was, at the time of his death, probably the best known Southern bishop in the country, born near Cobham, Va., May 23, 1852, and was in the 65th year of his age. He received his A. B. degree at St. John's college, Annapolis, Md., in 1872, graduating with high distinction. Determined to enter the priesthood, he pursued his theological studies at Middletown, Conn.

$25,000,000 In Gold Sent From Canada

New York.—Gold amounting to $25,000,000 has arrived from Canada for J. P. Morgan & Co., for account of the British government. This is the first large consignment for British account since early in January, when the movement was suspended with the placing of the British loan in this market. The gold reached here presumably by way of Halifax, and other large consignments are expected. Thus far this year gold imports from Europe amount to $75,000,000; exports approximate $12,000,000.

WILL NOT SUBMIT TO SHIPPING TIE-UP

President Wilson Realizes That So Long As Ships Are Held In Port He Is Acquiescing In German Policy

PLANS TO RELEASE SHIPS

Has Decided On Policy To Release Shipping, But Time Not Yet Decided

Washington.—The ruthless German submarine campaign and its effects upon the United States were discussed by President Wilson and the cabinet.

Arming of American merchantmen and the economic effects of the partial tie-up of shipping out of American ports were the subjects of which the cabinet centered attention. Secretary McAdoo is compiling a list of vessels held in port, and Secretary Redfield is making a comprehensive analysis of the inroad submarines are making on shipping generally.

Consideration is given by the government to all the different phases of the situation that has developed since the break in relations with Germany, including the detention of the Yarrowdale prisoners, the crisis with Austria, the plight of Americans in Turkey and Belgian relief.

High officials take pains, however, to emphasize that the great fundamental problem before the nation is the illegal submarine campaign itself. Against this campaign the United States has made the most vigorous protest possible short of war, but the administration realizes that so long as it permits American ships to be held in port for fear of attack by submarines it, in effect, is acquiescing in the German policy. This state of affairs, it is admitted, cannot be permitted to continue indefinitley.

What the United States must do to end it, and when, are the only questions. The president is understood to have a very definite opinion as to what should be done, but has not yet decided that the time has come to do it.

AMERICAN TROOPS LINE THE MEXICAN BORDER

To Prevent Murderous Raids—$5,000 Ransom Will Be Paid For Spencer And Wife

Hachita, N. M.—Lieutenant Colonel J. C. Waterman, commanding the Hachita district, sent orders to his troops to maintain constant patrols along the border. Unofficial reports said all cavalry regiments on the border from El Paso to Douglas, Arizona, had been instructed to hold themselves in readiness to move immediately on instruction from General Funston. These preparations are precautionary against Salazar's threat of another raid.

Two troops of regular cavalry reinforced the border patrol. These troops, according to Lieutenant Colonel Waterman, have no orders to go into Mexico.

The funeral of Andrew P. Peterson, Burton Jensen and Hugh Acord, killed at the "Corner" ranch, New Mexico, by Mexican raiders, has been postponed.

The bodies were found three miles over the Mexican line by a party of searchers, headed by Leb Spillsbury, Mormon scout with General Pershing's expedition in Mexico. Each had been shot several times, the bodies had been badly mutilated and the clothing removed. Spillsbury and companions had spent three days searching for the Americans and just as they were about to abandon hope of success discovered the three bodies in a clump of cactus.

E. K. Warren of Chicago, owner of the ranch near Hachita, N. M., from which "Bunk" Spencer, a negro, and his Mexican wife were kidnaped by Mexicans, confirmed the report that he had ordered the $5,000 ransom demanded to be paid.

Submarine Reported in Gulf Of Mexico

Galveston, Texas.—Persistent rumors that a German submarine was sighted in the Gulf of Mexico several days ago are being circulated at Guantanamo, Cuba, it is reported here.

Railways At Disposal Of United States

New York.—The railroads of the United States informed President Wilson that the resources of their organizations are at the disposal of the government in the event of war. Presidents or other officials of eighteen of the roads were appointed a special committee on national defense, which will work in conjunction with the commanders of the four departments of the United Statese army. W. W. Atterbury, vice president of the Pennsylvania, sent a telegram to the white house giving plan of the railroads.

400 German U-Boats Caught By British

Baltimore, Md.—William Palmer, second engineer of the American transport liner Mongolia, which arrived here from Plymouth, England, said he saw the merchant submarine Deutschland and 186 other German underwater boats in Plymouth harbor. Palmer asserted that the British captured 400 enemy U-boats and that 187 of them were chained together in Plymouth harbor. Captain Koenig, commander, and the Deutschland's crew are in English jails, he said.

AMERICAN RIGHTS VIOLATED

U. S. Schooner Law, Carrying No Contraband, Sunk By Submarine, But Crew Saved

Rome, Italy.—The American schooner Lyman M. Law was sunk on February 12 off the coast of Sardinia by a hostile submarine, says a Stefani dispatch from Cagliari, Sardinia. The vessel was loaded with agricultural machinery, the dispatch adds. The crew of twelve, of which eight were Americans, says the message, have been landed at Cagliari.

The Lyman M. Law, 1,300 tons gross and 211 feet long, was built in 1890 at West Haven, Conn. She was formerly owned by the Benedict-Manson Marine company of New Haven, Conn., who sold her a year ago to New York interests represented by the Maritime Transportation company.

The Lyman M. Law carried a crew of nine men in addition to her captain, all American, and was loaded with lumber material used in Italy for manufacture of lemon crates, according to the schooner's agents here the Maritime Transportation company

Lansing Seeks Facts

Washington.—On the basis of news dispatches the government began seeking official information of the destruction of the American schooner Lyman M. Law by a submarine to determine at once how the case affects the delicate situation between Germany and the United States.

The dispatch was taken to indicate that the Law was sunk in the Mediterranean where Austria also is conducting submarine operations.

The main points to be determined are whether the ship was attacked without warning, whether she carried contraband and whether any American lives were lost.

The United States considers the sinking of a ship carrying contraband a doubtful right, but, as in the cases of the sailing ship, The William P. Frye, the steamer Housatonic, has not considered it a violation of international law to be compared to destruction which entail loss of life.

Consul Treadway at Rome forwarded three dispatches, two of which he had received from the Italian minister of marine and one from the British consul at Cagliari. The latter said that Captain McDonough and the nine men comprising the crew of the Law had landed at Cagliari. According to the minister of marine's announcement, the vessel was sunk by an Austrian marine without a flag.

CONTINUOUS RAIDS MADE BY THE BRITISH FORCES

On German Lines In Northern France And At One Point The British Reached German Third Line

Paris.—On the French front the British in the Ancre and other regions continue to make raids on German positions. The most successful operation is northeast of Arras, where King George's men have entered 250 yards of German defenses and reached their third line. Many Germans were killed and some prisoners and a machine gun were captured. The Ancre raid was southeast of Grandcourt, where a strong position was captured. German trenches on the Somme and northeast of Ypres also have been entered by the British.

All along the remainder of the front there have been artillery duels and bomb dropping on both belligerent groups.

In the Roumanian theater near Mestecanesti the Germans have captured and held against counter attacks several Russian positions and made 23 officers and more than 1,200 men prisoners. In addition, the Germans secured three cannon, 12 machine guns and six mine throwers. Petrograd admits the capture by the Germans of two heights east of Jacobeni, near the Buckowina-Roumanian frontier and a retirement by the Russians there of two-thirds of a mile.

Congress To Rush Defense Measures

Washington.—With the end of the Sixty-fourth congress but two weeks off, administration leaders are concentrating their energies to the enactment of revenue and national defense legislation. Much long-pending general legislation every one recognizes must give way to appropriations and measures that relate to the preparation of the nation for eventualities which may grow out of the diplomatic breach with Germany.

Counties May Be Offered For Sale

Charleston, W. Va.—Delegate Patrick of Kanawha county introduced a bill in the house of delegates providing for the disposal of four counties in the upper panhandle of the state, either to Pennsylvania or Ohio, the proceeds to be used in helping to pay the judgment against West Virginia in the Virginia debt case. A resolution was also introduced providing that the proposition be submitted to a referendum vote. The counties are Hancock, Brooks, Marshall and Ohio.

166 Indicted For Election Frauds

Indianapolis, Ind.—As the result of indictments returned by the federal grand jury, a federal dragnet for 166 workers of the Republican and Democratic parties in four Indiana cities will be thrown out from the office of the United States marshal. Party workers in Indianapolis, Gary, Frankfort and Evansville who are charged with conspiracy in connection with violation of the election laws in the 1914 and 1916 elections are among the accused, it was understood, following the report of the investigation.

ILLITERACY WORK IN STATE OUTLINED

STATEWIDE VOLUNTEER SERVICE IN ALL COUNTIES WILL BE CARRIED OUT.

AT THE STATE'S CAPITAL

Interesting News Budget of Happenings In Various Departments of State.

—Montgomery.

Specific work in the eradication of illiteracy will be done in five counties of the State, and the general policy of Statewide volunteer service in all the counties of Alabama will be carried out according to an announcement made by W. F. Feagin, State Superintendent of Education, following a session of the Alabama Illiteracy Commission held in Birmingham.

According to the plant outlined by Mr. Feagin the specific work in the five counties will be done by special agents employed for a certain term. An appropriation is to be made from the State fund which is to be dpplicated by county authorities, and the agent paid from these funds.

State is Short on Convicts to Lease.

The state convict department is unable to supply sufficient convict labor to meet the needs of those who have contracts with the department. Practically every company which holds a contract for the services of state convicts desires more men, but they cannot be furnished because few persons are being placed in the penitentiary now.

A special meeting of the board of convict inspectors was held and one of the most important subjects for consideration was the proper distribution of convicts in order that no favoritism may be shown. The contracts

Warning Against Weevil Killer.

James A. Wade, state commissioner of agriculture has issued a general warning against a person now canvassing the state who claims to have a preparation which will prevent the appearance of the boll weevil next year if it is sprayed on the cotton seed before they are planted. The person, whose name is in the possession of the commisisoner, was in Montgomery and attempted to appoint a Montgomery drug company as his agent. The drug company refused to consider the proposition.

"The preparation is a fraud," said Commissioner Wade, "and has no value as an anti-weevil agency."

Jones Wins Decision.

The Supreme Court upheld the decision of the Eighth Judicial Circuit Court in deciding the legality of Probate Judge Jones, of Madison County, taking office. The quo warranto proceedings were appealed to the Supreme Court by Judge McDonnell, who was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Judge Lawler. According to this decision, Mr. Jones is Probate Judge of Madison County.

Federal Aid Wanted.

Three applications for Federal aid were received at the State Highway Department. One is from Lauredrale county, covering the projected route from Killen to Rogersville. One is from Lee county, the route proposed being from Opelika to Lachapoka, and the third in Marengo county, where a road is planning from Marengo to Linden.

Six Months For Equalization.

Boards of Equalization in counties of more than 75,000 population must complete their work in six months, according to ruling of the Supreme Court when it decided on the case of the county of Mobile vs. Joseph Espalla. The Mobile court ruled that Espalla could collect his salary for time after August 1, but the decision was reversed and sent back to the lower court.

Insurance Department Flourishes.

The books of the state insurance commissioner show this department to be one of the richest sources of revenue that the state possesses. Since January 1 more than $75,000 has been certified into the treasury from the department. During January, February and March, when taxes and licenses are paid in, the revenue is at its height some companies paying as much as $14,000 annually for the privilege of conducting their business in the state of Alabama.

Governor Offers Reward.

Governor Henderson offered $100 reward for the arrest of an unidentified person who killed J. C. Culpepper on the public highways of Russell county recently. Investigations made by the sheriff's office have failed to show the person who committed the crime for the purpose of robbery.

Examiners Not Available.

Because of the many changes in county offices in January the state is being flooded with requests for the services of the state examiners of public accounts in order that new officials, especially probate judges, may know the financial condition of their counties, but the services will not be available for several months as the examiners now are making a thorough examination of all books and records of state officials and afterward will inspect the books of all colleges and state schools.

MAJOR GENERAL FUNSTON DEAD

SUFFERED WITH INDIGESTION

Well Known Officer Stricken While Playing With Little Child. Pershing Succeeds.

San Antonio.—Maj. Gen. Frederick Funston, commander of the southern department of the United States army since February, 1915, died suddenly at a hotel here a few minutes after he had finished dinner. He collapsed while seated in the lobby of the hotel talking with friends, and was playing with little Inez Silverberg of Des Moines, Ia., a guest with her parents at the hotel, when he fell unconscious. Death was almost instantaneous.

General Funston was 51 years old.

Ever since March, 1916, when he was placed in command of all United States forces on the Mexican border, General Funston had worked at an unusual pace. At critical times in border developments he frequently remained on duty 20 hours of the 24. The handling of regulars disposed of at various stations o nthe border, the Pershing expedition and, of late, rearangement of regular troops while providing for the return of National Guardsmen, have entailed an enormous amount of detail work, probably exceeding that which fell to any commanding general of the United States army since the civil war.

Two weeks ago General Funston suffered an attack of indigestion. To use his own expression, "I fought it out alone." Late he placed himself under the care of Lieut.-Col. M. W. Ireland of the medical corps, southern department, and regained normal health and spirits. "For three days," Colonel Ireland said, "General Funston had been entirely well."

Colonel Ireland, who has been General Funston's physician fo rsome time said:

"General Funston's death was caused by agina sclerosis of the arteries of the heart. Death was almost immediate and without pain."

Pershing Succeeds.

Major General Pershing, who has been in cammand of the El Paso district since the withdrawal of the American expendition from Mexico, automatically will succeed to the duties of commander of the southern department until an appointment has been made. Recently made a major general, he is the only officer of that rank now assigned to the department.

VIOLATE NEUTRALITY LAWS.

Two Film Exchange Managers Arrested In New York.

New York.—Agents of the department of justice arrested here two men charged with violating the federal law against carrying on a military enterprise against a foreign country. They are accused of conspiring to obtain military information in England to be sent to this country and then forwarded to Germany. The men gave their names as Albert A. Sander and Charles W. Wunnenberg.

Twenty-Ton Boulder Hits Train.

Knoxville.—Pasengers on Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific passenger train No. 4, New Orleans to Cincinnati, and the Southern Railway's Carolina Special, Cincinnati to Charleston, had narrow escapes a few miles north of Oakdale. As these trains were passing each other a boulder, estimated to weigh 20 tons, came thundering down the mountainside and landed in front of the Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific train. The locomotive and a "deadhead" Pullman rolled down the embankment, the locomotive plunging into Emory river. Engineer Cathings and Fireman Saxton of Danville, Ky., and five men stealing a ride were injured.

French Steamer Sinks Submarine.

New York.—In a 40-minute battle between a German U-boat and the French line steamership Guyane, off the coast of France, on January 22, the submarine was sunk, according to officers of the freighter, which arrived here from Bordeaux. The submarine fired a shot, which fell short, and the Guyane then turned sharply to starboard, so that her big 65-millimetre gun mounted at the stern could be trained on the approaching vessel and fired two shots, the mark but the second sent the submarine to the bottom.

Had Ship Damaged on High Orders.

Boston.—The North German Lloyd passenger liner Kronprinzessin Cecilie, while in the custody of a United States marshall under a libel order from the federal court, was deliberately disabled at the direction of her German commander. Captain Charles A. Polack so testified in the United States district court, and added that he, in turn, had taken his orders from the German government. The damage to the vessel was done on the night of January

BIRMINGHAM BOYS BACK FROM BORDER

GIVEN ROUSING RECEPTION

Citizens' Civic Organizations and Brass Bands Turn Out to Welcome Soldiers.

Birmingham.—After a long and tiresome journey Batteries A and C, Alabama National Guard, reached home to be demobilized. Upon their arrival here the boys were given a rousing reception.

The guardsmen were met by committees from the Chamber of Commerce, the Community Club and various other civic organizations. In addition hundreds of local citizens, including relatives and friends of the returning soldiers welcomed them. The Alabama Boys' Industrial School Band, the Musicians' union band took part in the parade following the arrival of the troops.

Tick Election Called for Bibb.

Centerville.—Probate Judge Nicholson, of Bibb county, has designated March 6, as the date for voting on the cattle tick eradication. A petition signed by 25 per cent of the voters of the county was presented Judge Nicholson and after checking it, the order was issued. At present every county touching Bibb, except one, has voted favorably on tick eradication, and it is thought that the voters will move for the eradication of the tick.

Bonds To Be Issued.

Eufaula.—Now that the Alabama Supreme Court has affirmed the legality of the school bond issue of $15,000, voted last fall by the people of Eufaula, the city council will proceed at once with the issuance of the bonds and offer them for sale. As soon as the proceeds of the bonds are in hand, work will be started on remodeling of the Sanford Street School Building, and construction of an adjoining building for the high school use.

Election To Be Held.

Gadsden.—Petitions were presented to the County Commissioners by H. H. White, President of the County Board of Education, asking that an election be called to vote o na three-mill school tax. The commissioners signified their intention of calling the election, and asked Mr. White to name a date. May 15 was the date suggested and the Commisisoners probably will set the election for that time.

Thirty-Six Take Pharmacy Test.

Birmingham.—Thirty-six applicants for license to practice pharmacy in Alabama took the mid-winter examinations prepared by the State Board of Pharmacy here. Four states and three foreign countries were represented in the list of applicants. One man came from Port Said, Egypt, one from Santiago, Cuba, and a third from Italy. Kirk Newell, the famous Auburn football player, was among the applicants.

Rifle Classes For Young Women.

Mobile.—Young women of Mobile now have the opportunity of becoming acquainted with the use of fire arms. Classes are being started in the Red Cross work, which offers courses in handling the rifle and nursing. Many young women are enrolling in these classes, with a view of having the opportunity to serve their country in the event war is declared.

Date of Board Visit Set.

Tuscaloosa.—The committee of the armor plant will visit Tuscaloosa Monday, February 26. A telegram was received from Congressman Oliver to this effect. The general committee of the Tuscaloosa Board of Trade having the matter in charge has perfected arrangements for the entertainment of the committee.

Mobile Man Heir to Large Estate.

Mobile.—Adolph Green, an employe of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Shops, has inherited a large sum of money. He has just returned from a trip to New York, where he went to settle an estate with other heirs. The estate is valued at $100,000.

Train Wreck in Clanton.

Clanton.—A wreck occurred on the Lousville and Nashville within the city limits. Thirteen cars were ditched and contents scattered on both sides of the track. No one was injured.

Soil Survey to be Printed.

Washington.—The House passed resolutions to print additional copies of the soil surveys of Jefferson, Perry and Madison Counties, Alabama, for which there is constant demand.

War on Vagrants.

Anniston.—The chief of police has declared war on vagrants, including "Weary Willies," as well as vagrant women, who seek a haven here. As a result police court is crowded every day with alleged vagrants.

Chlorin Plant Bought.

Montgomery.—The State Board of Health has just received a new liquid chlorin plant to be used as an emergency outfit in combatting water-formed diseases, such as typhoid fever and dyphtheria.

Farmers to Build Canning Plant.

Birmingham.—Birmingham will have a canning factory with an output of from 10,000 to 15,000 cans daily within six months time. This was the decision of the open meeting of farmers, merchants and brokers held at the Chamber of Commerce to sound the opinions of the people of the dtstrict on the question of a factory in Birmingham for canning the produce of the district, and prevent its going to waste as so much of it has done for the past. Plans for making up a canning factory company to be operated on a regular company business basis paying about $3 a day for labor will be made immediately. Already the farmers of the district are subscribing, rather pledging themselves to furnish an ascertained acreage to the factory.

Mrs. Parke Made President.

Birmingham.—Under the leadership of Mrs. Julian B. Parke of Selma, with the changed title of office, Chairman the fifth annual convention of the Alabama Equal Suffrage Association already is preparing for the work of the new year. Other officers elected for 1917 terms are: Mrs. Angus Taylor, Vice Chairman; Miss Amelia Worthington, Recording Secretary; Mrs. Joe Wilkins of Selma, Corresponding Secretary; Miss Annie Jo Coates of Gadesden, Treasurer. Mrs. Parke's election was made unanimous with the withdrawal of Mrs. Oscar R. Hundley from the nominated ticket. The next meeting place of the annual convention will be determined at a meeting of the State Executive Board held several months before the date of the convention.

Oats Are Killed.

Greenville.—Practically all of the oats that were not planted during the fall in Butler county have been killed by the recent cold. It is believed that the fall oats will make about a two-thirds stand. This caused a great loss to the farmers of the county. In many instances the farmers have replanted, using the variety suggested by Professor Duggar, of Auburn. Realizing the great demand that will be made for all kinds of food stuff the present year, the farmers of Butler county are increasing their acreages in all other food crops.

Brandon to Run for Governor.

Birmingham.—Judge William W. Brandon, Probate Judge of Tuscaloosa County, will make his formal announcement for governor during the first week in May, and will thereafter conduct a vigorous and active campaign for gubernatorial honors, according to announcement made by Murray Cannon of Tuscaloosa, one of Judge Brandon's closest friends, while in Birmingham.

Henderson Thinks State Has Chance.

Montgomery.—Alabama has a splendid chance to obtain the Government Armor Plate Plant, in the event all factions will get together and work for Alabama, according to Governor Henderson. The Governor says that the place of location is a secondary consideration, and that all contestants should adopt the slogan, "Alabama First."

Fair To Be Held Again.

Tuscaloosa.—The West Alabama Fair will be held as usual this fall. This was decided at a meeting of the stockholders held at the Board of Trade rooms. The action in favor of the fair being continued was unanimous.

Health Report Made.

Florence.—The annual report of Dr. W. J. Kernachan, county health Officer of Lauderdale county, for the year ending December 31, 1916, shows a natural increase in the population of the county of 434. The brith rate was 25.5 per thousand, and the death rate 12.6 per thousand.

Barn Burned at M'Fall.

Anniston. — News was received in Anniston of the destruction of a large barn and contents by fire, owned by J. J. Ingram. About 2000 bales of fodder was destroyed, together with a quantity of hay, cotton seed and other feed.

Gets $5,000 For Lost Arm.

Huntsville.—A jury in the circuit court rendered a cerdict in favor of Mason Butner for $5,000, against the Huntsville Knitting Mills. Butner was formerly an employee of the mills and lost an arm while in the discharge of his duty.

Mate Is Killed.

Mobile.—William Olsen, second mate of the Russian ship Talus, fell down the hold of the ship and broke his neck. He was buried at Fort Morgan

Opp Commits Suicide.

Montgomery.—Valentine Opp aged 44 years, one of the best known men in Montgomery, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head.

Election Date Named.

Gadsden.—Probate Judge L. L. Herzberg has named March 12 as the date for the Etowah county election on tick eradication.

Winter Crops Damaged.

Eufaula.—Farmers are reporting many winter crops almost a total loss as a result of the freezing weather. More oats probably were planted in this section this year than in many years past, but all have been destroyed. All gardens have been killed along with many minor crops that were planted last fall and early in the winter. Preparations for the year are well advanced on all the farms and all that the farmers are asking for are good season and good prices.

TRAINING TODAY'S BOYS AND GIRLS

More Child Work Might Result in Less Child Labor.

LET INTEREST GROW SLOWLY

How the Young Folks' Activities Can Be So Directed as to Benefit Their Mental and Physical Health.

By SIDONIE M. GRUENBERG.

SOONER or later we are going to be shamed into abolishing child labor in this country. It is difficult to find a single enthusiastic defender of the system that grinds the lives of little children into textiles and hardware and breakfast foods while grownups walk about wearily in search of work. And there are more and more persons every day becoming enthusiastic in advancing the notion that the children are to be saved for human living. In the meanwhile, however, most children seem obliged to choose between the labor offered them and demoralizing drifting and loafing.

First of all we should clear up the perplexing confusion between work and labor. We speak of people's work, but hardly realize that the bulk of the population is engaged in performing for hire various kinds of service in which they are not at all interested. Most people labor for wages, doing what they are directed to do, in a large proportion of cases having no understanding and no concern as to the outcome of their efforts. This is the kind of "work" that is offered to most children when they leave the schools and go to the factories and mills and shops.

Now there is nothing to be said in defense of anyone spending his days at that sort of thing except that he needs the money and does not see any other way of getting it. On the other hand, the opportunity to keep busy doing something that is worth while, something that has an obvious purpose and interest to the worker, is the kind of opportunity that every child should have. Because the world's work has become so organized as to leave only drudgery for children and for most parents, the early experiences of most children effectually prevent the development of a healthy attitude toward work. The adults hate their daily occupations, and it is not apparent that application will bring returns in proportion to the exertions made; as a partial result the children grow up in an atmosphere unfavorable to the spirit of workmanship. There is every temptation to shirk, every suggestion for escaping responsibility.

In addition to this unfavorable atmosphere there is the absence, in most homes and in most schools, of the opportunity to acquire work interests. The child is naturally active; the child would ever so much rather do something than sit still or watch someone else do it. Indeed, that is one of the reasons we have so much difficulty keeping him "in order" at home and at school. But this activity is either suppressed or it is directed into channels that cannot hold the interest. Writing compositions or parsing sentences or doing sums is not quite active enough for most healthy boys and girls. They want to do something with their hands; they want to make something that will be there to be seen and understood and appreciated when it is finished.

The Child Would Much Rather Do Something Than Sit Down and Watch Someone Else Do It.

For the child's physical health, as well as for his mental health, he needs the opportunity to do real work, to produce real results. This is quite as necessary as athletics or gymnastics and quite as necessary as 'riting or 'rithmetic. But in most homes there is little or nothing that the child can do, nothing that is worth while in an educative way. Then the homes that still have opportunities for work should utilize these just as far as possible in the child's development.

The child's interest in work as an accomplishment must grow. One of the ways of killing that interest is by overloading it early in the child's life. This interest should grow slowly and unconsciously out of the play interest. At its best, the work interest cannot be distinguished from the play interest. This is seen when a man like Huxley, devoting himself through years of hardship to most arduous research, asks to be considered an "amateur," a worker for the love of the work. And this is seen with all great artists and inventors and organizers.

We know how the child's play shifts from aimless movements to the imitations of the activities of his elders, from mere manipulation of objects and materials to the planned and purposeful "making" of things. When the child once reaches this stage there should be constantly before him the materials and tools that can be used in "making" things, and whatever material is "spoiled" in the course of making is a very cheap charge against the child's education in work. The dress that a little girl makes for her doll may not be as "fetching" as the one bought in the store, and it may even cost more in materials and attention from olders; but it is worth at least two or three of the dresses that you can buy. A little boy who delights in making cranberry preserves when his mother lets him gets much more satisfaction from the experience than he does from eating the mess, and he gets a valuable part of his education at the same time. He may never become a chief cook or even a chemist, but he ought to learn how to carry out more and more complex combinations of processes and to take satisfaction in getting results.

It is not to be expected that all homes will ever be equipped with the variety of materials and tools that will give each kind of work interest its opportunity to experiment. It is all the more important that the school should give children, from the earliest years, the experience of planning and executing the making of all sorts of projects. In connection with the plays and festivals, in connection with the dramatization of literature and history, in connection with the publication of school papers, in connection with parties and entertainments, the better schools today furnish the children opportunities to do real work in a wide range of materials. The sewing and cooking, the painting and carpentery work, the designing and planning, make up the very substance of abounding life. If we had more work perhaps there would be less labor—for adults as well as for children.

The Dress She Makes May Not Be as Fetching, but It Is Worth Two or Three of the Dresses That You Can Buy.

DELIVERING WATER IN QUITO

Aquadores Have Their Own Method of Doing It, and It Is Somewhat Humorous.

About a fountain in one of the principal squares of Quito, the capital of Ecuador, assemble every morning the city's aguadores. These water porters differ from the less energetic ones of some South American cities in carrying their jars upon their backs instead of on the backs of mules. Their earthen jars are deep, have a single mouth, and hold about forty pints.

The porter carries it on his shoulder fastened with leather straps. He never detaches himself from his jar either to fill it or to transfer its contents to that of his customer.

He turns his back to the fountain so that the jar comes under one of the jets of water and listens to the sound of the water in the jar, and his ear is so well trained that he always walks away at the exact moment when it is filled to the brim.

Arriving at the house of a customer, he goes to the household jar, makes a deep bow, and disappears behind a torrent of water. Foreigners can never receive without laughing the visit of their aguador, the respectful little man who bows to one behind the cataract of water.

Long Grace Before Meals.

Partly owing to the demands for female help in various quarters, changes are occurring in domestic staffs, and now and again a freshly arrived maid has difficulty in accustoming herself to the novel surroundings, unfamiliar methods. A hospitable woman, who entertains parties of soldiers to tea, was explaining to her new maid that 20 had accepted invitations.

"They are asked, Sarah," she mentioned, "for half-past four, but I usually give them fifteen minutes' grace."

"Ma'am," said the new servant frankly, "I'm as greatly in favor of religion as anyone, but I certainly do think a quarter of an hour is somewhat overdoing it!"

Faith and Sight.

Faith is always, in an important sense, the antithesis of sight. It always indicates an element of the unseen and unknown somewhere in the matter. No doubt faith and sight stand in a close connection with each other, and often seem to run over, so to speak, into one another. Faith, in its true and sane sense, cannot live without some foothold on what we may call sight. But faith in itself is precisely that which ventures out beyond sight, and moves and works in the dark, in the unseen, in the unknown.—Bishop Moule.

To Stop Nose Bleed.

Allow the nose to bleed freely for a few minutes to clear out the head. Then tie a cord tightly about the second joint of the little finger on the left hand. About the time the finger becomes a little numb the nose will have stopped bleeding. Remove the cord at once. This was successfully tried within the last few years by several people who had suffered for a long time from nose bleed.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 25

JESUS AT POOL OF BETHESDA.

LESSON TEXT—John 5:1-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—It was Jesus which had made him whole.—John 5:15.

Following the events of last Sunday's lesson, Jesus went to Jerusalem to attend the feast (v. 1). He went up according to the requirements of the Jewish law (Ex. 34:23; see Gal. 4:4), but he was not satisfied with the conventional fulfilling of the duties for that occasion, nor was he occupied with social and commercial functions, but in "going about doing good." The feast was an occasion of joy and mirth on every hand, but in the midst of it is this great need so graphically pictured in this lesson. How true this is to our daily experience. Teachers should appeal to the imagination of their scholars and describe as vividly as possible this pool. Let them depict a room, on the floor of which is a pool; in one corner of the room a stairway leading up to the ceiling; surrounding the room, at the top of the wall a broad walk; on the wall, looking down toward the floor and the pool is "a multitude of them that were blind, halt and withered." These were the wretched ones who sought the pool, and evidently Jesus sought the most wretched of this company.

I. Jesus went where there was need (v. 6). In the midst of this company Jesus "saw" this man lie. He had been there often (v. 7), and his case seemed to be beyond all hope, but there is nothing too hard for God (Gen. 18:14; Jer. 32:17).

II. Jesus throws the responsibility upon the man (v. 6). Jesus had eyes not only to see need, but he also saw God's and his own personal power to relieve the need. The question is, what do we see as we journey through life?

III. Jesus was moved with compassion (Matt. 14:14). He always has that feeling when he looks upon suffering and the misfortunes of men (Heb. 13:8; 4:15-16; Isa. 63:9). Jesus does not do for the man what the man can do for himself; so he makes his first appeal to the man's desire and, through his desire, to the man's will, "Wilt thou be made whole?" The fact that he has been a long time in his predicament, or the fact that a sinner has been a long time in an evil state is no reason for supposing that Jesus will not take interest in him or that he cannot save and help and heal him (Matt. 9:21; Luke 8:43; Acts 3:2). His question throws the whole matter upon the will of the man. Jesus is willing and able; the only question is, are we willing?

IV. Jesus commands the impossible. The man thought the only way he could be made whole was through the efficiency of the waters in this pool, but Jesus, by speaking a word, had the power that would heal him (Ps. 107:20); so today it is the power of the word of Christ that can save all who believe on him (Rom. 1:16). All we have to do to live is to hear and believe (John 5:24). With the command of Christ, "Rise, take up thy bed," was enabling power. The cure was not only complete, but it was instantaneous (Acts 3:7,8).

V. He worked a complete cure. He was made whole even according to the question which Jesus had asked at the outset. The man at once began to use this Christ-given strength by taking up his bed, and doing exactly as he was commanded (II Tim. 3:12). Jesus likes these hard cases, those of "long standing" (v. 5). He also likes those that are the results of sin, for that was his work in the world (v. 14; Matt. 1:21).

VI. Opposition and danger (vv. 10-15). The objection raised was that Jesus had transgressed the Jewish law. The man's answer to this was, "He hath made me whole." The word of God is our law (Matt. 17:5). The strength that Jesus gives us is to be used in obedience to him in glorifying his name. The man did not tell the Jews who it was that made him whole, because he did not know, himself; but as soon as he found out who it was he told them without fear or hesitancy. He did not even wait for them to ask him, but sought an opportunity for witnessing (v. 15). Any man who is truly saved will at once give his witness to others. The admonition which Jesus gave to this man (v. 14) still holds good. How many men we have seen who have been saved from the drink habit or some other evil in life, and who have grown indifferent or careless and returned to their sin only to have "a worse thing come unto them." It is interesting to notice that Jesus performed this miracle in the face of great opposition and danger.

Summary: (1) Jesus cures the sick, not by what he does to them, but what he does in them.

(2) Christianity is the gospel for the body as well as for souls of men.

(3) The gospel of Jesus is the beginning of a new life for every man who accepts it.

(4) Sickness and trouble are frequently the instruments of God's providence, bringing men to realize their sins and their need.

(5) No matter how great the progress of modern medicine or the skill of physicians, there is always the need of the Great Physician.

SUFFERED SEVERELY EVERY MONTH

Lady Tells What Cardui Did for Her and What It Will Do for Suffering Women.

Deepwater, Texas.—"I think Cardui is indeed a wonderful medicine," says Mrs. Minnie Starnes, of this town. "In 1905, I broke down in health suddenly . . . I suffered agony. Had bearing down pains . . . also my back and limbs and hips. . . . Sometimes I was in bed all the time and again I was just able to be up. I suffered most severely at . . . and would be confined to my bed four or five days.

"Nothing I did ever did me any good until I took Cardui, but I suffered two years this way before I took Cardui. One day my husband . . . saw the Cardui advertisement. He got me a bottle, I began taking it and next month I never felt any pain at all, did all my work without any trouble. . . ."

Mrs. Starnes says she did not take any more Cardui then until 1908, when she took four bottles, with excellent results. She concludes her statement with the following: "I would advise all expectant mothers to give Cardui a trial. It will relieve all anxiety and fear as is natural for them to have. I know, for I had the experience myself."

Judging from the experiences of so many thousands of other women, you can depend on Cardui to surely help you, if you suffer from any of the complaints so common to women.

A Model Husband.

"Hubby, I want a pair of shoes."

"Very well, my dear. You can get a serviceable pair for about $7."

"But Mrs. Jibway—"

"Say no more. If Mrs. Jibway pays $15 for a pair of boots, it naturally follows that you must do the same. Get that kind, my love."

ALABAMA DRUGGISTS ALWAYS RECOMMEND GOOD MEDICINES

During our entire experience of nine years in selling Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root we have never heard anything but praise for the remedy and believe it must possess excellent merit in the troubles for which it is recommended. We have great faith in the medicine because it always satisfies its users and that is what sells the preparation.

Very truly yours,

During the Napoleonic era, when nearly all Europe was engaged in a tremendous war, George Washington, then our President, was striving for peace and neutrality toward those warring factions, so far as America was concerned. He attained both peace and neutrality by prohibiting the carrying on of commerce of any kind between the American commercial interests and those of the belligerents. It seems that if America is finally drawn into the present European conflict, the cause will be attributed only to complications that have or may yet grow out of our trade with the nations at war. There would have been a bare chance indeed for the peace and neutrality of this country to have been disturbed, if we had declared ourselves neutral at the beginning, stopped furnishing the nations of Europe supplies and ammunition with which to fight, and let them have their scramble to themselves as Washington did when he was at the masthead.

The people of Chilton county have shown so little interest in the work of tick eradication as proposed by government authorities that the experts have become disgusted with us and moved to other territory, where the residents care more for the proposition of getting rid of the ticks than they do in Chilton. We are sorry that such conditions exist here, and hope that if our salvation lies in tick eradication, as the authorities tell us it does, our citizens may become convinced before it is too late to get the advantages of state and government aid, as has been given to other counties.

Republican Prosperity the Basis

That the Democrats are able to derive such a large revenue from internal taxation because of the carefully nurtured prosperity which the Republicans left as a legacy to the Democratic administration is the contention of Congressman Henry W. Watson of Pennsylvania. "The Republican protective tariff was the energy which developed our great resources," asserts Mr. Watson, "and the Democratic Party depends upon that prosperity from which to collect a revenue to meet intemperate Democratic disbursements." Representative Watson recognizes the right of the party in control to impose their economic theories on the country, but must deny his support to a bill that will inevitably reduce wages, further increase the cost of living, and add more burdensome taxation.

Would Set Aside Washington's Policy.

In their repeated explanations of the President's address to the Senate on permanent peace the Democrats of that body have found it necessary to soft pedal when discussing the Wilson proposition that our authority and power should be added to the "authority and force of other nations to guarantee peace and justice throughout the world." Senator Henry F. Lippitt of Rhode Island, asks the pertinent question: "Does not that expression 'force' mean join the Army and Navy of the United States to the armies and navies of he other nations?" One of the administration Democrats hastily replied that "undoubtedly it means potential force." The dictionary definition of "potential" is "possible, as opposed to actual." The word egectively describes not only the President's peace address but all of his note-writing since he entered the White House. He possesses the "potential" power, because of his exaltedposition, of placing this country in the front rank of nations, honored and respected by all, but the "actual" accomplishment has fallen sadly short of that mark.

What Would Washington Say?

To-day, February 22nd, is the birthday of the Father of our country, a day we observe with the profoundest reverence.

Through all the various stripes and colors of our national relations with other countries of the world; with all that great men are saying and doing in regard to our concern in the tremendous cataclysm of war; with the record of activity and achievement that the history of our country accords our first President—glancing at all of these things in one sweeping review of the past and a reflection upon the present, we happen to wonder what might be the thoughts, actions and opinions of the greatest soldier and statesman our country ever produced, if he were alive to view the present-day situation of the United States, and our concurrent relationship with the nations of Europe in their death-dealing conflict, that eclipses the greater portion of the world in a terrible haze of dangerous suffering and misery.

From the records of history we remember that during Washington's administration as President of the United States, France and England were engaged in the mightest coflict of war ever known prior to the present one they are jointly waging against Germany and her auxilaries. The great war of that day involved the interests of American commerce somewhat in the way the present one concerns our shipping interests.

Washington declared neutrality—he made and kept his country neutral. He promptly issued orders forbidding American merchant vessels to ply the waters of the Atlantic in trade between this country and the warring nations of the old world. That settled America's part of the stew in short order, and we went ahead about our business, living at home and independent of Europe until they got their difficulties settled among themselves, and there was no danger of our getting embroiled. By declaring neutrality and keeping it the avoidance of any complications dangerous to America was easy.

For the sake of carrying on commerce with the belligerents nations of Europe in the present war, our country has run the hazards of getting into the conflict. Instead of severing connections with the fighting peoples and living upon our own resources, this country has held to its chance to make money by trade in ammunition and supplies to the nations of Europe, until it now seems impossible that we can avoid getting mixed up in the terrible war.

Washington's policy was different from the present policy of the United States, hence we wonder what he would say of his country to-day if he could see her as she is about to release heself to a mounstrous fatility across the ocean.

"Use Less Fire and More Sense."

The great need for our Southern soils, as we have said a hundred times, is humus—that is to say, decaying vegetable matter, rotting leaves, trash, grass, etc., for that is all the word "humus" means.

It is humus that makes your new-ground rich and your hedge-row rich. It is by humus that nature restores the fertility to an old field when careless man has seemingly worn it out. She puts trees and grass on it and lets the dying leaves, weeds, grass, and limbs rot year after year until the soil becomes fertile again. And yet in the face of all these facts, thousands and thousands of foolish farmers all over the South will "burn off" their fields this year—will burn the broomsedge, field-grass, and cornstalks that Nature is trying to enrich the land with. They will burn this valuable plant food and moisture saver that the famishing earth should be feeding upon—more valuable than commercial fertilizers because of its effects on the soil—and will buy fertility in a guano sack to replace what they have thrown away. And then in the fall they will say their land is "worn out," and complain about hard times.

Let us hope that no Progressive Farmer reader will be so unwise. "Use less fire and more sense in dealing with your fields," as the late Dr. Knapp once said in a letter to The Progressive Farmer. And Prof. Sherwin has a saying almost as good, "You can't make humus out of smoke." You certainly can't.—Progressive Farmer.

JAMES BOYS IN MISSOURI

A play in four acts will be presented at Mt. Pleasant on Thursday night Feb. 22. Principal characters are Jesse James, Zelda Ralston, Bob Ford, Frank James, Dick Huntley. Continual fun by two expert comedians.

The play depicts the thrilling love story of Jesse James and his faithful sweetheart, Zelda Ralston, who becomes his wife, and shows her faithfulness to him in his dying hour after he is shot to death by Bob Ford. ANOTHER LETTER FROM CHILTON BOY ON THE MEX. BORDER

Nogales, Ariz., Jan. 28, 1917
Editor Union-Banner

The article, "Keeping the Alabaman in Service," printed in the editorial section of the Montgomery Advertiser of January 23, 1917, states, "We suspect that in Washington and on the border there is a feeling that the Alabama troops have been too vocal and too persistent in their effort to be returned home." I regret to state that this statement exactly fits a few of our boys, however, it is doing a great injustice to the majority of the Alabama boys that willingly sacrificed their interests and their loved ones at home to endure the hardships of Border service, at the call of our President.

In submitting this article to the Alabama public, I wish to say that I am assuming the authority to speak for every true blue all wool and a yard wide Alabamian now in service here, and feel confident that any thing said here will receive their hearty solicitations. In each and every phase of life there can be found the pessimist and chronic knocker and despite the fact that we are hampered with a few of these, we wish for once and all to let our friends and relatives know that we are certainly not the bunch of crying babes that some seem to think.

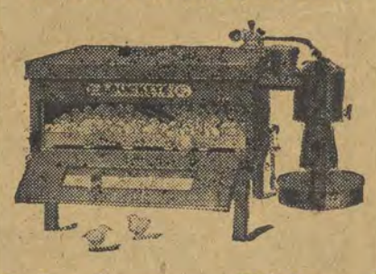
We were mobilized in Montgomery Alabama, June 26, 1916. Shortly after arriving there that awful flood period set in. The National Guard hampered by the great number of volunteers was unable to furnish the sufficient supplies and consequently most every one had to start serving his country with the civilian clothes that he had at the time of enlistment. When we were want to seek the much needed rest and recreaction that nature demands it was only to cast ourselves prostrate upon a pile of hay and make the best of it. When the mess call sounded we lined up in the rain and mud, marched by the mess table and partook of food that, owing to rooky cooks, was prepared none too well.

The bad weather combined with consistent drilling soon had our civilian clothes and shoes in a vrey delapidated condition indeed, but bearing mind the fact that under the prevailing conditions it was impossible for our Government to furnish us with ample supplies and thinking that the honor of our beloved country was at stake we submitted to all these hardships without the slightest murmur of protest.

In the course of a few weeks we were fitted out in Uncle Sam's best and dispatched to the frontier .

We arrived here in due time taking possession of a very steep and rocky hill put up our tents, jugled rocks for a few days and finally settled down to the grim task before us.

Despite the fact that the grim old reaper in disguise of various diseases invaded our camp snatching away our loyal comrades, for over three months we have been faithfully patrolling the border ever ready at any moment to give up our lives in protection of the American citizen and our countries rights.



What are the results of such loyalty? Practically every newspaper we receive has various articles commenting upon the fact that the Alabama boys are begging and crying for a recall.

I would like to leave these two questions before the broad-minded and whole-hearted public of old Alabama. Do you think the sons of your native soil capable of being a quitter? On account of a very few pessimists is it fair that we should be branded with the stain of that squawking distinction?

Respectfully,
STRAUGHTON BICE,

CAN'T LOSE HAIR

Twenty years from Today a Baldheaded Man Will Be an Unusual Sight.

One of the most prominent druggists of America made a statement a few weeks ago which has caused a great deal of discussion among scientists in the medical press.

He said: "If the new hair grower, Mildredina Hair Remedy, increases its sales as it has during the past year it will be used by nearly every man, woman and child in America within eight years.

"When Mildredina Hair Remedy is used almost universally, dandruff will disappear and with its departure baldness, itching scalp, splitting hair and all scalp diseases will follow and twenty years from now a bald head will be a rarity."

There is only one way to cure dandruff, and that is to kill the germs. There is only one hair preparation that will kill the germs and tath is Mildredina Hair Remedy. This unusual hair restorer with its record of thousands of cures will grow hair on any head where there is any life left; it will cure dandruff, stop falling hair and itching of the scalp in three weeks or money back.

It is the most pleasant and invigorating tonic, is not sticky, orgreasy and is used extensively by ladies of relnement who desire to have and to keep their hair soft, lustrous and luxuriant. Fifty cents for a large bottle druggists everywhere. Mail orders filled by American Proprietary Co., Boston, Mass.

DEATHS

DEATH OF MISS VELMA WHITE

The death of Miss Velma White, one of the most universally loved and highly esteemed ladies of Clanton, was a sad occurrence of last Sunday night. At the time of her death, and for many days prior, she had been confined by serious illness in an infirmary in Montgomery, where she had undergone a serious operation.
Miss White was a very modest and admirable character of lovely womanliness. She was actively identified with the most earnest workers in church and Sunday school, faithful, devoted and sincere.
Since her residence in Clanton she has made a place in the hearts of a broad circle of friends who will sadly miss her hereafter.
Her remains were brought to Clanton Monday morning. Funeral services were conducted from the family residence on Tuesday by Rev. Jerome O. Williams of Sylacauga, after which interment took place in the Clanton cemetery. A large number of sorrowing friends were in attendance to pay their last respects.

LITTLE BESSIE FARMER BURNS TO DEATH

While a number of little girls were playing "grown up lady" and wearing long skirts at the home of Mr. Farmer, near Wadsworth, Bessie's skirt caught from the flames in an open fire and soon he clothing were all in a blaze.
Mr. Farmer was near by and hearing the screams of the children rushed to the house, but before he could smother the fire the little girl was so badly burned that death occurred that night and interment was made on Friday in the New Hope church cemetery.

STOLE $500,000 DIES IN POVERTY

Famous Burglar Supported at End by Society He Had Preyed Upon.

FEARED IN HIS DAY

Detectives Who Have Guarded Banks in the East Fifty Years Always Regarded Noble as Man Without Equal.

New York.—Dan Noble, famous international burglar, who once had $500,000 as his share of a gigantic robbery, has just died here at the age of eighty-two years, a pauper, supported by the society he preyed on, and has been buried by relatives who are respected members of the community.

In his day he was feared by bankers and watched by detectives. Since his release from Auburn, December 19, 1899, he had been "good." He went to that prison in 1897 to finish a sentence imposed on him March 3, 1871. In January, 1873, he escaped from Auburn and during the succeeding years led the police of two continents a most perplexing chase, excepting when in prison in England and France.

Detectives who in the last fifty years have been guarding banks always regarded Dan Noble as a man without an equal. He never participated in "small games."

First Big Robbery.

One of his first big robberies was of the Royal Insurance company in Wall street in 1866. Negotiable bonds and other property of the value of $1,700,000 were stolen. Frank Knapp and Jimmie Griffin, two well-known characters of that day, were his confederates, and all escaped to Canada. Being arrested there Noble was indignant and demanded they be released on bail. In this way $75,000 went away from them.

The three stuck together, and each was supposed to have at that time $500,000 in cash, obtained by disposing of the proceeds of the robbery. They went to Elmira, where Noble tried to become an honest real estaate man, but one of his pals, who disliked his airs, filed a complaint against him, alleging he had brought stolen property into Chemung county.

This led to his arrest and sentence to Auburn, from which he escaped. "Jim" Hope, who engineered the Manhattan bank robbery, and other well-known crooks escaped with him.

The next the police learned of Noble was when he became active in London. He joined Johnny Miller, Joe Chapman and Jack Phillips in circulating spurious money. He went to Paris, too, where he was concerned in a diamond robbery and sentenced to five years in a French prison, but escaped. Then he returned to England, where he was born. There he was arrested for forgery.

Friends Work "Pull."

He was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment. He worked a "pull," through American friends, who interceded, and said he was dying in prison. This brought his release in 1895.

In 1897 he returned to New York and was arrested, charged with passing a worthless check on the Fourth National bank. Later he was identified by a former keeper of Auburn as the escaped convict.

The last public record the police have of him was in 1907, when he was a complainant in the West Side court, where he charged a woman with stealing his dog. He said he had merely allowed her to keep the dog for him and she refused to give it up.

Noble then dropped from sight until a well-known politician of this city heard of his plight and used his influence to have him committed to the New York farm colony.

Ann Arbor, Mich.—Charles Schmidt of this city qualified for the hard-luck championship of the universe and the wife of his bosom for 38 years, shattered that old saw about a woman not being able to keep a secret.

ing Mrs. Schmidt announced that her father inherited $4,000,000 from relatives in England. Schmidt turned pale.

Notification of the inheritance arrived in Ann Arbor the day before Christmas, Mrs. Schmidt declared, but she kept it secret because of the strained relations between herself and her husband. She attempted but failed to effect a reconciliation with her husband after he had driven her out of the house and kept her out all night, she declared.

To dispel any doubt about the $4,000,000 fortune Mrs. Schmidt produced proof. While closeted with her lawyer, Schmidt was trying to raise $4.60 to pay the cost of the assault case.

IS LASSOED FROM QUICKSAND

California Duck Hunter Is Rescued Just in Nick of Time by Police.

Oakland, Cal.—Arthur Schaum had a narrow escape from death while duck hunting off the end of the Thirty-fifth street sewer, when he stepped into the soft mud to recover a fallen bird and sank up to his shoulders. His cries for help were heard; they were relayed to the police station, and patrolmen, responding in an automobile, lassoed him and pulled him from his precarious position.

Schaum was found to be none the worse for the experience except from the shock and the loss of his boots and muddy clothing. He had stepped from the concrete aqueduct into a soft place in the shoal land bottoms and immediately commenced to sink. His endeavors to extricate himself were unavailing and finally when his cries reached the ears of persons ashore they rushed to him, but were likewise unable to assist him. It was not until the arrival of the police with several hundred feet of rope that he was pulled ashore.

Steals Autos and Robs Owners After Gang Meets in Cafe to Plan Work.

Detroit, Mich.—Emory Stocker, son of a wealthy Detroit manufacturer residing in a fashionable suburb, has made a complete confession, according to the police, of the operations of an automobile robber gang held responsible for the recent series of dramatic holdups in this city.

The confession followed the arrest of two more youths suspected of being implicated in the robberies—William Reszke, twenty-one years old, and Norman Schaible, eighteen. These make five young automobile bandits that the police have locked up.

Stocker said that early each evening the gang met in a prominent downtown cafe and planned the night's work. An automobile was stolen each night, and with it the holdups were staged. The booty was placed with Stocker for safekeeping, to be delivered later. Because Stocker did not split fairly, it is alleged, the gang became divided.

Style Tendencies in Spring Coats

Manufacturers and costumers are about to disclose to us their new models in spring coats. They have been getting ready for the advance spring fashion shows, where their garments will be exhibited, to vie with many others, in bidding for the favor of buyers. Buyers back their judgment with orders, and their appreciation is expressed in terms of money, so we shall know very soon to what style tendencies they pin their faith.

Except for tourist and sports coats very few new models have been shown, so far. Judging from these, pockets, collars and girdles are going to be featured in new developments. Coats will probably be less wide and will hang straight. Rumor has it that collars and pockets are to be larger than ever and that we may have a choice as to length in our outer garments for the new season.

The privilege of looking behind the scenes—that is, into the workrooms of those who are creating the new styles, might bring to view a coat like that shown in the picture. It is made of a smooth, soft cloth and has a girdle that goes all round the waist (which is something new in girdles) and hangs in long ends at the front. The coat hangs straight and is moderately full. The front is arranged in a long panel by means of one deep plait at each side.

The collar has an inlay of silk in a contrasting color, and this contrast is worked into the girdle. The pocket is very large and emphasized by stitching in narrow stripes. No one could overlook the cuffs, and this type of cuff is very promising, having appeared on several new models.

Let us hope that coats for spring will be as becoming as those of the present season, which are enticing enough to almost make one regret the passing of winter.

Old and New in Coiffures

No one tendency in hairdressing has seized the popular imagination for some time. This being the case, women have gone on doing their hair in any one of the several accepted styles, and each has followed the particular mode that pleases her best. The Bobby coiffure, of which one development is shown in the picture, has as many adherents as any. It has distinction and neatness to recommend it, but it is not always becoming.

Neatness is the imperative requirement in all the styles. Waved hair, too, is a necessity in the coiffure of today, whether it be simple or elaborate. No loose ends or straying locks are tolerated. Ends are disposed of—if they are in evidence anywhere—in smooth and carefully placed curls.

For evening wear, nearly all the approved coiffures are dressed high on the head. Rather large jeweled combs are their favorite decoration. But if one is the possessor of an old-fashioned comb of silver or gold filagree, or of coral or cameo, it may replace more modern conceptions, with much satisfaction to its wearer.

A very bewitching and original coiffure has appeared recently. It is a youthful affair, in common with the "Bobby." The hair is waved for it, parted at one side and brought down quite low over the forehead. It pursues its soft and waving way over the ears, to the nape of the neck, where it is turned under and pinned close to the head. The hair on the crown is arranged in a cluster of curls. These curls, instead of hanging down after the usual manner of curls, turn upward and are pinned to place on the crown. But their soft ends are free to nod a coquettish "good evening" above the top of the wearer's head.

Saving Material.

When, in cutting out a blouse or other garment from silk, there has been enough material allowed to give a certain amount of leeway in placing the pieces of the pattern on the silk, arranging to keep those pieces as much as possible toward one definite side of the breadth will often result in giving one a very available long, straight strip of silk, enough for a Windsor tie or a bag, when lack of forethought would leave, of the same amount of goods, nothing but small cut pieces, of comparatively little use to the needlewoman.

WOMEN! IT IS MAGIC! LIFT OUT ANY CORN

Apply a few drops then lift corns or calluses off with fingers—no pain.

Just think! You can lift off any corn or callus without pain or soreness.

A Cincinnati man discovered this ether compound and named it freezone. Any druggist will sell a tiny bottle of freezone, like here shown, for very little cost. You apply a few drops directly upon a tender corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears, then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it right off.

Freezone is wonderful. It dries instantly. It doesn't eat away the corn or callus, but shrivels it up without even irritating the surrounding skin.

Hard, soft or corns between the toes, as well as painful calluses, lift right off. There is no pain before or afterwards. If your druggist hasn't freezone, tell him to order a small bottle for you from his wholesale drug house.—adv.

Mike's Foolish Question.

The talk topic at a recent social session turned to the propensity that some people have for asking foolish questions when this happy little incident was recalled by Harry Fox, the well-known actor:

One Sunday morning last summer the weather was so exceedingly hot in Pat's happy home that he took himself out to the back porch for his Sabbath shave.

While Pat was performing the operation of amputating his bristles, his next-door neighbor, Mike, sauntered out on the back porch adjoining.

"Shure, Pat," pleasantly remarked Mike, leaning on the partition railing, "how comes it thot yez aire shavin' on the outside this mornin'?"

"Begorra, Mike, an how can Oi help it?" responded Pat, his eyes merrily twinkling through a mass of lather. "Do yez think for wan minute thot Oi'm fur-lined?"—Philadelphia Evening Telegraph.

It is on record that the prince of Orange, filled with rage because he had been beaten at Fleurus, Leuze, Steinkerque, and Nerwinde, said, alluding to the marshal of Luxembourg—

"Can it be that I shall never beat that hunchback?"

"How does he know that I am a hunchback?" said the French marshal. "He never saw my back; I always saw his!"

CALOMEL IS MERCURY, IT SICKENS! STOP USING SALIVATING DRUG

Don't Lose a Day's Work! If Your Liver Is Sluggish or Bowels Constipated Take "Dodson's Liver Tone."—It's Fine!

You're bilious! Your liver is sluggish! You feel lazy, dizzy and all knocked out. Your head is dull, your tongue is coated; breath bad; stomach sour and bowels constipated. But don't take salivating calomel. It makes you sick, you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel crashes into sour bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping.

If you want to enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone. Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal money-back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick.

Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headache and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and your bowels regular. You will feel like working; you'll be cheerful; full of vigor and ambition.

Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and cannot salivate. Give it to your children! Millions of people are using Dodson's Liver Tone instead of dangerous calomel now. Your druggist will tell you that the sale of calomel is almost stopped entirely here.—Adv.

FRUIT LAXATIVE FOR SICK CHILD

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs" that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleaning" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Adv.

DAMAGE CAUSED BY CLOVER LEAF HOPPERS

CONSTRUCTION OF FRAME FOR HOPPERDOZER.

The clover leafhopper does far more damage than is usually realized. In a publication of the United States department of agriculture (Farmers' Bulletin 737) by Edmund H. Gibson, it is stated that the loss from this cause to the clover and alfalfa hay crops of the country is frequently attributed to poor soil and climatic conditions. For this the minute size of the pest, which frequently enables it to escape observation, is largely responsible. As a matter of fact, continued attacks by the leafhopper, especially in some of the central states, often result in the loss of a considerable percentage of a single cutting.

Crowd Together.

It is characteristic of leafhoppers to crowd together in great numbers, as many as 600 having been counted upon one plant. In feeding upon the plant the insects make tiny punctures. Around these the tissue gradually becomes yellow, the spot enlarging and becoming more pronounced until the leaflets ultimately curl up and the foliage wilts. The female also forces her eggs into the stem and leaf tissue, frequently causing a gall-like formation. Alfalfa, clover, cowpeas and vetch are among the principal plants attacked, but the pest is common in meadow and pasture lands and feeds on a number of cultivated as well as native grasses throughout practically the entire country.

The clover leafhopper is about one-eighth of an inch in length and half as wide, and is marked in a manner to distinguish it from many other kinds of clover and alfalfa. The farmer will distinguish leafhoppers from other insects by their habit of jumping, their quick movements, and their minute size. In certain respects they resemble diminutive grasshoppers.

Where It Spends Winter.

As the clover leafhopper spends the winter under clumps of grass, weeds and trash, the burning of rubbish and vegetation during winter months in waste places and along fence rows and roadsides will do much to prevent the pest attaining destructive numbers the following year. This precaution will destroy great number of other hibernating insects as well as the leafhoppers.

During the growing season close cutting or pasturing of grass lands is recommended. Cutting alfalfa crops from a week to ten days earlier than usual will often check the ravages of the insects and may be advisable when there is evidence that the leafhoppers are causing sufficient injury to justify the risk of loss through premature cutting.

Each year this leafhopper, by lessening the vitality of its food plants, occasions more or less damage over its entire range of distribution, causing a positive, although not easily estimated, decrease in the clover and alfalfa hay crops of the country. Continued attacks often result in the loss of a considerable percentage of a single cutting; especially is this true in some of the central states. The leafhopper causes the greatest damage during the spring and early summer months, as the foliage is then most succulent and the tissues very tender, enabling even the immature leafhoppers readily to pierce the skin of leaf, and stem and suck the juices. The incessant drain from concentrated attacks causes the clover plants to wither, and although they may not die, the new growth which is put forth is very apt to be thin and spindling. With alfalfa it is the first two crops which appear to suffer most. The drain upon alfalfa plants does not show as markedly as with clover, especially during a drought, since the alfalfa roots go deeper into the ground and the plant is better able to withstand adverse conditions.

Known as Flies.

In many localities these leafhoppers are commonly known as "flies," but in reality they resemble flies only in having wings, and because they are about the size of many small flies seen in the fields. The adult or parent insects are light gray in color, but have numerous dark markings which give them a mottled appearance. They are about one-eighth of an inch in length and half as wide.

The manner in which they jump from plant to plant is much like that of grasshoppers.

The primary injury is produced by the direct feeding of the leafhoppers. The single tiny feeding puncture is itself inconsequential, and injury results only when a great number of leafhoppers attack the same plant.

The clover leafhopper is distributed generally throughout the United States, records showing its occurrence in every section of the country. Its range also includes southern Canada and Mexico.

The number of generations of the leafhopper produced annually in a given locality varies from year to year, depending on weather conditions, and it also varies in different latitudes and climates. For southern Missouri and northern Arkansas there are usually three distinct broods, covering approximately (1) April and May, (2) June and July, and (3) August and September. Farther south or under subtropical conditions it is probable that there are four or more.

Merely Hide in South.

In the northern states the clover leafhopper hibernates in the adult stage, at the base of clumps of grass and weeds and under dried leaves and trash. Throughout the central and southern states it could hardly be said to hibernate; instead, the adults merely keep in hiding and under cover during cold weather, coming out on warm days to bask in the sun and feed upon such green foliage as can be found. In Missouri, for example, the adult insects have been observed feeding upon wheat during January and February, but not in any abundance. Nymphs cannot long survive cold weather, and it is not probable that eggs survive over winter. In the extreme Southwest, where conditions are radically different, the leafhopper is active throughout the entire year.

The adults are quick of movement and jump from plant to plant when disturbed. When strong winds prevail they remain in hiding, as they seem to dislike windy weather. Their most characteristic habit is that of congregating in great numbers on one plant, frequently to such an extent that they crowd one another. This is what causes the concentrated attacks in "spots" throughout a field. The clover leafhopper does not seem to seek shady or damp places, rather preferring the heat of the midday sun.

Nymphs Not Active.

The nymphs are much less active than the adults and are not easily disturbed. When one brushes against the plants they cling fast to the stems and leaves instead of jumping to another plant.

For direct control the hopperdozer is recommended. Any form of this device that is suitable for grasshoppers will do for the clover leafhopper as well, but a much lighter and less expensive one can be made for the smaller insects by stretching canvas over a wooden frame. This can be made of such light weight that it will not injure the alfalfa and clover plant when it is pulled over a field. Two horses, one hitched at either end, are used for drawing it. On the inside of the canvas a thin coat of a sticky substance made of tree tanglefoot which has been thinned with cheap castor oil is spread with a paddle or shingle. As the leafhoppers and other insects alight on the surface of this substance they are held fast. Such substances as cheap sorghum have been tried in place of tree tanglefoot. The sorghum, however, dries out too quickly and frequent applications of it have to be made. It is best to draw the hopperdozer through the fields when the crop is about half grown.

GIRLS! GIRLS! TRY IT, BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR

Make It Thick, Glossy, Wavy, Luxuriant and Remove Dandruff—Real Surprise for You.

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderine hair cleanse." Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it, surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any store and just try it. Adv.

Alpha and Burnice Leonard have enrolled as new students at the Thorsby Public school.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Michelson have been in New Orleans the past week for the Mardi Gras and will visit other points on the coast before returning.

Mr. R. N. Roebuck, of near Maplesville, accompanied by Mr. C. R. Presenell of Louisville, Miss., spent last Friday night with Mr. Kent Roebuck, one of the students of Thorsby Institute.

Mr. M. B. Robinson, father of Mrs. A. K. Horn, has been suffering from a severe attack of eczema the past week.

Mrs. Georgia Fairbanks, of Jacksonville, Ill., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Butler.

Laughter and Wisdom will be combined in the lecture of Dr. R. W. Gammon of Chicago at Bates Hall next Saturday night. This is the next number of the entertainment course. Admission, to those not holding season tickets, 10 and 25 cents.

Mrs. Alice McLean is expected back this week from an extended visit to Little Rock, Ark., and other points.

A special meeting for men will be held at the Congregational church next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock under the auspices of the Institute Y. M. C. A. There will be good music and live messages from Dr. Gammon of Chicago and Rev. C. T. Rogers of Atlanta.

The regular meeting of the Helen Keller Literary Society will be held on Friday night instead of Saturday this week, because of the lecture by Dr. Gammon Saturday night.

Special meetings will be held at the Congregational church every night next week. The meetings will begin promptly at 7:15 and last only about an hour. Everyone is invited to come.

Rev. R. W. Gammon, D. D., of Chicago, will preach at the Congregational church next Sunday morning and will probably speak also at the evening service.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Gerald made a business trip to Birmingham Monday.

Rev. E. W. Butler returned Saturday from Pittsfield, Ill., where he had been called by the serious illness of his mother, Mrs. C. A. Butler, whose death on Tuesday of last week at the age of ninety years closed a life of unusual influence and usefulness. Many in Thorsby will remember the visit of Mrs. Butler to this place several years ago.

The Young Men's Class of the Congregational Sunday School enjoyed a pleasant evening Saturday at the Teachers' Cottage as guests of their teacher, Miss Stoddard.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

The Seniors are very sorry to lose Kathleen Mullins for the time it will take her to conquer the measles. They hope to soon have her back in school for she is missed by all.

The Business Manager of the "Cantrolla" hopes with the next few weeks to have the next edition of their annual ready to go to press. Ads are now being solicited in Clanton and surrounding territory. This year's staff for the Cantrolla is as follows: Editor-in-Chief, Reuben Lowe, Business Manager, Joe Kanjutzky; Associate Editors, Madge Cooper, Kathleen Mullins; Assistant Business Manager, Dewey Rockett. It is the hope of the Business Manager to make the 1917 Cantrolla superior to that of 1916.

Dewey Rocket has recently made a discovery that will be of interest to the scientists of the world. The following being the discovery:

Miss Key—Dewey what are the uses of Sodium Hydroxide?

Dewey—Why that's used to make electricty.

The basket ball team will probably go to Centerville Saturday to play the game that is due them. They hope to win this one.

When Arden Allen and Clifford Mullins go to see girls they get behind the door so as to give her a scare when she comes into the room. They seem to think that this is a great pleasure.

The Literary Societies of the school will probably have a joint meeting Friday night week and invite the public.

Rev. Jerome O. Williams of Sylacauga came down Tuesday to attend the funeral services of Miss Velma White.

BEST FOR ALL CROPS

SOUTH ATLANTIC GUANO COMPANY

(SUBSIDIARY MORRIS FERTILIZER CO.)

ATLANTA — MONTGOMERY

Every farmer has it in his power very largely to prevent crop failure. By proper selection of seed, timely cultivation and, most important of all, a careful selection of dependable fertilizers, he gives his crop a good, healthy start and keeps it vigorous throughout critical seasons.

The South Atlantic Brands are made of high class materials, selected with a view to giving service when service is needed. They start the crops off quickly and maintain the growth and fruit till harvest. The high grade animal ammoniates we use insure late fruiting and development, and also liberate potash from the soil.

By their liberal use. the cotton crop is brought to a quick and healthy maturity, thus escaping shedding losses and the ravages of the boll weevil.

Don't risk your crop on inferior fertilizers, but demand and insist on getting the South Atlantic Brands.

SIGNIFICANT RESULTS OF TEACHERS' EXAMINATIONS

Changes Recently Made in the Rules Governing Examinations, by State Board.

The results of the recent teachers' examination are significant from more than one standpoint. They are both encouraging and discouraging.

In spite of the fact that this examination came at the middle of the school year, 46 certificates were issued on the basis of graduation and 114 expiring certificates were extended for a period of one year. In addition to this number, 15 certificates from other states were validated for use in Alabama, most of these having been originally issued on the basis of college or normal school work.

Of the 2438 applicants who wrote the examination at this time, only 769 received certificates. In other words, 31.6 per cent of those who wrote the examination passed and 68.4 per cent failed. This percentage of failures is unusually high and is no doubt accounted for by the fact that most of those best qualified are seeking certificates through graduation or are having their certificates extended by persuing professional courses in the several recognized summer schools.

The most lamentable feature of the examination is the exceedingly large number of rejections because of the use of unfair means in the attempt to secure certificates. The papers of 164 applicants were rejected because they presented conclusive evidence of unfairness. At a meeting of the county boards held in Montgomery last December resolutions were passed in which the State Superintendent was asked to send the names of such applicants to the chairman of the various county boards throughout the State. The list will be sent upon completion of the work following each examination. Unfairness on the part of teachers cannot be too severely condemned, and it is hoped that the new county boards through the superintendents whom they appoint, will remedy this deplorable condition.

Changes in Rulings of Board of Examiners.

Beginning with the April 1917 examination each applicant for an Alabama teacher's certificate upon the basis of examination will be required to write the examination in the county in which he is living, teaching or attending school at the time the examination is held. County superintendents are instructed to refuse admittance to any applicant coming from another county unless that applicant presents, before entering the examination room, a permit issued and signed by the State Superintendent of Education. In order to obtain such a permit application must be made to the State Superintendent of Education at least ten days previous to the date of the examination. Blank forms for this purpose may be had from the county superintendents.

A teacher desiring to make application for the extension of a certificate is no longer required to attend the examination, provided he places in the hands of the county superintendent his certificate, application and fee on or before the first day of the examination marking the expiration of the certificate to be extended. It is the purpose of this ruling to save time and expense for those who attempt to keep abreast with educational advancement by pursuing extension courses.

ALRED DRUG COMPANY CHANGES OWNERSHIP

Messrs. J. Hance Alred and T. H. Neighbors have become the sole owners and proprietors of the Alred Drug Co., these two gentlemen having bought the interest of Mr. D. C. Alred.

For several years the Alred Drug Company has been doing a thriving drug business here, and the new owners will be accorded the continued patronage of a large number of satisfied customers.

They will in future as in the past hold ther business up to the standard which has for years been adopted and followed by the house, viz: "The Home of Quality."

Dr. Neighbors has been connected with the store for five years, in the capacity of Pharmacist, during which time he has made a splendid record as a thorough business man. His many friends will be glad to know of his closer connection in the business, and the rise he has made.

J. Hance Alred, the other member of the firm, is too wel known to need any introduction here. He is a home boy, who has made his way to a substantial business prestige through honest dealing with the public, and has scores of friends who wish him continued success.

Better Farming in the South

WHAT THE CROPS ARE ASKING FOR

Feed the Plants Properly and the Soil Can Be Built Up Instead of Run Down While Increasing Crop Yields

J. N. HARPER
Agronomist.

Staple crops take out large amounts of plant food from the soil. For example: A cotton crop of one bale per acre will remove from the land in seed, leaves, stalks and bolls, about 77 pounds of nitrogen 54 pounds of potash and 28 pounds of phosphoric acid. A 40 bushel crop of corn will remove in the grain, stalk and fodder about 64 pounds of nitrogen, 54 pounds of potash and 34 pounds of phosphoric acid. A 40 bushel crop of oats will remove in the grain and straw about 35 pounds of nitrogen, 41 pounds of potash and 16 pounds of phosphoric acid. If, however, stalks, bolls, straw, etc., are plowed under, some of the plant food will be returned to the soil.

Cotton Fertilizer Problem

With the present price of cotton and other farm products, it will pay the farmer to give more attention this Spring to the problems of soil building and to the intelligent use of fertilizers than ever before. Some of the best farmers of the South have adopted the plan of returning to the soil in fertilizers, the money received from all or part of their cottonseed. This is a good plan and should be more generally adopted.

Enough Plant Food for Best Yields

It takes from 300 pounds to 400 pounds of fertilizer to make a good weed in cotton, or a good stalk in corn, and unless amounts above these are used, full returns cannot be expected because large amounts must be applied to produce the fruit and the grain.

The amount of fertilizer that can be used profitably will vary with the different soil types, seasons and with the different crops grown. The most important factor, however, governing the amount of fertilizer that can be used with profit is the price of the article produced. At the present price of cotton, it will pay to use on most of the soil types of the South larger amounts of fertilizer than heretofore.

To Meet Boll Weevil Situation

When grown under boll weevil conditions, cotton should be liberally fertilized and this fertilizer should contain a large percentage of phosphoric acid, which ingredient hastens its maturity. A fertilizer containing an ample supply of ammonia should also be used to start the plant off quickly in its growth. The farmer must ever bear in mind that the best way he can fight the boll weevil is to force his cotton to a quick growth and to an early maturity. Many farmers in the boll weevil district, are finding that peanuts and soy beans are splendid substitutes for cotton. Unless these crops are well fertilized, however, with the fertilizer carrying high percentage of phosphate, good yields cannot be expected.

How to Tell What is Necessary

The farmer can oftentimes determine the element most needed in his fertilizer by noting the manner of growth of cotton on his different soil types. When the growth is slow and the plants have a yellow, unhealthy look, nitrogen (or ammonia) should be applied in rather large amounts. If, however, the plants look vigorous, but are not fruiting well, phosphoric acid should be used liberally.

Generally speaking, for poor soils, the most important element of a fertilizer is nitrogen, and the next most important is phosphorous. Therefore, for poor soils we would recommend under present war conditions, which make potash scarce, a fertilizer for cotton and corn analyzing about 9 per cent available phosphoric acid and 3 per cent ammonia and 2 per cent potash. For peanuts 12 per cent phosphoric acid, 2 per cent ammonia and 2 per cent potash. For fertile soils we would recommend for cotton and corn, a fertilizer analyzing 12 per cent available phosphoric acid, 2 per cent ammonia and 2 per cent potash, and for peanuts, a fertilizer analyzing 12 per cent phosphoric acid, 1 1-2 per cent ammonia and 2 per cent potash. For the sandy loam soils of the coastal plain, potash is the most essential and for tobacco and truck crops must be applied in liberal amounts.

The reason that nitrogen or ammonia is so necessary an element for practically all soils is because the nitrates are soluble in water, and are, therefore, constantly leaching out of the land. The farmers should try to store up as much nitrogen in the soil as possible by growing such crops as beans, peas, clover, vetches, etc., which plants add nitrogen to the soil from the atmosphere. Practically all soils of the South are well adapted to the growing of these legumes.

If, however, crops are grown in rotation with legumes, it will still be necessary to use commercial forms of nitrogen to obtain the best results. While nitrogen is the main element of a fertilizer, on poor land phosphoric acid is the most essential and in practically all of the tests that have been made in the South, better results have been obtained with soluble phosphoric acid than with finely ground phosphate rocks or floats.

RESOLUTION PASSED BY THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

Asking for Another Meeting of The People in Regard to the Issuance of Bonds by the County.

The State of Alabama Chilton county

Whereas Chilton county has a due indebtedness of over $[illegible].00 and no money in the Treasury with which to pay it, and the county is three years behind with its payments and its warrants are discounted 40 per cent., and the commissioners court is up to the statutory limit, as prescribed by law, and cannot issue any more warrants until some way is provided, by which some of the present past due warrants can be paid.

And whereas a mass meeting was called for the 3rd day of February 1917, and owing to the unfavorable weather conditions it was impossible for the people to attend said meeting:

Therefore be it resolved by the Court of County Commissioners in regular session on this the 14th day of February, 1917, that another mass meeting of all the voters of the county is hereby called to assemble at the court house on Saturday the 3rd day of March, 1917, at 10 o'clock A.M., for the purpose of considering and devising ways and means to pay off debts and restore the credit and put the county on a cash basis. DESCRIPTION OF RESULT OF THE STORM IN COOSA

Last Friday afternoon the northern part of Coosa county was visited by a cyclone of terriffic force, which left in its wake, a vast distruction of property, and many dead, injured and suffering persons.

In a letter to The Banner Mr. T. E. Blackmon of Weogufka describes the conditions in the storm stricken area. He says as follows:

"Since the severe cyclone that passed through Coosa on last Friday afternoon, we find a vast number of people homeless. Where the storm passed through it left a sad vacancy.

"From the last reports there were eleven instantly killed, and several seriously hurt. There is no estimation as to the number of persons who will be permanently maimed or crippled as a result of injuries received. The doctors in the neighborhood, and surroundng places were not able to answer all the calls, and many who were hurt and suffering were forced to endure it for a time before medical aid could be brought to them.

Stewartville Destroyed

"The little village of Stewartville was completely wiped out. Among those killed at that place were Prof. Ira O. Ezikiel, teacher of the school there. Also a young Mr. Gamble was crushed to death by a falling building.

Town of Hollins Devastated

"The little town of Hollins on the Central of Georgia Railroad was in the path of the storm, and it was completely destroyed. The school building was blown to pieces, four persons were killed and thirty injured.

Damage is Not Known

"No estimate has yet been made of the damage that was done in the wake of the cyclone. All buildings that lay in its path are completely wrecked. Furniture and household goods broken in fragments and scattered over hills and valleys to the four corners of the earth. Peoples clothing was torn into rags and strings. Large numbers of cattle and horses were killed and injured.

"People around here who were not in the path of destruction are busy helping to secure and provide homes clothing and provisions for the unfortunate ones, who were left homeless, without shelter, food or clothing.

"The path of the cyclone will average half a mile wide, edging the "track" of the big storm that passed through the same section about thirty years ago, according to the older citizens. The force of the wind was so terriffic that stumps and trees were uprooted and twisted off at the ground; old logs were blown out of beds which they had lain in for years and years. In sveral places big stretches of the topsoil was removed from the ground.

"Roads are crowded with visitors viewing the terrible scenes and bringing help in cases where they can. Residents of the territory where the storm passed through have never before been shocked by such terrible and sad incidents as they are over the grim results of the ugly spetacle of last Friday."

Mt. Pleasant

Health of this community is not very good at present. There is a good deal of cold and la grippe.

Dick, the twelve year old son of Rev. A. R. Aldridge was carried to Birmingham Sunday to be operated on for appendicitis. The latest reports are that he is getting along fine.

We are sorry to learn that Mrs. J. B. Collum is on the sick list.

Messrs. Oliver and Arthur Duke of Coosa county spent a few days last week here among relatives.

We are sorry to state that Mrs. Silas Kelley is very sick.

Mrs. W. A. Dozier is visiting her sister near Marble Valley, who is very ill.

Rev. and Mrs. B. H. Vickers spent Sunday at L. O. Vicker's.

Our school will close next Friday. Our teacher, Prof. J. K. T. Daniel and Miss Eloise Mattison have done some splendid work. We wish them success where ever they may go.

Mackie Pierce and wife of Mulberry spent Sunday with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Pierce.

Miss Freddie Baxley is visiting her sister, Mrs. G. H. Massey.

Mrs. Mims of Pleasant Grove recently visited her daughter, Mrs. Mack Henley.

We failed to have our poultry and canning club meeting last Saturday, but will meet next Saturday, March 3. Every member is urged to be present, as we have some very important business. Everybody is invited to come and see what we do and join in with us.

ALABAMA SUFFERS FROM WIND STORM

SOUTHERN PORTION OF CLAY AND NORTHERN PORTION OF COOSA DAMAGED.

HOLLINS ALMOST WIPED OUT

Property Damage Extremely Heavy; Great Tracts of Timber Being Destroyed.

Summary of Cyclone Damage.

Many Alabama counties were swept by a terrific windstorm, which, in some cases, assumed the proportions of a tornado.

Hollins, Stewartville and Midway, near the Clay-Coosa county line, suffered most severly. Seven are reported dead here and 100 more or less seriously injured. Dozens of houses were demolished.

At Whitsitt, in Hale county, near Newbern, four negroes were killed and numerous negro cabins destroyed.

Montgomery county reports a house blown into the river across from the capital.

At Wetumpka, in Elmore county, several houses were unroofed.

At Tuskegee, in Macon county, a number of houses were damaged.

In Autauga county, between Autauga and Statesville, a number of barns and houses suffered and numerous chimneys were blown down.

Several signs were blown down at Selma, in Dallas county.

Calhoun county reported "wind pockets," where the wind attained terrific velocity.

In Birmingham several residences were damaged on Sixteenth avenue, south.

The wind velocity was intense through Hale, Perry and Bibb counties.

Sylacauga.—Sorrow and sadness prevail in the wake of the terrific storm which cut a path three-quarters of a mile in width and swooped down on several little settlements in the southern portion of Clay County and northern part of Coosa, leaving in its wake in this section an approximate death list of twelve and a hundred injured. The property loss will run into large figures.

The damage to timber through out the path of the storm was exceedingly heavy, great tracts being destroyed.

Stewartville, Hollins and Midway appear to have suffered the greatest loss of life and property.

No one was injured at Sylacauga and no property loss was sustained that is appreciable. At Stewartville, six miles south of here, in Coosa county, three people were killed and two seriously injured and a number of others were hurt. The school house was blown down and Professor Ezekiel was instantly killed, as were two of his students, young men named Gamel and Grimes. Many other students of thes chool were hurt, although it was reported that none of them would die.

Hollins Almost Wiped Out.

Hollins, in Clay county, about 10 miles below here, was practically wiped off the map. The school house was destroyed, 30 houses were blown down and four stores, Hammond's, Williams, Johnson's and Hardeman's, were demolished. At the school house Annie Porter, the 12-year-old daughter of John T. Porter, was instantly killed; as was Lovie Logan, an 8-year old boy. William Robertson ,aged 12, was fatally hurt, and it is expected that he will die. A large number of people at Hollins was injured.

Two Dead at Midway.

At Midway, which is three miles east of Hollins, the school house was blown down and a number of people were injured. Allen House, a child, was killed, and Bill House, aged 80 years, was killed instantly when the House residence was demolished. A number of houses in the vicinity of Midway were destroyed and people were injured throughout the surrounding country, according to reports.

In the vicinity of Stewartville the residences of C. C. Lambert and Henry Sallas were among those blown down. Lambert and his wife and Sallas and his wife were all badly hurt.

Alabama Man Overcome By Gas.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—Frank Mills, age 42, of Russellville, Ala., died here as a result of being overcome by benzol fumes at a local chemical plant. Death resulted within 30 minutes after Mills inhaled the poisonous gas.

Teachers Pass Exams.

Florence.—Extremely close grading is the cause, according to County Superintendent of Education D. O. Warren, of the failure of 30 out of 52 applicants for teachers' certificates, examined here in December.

Men Die From Scald

Woodmen to Go to Mobile Camp.

Tuscaloosa.—Mobile has obtained the national encampment of the uniform rank of the Woodmen of the World for the year 1917. These encampments are held quadrennially and Mobile was selected this year over several competitors. This information came from the home of the sovereign auditor, W. M. Crawford of Birmingham, who is in Omaha attending the grand council of the order, and it was in a letter to Maj. D. J. Deacy of Tuscaloosa, a member of the staff of Brigadier General W. T. Nall of Woodlawn. The dates for the encampment will be July 23-28, and Uniform Ranks of Woodmen will attend from all over the country.

Alabama Enters "Bone-Dry" List.

Birmingham.—In only three states in the south—Florida, Louisiana and Texas—may liquor in any quantity be imported legally for personal use after the Reed amendment, which was passed by both houses of Congress, goes into effect. They alone have retained local option. Congress, by its action in adopting the Reed amendment, makes absolute the state-wide prohibition legislation of Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi. Thus they join the "bone-dry" states, Arkansas and Tennessee, which already had enacted statutes forbidding the importation of liquor.

Drilling Is Resumed.

Cordova.—Drilling for oil in what is known as Well No. 1, of the Haskell interests, three and a half miles from Cordova, in Walker county, is again in hand, and stone is now being drawn through. When the sands are again reached, it is expected the flow of oil will be found. The litigation that has been threatened in connection with this and other wells being sunk or about to be sunk will be given consideration later on. The No. 1 well has great promise and as soon as it has been proven, there will be other work undertaken in the immediate vicinity. Drilling machinery is being gotten in readiness to take up development work between Cordova and Well No. 1 now, and within 30 days it is expected that there will be two wells under development.

Onions Have Come "Into Their Own."

Selma. — Lo, the fragrant onions have come into their own. Grocery merchants here say they are paying more for them than ever before in their history. One bag of white onions, a retailer stated, cost him $12.50. They could have been bought last year at this time for $3.50. Irish potatoes also have reached such a high price they are almost prohibitive, costing from 5 1-2 to 6 cents a pound.

Feed Mill to Be Built.

Opelika.—The Piedmont Fertilizer company of Opelika has announced that they will build and equip a feed mill of 50-ton capacity, and will have it in operation in five or six months. The concern announces that with the completion of the plant they will be in a position to buy all the feed products the farmers offer for sale, and in addition will make their feed.

Taft Will Speak in Birmingham.

Birmingham. — Former President William H. Taft, who spoke to the members of the United States Chamber of Commerce at its recent meeting in Washington on "The League to Enforce Peace," will give the same lecture in Birmingham March 24 under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce.

Negroes Attempt Blackmail Teachers.

Jasper.—Three negroes were arrested on a charge of conspiracy against two young women school teachers of the Jasper grammar school. The negroes demanded a large sum of money as payment for not exposing the young women for alleged unbecoming conduct. The negroes will be tried before the United States commissioner.

Food Prices Reach High Water Mark.

Montgomery.—Food prices in Montgomery are higher than ever known before, and local dealers hold out no promise of relief until the new spring crop is brought to market. Cold waves, embargoes, short crops, congested railroad facilities and various other reasons are assigned as the cause of the soaring of prices.

Farmers Are Busy

Troy.—J. J. Cotton of the Shiloh community was here recently and reported the farmers progressing well with their work, considering the rains. He said that corn, velvet beans and peanuts would be the leading crops in this section. He also said that the farmers were paying much attention to hog and cattle raising for market.

Railroad Awards Grade Contract.

Mobile.—Construction of the first 20-mile link of the Gulf, Mobile and Northern railroad, north from Middleton, Tenn., toward Jackson, Tenn., has been begun. This was announced by H. F. Ricker, secretary and assistant to President W. F. Owen, who is out of the city.

Church Women Hold Annual Meeting.

Gadsden.—The sixth annual convention of the Women's Missionary Society of the North Alabama Conference of the Methodist church was held in Gadsden. The opening session was the meeting of the executive committee at the First Methodi church. At the opening session, presided over by Mrs. Alexander Greet of Gadsden, president of the conference, reports of various activities of the society were heard. All reports owed great progress in the work

BRITISH ADVANCE ON ANCRE FRONT

Almost Without Fighting General Haig's Troops Take Possession Of Pys, Serre And Other Positions

BAPAUME NOW THREATENED

Kaiser's Troops Took Advantage Of Foggy Weather To Fall Back At Some Points Three Miles

Paris.—On one portion of the British front at least the war has become a war of movement. Under cover of fog and mist, which had been particularly heavy for forty-eight hours, the Germans carried out the greatest retirement they have made on the western front in the last two years, and the British have swept into possession of Pys, Serre, Miraumont and Petit Miraumont, including the famous Butte de Warlencourt, which has been the scene of some of the fiercest fighting of the war, and in places is deep with the bones of dead men.

The exact extent of the German retirement is not known, but it is estimated that it approaches a depth of three miles at some point. British patrols are out in all directions, harassing the Germans and keeping in touch with their movements. Until they report it will not be possible to say just where the Germans have determined to fix their next line of resistance.

Bapaume Must Soon Fall

Nevertheless it can be stated that the British now are, or soon will be, in a position possibly to force the evacuation of Bapaume, which has been the key to the German position since the beginning of the battle of the Somme. The points which already have fallen into the British hands have stood out in the history of the fighting on this front, and had been most stubbornly defended. Only about a week ago when the British attacked on a two-mile front east and south of Miraumont and Pys, the German resistance was bitter and the high ground desired was won only after desperate hand to hand encounters and the taking of more than eight hundred German prisoners.

NO SUDDEN EMERGENCY IN THE FOOD SITUATION

Enormous Exports And Lack Of Economy By Housewives Chief Reasons For The High Prices

New York.—Enormous increases in the exportation of staple articles of food, without corresponding increases in production, and lack of intelligent economy by housewives are ascribed by the department of health of this city, in a report, as the chief reasons for steadily rising prices.

The department declared "there does not appear to be any sudden or recently developed emergency in the food situation in this city," although there has been serious rioting in various parts of the city.

While the report asserts there is "obviously less dependency and real need than has been common for many years," it also says, "it is apparent that unless the present high prices of food are reduced or controlled, or as an alternative the income of families which now maintain themselves on $800 a year or less is increased by raise of wages or throuhg relief agencies, there will be a constantly increasing number of people whose health will be jeopardized by their inability to buy sufficiently nourishing food."

Government Probe Of Food Situation

Washington.—The house has adopted as an amendment to the sundry civil appropriation bill an appropriation of $400,000 for an investigation by the federal trade commission of the high cost of food. The vote was 83 to 51.

Pro-Germanism Charged To American

Paris.—Additional evidence in reference to the discovery of a pro-German plot has led to the re-arrest of a man giving the name of Wood, claiming to be an American, who had been set at liberty, says a wireless dispatch from Madrid.

Submarine Attacked 7 Dutch Ships

London.—From Dutch sources it is learned that it was the submarine U-3 which attacked seven Dutch steamers. Three were torpedoed outright, while German sailors boarded the other four and placed bombs that were exploded. So far as known these four vessels did not sink, but their location has not been ascertained, except that of the Menado, which was towed into harbor by a British trawler. The crews of the Dutch vessels rowed to the Scilly Isles, believing that all of their ships had been sunk.

Camaguey Captured By Cuban Troops

Havana.—Government troops have captured Camaguey, it is announced officially. The rebels fled after slight resistance. Reports from Santa Clara says rebels under Gerardo Machado and Sanchez del Porta were defeated at Loma del Grillo after a battle lasting less than an hour. The rebels lost 15 killed and 118 wounded. Del Porta is reported to have been wounded. He was liberal candidate for the governorship of Santa Clara. The government troops lost one killed and seven wounded.

HIGH PRICES CAUSE OF RIOTS

Driven To Desperation Hundreds Of Women Attack Police And Food Venders In New York City

New York.—Following many clashes between the police and women food rioters at the city hall and in congested tenement districts, Joseph Hartigan, commissioner of weights and measures, announces that he is doing everything in his power to stimulate the flow of foodstuffs into ths city from all parts of the country.

Reports received by the commissioner indicate that the situation has reached an acute stage which, he asserts, calls for the establishment by congress of "some sort of food control commission to meet the per capita consumption of food in the United States."

While retail shop keepers and push cart peddlers have been forced to bear the brunt of the assault of the angry housewives here, the bureau of weights and measures announces that "the abnormal exportation of foodstuffs and the sub-normal production are the underlying causes of the advance in prices." It was said, however, that there is "abundant evidence of speculation in canned goods."

Women Are Desperate

So desperate have the women in some parts of the city become, it is said, that hundreds of food peddlers have locked their push carts in stables and suspended business. A number of these dealers who ventured out on the upper East Side were set upon by a mob of housewives when it was found they were selling onions at 15 cents per pound and potatoes at 9 and 10 cents per pound. The peddlers were driven from the streets into hallways of tenements, where the women tore their clothing and scratched their faces. Meantime the pushcarts were demolished and their contents strewn about the streets.

After several hundred women had stormed the city hall in an effort to see the mayor, Mrs. Ida Harris, president of the Mothers' Vigilance league, issued a statement in which she declared it had been decided to keep children away from the schools until the prices of food are lowered. This step, Mrs. Harris asserted, was justified on the ground that poorly fed children are in no condition to profit by schooling.

FORTY-FIVE HUNDRED KILLED AND HURT

Report From Explosion At The Russian Port Of Archangel, February Fourth

Berlin.—It is reported from Copenhagen that fifteen hundred persons were killed and three thousand wounded in an explosion of ammunition at Archangel, Russia.

A Copenhagen telegram says that travelers returning from Russia declare that the last great explosion at Archangel was much more considerable than was made known in dispatches from Russia. The explosion took place at the naval station while ammunition was being unloaded from a steamer. Not a tract of this steamer remained. The explosion killed or wounded every one within a radius of one kilometer, fifteen hundred persons being killed and three thousand wounded. The damage amounts to fifty million rubles.

It was reported on February 4 that an icebreaker at Archangel had blown up and that thirty persons were believed to have been killed and three hundred injured.

Iron And Machine Shops Wrecked

Amsterdam, Holland. — Several buildings of the famous Cockerill works, at Seraing, five miles southwest of Liege, Belgium, have been destroyed through an incendiary fire. The loss to the plant—which comprises iron works and machine shops, making it one of the largest in Europe, if not the largest—will be ten million dollars, in round numbers, it is estimated by competent authorities.

U. S. Women Allowed To Dare U-Boats

Halifax, N. S.—Three United States women aboard a steamer from the United States, which arrived in port here, were permitted to continue the voyage. Clearance papers were refused the ship, however, until twenty-five women and children had been removed. They were taken ashore in tugs.

Panama New Troop Quarters Needed

Washington.—An appropriation of $13,371,000 for new troop quarters in the Panama canal zone and for expenses of the authorized additional increments for garrisoning the zones was requested of congress by Secretary Baker, who declare it "imperatively necessary" that this amount be made immediately available. Four regiments of infantry, the secretary said, now are quartered in temporary old canal buildings, some of which formerly were occupied by Jamaican negroes and condemned years ago.

Whitlock Not Asked To Lower Flag

Berlin.—The question of hauling down the American flag on the American legation at Brussels has never been discussed between Brand Whitlock, the American minister, and any member of the German administration, in an announcement. The desire that he continue his interest in the Belgian relief commission work was made known to him by the German governor general, it is declared, and the minister and his staff are to keep on with their former activities in this connection.

MILITARY SERVICE PROPOSED FOR ALL

TO TRAIN 500,000 ANNUALLY

Plan Would Supply Trained Force Of 4,000,000 Men With One Year Of Intensive Military Instruction

Washington.—The army general staff universal service bill was transmitted to the senate military committee by Secretary Baker without a definite expression by the administration, either on the general subject or the specific proposal.

The secretary suggested that wide publicity be given the staff plan "to the end that both congress and the war department can have the benefit of an enlightened, thoughtful public opinion upon the neecs and wishes of the country."

In round numbers the staff plan would supply a trained force of four million men, with one year of intensive military instruction. It is estimated by the war college that approximately 500,000 boys in their nineteenth year would be available for training annually. They would be liable to call to the colors until 32 years of age, passing after the first eleven months of training to the first reserve for the next four years and one month, then into the second reserve, and finally into the unorganized reserve until they reached the age of 45.

First Reserve of 1,500,000 Men

The purpose of the bill is to constitute a first reserve with a strength of 1,500,000, ready to respond instantly to a call to arms. The second reserve, of equal size, but only partially equipped, would require some time to take the field. Eventually there would be one million additional trained men ready to fill gaps at the front.

In addition to these forces there would be the regular army, composed of men choosing military life as a profession, of 24,400 officers and 285,886 enlisted men. Of these 997,000 would form the overseas force, the remainder composing the permanent training personnel which could take care of the instruction of from 492,386 to 654,292 reserve recruits annually. If the proportion of available men for training was greater than the figure given, the permanent training force would have to be proportionately increased.

SERIES OF TORNADOES KILL AND INJURE MANY PEOPLE

In Alabama, Mississippi And Georgia, Great Property Damage Is Caused By Many Storms And Winds

Atlanta, Ga.—Thirteen persons are reported killed and more than a hundred injured in a series of tornadoes that swept portions of Alabama, Georgia and Mississippi.

The most serious loss of life occurred in middle Alabama, where eleven of the deaths occurred. Hollins, Midway, Stewartsville and Whitsett were swept, seven persons being killed and more than a hundred injured in the section, while at Whitsett four negroes were killed.

Two negroes were killd at Lithonia, Ga., and at least thirty dwellings demolished. Six children were injured in a storm at Georgetown, Miss., when a school was blown down. Small tornadoes also struck near Wetumpka, Ala., and Hurtsboro, Ala.

Storm Strikes Lithonia, Ga.

Lithonia, Ga.—Two killed, a number injured, one of whom is dying and thousands of dollars' worth of property laid to waste, was the toll taken by a tornado which descended upon Lithonia February 23 at 4:15 p. m., raged through the town with the fury of elements gone mad, and spent itself against Pine Mountain, three miles distant.

Gaelic Leaguers Placed Under Arrest

London.—More arrests of members of the Gaelic League and of persons identified with the recent rebellion have been made in Ireland, says a dispatch from Dublin, which adds that other arrests were expected later.

American Killed On Torpedoed Ship

Washington.—Robert Allen Haden, an American Presbyterian missionary, stationed at Foo Chow, China, perished when the French liner Athos was destroyed by a submarine, 210 miles east of Malta on February 17. Consul Keblinger at Malta cabled a report of Haden's death to the state department and said that the missionary's address was given as in care of the Presbyterian mission board at Nashville, Tenn. The vessel sailed from Yokohamo December 26 for Marseilles.

Great Britain Cuts Off Non-Essentials

London.—That Great Britain is faced with a serious situation due to a shortage of tonnage was the admission made in the house of commons made by David Lloyd-George, the British prime minister. It was a situation which called for most stringent measures by the government, and, in order to meet it, the importation of non-essentials was to be prohibited. On the ability of the government to solve the tonnage shortage, depended the success of the entente allies' cause, he said.

"BONE DRY" BILL IS PAS

Anti-Liquor Law May Go Into E[illegible] When President Signs The Postal Measure

Washington.—Absolute prohibition legislation took its longest forward stride in the nation's history when the house, after two hours of uproarious debate, approved by a 4 to 1 majority a senate measure which would raise an ironclad barrier against importation of liquor into prohibition territory. It is expected to receive the approval of President Wilson within a week, adding immediately to the "bone dry" territory about one-third of continental United States.

Although some members have given it as their opinion that the legislative features added to the postal bill would not be effective until July 1, the effective date of the appropriations it carries, senators and representatives who are considered authorities said that all the legislative riders, including the Reed prohibition amendment, undoubtedly would become operative as soon as the president has signed the measure.

The provision is regarded as the most far-raching that could be enacted by the federal government, and as sweeping as would be possible under any method short of a national prohibition amendment. It would cut off entirely liquor importations, now amounting to millions of dollars annually, into the large number of states which have forbidden manufacture or sale but have permitted importation for personal use.

The vote, as officially announced, was 321 to 72, but a recheck of the roll changed it to 319 to 72. Party line were completely broken down and numerous representatives from prohibition states were recorded in the negative. So large a vote seldom is recorded on any measure.

A provision barring liquor advertisements from the mails in states that prohibit such advertising is included in the measure, which came before the house as a rider to the annual postoffice bill, inserted by the senate last week on motion of Senator Reed by a vote of 55 to 11. Although the appropriation bill will go to conference because the house disagreed to other senate amendments, there is little possibility that the prohibition amendment, concurred in without change, will be altered.

VIGOROUS DEMAND MADE TO FREE AMERICANS

United States Sends Note To Berlin Insisting On Immediate Release Of Yarrowdale Prisoners

Washington.—The United States in a note transmitted to the Berlin foreign office through the Spanish ambassador there, has again demanded the release of the Americans made prisoners on the prize ship Yarrowdale. In the absence of a satisfactory response to an inquiry sent recently, it was decided to demand thir immediate release.

The generally accepted idea that President Wilson will address congress again on the German crisis virtually was confirmed in official quarters. There was no announcement and it was said that the president still was considering his next step, but officials pointed out the necessity of congress making provision for any emergency which might arise after adjournment, and explained that the president would go to the capital not to ask for a declaration of war, but merely for authority to protect American rights.

The president, it was reiterated, is just as anxious as any member of the senate or house to avoid war, although determined that the rights of the United States be respected. One of his reasons for desiring action by congress now instead of risking the necessity for a special session was said to be a belief that a call for an extra session in an emergency might result in dangerous excitement.

People Getting Poor On Big Incomes

Boston.—Bishop William Lawrence, in telling of his work in raising a $5,000,000 pension fund for the Episcopal clergy, said during a sermon at Trinity church that, besides a lesson for a more highly organized church, he had found that people with incomes of from $50,000 to $100,000 are now poor, or on the way to poverty, because they set a pace so near their incomes that when they reach 45 or 50 years of age they are really poor.

Big Gain Made By British Troops

New York.—Again the British forces fighting in France have attacked German positions at several points and been rewarded for their efforts by an aggregate gain of more than 1,150 yards, according to the latest British official communication. South of Armentieres the German line was penetrated deeply on a front of about 650 yards and southeast of Ypres on a front of about 500 yards. Numerous casualties were inflicted on the Germans at both places and prisoners and guns also were taken.

General Pershing Succeeds Funston

Washington.—Major General Pershing has been formally appointed as commander of the southern department, succeeding Major General Funston. The appointment will take effect immediately. General Pershing, after his expedition returned from Mexico, was given command of the entire El Paso district and the largest concentration of troops on the border. After General Funston's death he took over command of the southern department automatically as senior officer in the jurisdiction.

BULLOCK FIRST TO GET FEDERAL AID

HIGHWAY COMMISSION APPROVES COUNTY'S REQUEST FOR APPROPRIATION OF $10,000.

AT THE STATE'S CAPITAL

Interesting News Budget of Happenings in Various Departments of State.

—Montgomery.

Bullock has the honor of being the first county in Alabama to receive the approval of the state highway commission for a portion of the federal appropriation for good roads. The commission approved Bullock's request for $10,000, which, with $10,000 appropriated by Bullock county, will be used in the construction of nine miles of road between Union Springs and Bruceville. The federal government must approve the request, also, before the money can be expended. Several counties have applied for a portion of the appropriation and their petitions will be heard by the state commission soon.

Railroads Seek to Raise Rates.

The railroads of the State have presented a petition to the Public Service Commission asking that they be allowed to raise their party fare passenger rates, that is in cases where ten or more persons travel in a party, from the present rate of 2 cents a mile to 2 1-4 cents.

The object given for the raise is to place the rate on a uniform basis with that of other States. The petition will be considered at the next meeting of the Commission March 5th.

Lower Velvet Bean Rate.

The Atlantic Coast Line Railway notified the Public Service Commission that it has put into effect the same rates on velvet bean meal, that applies to cotton seed meal, from points on their lines to Memphis and other Mississippi river crossings, including St. Louis, and also Eastern and New England points, and to the South Atlantic and Gulf ports for export.

The Louisville and Nashville Railroad has also notified the Public Service Commission that cotton seed meal rates will be allowed on velvet bean meal shipped from Andalusia, Opp and other South Alabama points, to Ohio and Mississippi crossings and to Eastern and Virginia cities. General Freight Manager Defuniak of the L. and N. has informed the Public Service Commission of the satisfaction with which his company views the diversified farming, and has expressed a willingness to co-operate with the farmers of the State in getting better rates for their products.

Governor Gets Reply.

Governor Henderson has received replies to the letters sent the sheriffs of Mobile, Montgomery and Russell Counties, regarding the enforcement of the prohibition laws, it is stated. Following a report made by Attorney General Martin, that the liquor laws were being openly violated in some of the counties, the Governor wrote letters to these sheriffs asking why the laws were not better enforced.

While the Governor has not authorized the publicity of any of the letters, it is understood that a rather strong reply was received, the officials stating that they were enforcing the law to the best of their ability, but were handicapped by lack of funds.

Paroles Granted.

William Russell, who is serving a term in the penitentiary for a felony committed in Morgan county, was paroled into the state insane hospital at Tuscaloosa by Governor Henderson. The parole stipulates that Russell shall be returned to prison to continue his sentence when his mental condition has improved. Governor Henderson granted a parole to W. A. Buckhaults of Bulter county, who was fined $250 and sentenced to five months at hard labor. The offense was not given in the parole. Buckhaults' liberty is conditioned on his conduct in the future.

Health Officers to Report Births.

The State Board of Health has sent to the County Health Officers of the State blank forms to be filled out with the date of birth, sex and color of every child born in the county and the name and address of its mother. The County Health Officer is instructed to mail these forms to the County's representative in Congress, requesting him to send to the mother of the child literature instructing her in the care of the child during the first year of its life.

Overton Exceptions Filed.

The bill of exceptions in the case of David D. Overton of Huntsville, under sentence of death for the murder of Probate Judge W. T. Lawler of Madison county, has been completed and filed with Judge B. M. Miller, who conducted the trial. Judge Miller has 90 days in which to look over the document and determine whether or not it is correct. The case will be submitted to the supreme court at the call of the eighth division which will be taken up early in May.

TRAINING TODAY'S BOYS AND GIRLS

When Impudence Is Disrespect and When Frankness.

BOTH CALL FOR RESTRAINT

What Kind and How Much Are the Real Considerations That Must Be Studied by the Wise Parent.

By SIDONIE M. GRUENBERG.

ONE does not need to be very old to recall the days when all children were well-behaved and respectful to their elders. And those of us who are too young to remember the good old days can get from European visitors the assurance that American children are, on the whole, altogether too free in their speech. Indeed, our visitors from abroad are more frequently shocked by the "impudence" of our children than they are impressed by the height of our buildings.

It must be admitted that our children are rather outspoken. In our reaction against the crushing restraints of puritanism, we have no doubt gone too far. And in rejecting the old standards of human and child conduct we have too frequently failed to establish definite standards of our own. But we are not compelled to choose between disrespect and lawlessness on the one hand, and repression and hypocrisy on the other. Children must have freedom, but they can and should be taught to speak in a more respectful and mannerly fashion.

A great deal of what older people resent as "impudence" is really not offensive in spirit, but when the shocking word is spoken it is not always accompanied by its own explanation. It is necessary for older people to understand what goes on in the child's mind, instead of waiting for the child to make the explanation. There are three common sources of "impudence" that we can learn to understand and to treat. Children unconsciously imitate the tones and expressions that they hear at home or among their associates. If a child is often scolded and reproved in coarse terms, we should not expect him to use gentle and refined speech in situations that call forth his critical and resentful spirit. We are outraged on hearing a young miss say to her father: "You were crazy to go out without your umbrella; you might have seen it would rain." But it does not take us long to find out that the child is using the friendly and conventional language of her own home. There is no question of disrespect or insolence. We learn that the girl does not mean to be offensive. But it is clear that she cannot cultivate reverence while she continues to speak in this manner to her parents. What is at first but an inelegant use of language comes in time to be an unwholesome attitude toward other people. There are two things we may do in such a case. We may either establish the rule that the child must use only certain kinds of expressions and tones in addressing older people, and must avoid others. This would insure the preservation of the outward forms. Or we may furnish the child with the models that we should not fear to have copied. We must decide for ourselves which method we are to prefer; the arbitrary separation of the child's notion of conduct into that which is to be permitted to elders but forbidden to children, and that which is permitted to all, or the cultivation of a wholesome atmosphere of considerateness and respect for others.

When the offensive word or grimace is the genuine expression of a hateful mood, we have a different problem. Under the older ideas of bringing up children the chief emphasis was laid on repressing the outward manifestations of the objectionable feelings. Now, while it is true that to a certain extent the feelings can be smothered as their expression is restrained, there was no positive effort to cultivate friendly or reverent emotions. The result of this policy shows itself too frequently in indifference, in hypocrisy and in some kind of "explosion." Running away from home is an explosion of this kind, being in a large proportion of cases set off by an emotional disturbance for which the child had no suitable means of expression. Where the steam cannot be let off something is likely to break loose violently.

Of course we do not wish our children to have "bad emotions." But beyond the point where they can be safely suppressed it is better that we know just what the children feel. Occasional expressions of ill will or of irreverence may be taken as the occasion for a claring up the moral atmosphere. Talking a situation over with the child will often bring to the surface lingering shreds of spite or bitterness. These gnawing and growing usually only where the children are fairly free to give expression to their feelings, restrained only by what they learn of genuine respect and courtesy.

In many cases what appears as disrespect or worse is merely an indication of ignorance or crudeness. This was illustrated by a little boy of four, whose violent jumping on a rickety stair was interrupted by his cautious grandmother. When the old lady's back was turned the child whispered to his brother, "Don't you wish she was dead?" This was a scandalous thing to hear, and under other circumstances a child saying anything like that would have been mercilessly chastised. But in this case, as in many others, there was neither malice in the child's feelings nor understanding his mind. In all good faith he wished the disturbing grandmother beyond good and evil. A child needs in a case of this kind not reproof or punishment, but enlightenment. He must learn the remoter meanings and implications of the words he uses, and he must learn to speak discriminately.

Whether the undesirable modes of expression that we commonly call impudence are the results of imitating bad models, or the results of unrestrained freedom of expression, our remedies are not to be sought in enforced silence. It is well for us to know first of all what the sources of the impudence are, and then deal with these. We cannot always regulate in advance the language and manners of the associates of our children, but we can do a great deal to make the home impressions what they ought to be. And it is better for us to know just what the children think and feel and improve their thoughts and feelings than to foster hatred and hypocrisy under the cloak of decorum.

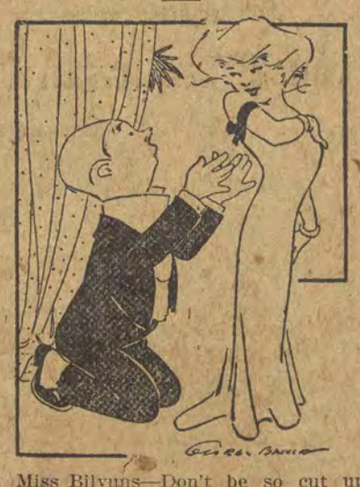
DEVOTED TO HIS NECKTIE

Strange How Neckwear Will Weave Itself About the Tenderest Parts of a Man's Heart.

Every morning we stand before the mirror, flap the large end over and around, push it behind and up and draw it carefully through. It becomes a habit, and yet, like dining, it has a certain fascination. The keen pleasure of a new and uncreased cravat helps to make a whole week brighter. And that dread day when a white spot appears in the center of the front of our favorite green one, or when the beloved brown parts internally, and, while appearing the same without, tells us that it is gone forever—that day our coffee is bitter and the mercury low.

But we never cruelly desert a faithful friend. For a couple of times after the white spot appears we try to tie it farther up or lower down, usually with pathetically ineffectual results. And then we pasture it back somewhere on the rack with the bow-ties that are not good taste any more and the selections made by a worthy aunt at a reduction sale, and let it enjoy a quiet old age. Somehow eventually it disappears. We do not know how. Perhaps a careless maid drops it in a waste-basket, or a plotting wife makes way with it. But most probably, like old patches and college text-books, it has some unseen heaven of its own whither it is wafted after its life amongst us is over.—From the Atlantic.

"Lambamena."



One of the oldest native Madagascar industries is the curing and manufacturing of silk into what is called "lambamena;" "lamba" in Malagasy means dress, shroud, or clothing, and "mena" means red. "Lambamena" is made from a heavy gray native silk principally in the Betsileo country, in the southern part of the central plateau. This material was originally used for wrapping the bodies of prominent natives for burial. The more celebrated or wealthy the deceased or his relatives were, the more lambamena was used, but this custom is being gradually discontinued.

No Cause for Worry.

GATHERED SMILES

HIS RETORT.

Miss Bilyuns—Don't be so cut up about it. I'm not the first woman you've ever loved, and I dare say I'm not likely to be the last one.

Mr. Kutting—No; but you're the richest.

This Funny World.

'Tis a queer old world, I do declare,
In it contentment's rarely found;
Women want men to be quite square—
And men want women 'round.

Facts and Figures.

"The old adage says," remarked the man with the quotation habit, "that a miss is as good as a mile."

"Yes," rejoined the chap who reads the scientific items in patent medicine almanacs, "and with the assistance of a 49-cent parasol, she's as good as 95,000,000 miles."

"What's the answer?" queried the party of the first part.

"Simply this," answered the scientific student. "After a ray of sunshine has traveled the distance mentioned the combination aforesaid—a miss and a parasol—is able to stop it seven feet from earth."

Usual Thing.

DeLong—Hello, old chap; I hear you are hunting for a rich wife?

Shortleigh—Your hearing is good.

DeLong—Haven't bagged anything yet?

Shortleigh—Nothing but my trousers.

Too Much for Him.

"What killed Green? He always looked healthy to me." "He tried to live according to the rules for attaining longevity that a ninety-year-old man gave to a reporter on a Sunday newspaper."—Life.

They're Used to It.

"I don't understand how these women show such perseverance and endurance at picket duty."

"Maybe you don't son, but every married man does."

The Explanation.

"Where did Van Scadds get all his money? He was poor as a church mouse when he came to this town ten years ago."

"Yes, he was poor, but not honest."

In an Unexpected Quarter.

"Do you think peace suggestions exert any practical influence?"

"Sometimes," replied Senator Sorghum, thoughtfully, "more than is desirable—in the stock market."

Seeing an Optimist.

"I haven't seen you for a day or two," said Mrs. Johnson.

"No," replied Mrs. Brown, "I have been busy going to an optimist to have eyeglasses fitted."

ANSWERS THE PURPOSE.

Mrs. Flatte—Is your milk pasteurized?

Mr. Grassneck — Not the milk, ma'am. But one o' the cows is pasturized out in that clearin'. The other'n is stall-fed.

Most Insulting.

"So you proposed to Miss Peacher?"

"Yes. And she treated me like a dog."

"Indeed! What did she do?"

"When I flopped down on my knees she snapped her fingers and said: 'Up, sir!'"

His Confession.

Young Man—Is Miss Browning in?

The Maid—Yes, sir; but she is engaged.

Young Man—Oh, that's all right. I'm what she's engaged to.

TREES THAT BORE APPLES.

A Washington man, while visiting a friend's place in Virginia, became much interested in his experiments in fruit culture.

One day the visitor was making the rounds of the place, being in charge of the friend's young daughter of ten, who acted as guide.

"This tree seems to be loaded with apples," observed the Washingtonian, indicating a particularly fine specimen.

"Yes, sir," assented the little girl; "father says this is a good year for apples."

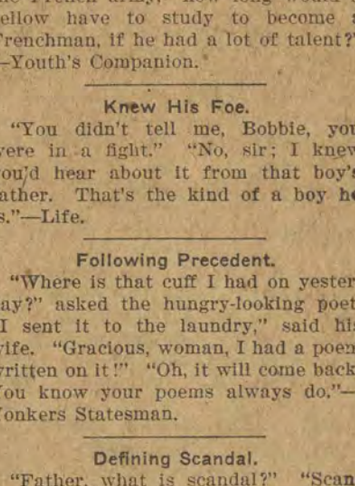
"I am glad to hear that," said the visitor. "Are all your trees as full of apples as this one?"

"No, sir," explained the girl, "only the apple trees."

A Born Diplomat.

Canvasser—Good morning, madam. I am introducing a polish for cleaning silver. It is superior to anything now on the market and the price is only 50 cents a box.

Mrs. Smart (sharply)—Don't want it.



Canvasser—Sorry to have troubled you, madam, but I thought perhaps the lady next door was mistaken.

Mrs. Smart—What did she say?

Canvasser—She said I need not waste my time calling here, as you had no silver.

Mrs. Smart—The impudent thing! Give me half a dozen boxes.

HIS CHANCE.

Ethel—Tom won a hat betting with papa, and papa told him he could have Grace if he'd call it square.

Edward—Is—is your father home tonight?

His Colors.

When the audience baited the speaker
He quite patriotic grew,
His face got red, and then turned white
And the atmosphere was blue.

Hard to Please.

"Are you aware that the United States government spends a large sum every year on its weather bureau?"

"No," replied the confirmed pessimist, "but regardless of whether the amount is great or small, the sort of weather we get is not worth the money."

How Long?

"Mother," said Freddie as he laid down a paper telling of the success of the French army, "how long would a fellow have to study to become a Frenchman, if he had a lot of talent?"—Youth's Companion.

Knew His Foe.

"You didn't tell me, Bobbie, you were in a fight." "No, sir; I knew you'd hear about it from that boy's father. That's the kind of a boy he is."—Life.

Following Precedent.

"Where is that cuff I had on yesterday?" asked the hungry-looking poet. "I sent it to the laundry," said his wife. "Gracious, woman, I had a poem written on it!" "Oh, it will come back. You know your poems always do."—Yonkers Statesman.

Defining Scandal.

"Father, what is scandal?" "Scandal, my son, is something which people do, thinking they will not get caught, and which is talked about by other people, who would do the same thing if they were not afraid they would get caught."—Judge.

Tempora Mutant.

Mr. Goodleigh—"Her age really surprised me; she doesn't look twenty-eight, does she?" Miss Snappe—"Not now, but I suppose she did once."—Candle.

His Enjoyable Trip.

"Have a big time on your trip to New York?" "Oh, yes; I invited a native New Yorker to go out and see his town and he seemed delighted with it."—Florida Times-Union.

Not Qualified.

"I—aw—have a desiah to—aw go on the stage, doncher know," said the callow youth. "Cawn't you—aw—make a place foh me?"

"Sorry I can't oblige you, old chap," replied the theatrical manager, "but I'm afraid most of our scenery is too heavy for you to handle."

On the Strict Q. T.

Hix—What business are you engaged in at present?

Dix—Oh, I'm a silent partner in a deaf and dumb asylum.

PRESIDENT ASKS FOR MORE POWER

APPEARS BEFORE JOINT SESSION AND ASKS CONGRESS TO AUTHORIZE ARMED NEUTRALITY.

GIANT LINER LACONIA SUNK

Two American Women Among Those Drowned—Big Ship Torpedoed Without Warning.

Washington.—President Wilson appeared before Congress and asked for authority to place the United States in a "state of armed neutrality," to resist the German submarine menace.

Invasion of the plain rights of neutrals on the high seas, if continued; further sacrifices of American ships and lives; the intolerable blockade—almost as effectual as if the country were at war—have taken the place of a dreaded "overt act" which was expected to shock the world, and have forced the President into the next step toward war.

President Wilson, asking to be empowered to take whatever steps are necessary, which includes the arming of ships, the convoying of merchantmen by war vessels, or what other steps are necessary, made it plain again that he wanted peace, but not at the price of American lives and rights, driving the American flag from the seas.

Whether or not armed neutrality will mean war, depends on whether Germany realizes that the United States i sready to protest its neutral rights by whatever means are necessary. Senators and Representatives who less than a month ago heard the President pronounce the words which announced a severance of diplomatic relations with Germany—an act which in all history of first-class nations always had led to war—heard in tense silence and grave attention the words which carry the American Republic a step nearer mfwypaoinTAOletao-PP step further in its stand against ruthless sacrifice of neutral rights and lives—and a step nearer war, if it must be.

Following the President's address the immediate response was the introduction in the House of a bill approved in advance by the President, empowering him to furnish guns and gunners to American merchantmen, "to employ such other instrumentalities and methods" as may become necessary, and providing for a $100,000,000 bond issue, to be used in his discretion for war insurance to encourage American commerce to brave the submarine peril. The bill may be brought up in the House at once with special rules for its immediate consideration.

A similar bill was considered by the Senate foreign relations committee.

TWO AMERICANS LOST.

Mrs. Hoy and Daughter of Chicago Among Those Missing.

Queenstown.—The Cunard Line steamship Laconia, of 18,099 tons gross, which sailed from New York February 18 for Liverpool, has been sunk.

It is stated authentically that the Laconia was torpedoed without warning.

It has been definitely ascertained that two Americans were lost on the Laconia, according to the Daily Chronicle's Queenstown correspondent.

Chicago.—Mrs. Mary E. Hoy, who, with her daughter, Miss Elizabeth, is thought to have been lost when the steamer Laconia was torpedoed, is the wife of Dr. Elbert S. Hoy. Dr. Hoy and his son, Austin, are in London, where the son is a representative of an American manufacturing company.

New York.—First cabin passengers on the Laconia totaled 33 and second cabin 42. The crew numbered 216. There were no steerage pasengers.

The Cunard line received confirmation from the British admiralty of the destruction of the Laconia. Americans aboard were: Miss Phyllis Barker, New York; F. P. Gibbons of the Chicago Tribune, Mrs. Mary E. Hoy and Miss Elizabeth Hoy of Chicago and Rev. James Wareing of New York.

Twenty Americans, all native born, were members of the crew of the Laconia.

The Laconia was one of the largest vessels of the Cunard fleet and the largest thus far sunk since the new German submarine warfare was commenced. She resigtered 18,099 tons, was 600 feet long, 71 feet beam and 40 feet depth. She was built in 1911 at Newcastle.

Five thousand sacks of United States mail were carried by the Laconia.

A. C. L. Train Derailed; 8 Killed.

Montgomery, Ala.—Atlantic Coast Line passenger train No. 58, Montgomery to Jacksonville, with Chicago connection, was wrecked at Pron o, Ala., 66 miles southeast of Montgomery. Engineer Harry Waddill and Fireman Nathan Moore, negro, two postal clerks and four passengers were injured but not thought seriously The engine and two cars turned completely over and three other cars were partly over urned. The roadbed was damaged badly for 100 yards.

Abraham Lincoln said once that God must have loved the poor, for He made so many of them.

Nobody has yet called it "watchful waiting," but that is what we now have in the case of Germany.

Maybe when Wilson reaches the limit of his capacity for "investigating" German atrocities, he will decide to do something else.

Sugar As Balm

A German army surgeon uses sugar to heal wounds. The Democratic party healed several political wounds when they repealed the provision slating sugar for the free list, but they left several bad scars.

Not Eulogist of Lincoln

This country has been surfeited with bosh comparing President Wilson with Abraham Lincoln. It is to be observed, however, that the alleged pocket edition of Honest Abe has never sought an opportunity to pay a tribute to the most essentially and greatest American mind this country has ever produced, although he is perenially prepared to lay a wreath at the feet of Jackson or Jeffrson. With Mr. Wilson partisanship extends beyond the grave.

Jersey Cattle Club.

Recently there was organized at Clanton the Clanton Jersey Cattle Club, and the following farmers and Jersey enthusiasts are members:

J. N. Dennis, A. L. Williams, H. B. Roper, P. T. Hinkle, W. L. Popwell and W. W. Gray, all of whom own registered Jersey cows and the club was fortunate in securing a fine young herd bull from Raymond L. Pike, of Geneva, O., sired by Lou's Forono 106614, whose dam and two grand dams average over 966 lbs. butter in a years test. The dam of the young bull is Figgis 85th of Hood Farm, a register of merit, daughter of Pogis 9th of Hood Farm, with a record 410 lbs butter as a two year old.

Without doubt this is one of the best bred bulls in the state and he shows to be a good individual. When we take into consideration the fact that the average dairy cow of the state produces less than 150 lbs. of butter per year we can begin to realize the benefit to be derived from breeding to a bull whose ancestors has producd as high as 1047 lbs. in a year.

War, Properity, and High Prices.

"Economically speaking, there is no doubt at all that the great rise in prices in the United States, which has been the true source of our remarkable industrial properity, has been due primarily to an increase in the export demand for the products of our industries from about 5 per cent of the total volume of those products to some 10 or 12 per cent—this increase being almost exclusively in products required for war uses."—Arthur Richmond Marsh, editor of the Economic World. But President Wilson demanded an appropriation of $400,000 to investigate the cause.

A Procrastinating Secretary

Naval officers at Washington are not reassured by the course which Secretary Daniels has been pursuing in the face of the German crisis. He has appeared willing, even anxious, to forward all measures which would permit him to spend more money and to exercise larger power; but he has displayed a remarkable reluctance to utilize his existing authority to mobilize the naval force of the country in anticipation of hostilities. Mr. Daniels evidently still clings to the Bryanic theory of millions of men springing to arms over night in the event of a national necessity, and he carries this grotesque theory over into the sea, where he evidently thinks it possible to assemble widely scattered naval units in a breath's time.

Submarines No Barrier

A special foreign trade bulletin, recently issued by the National Association of Manufacturers, says:

"For many months submarine activity has been very great on the part of the Central Powers and large numbers of enemy ships have been destroyed. Nevertheless the import trade of the countries most directly affected has notably increased."

One of the countries most directly affected is the United States. Has the association taken into consideration the part which the Wilson-Underwood tariff took in making our increased import trade possible despite the risks involved?

GIVE US BEAN AGAIN

Some time next month the county Board of Education is going to appoint a Superintendent of Education for Chilton county for another term.

It is the hope of The Banner that the Board will give us Prof. Bean again in this important position. We believe it is likewise the hope of a big majority of the people of the county. Especially are those who are actively engaged in educational work, willing and anxious to see Mr. Bean rappointed to the position.

Our reasons and the reasons for the many others desiring that Mr. Bean continue as our Superintendent are obvious to everyone who has even so much as pretended to keep abreast of the educational and school progress of our rural schools.

During his past administration he has supervised our schools in a masterly and very creditable manner. He has kept his eyes open to progress and development in many ways. He has labored zealousy for better schools, better teachers, better facilities in every way, in order to bring to the children of our county the very best obtainable for them in the most important element of their materialization—an education.

Mr Bean has made us a good official the like of whom might not be easily found. He is an applicant for reappointment to the position, and we can but believe that our County Board will not hesitate to reinstate him in his position for another term, without any question whatever.

Good, "Harmless Henry."

"We haven't the slightest excuse for getting into the world war, if we will not try to take ammunition into the war zone on American ships and keep our rich snobs at home, or let them go at their own risk. In other words if we get into it, it will be because we simply butt into it. If we just want to help the allies lick Germany, we ought to say so and go to it. There is no doubt but what they will get it and the sooner the better it will be for all concerned, but for us to try to provoke war without the slightest reason therefor, is rediculous in the extreme.—Collinsville Curior."

We say "correct and go head" Bro. Smith. If this government would quit trying to protect the big mucks while they perpetuate the war by carrying on their munitions trade, and look more upon the concern of us "underdogs" who must bear the brunt, there would be little liability of Uncle Sam having to engage in the European muddle. The Big Corporations have persuaded the government to put aside its efforts at strict neutrality, and run the risk of being drawn into the war, in order to give them the opportunity to harvest a few more cool millions.

The Commissioners want every citizen of the county who can possibly do so to come to the mass meeting at the court house Saturday. Don't pass this appeal by lightly. You are a citizen of the county, and therefore should be interested in its welfare. Come out and lend your efforts to the court in solving the financial problems of our county so that all may be benefitted.

Foodstuffs by the thousands of tons is piled upon the wharves at New York, waiting to be loaded on vessels and taken over to England to feed the warring peoples; or else be sunk on the way and devoured by the whales and sharks. And right there in the same city poor women and children are begging the city authorities to aid them getting something to eat to keep from starving. That looks like America first, don't it? Yes, America to starve and suffer first.

THE BUSINESS BREEDS

The right kind of poultry will help you solve the boll weevil problem. My hens have the laying habit bred into them, by selecting heavy layers and the sons of heavy layers to breed from year after year. To be profitable poultry must be bred to lay.

Diversified Paragraphs

It is no longer a question of what to grow and where to sell it, but a question of what you have for sale and what you will take for it.

All that is necessary to make Alabama prosperous is a favorable season and a good crop. Anything a farmer produces that can be eaten or worn will sell at fancy prices, if the quality is good and it is properly prepared for the market.

The farmer who works hard and studies his business has the best future before him right now, that he has ever had in his whole life-time.

There is a national shortage in feed and food stuffs. The South can produce earlier than the North. The first to produce will get the highest price. Mr. Southerner it is your opportunity.

There is a bug, worm, or weevil for everything that grows. If you are afraid of bugs, worms and weevils, you are not a successful farmer.

There is no royal road to agricultural success. Nature has many ways of forcing one to earn that which he gets.

Many things can be prevented that cannot be cured. The time to control a pest is to deal it a death blow when it first starts.

A field of cotton that is freed of weevils before squares are infested will be fairly saf for the rest of the seasons. "Nip them in the bud."

The potato bug can be controlled if the plants are sprayed or sprinkled with a weak solution of Arcenate of Lead, beginning when the plants first emerge from the ground and applying about once a week for four or five weeks. One should be careful not to use too much and too strong a solution that will poison the vitality of the plant. It is difficult to control potato bugs after they have deposited eggs on the under side of the leaves. Kill the adults before they start a family and the crop will be safe.

Physical or mental labor is a habit that produces profit; people who learn to love labor get play out of everything they do. Play is nothing other than fascinating work. If you want to be happy and prosperous, get the habit and teach it to your children while they are little.

PUBLIC INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS OF THE K. OF P.

A public installation of officers of the K. of P. Lodge, situated at Clanton, will be held at the court house, Thursday evening, March 8, at 8 o'clock.

Our visiting brothers, Benj. A. Taylor, Grand Chancellor Commander, Mayer W. Aldridge, Grand Keeper of Records and Seals, and Bro. Dalberg, Insurance Commissioner of K. of P. of Alabama will lend impressiveness to the importance of the occasion. The general public, ladies especially, are cordially asked to attend that they may see as far as possible what Pythiasism means. We think it is worth while that such truth be disseminated, that an order aiming at universal brotherhood and what was highest and best when Chilvary was in flower should be to more people, as those who honor its castle hall, an exhilirating inspiration.

The event will have a charm that will impress the visitors as time well spent. To the people we say that the Grand Keeper of Records and Seals is a speaker of no mean attainments, and he has an address especialyl prepared to interest the ladies in Pythiasism. To forcible remarks you will give head, and the installation will be impressive and picturesque. You will feel better having witnessed it; you will be happier having caught the motto, "Be generous, brave and true."

UNION SPRINGS

We have been having some bad weather, oat crop is killed, garden and farm work backward. Measles have struck this part, and we fear the school will be injured thereby.

S. N. Waldrup made a business trip to Centreville Monday.

Miss Tempie Smith visited friends at South Mars Hill Friday.

Several musicals have been recently held in this community.

Several have visited Mr. Waldrup's recently to hear the voice of the late Pastor Russell on the angelophone.

Your correspondent attended the District Sunday School Convention at Oak Grove Saturday. It was quite a success. The talks of Profs. McDonald, Johnson, Williams Brothers, and Miss Phala Belle Roper were really good. The community did their part well. Prof. Johnson was chairman, Miss Roper Secretary.

Rev. Abercrombie of Cox's will preach at Union Springs Chapel on the 3rd. Sunday in March at 10:30 A.M. Singing in the afternoon.

This part escaped the fury of the storm king Friday afternoon but below and East of Cox and on Sand Mountain it was severe. North of us it was severe, demolishing Splawn's gin and mill and some other buildings. No one fatally injured.

It is good of our commissioners to be willing to consult the people. We are expecting fine things of our new commissioner, Mr. Vinson.

EVERGREEN

Everything around Evergreen is doing just fine now.

We regret very much that our school at Evergreen closed last Friday to be finished this summer. There is one thing we can all say, we have had one of the best schools here this time that we have ever had. Prof. J. C. Weldon, our Principal and Miss Amie Hand our assistant teacher have done the best work in our school that has ever been done at Evergren and the best of all the school closed with the best of love to both teachers and pupils. We wish Prof. Weldon and Miss Hand the best of success in all their work and hope to have them with us again this summer.

Sunday school at Floyd is fine. Don't forget the singing at Floyd every Sunday afternoon.

There is going to be a school meeting at Evergreen next Saturday at 2:00 p.m. After the school meeting we are expecting to hold another meeting pertaining to our community fair. All who are interested in these meetings will be present, and let us all take hold of these meetings and come to the front with our school and our community. We can have a community that we will be proud of and a community that we will be proud to hear that such men as Mr. Conway and others who are coming to teach us something that will be for our good.

MT. PLEASANT

As there has not been any thing from this community in a great while I will let you hear from us.

Health here is not very good at preasant, everybody is just about down with the Grippe.

Mrs. Ellen Cocer is visiting home folks this week.

Miss Pearlie Waldrup spent Tuesday night with Misses Grace and Elsie Robinson.

A crowd of boys and girls from this place went to Rocky Mount Sunday afternoon and reported a nice time.

Misses Martha and Nellie Campbell, Grace and Elsie Robinson, Pearlie Waldrup and Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Stephenson went fishing last week and caught several fish and a bad cold.

Mrs. Stephenson dined at Mr. R. F. Robinson's Sunday.

School closed at Rocky Mount last Thursday afternoon, and Prof. A. B. Baxley left Sunday.

Our Sunday school is still going on through cold and rain, it has been pretty small for some time, but hope the weather will stay better and the school will grow from now on.

With much success to the Union-Banner and its many readers.

Half Your Living Without Money Cost

A right or wrong start in 1917 will make or break most farmers in the South. We are all facing a crisis. This war in Europe puts things in such uncertainty that no man can foresee the future with any degree of clearness.

The sure and certain increase in cotton acreage means lower cotton prices next fall. Cost of all food and grain products is high, so high that no one can afford to buy and expect to pay out with cotton.

It's a time above all others to play safe; to produce all possible food, grain and forage supplies on your own acres; to cut down the store bill.

A good piece of garden ground, rightly planted, rightly tended and kept planted the year round, can be made to pay half your living. It will save you more money than you made on the best five acres of cotton you ever grew!

Hastings' 1917 Seed Book tells all about the right kind of a money saving garden and the vegetables to put in it. It tells about the field crops as well and shows you the clear road to real farm prosperity. It's Free. Send for it today to H. G. HASTINGS CO., Atlanta, Ga.—Advt.

Yo: Ho; Freckle Face

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

Do you know how easy it is to remove those ugly spots so that no one will call you freckle-face?

Simply get an ounce of carpol, extra strong, from your druggist, and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of freckles and get a beautiful complexion. The sun and winds this month have a strong tendency to bring out freckles, and as a result more carpol is sold in these months. Be sure to ask for the extra strong, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove the freckles.—Carpol Laboratories, Boston, Mass., Sta. M. Mail orders filled.

Kirstin Stump Puller

One Man — Horse Power

The Kirstin Method guarantees a saving of 10% to 50% over all other methods of land clearing. The Kirstin Method not only pulls your stumps but gets rid of them after they are pulled.

Yank out your stumps! Transform your no-man's-land into money-making, cultivated fields. Gold is under your stumps—get it out, put it in bank. Clear your land and produce big crops.

The Kirstin Method clears land ready for the plow. It has vastly increased the productive value of more than 35,000 farms, most of them in the South.

No deeply imbedded tap root is too big for the Kirstin Horse Power Puller. Its mighty strength is irresistible because of its triple power and other exclusive Kirstin features. It will clear more than two acres at one setting without strain to man, horse or machine. It has been the leader for 21 years.

One man without horses can pull the biggest stumps, too, with the Kirstin One Man Puller. A little push on the handle gives tons of pull on the stump. This enormous power is developed by use of double leverage. It gives an ordinary 17-year-old farm boy a giant's power.

My Kirstin has pulled trees with tap roots larger than the bodies of the trees; roots tapering down 19 feet and laterals 24 feet. I have pulled everything I ever hitched to.
—R. L. MAINLAND, Davenport, Fla.

I cannot give the Kirstin too much praise; it does all you claim. Can pull anything I anchor to. It cost only 3c to 5c per stump to clear my land.
—FRED HAGELE, Cynthiana, Ky.

Send for Free Book We want you to read our new book, "The Gold in Your Stump Land." It contains lots of valuable information on all kinds of land clearing. It proves that the Kirstin Method is the cheapest, quickest and best way to clear land.

It tells about Kirstin Service, forever free to all Kirstin owners. It contains letters from Southern farmers who own Kirstins and are glad they do. Don't buy a puller until you read this book.

STOMACH MISERY GAS, INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" fixes sick, sour, gassy stomachs in five minutes.

Time it! In five minutes all stomach distress will go. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas, acid, or eructations of undigested food; no dizziness, bloating, or foul breath.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest and most certain indigestion remedy in the whole world, and besides it is harmless.

Please for your sake, get a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any store and put your stomach right. Don't keep on being miserable—life is too short—you are not here long, so make your stay agreeable. Eat what you like and digest it; enjoy it, without dread of rebellion in the stomach.

Pape's Diapepsin belongs in your home anyway. Should one of the family eat something which doesn't agree with them, or in case of an attack of indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis or stomach derangement at daytime or during the night, it is handy to give the quickest relief known. Adv.

Strong Drinks Irritate

Strong drinks like beer, whiskey, tea and coffee, irritate the kidneys and habitual use tends to weaken them. Daily backache, with headache, nervousness, dizzy spells and a rheumatic condition should be taken as a warning of kidney trouble. Cut out, or at least moderate, the stimulant, and use Doan's Kidney Pills. They are fine for weak kidneys. Thousands recommend them.

An Alabama Case

S. B. Goins, Sr., railroad engineer, 108 Whitman St., Montgomery, Ala., says: 'I was troubled by a dull pain in the small of my back all the time. It was caused by weakened kidneys, brought on by constant riding. It took Doan's Kidney Pills only a short time to rid me of this trouble and I am glad to say that I have had no sign of it since. I am glad to tell others how effective this medicine is in curing kidney disorders."

An Equipment for Easter

A hat, a coat, and a bag, each evidently made to keep the others company, provide an equipment for spring that is above criticism. Silk jersey, suede, and woolens, in fascinating colors, present their several lures, and panne velvet is among the possibilities that engage the attention of fashionables when they consider spring coats. It seems that we may choose coats in any length we see fit, but that a preference is already evident for half and three-quarter length garments. Even the motorcoat, which has been long and broad and big in every way, is rumored to the shrinking in all directions—except the collar.

The coat shown in the picture is of silk jersey in Talbot rose. It has a square cape collar, overlaid with a collar of crepe. It is plain and straight-hanging and has a wide girdle of the same material. It fastens at the front with covered buttons.

The hat of gray silk figures with little rose-colored flower sprays and faced with rose-colored braid is trimmed with a fan of plaited silk at the front. A narrow band of black velvet ribbon is tied in a small bow below the fan. The bag employs the same silk as the hat, with plain gray silk, and is suspended by cords covered with the plain silk. It is a simple but very clever design, and is lined with rose-colored silk.

This matching up of hat, coat, and bag is more a matter of color than of materials. The hat may be of straw and silk, the bag of silk, and the coat of any material you choose. If in doubt on this point you may select wool jersey with the certainty that it is impossible to have anything more chic.

Dainty Dress With Double Skirt

Just by way of varying the styles in little maid's thin, white dresses a few models have been presented having double skirts. Most of the dresses made in this way are short-waisted, with half or three-quarter-length sleeves. Overskirts are about as long as the skirt under them, and their fullness is disposed in plaits, as a rule, although shirrings and smockings are well considered.

Batiste seems to be the favorite material for little girls' dresses, but any of the fine sheer cotton fabrics answer the purpose. The finest weaves are chosen in order that laundering will have them unchanged. Cheaper grades, in sheer cottons, thicken up and lose their crispness and daintiness from tubbing.

The little dress shown in the picture is a pretty model, with double skirt, for the tiny maid of three years or so. It has a baby waist, with elbow-length sleeves and round neck, and fastens in the back with very small pearl buttons. Embroidered chiffon organdie and narrow val insertion and edging are the time-honored means for embellishing nearly all these dainty "dress-up" frocks. Bands of embroidered organdie are set in, between groups of fine tucks, at the front and back of the waist. There is a narrow frill of lace about the neck and at the edge of the bands that confine the sleeves.

The underskirt is straight about the bottom, with a row of insertion and edging for a finish. The overdress is scalloped at the bottom and finished in the same way as the underskirt. Two rows of insertion are set in it and it is plaited about the waist where it is set to the bodice.

Julia Bottomley

Interesting Skirts.

In view of the American woman's invariable objection to drapery in her suits, and in deference to the desire for something extremely simple and in one piece, the tailored skirt for spring, while having broken lines, will express drapery in very limited degree.

Thus, instead of being gored and seamed, so as to assume the barrel shape, the new "tonneau" skirts of tailored type are often cut in two circular portions; an upper part, extending from the hip to the knee, and a lower part, from hem to knee, these circular pieces being joined in a seam at their widest spread. The result is a very interesting new skirt, narrow at waist and hem and wide at the knee (or point of joining), and, therefore, of barrel type. There will be a difference of at least a yard in the width of this type of skirt through the center and at hem and waist.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of Sunday School Course of Moody Bible Institute.)

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR MARCH 4

JESUS FEEDS FIVE THOUSAND.

LESSON TEXT—John 6:1-14.

GOLDEN TEXT—Give us this day our daily bread.—Matt. 6:11.

This parable marks the high level of the year of our Lord's popularity. It is such an important miracle as to be the only one recorded in all four gospels. Be sure to use a good harmony. The returning twelve (Matt. 11:1) are taken by their master to a desert place that they might find rest (Mk. 6:31) and that he might comfort their hearts over the death of John the Baptist (Matt. 14:1-12). The multitude would not grant them the right use of their leisure, but flocked to this retreat in the desert. They followed that they might listen to his gracious words, and perhaps behold some new wonder (v. 2). Carlisle said he saw in England "forty millions, mostly fools." Jesus saw the multitude, and was moved, not with sarcasm, but with compassion which took a tangible form of service. Mark tells us (6:34) that Jesus was first of all teaching the multitude. It is better to teach a man how to help himself than to help the man. We should not be surprised at Philip's slowness of faith. Moses in a like manner was once nonplussed as to how to feed the multitude in the wilderness. (Num. 11:21-23). It is not so much how great the need nor how little we possess; rather, is that little given over to God? Andrew, who had revealed Jesus unto Peter, discovers as though in desperation a boy whose mother had thoughtfully provided him with a lunch, consisting of five barley biscuits and two small herring (v. 9); at least that much remained. This is a great commentary upon the tide of interest at this time, that the boy should not have eaten his entire lunch, for the boy's hunger is proverbial. It seems as though Jesus emphasizes the helplessness of the disciples in order that he may show his power. His command "Give ye them" (Mk. 6:37) teaches us that we are to give such as we have, and not look to others nor to do our charity by proxy (Prov. 11:24-25). Again the Saviour asks his disciples as though he would teach them the resources of his kingdom. Give what you have, and he will bless and increase it to the supplying of the needs of a multitude. The secret of success was when he took up the loaves, and, "looking up," God also saw that day and blessed it. We need to observe the systematic procedure. The people are seated or reclining upon the ground in ranks or in companies, the master blessing and breaking the boy's cakes, giving first to the disciples. God works miracles through human agencies only. The result of this systematic procedure was that they were all satisfied, "filled" (v. 12). Luke adds that "all did eat" (Lk. 9:17). Not alone, however, was there divine order and lavishness, but there were economy and thrift as well, for Jesus gave careful direction as to the fragments. The lavishness is shown by the fact that the baskets into which the fragments were gathered were each probably large enough in which to sleep. This conservation process was a stinging rebuke to the improvident orientals and to present-day prodigals of that wonderful bounty with which God has blessed our land. God gives to us that we may use for other. Joy dies unless it is shared. Jesus is the living bread (John 6:48), and will satisfy hunger and life even as bread generates in the human body heat, vitality and power; so he would still feed the hungry soul of mankind. We have at hand the word, and it is for lack of it that men die in the deepest, truest sense of that word. The poverty and perplexity of the disciples in his presence and in the presence of this great need are being repeatd over and over today, and yet it is absurd. We have not enough to feed the multitude. Our few loaves of amusements, mental activities and social service will not feed them, but when we break unto them the Living Bread, they have enough and to spare. The difficulty with the distribution of material bread for the needs of mankind is not that there is not enough grain, but rather that in the process of distribution certain companies of men can control the fruits of the earth, and withhold them from the consumer for their own profit. Is there not a parable in this for the church in that it is so much concerned with its own joys, pleasures and profits that it is withholding from the mass of mankind, especially in the foreign field, the bread which alone can bring life and immortality to light?

Too Sick To Work

Convincing Proof of This Fact.

Ridgway, Penn. — "I suffered from female trouble with backache and pain in my side for over seven months so I could not do any of my work. I was treated by three different doctors and was getting discouraged when my sister-in-law told me how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her. I decided to try it, and it restored my health, so I now do all of my housework which is not light as I have a little boy three years old." —Mrs. O. M. RHINES, Ridgway, Penn.

Mrs. Lindsey Now Keeps House For Seven.

Tennille, Ga.—"I want to tell you how much I have been benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. About eight years ago I got in such a low state of health I was unable to keep house for three in the family. I had dull, tired, dizzy feelings, cold feet and hands nearly all the time and could scarcely sleep at all. The doctor said I had a severe case of ulceration and without an operation I would always be an invalid, but I told him I wanted to wait awhile. Our druggist advised my husband to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has entirely cured me. Now I keep house for seven and work in the garden some, too. I am so thankful I got this medicine. I feel as though it saved my life and have recommended it to others and they have been benefited".—Mrs. W. E. LINDSEY, R. R. 3, Tennille, Ga.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

"CASCARETS" FOR SLUGGISH BOWELS

No sick headache, sour stomach, biliousness or constipation by morning.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out to-night and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse your stomach; remove the sour fermenting food; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret to-night straightens you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean, healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love Cascarets because they never gripe or sicken. Adv.

IS CHILD CROSS, FEVERISH, SICK

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Adv.

SWAMP-ROOT STOPS SERIOUS BACKACHE

When your back aches, and your bladder and kidneys seem to be disordered, remember it is needless to suffer—go to your nearest drug store and get a bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. It is a physician's prescription for diseases of the kidneys and bladder.

It has stood the test of years and has a reputation for quickly and effectively giving results in thousands of cases.

This prescription was used by Dr. Kilmer in his private practice and was so very effective that it has been placed on sale everywhere. Get a bottle, 50c and $1.00, at your nearest druggist.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET.

A well-known actress gives the following recipe for gray hair: To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off. Adv.

INOCULATION BENEFICIAL TO ALFALFA

HARVESTING ALFALFA ON MISSISSIPPI FARM.

(By P. G. HOLDEN, Former Dean of Iowa State College.)

Inoculation never hurts, is generally beneficial and often essential to the growing of alfalfa.

In regions where alfalfa has not been grown it is frequently found to be very beneficial to inoculate the ground by sowing three or four hundred pounds of soil secured from a field where alfalfa has been grown for a number of years; or where it is more convenient, artificial cultures such as nitrogen, farmogerm, etc., may be applied.

Well Prepared Seed Bed.

Alfalfa seed may be either drilled, or sowed broadcast and harrowed in. The seed can be more evenly distributed if one-half is sown in one direction and the other half sown at right angles. It is always a good plan to sow the seed a little thicker around the edges of the field, as this portion of the field is more subject to injury from insects, foxtail, etc.

While it is the custom in the humid regions to sow 20 pounds of seed to the acre, ten to twelve pounds is sufficient. If evenly distributed this will give from fifty to sixty seeds for every square foot, while one thrifty plant to the square foot is sufficient.

A well-prepared, firm, solid seedbed, plenty of good barnyard manure, and summer fallow to kill the weeds, are most important. Then comes lime. Inoculation and phosphorus are frequently beneficial. Ground too wet for corn is not suited to alfalfa.

Cut at Proper Time.

When possible to do so it is best to cut alfalfa in the late afternoon or evening. Dew or rain on the freshly-cut alfalfa will not injure it. In the morning the tedder should be started as soon as most of the dew is off and before there is any danger of knocking off the leaves. It is often advisable to go over it more than once. It should be cut before it is in full bloom or as soon as the young sprouts or shoots start to grow at the base of the plant.

When alfalfa is left too long before cutting, the stems become woody, and the yield of the next crop is greatly reduced, and in addition the leaves, which are the most valuable part of the plant, fall off.

Equal to Wheat Bran.

The alfalfa should be raked and either put in the barn, or if it is not sufficiently dry, put into haycocks. It is a matter of economy to have two or three hundred hay caps (made of six-cent muslin one yard square) to use in case of bad weather. You may think this is considerable bother, but there is no use in growing alfalfa and then allowing it to spoil.

When we remember that good alfalfa brings us in actual results nearly as great returns as wheat bran, we can better realize the importance of taking care of it. If any of us had 500 "haycocks of bran" in the field, we would take care of them, but with alfalfa we think of it as "just hay."

Alfalfa hay is rather hard to cure, but it is also true that it can be placed in the barn or in stacks much greener than any other kind of hay. Twenty pounds of salt sprinkled over each load of hay will help to prevent heating and add to the palatability of the hay.

Where alfalfa is used for pasture, care should be taken to avoid pasturing it too closely; it should not be pastured down closer than six inches and be sure to leave eight to twelve inches for winter protection. Don't turn stock on too early in the spring.

Alfalfa on Every Farm.

Remember that alfalfa can be grown on your farm. It is no more difficult to grow than clover and is more hardy when once established.

It adapts itself to all kinds and conditions of soil and climate. Alfalfa produces three and sometimes four crops per year in the corn belt.

Alfalfa is the cheapest source of protein. When wheat bran is worth $22 per ton, good alfalfa hay is worth $20 to $22 per ton.

Alfalfa is the most enriching crop we have, and insures larger yields from the crops that follow.

SUMMER FORAGE FOR SWINE

Sweet Sorghums Come at Time It Is Difficult to Have Other Green Feed.

(By W. R. DODSON, Director of Experiment Station, Louisiana State University.)

The sweet sorghums make a very acceptable forage for hogs in the early summer, coming at a time when it is sometimes difficult to have other green feed. Sorghums are most serviceable for grazing during May, June and early July.

The results of experiments at the Louisiana station have not indicated the high value of sorghums as a grazing or soiling crop for hogs they are reputed to have. In fact, we do not place a very high value on them, and commend their use only as a makeshift. The only strong points in their favor are that they give quick returns, and may be had about the time winter crops are not sufficiently matured for best service.

The Early Amber, Tarly Orange or Coleman are to be preferred. Any of these may be sown in drills as soon as danger of frost is passed, though growth will not be rapid until warm weather prevails. The middle of March to the first of April is ordinarily a good time to plant sorghum. However, the crop may be planted as late as the first of August. When sown in drills, with rows of three and a half feet apart, it takes about twelve pounds per acre to give a thick stand. It is best to plant the seed thick so the stalks will be small.

The crop should be well cultivated until it is about two feet high, if it is to be grazed, or as conditions may require, if it is to be soiled. Planted in early spring, the sorghums will mature in about 110 to 120 days.

LIVE STOCK AIDS FERTILITY

European Countries Held Up as Examples of What Such Methods Would Do for Crops.

(By C. A. WILLSON, Kentucky Experiment Station.)

Beef cattle would conserve the fertility of our farms and increase our average crop production. Writers often point out to us the wonders that have been accomplished in increased crop production in the Old World countries through the utilization of crops and feeds by cattle and the return of manure to the farms, and have held up to us Denmark, Germany and other countries as marked examples of what such methods would do for our crop fields.

HOGS ARE GOOD MONEY CROP

Many Factors Enter Into Cause for Increased Interest Being Taken in Swine Industry.

(By I. W. CARPENTER, Mississippi Experiment Station.)

Due to the recent boom in pork production, more people are going into the hog business than ever before. This is accounted for by several factors, the greatest doubtless being the splendid work of the county agents in securing a market for the small breeder through co-operative shipping. Since learning the prices to be expected on the central markets many men who started out by shipping five or ten hogs along with their neighbors' shipments are now preparing to ship in carload lots. Other factors in the growth of the hog industry are the pig club work, and the failure of the cotton crop causing the farmer to raise hogs as the next best cash crop.

To get the best results in hog raising a rotation of pasture and forage crops must be planted to furnish grazing the year round, and it is essential that a good supply of feed be assured before buying or breeding the hogs. The boar, too, should be the best available, this point often being the factor that determines success or failure in pork production. Pigs sired by a good boar will grow better in the feed lot and bring a premium on the market. And last, but not least, the most successful men carefully outline plans, getting the criticisms of experienced men and adhering to schedule after having secured the best available information on the subject.

VELVET BEAN MEAL FOR COW

Florida Station Finds Feed Equal in Value to Cottonseed Meal—Cheaper to Raise.

The Florida station found that cows produced as much milk when fed a ration of 4.3 pounds of velvet beans in the pod, 10 pounds wheat bran and 24.5 pounds Japanese cane silage as when given a ration of 3 pounds cottonseed meal, 10 pounds bran, and 34 pounds cane silage. Hence 4.3 pounds of velvet beans in the pod were fully equal to 3 pounds of cottonseed meal. The station further states that the Florida farmer can produce about five tons of velvet beans for the cost of one ton of cottonseed meal.

The state market agent has received reports that velvet beans in the pod can be procured at $14 per ton in Alabama and in Georgia.—Clemson College Bulletin.

CALOMEL SICKENS! IT'S MERCURY! DANGER

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Straightens You Up Better Than Salivating, Dangerous Calomel and Doesn't Make You Sick—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Wonderful Discovery Destroying Sale of Calomel Here.

You're bilious! Your liver is sluggish! You feel lazy, dizzy and all knocked out. Your head is dull, your tongue is coated; breath bad; stomach sour and bowels constipated. But don't take salivating calomel. It makes you sick, you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel crashes into sour bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping.

If you want to enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight. Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal money-back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick.

Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headache and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and your bowels regular. You will feel like working; you'll be cheerful; full of vigor and ambition.

Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless, and can not salivate. Give it to your children. Millions of people are using Dodson's Liver Tone instead of dangerous calomel now. Your druggist will tell you that the sale of calomel is almost stopped entirely here.—Adv.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF HAIR STOPS FALLING

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable luster, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any store, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Adv.

LIFT YOUR CORNS OFF WITH FINGERS

How to loosen a tender corn or callus so it lifts out without pain.

Let folks step on your feet hereafter; wear shoes a size smaller if you like, for corns will never again send electric sparks of pain through you, according to this Cincinnati authority.

He says that a few drops of a drug called freezone, applied directly upon a tender, aching corn, instantly relieves soreness, and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts right out.

This drug dries at once and simply shrivels up the corn or callus without even irritating the surrounding skin.

A small bottle of freezone obtained at any drug store will cost very little but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

If your druggist hasn't stocked this new drug yet, tell him to get a small bottle of freezone for you from his wholesale drug house.—adv.

What Is Uric Acid?

Everyone has uric acid in the system, but naturally in small quantities. Excessive amount is caused by eating too much meat and foods that ferment in stomach. The kidneys, being the filters of the blood, are supposed to separate and throw the poisons out of the system. Weak, tired and overworked kidneys fail to do this, hence the uric acid accumulates and the urate salts are carried by the blood to the solid tissue structure, causing backache, lumbago, rheumatism, dropsy, drowsiness, and tired feeling.

To overcome the trouble is only a matter of toning up the kidneys, and this is best done by a treatment with Anuric, three times a day. Anuric is a recent discovery of Dr. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y., and can be obtained at any drug store.

Experience taught Doctor Pierce that Anuric is a more powerful agent than lithia in dissolving uric acid, and it is then carried out of the system.

THE ONWARD MARCH of Bronchitis, and deep seated Coughs is arrested by Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

In those scrofulous conditions of the blood which invite Consumption; in severe, lingering Coughs, and Weak Lungs, which threaten you with this fatal disease, and when other help has failed—this medicine is a proved remedy.

As a blood-cleanser, strength-restorer, and tonic it is sure to benefit. In all lingering Bronchial and Throat affections, and in every disease that can be reached through the blood, it never fails to benefit or cure. In tablet or liquid form.

The machinery of the body needs to be well oiled, kept in good condition just as the automobile, steam engine or bicycle. Why should the human neglect his own machinery more than that of his horse or his engine? Yet most people do neglect themselves. Clean the system at least once a week with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

BEST FOR ALL CROPS

SOUTH ATLANTIC GUANO COMPANY

(SUBSIDIARY MORRIS FERTILIZER CO.)

ATLANTA — MONTGOMERY

It is not sufficient that your crop gets an early start to enable it to win the race against drouth, excessive rainfall, rust, shedding and boll weevil. It must have a steady, healthy growth which constant nourishment alone can give, if it is expected to come in ahead on the homestretch.

The South Atlantic Brands not only give all crops a quick start, but by reason of the scientific linking together of the best and most dependable fertilizing materials, they afford constant and steady feeding of the plant and enable it to resist such diseases and conditions as are usually fatal to a weakly, stunted plant. A healthy plant should be kept healthy and that is the office of the South Atlantic Brands.

Send your orders early to your dealer and be sure to name the SOUTH ATLANTIC BRANDS.

METHODIST BOARD OF STEWARDS ENTERTAINED

Rev. and Mrs. Thos. G. Jones entertained the Stewards of the Methodist Church at the Parsonage Friday evening at 7 o'clock.

The guests were met at the door by the host and ushered into the parlor where they informally discussed the topics of the day. The hostess led the way to the dining room where the guests were served a five course dinner consisting of cream, oyster soup, baked chicken, creamed potatoes, apple sauce, apple and celery salad, etc.

Those present at this delightful social meeting were Messrs. J. C. Jones, W. T. Callen, J. W. Stanfield, C. R. Mullins, V. J. Elmore, and J. B. Atkinson, Supt. Sunday School. Mr. J. O. Middleton, Esq., in Montgomery on important legal business, and Mr. P. D. Wilson, slightly indisposed at this time, were the only members of the Board not present.

MARRIAGE OF MR. KIN VINSON AND MISS EFFIE BURNETT

A marriage of interest to many people here-about, was that of Mr. Kin Vinson and Miss Effie Burnett, which took place at the home of the bride near Billingsley on Sunday afternoon.

Judge Reynolds performed the ceremony in the presence of a few friends of the young couple.

Both the bride and groom are well and popularly known here, and have hundreds of friends who congratulate them. Miss Burnett has attended the high school here the last few years, where she became attached to many admiring friends in her circle.

Mr. Vinson is a young man of sterling worth, and well known in the business circles of our town. He has for some years been clerk in the Tax Assessors office, from which position he retired some months ago to enter business of his own.

Mr. and Mrs. Vinson will reside in Clanton in the future.

They have the best wishes of "The Banner."

FARMERS' MEETING

On Monday morning, March 12th at 10 o'clock L. & N. experts on farming, trucking and stock raising will be in Verbena to tell our people how farmers in certain section have risen from proverty to plenty. Come prepared to spend the day if necessary and have written down all the questions you want to ask about gardening, farming, and stock raising.

Everybody is urged to come.

WADE BUYS OUT THE NEW WILSON HOTEL

Mr. J. Q. Wade has purchased the hotel furnishings and equipment of The New Wilson Hotel from Mrs. J. F. Palmer, and the new management took charge of this most modern and up-to-date hostelry on Wednesday.

The Wilson is a hotel of no ordinary advantages. It is far above the average in points of service and general desirbility. No town the size of Clanton can show such a hotel.

We predict for the hotel under the guidance of Mr. Wade, even a wider range of success and popularity than it has heretofore enjoyed.

Teach the boys and girls to think straight and act square and rest assured that they will succeed.—Uncle John in Progressive Farmer.

Lieutenant-Governor Thos. E. Kilby

CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

TO THE PEOPLE OF CHILTON COUNTY:

The affairs of the State of Alabama are very much like those of any large business; the same principles should be applied to their operation. I ask your support of my candidacy for Governor upon the basis of my promise to you that, if elected, I will conduct the affairs of the State according to the principles I have seen sucessfully used in the conduct of private business. I would advocate and use the power of the executive office to put into effect a system of business—a Budget System that would plainly and with the widest possible publicity set forth a plan by which the expenditures shall not exceed the income. By economical management the deficit can be wiped out in a few years. Briefly, I stand for and will work for:

Equalization of the tax burden.

The advancement of all educational interests.

Improvement of public highways.

Encouragement of agriculture.

Better understanding between capital and labor, that the resources of the State may be developed to the fullest possible extent.

A workmen's compensation act that would really compensate injured workmen and their families instead of damage suit lawyers.

Better provisions for the comfort of Confederate Veterans.

Codification of the laws, with simplication as a feature, to the end that laws may be understood by laymen. Re-arrangement of Judicial Circuits and reform of court procedure according to recommendations of the Alabama Bar Association.

The maintenance and strict enforcement of the present prohibition laws; the enforcement of all laws, and the curtailment of the pardoning power of the executive.

The abolishment of the convict lease system. Convict labor should not be used to compete with honest free labor.

Encouragement of capital for the development of the State on equal terms with local capital—no discrimination through exemption from taxation.

I think I am justified in assuring you that my experience in business has equipped me for undertaking this work with reasonable hope of its accomplishment to your satisfaction.

Respectfully, yours, THOS. E. KILBY.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

The Seniors now have their class rings, so they are very dignified this week.

Fonza—John, you know it is pretty cold to walk the campus this week.

John—Yes, but you know we got 50 apiece, and just walked three times.

Fonza— Well, John, that's just three down and seven to go, so hit the grit.

Dick—Say Flem, do you know why Tom Jones goes around looking so sad, you never even see him smile?

Flem—No, why is it Dick, I've noticed this.

Dick—Well some say that Tom was in love and got beat out of his lover, but I say that it is because he can't hold nothing with a visitor that is in town.

The C. C. H. S. base ball team will probably start up their practice next week. They hope to have the best team the high school has ever put out.

Briggs—Ah pshaw Erle, Julius Reynolds can beat you playing tennis, he returns the ball every time.

Erle—That ain't nothing, I can knock one 'em little old balls a hundred yards. Guess you still think he can beat me.

Otto Jones—I poured some high life on a dog and it sure did get a hustle on him.

R. Q. Hayes—Looks like somebody would put some of that stuff on Pat Sartor so he would get to school on time, if it has that effect on anything.

BANK AND POST OFFICE AT COLUMBIANA BURN

Fire in Business Part of Town does Big Damage to Property.

Columbiana, Ala., March 6.—Fire early Tuesday morning destroyed the Columbiana postoffice building and the Columbiana Savings Bank building. The total loss is estimated at approximtely $15,000.

The vaults of both the bank and the postoffice are said to be in good condition and the valuables, including stamps, money and registered mail are thought to be safe.

The fire is thought to have originated in the office of Dr. J. S. Moore, over the postoffce, and was beyond possibility of control before it was discovered. Fire-men directed their efforts toward saving adjacent buildings. The entire town was left in darkness. The telephone exchange of the Southern Bell Telephone Company was in an adjoining building and al local wires were severed.

Hundreds of citizens rushed to the scene when the alarm was sounded, and the goods from all the stores nearest the fire were carried into the streets. The buildings were located in the center of the leading business block, and for a time it was feared that the entir block would be wiped out.

The Columbia Savings Bank today announced that a new building would be erected immediately. Judge Longshore, owner of the post offece building, said another building would be erected as soon as possible. Postmaster C. E. Nevin is in Birmingham todiscuss postoffice arrangements with the Federal authorities.

OPPORTUNITY IS KNOCKING AT DOOR OF THE FARMER

Wade Advises Farmers To Even up Losses of Last Year.

Telegrams and letters just received from an official of New York says that the food bill of that city is one and a half billion dollars annually. They are bombarding Alabama asking for food stuffs at ext[illegible] es which would mean big business, if we had anything to sell. The food strigency will not be relieved until something is produced. The South can produce first and it is up to us to deliver the goods "Anything to eat" and get the money.

M.D. Foshee, comp.

Gardening

Resolve to produce the best garden this year that you have ever produced. The circumstances are such that you can hardly produce too much. A good garden is a sign of good business judgment. Every pretty day that passes without something growing is a protracted loss.

Opportunity.

Opportunity knocks at every man's door at some time. It is certainly knocking at the dor of the Southerner this year and offering extravagant prices for anything to eat or wear. It is your chance to even up the losses of the past, and your tide in the affairs of life which, if taken at the flood stage, will surely lead to prosperity.

Prepare for Corn

Prepare corn land deep and harrow until thoroughly pulverized. Plant upland corn the last half of March. Cultivate corn shallow and fertilize on both sides of the row when the corn is about knee high. Plant one gallon of good sound velvet beans per acre in hills about six feet apart. When fodder is ripe bend the stalk to the ground just above the ear. This will not injure the corn and will prevent the beans from pulling it down and making it difficult to harvest.

Plant corn on rich damp bottoms in May. Prepare the land by breaking and harrowing about three times before planting. The more the soil is cultivated before planting the greater the yield and the less cultivation necessary after planting.

Plant Cotton Early

Prepare land for cotton early and let the ridges settle. Harrow them down level at planting time. The best time to plant is the following: South Alabama from March 15th to April 1st, Middle Alabama from April 1st to April 15th, and North Alabama from April 15th to April 25th. Cotton planted in May hereafter will be very uncertain.

The best time to fight boll weevil is the early stages of the crop before squares are infested. Cultivate shallow, often and late.

Commissicner of Agriculture.

VOTE ON BOND ISSUE SET FOR 16 OF APRIL

People of County will have a Voice in Deciding what shall be Done.

BOND ISSUE OF $200,000.00 IS PROPOSED TO BE EFFECTED.

Commissioners Court Believes This is Best Way in Which to Arrange Debt Already Standing Out Against County.

At the meeting of the Commissioners Court here Saturday, an order was issued calling for a vote of the people on April 16th upon the proposition of a bond issue of $200,000 by Chilton County, to take care of the county debt on roads, which is now overdue.

The commissioners called for a second conference with the people on last Saturday, but owing to the bad weather there were not many in attendance. But is was decided to call the election for April 16th and give the people a chance to express themselves on the proposition.

It is the hope of Judge Reynolds and the Court of Commissioners that the voters may be fully informed of the nature of the county's condition, and the appliance of bonds as a remedy. To that end it is probable that before the election comes off a speaking tour will be made over the county for the purpose of giving information to all voters on anything they may desire to know of the matter.

ARMED NEUTRALITY KILLED IN SENATE

Twelve Senators Defied The Wishes Of 76 Colleagues And Block Vote On The Measure

WILSON ISSUES STATEMENT

76 Senators—30 Republicans And 40 Democrats—Sign Manifesto, Showing How Senate Really Stood

Washington.—The Sixty-fourth congress expired without a vote being reached in the senate on the armed neutrality bill.

Twelve senators, led by Senator La Follette, and encouraged by Senator Stone, Democratic chairman of the foreign relations committee, in a filibuster denounced by President Wilson's spokesman as the most reprehensible procedure in the history of any civilized nation, defied the will of an overwhelming majority in congress up to the last minute and denied to the president a law authorizing him to arm American merchant ships to meet the German submarine menace.

Unyielding throughout twenty-six hours of continuous session to appeals that their defiance of the president would be humiliating to the country; uncompromising in a crisis described to them as the most serious to the nation since the Civil war, La Follette and his small group of supporters refused a majority of their colleagues an opportunity to vote on the armed neutrality bill and it died with the Sixty-fourth congress.

To fix responsibility before the country, seventy-six senators, thirty Republicans and forty-six Democrats, signed a manifesto proclaiming to the world that they favored passage of the measure. The text of the manifesto follows:

"The majority of United States senators favored the pasasge of the senate bill authorizing the president of the United States to arm American merchant vessels, a similar bill having already passed the house by a vote of 403 to 13. Under the rules of the senate allowing unlimited debate it appears to be impossible to obtain a vote previous to noon, March 4, 1917, when this session of congress expires. We desire the statement entered on the record to establish the fact that the senate favored the legislation and would pass it if a vote could be obtained."

Thirteen senators declined to sign the declaration, but one of them, Senator Penrose, Republican, of Pennsylvania, announced that he would have voted for the bill had opportunity been afforded him.

The twelve who went on record with the thirteen members of the house against granting President Wilson the authority he asked from congress in the crisis were:

Republicans: Clapp of Minnesota, Cummins of Iowa, Gronna of North Dakota, Kenyon of Iowa, LaFollette of Wisconsin, Norris of Nebraska and Works of California—7.

Democrats: Kirby of Arkansas, Lane of Oregon, O'Gorman of New York, Stone of Missouri, Vardaman of Mississippi—5.

President Issues Statement

Washington.—President Wilson informs the country in a statement that he may be forced, without power, to arm merchant ships and take other steps to meet the German submarine menace, in the absence of authority from congress. An extra session of congress, the president says, is required to clothe him with authority, but it is useless to call one while the senate works under the present rules, which permit a small minarity to keep an overwhelming majority from acting.

Great Ship Sunk By German U-Boat

Berlin.—An armed transport steamer of 24,494 tons, with about five hundred colonial troops, artillery and horses on board, was sunk by a German submarine in the Mediterranean February 24, the admiralty announces. Some of the troops on board were lost. A troop-laden transport of about five thousand tons was sunk also. A 9,000-ton transport, under escort, is reported sent to the bottom February 17 south of Malta.

Germans Yielding Under The Blows

Paris.—Again the British have advanced their front on the right and left wings in the Somme and Ancre regions of rFance. On the left flank east of Grommecourt, the Germans gave up ground over a front of two miles to an average dept of 1,200 yards, while on the right flank, east of Bouhavenes an attack gave the British terrain on a front of 1,200 yards and 173 prisoners, according to the London war office. Heavy casualties were inflicted on the Germans in several counter attacks.

Germans Decline American Money

Berlin.—A meeting was held of the committee to which Ambassador Gerard before leaving Germany entrusted five hundred thousand marks sent from the United States for the relief of the widows of German soldiers and orphans of German soldiers' families. The committee, says a news agency's report of the meeting, decided not to distribute the amount, but to deposit it in a bank at the disposal of Mr. Gerard "in case he prefers a different use of the money."

AMERICAN RIGHTS VIOLATED

Sinking Of Liner Laconia Another Lusitania Affair In Principle, But Fewer Lives Lost

Washington.—The sinking of the Cunarder Laconia by a German submarine was stated officially to constitute a clear-cut violation of American rights.

Conclusive official information at the state department shows that two American women lost their lives, that if four other Americans among the passengers and the 14 among the crew were saved, it was only by good fortune, and that the vessel was sunk without warning in direct defiance of all the principles for which the United States has stood.

Consul Frost's reports from the survivors show that the vessel was struck by a first torpedo without warning at 10:30 at night, 150 miles off Fastnete. The engine was stopped as the ship listed to starboard, wireless calls were flashed broadcast and six rockets were sent up. Thirteen boats with passengers and crew got away in a heavy sea.

About twenty minutes after the first torpedo, the reports add, and while some of the boats were still nearby, a second torpedo was driven into the vessel, which sank three-quarters of an hour after the original attack. The small boats with survivors pitched about during the long hours of the night until rescue ships came up. During this time the two American women, Mrs. Mary E. Hoy and Miss Elizabeth Hoy, of Chicago, died of exposure and were buried at sea. There were several other deaths, not of Americans.

No further facts are needed by this government, it was stated officially. Officials are entirely clear in their belief that Germany has committed the act which President Wilson has said it was impossible for him to believe she would commit.

Ten Lives Lost On Laconia

London. — The Cunard company gives the following names of the Laconia's passengers missing and supposed to have been lost:

Mrs. Mary Hoy, Miss Elizabeth Hoy, C. P. Ivatt, William I. Robinson, Dr. Fortunat Zyndel and William Eva.

GERARD WARNED BY GERMANS TO KEEP OFF OF THE OCEAN

Before He Left Berlin Ambassador Was Advised Not To Sail From Spain To The United States

Corunna, Spain.—It became known that on the day he left Berlin ex-Ambassador Gerard was warned personally by a German friend in high official position against sailing from Spain for the United States.

The fact that the warning was given has not yet become known except to those men who are in Mr. Gerard's confidence, but among them there is a feeling of anxiety in regard to the Americans sailing on the Infanta Isabel. It is known that Mr. Gerard regards the warning as serious.

A newspaper correspondent, referring to the embarkation of James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, and his party, for the voyage to the United States, says:

"All the town turned out to watch the grand embarkation, which probably is destined to become historical. The embarkation was the largest seen here in many years as, in addition to the Americans, the Infanta Isabel is carrying seventeen hundred Spanish emigrants to Cuba."

Agreement Signed With Cuban Rebels

Santiago, Cuba.—Commander Reginal R. Belknap, representing the United States government, signed an agreement with the leaders of the revolutionary movement guaranteeing, first—fair elections in Santa Clara and Oriente provinces; and, second—recognition of Maj. Rigoberto Fernandez, commander-in-chief of the revolution army in Oriente province. This agreement was the outcome of various conferences and as a result of it the military governor of Oriente, Loret de Mola, has been replaced by Garcia Munoz.

Zimmermann Is Correctly Quoted

London.—Foreign Secretary Zimmermann's instruction to the German minister in Mexico, as published in the United States, are admitted in Berlin to have been correctly quoted, according to a dispatch from the German capital by way of Amsterdam.

Yarrowdale Prisoners Still In Toils

Berlin.—The release of the sixty-two American prisoners brought to Germany on the steamer Yarowdale, although ordered some time ago to be released, cannot be carried out for moment, as an infectious disease has been discovered at the place of their residence. As the outbreak of the malady necessitates a quarantine measure affecting the number of persons about to leave Germany, it is stated that the delay in the departure of the Americans is in the interest of neutral countries.

Reporters Blamed For "Peace" Leak

Washington.—A unanimous report saying that no one save two Washington correspondents of newspapers were responsible in any way whatever for the "leak" on President Wilson's famous "peace" note, was presented to the house by Chairman Henry of the rules committee. All persons connected with the government, including Secretary McAdoo and Secretary Tumulty, members of both houses and R. W. Bolling, a brother-in-law of the president, are specifically cleared of all suspicion.

GERMANY WARNS WORLD OFF OCEAN

Kaiser's Government Says That Final Period Of Grace Has Expired For Ships In Atlantic

NEW ORDERS ARE ISSUED

Hereafter Submarines Will Warn No Boats Found Anywhere In The Atlantic Ocean

Berlin.—The admiralty made the following announcement:

"On March 1 expired the final period of grace alotted for sailing ships in the Atlantic. From this date no special warning will be given to any boats by submarines."

No Yielding, Says Zimmermann

In his address in the reichstag in regard to the relations with the United States, Foreign Secretary Zimmermann related the circumstances of the attempt at continuing negotiations through the Swiss legation, and after saying it was easy to understand that the government endeavored to avoid everything which might cause war with America, continued:

"We examined the suggestion from the Swiss minister from the standpoint of these considerations. From the very outset we were absolutely certain that submarine warfare ought to be limited in no case and in no manner by concession on our part. Obviously our wish to come to an understanding with America can be accomplished only in the event that it is possible without conflict with our declaration of barred zones, which we are firmly decided to maintain against our enemies under all circumstances.

"It was only after long consideration that we decided to use our sharpest weapon. You know, of course, of our negotiations with America and of our honest and sincere peace offer and the jeering rebuke by our enemies. To our attempt at reconciliation our adversaries opposed their will to annihilate us and thus nothing was left us but to take up the last and best weapon.

Can't Help Neutral Suffering

"After we took this decision obviously no backward step was possible. We regret that neutrals have to suffer by it, but we cannot help that.

"From the standpoint of these considerations I said in my answer to America merely that Germany now as before, was ready to negotiate on condition that establishment of the barred zones against our enemies be not impaired. We only hinted at our readiness to enter more detailed negotiations with America in regard to the admission of passenger ships.

"The Swiss minister at Washington transmitted our communication," Secretary Zimmerman continued, "and thereupon received from Mr. Lansing a note in very polite terms. Mr. Lansing said he was authorized by President Wilson to say that the government of the United States would very gladly and willingly negotiate with Germany if Germany cancelled her decision of January 31. This being absolutely impossible the negotiations had to be considered as a failure before they really had been begun.

China May Enter Against Germany

Washington.—Success of negotiations looking to China's entrance into the war against the central powers, which are in progress at Pekin and in all the entente capitals, it was learned here, depends only upon the harmonizing of the rewards to be given China with the amount of co-operation demanded of her. It is regarded as probable that China will declare war on Germany if the entente will guarantee satisfactory relaxation of the restrictions imposed upon the eastern empire by the world powers after the Boxer troubles.

Liner La Touraine Eludes Submarines

New York.—The French line steamship La Touraine arrived here from Bordeaux with 278 passengers. No submarines were sighted, but the vessel's commander steered a tortuous course through the danger zone. For this reason the voyage took three days longer than usual. La Touraine left Bordeaux February 19.

German Proposal Not Sent To Japan

Tokio.—Japan has received no proposition from either Mexico or Germany directly or indirectly to join in a possible war against the United States, Viscount Motono, Japanese foreign minister, informed the press. Viscount Motono said he considered such an idea ridiculous, it being based on the outrageous presumption that Japan would abandon her allies. If Mexico received the proposal, Viscount Motono added, that country showed intelligence in not transmitting it to Japan.

"Bone Dry" Rider Up To President

Washington.—Without a roll call and with practically no debate, the senate adopted the conference report on the postal appropriation bill, which carries the Reed "bone dry" amendment, prohibiting the shipment of intoxicating liquors into states which forbid its sale and manufacture. The measure now goes to the president and prohibition champions prepared to send petitions to the white house because of the belief expressed in some quarters that the president might veto the bill.

ECONOMY AND BIGGER CROPS

Urged By Secretary Houston As Measure To Reduce Cost Of Living

Washington.—Greater food crops and the practice of household economies were urged by Secretary of Agriculture Houston as measures to help reduce the cost of living. American families, he estimated in a statement on the food situation, waste in their kitchens annually more than seven hundred million dollars' worth of edibles.

There is nothing in the situation, however, to justify hysteria, he declares, because there is no real shortage of food in this country.

Mr. Houston emphasized the importance of the food cost investigation directed by President Wilson, and held out hope that increased acreage this year may insure greater food supplies. Wheat and potatoes, he said, were unusually short last year, but there will be enough to supply very nearly normal needs.

The food problem cannot be solved—in the secretary's opinion—through price-fixing by the federal or state governments, but by "intelligent planting and constructive action in conjunction with the operation of normal forces."

Probe Urged Of Prices

Urging a full inquiry into the causes of advancing prices, he said:

"A full and satisfactory explanation of prevailing prices is not possible on the basis of existing knowledge. Where the food supply is located, who owns it, what may be the difficulties of securing it, whether the local market conditions are due to car shortage, whether there is artificial monopoly or control no one can state with certainty. It is essential that we have the facts not only because of the light they might throw on present condiions, but also because they are prerequisite for the working out of a permanent and just economical system of marketing. The investigation directed by the president ought to be made promptly and congress ought to give the federal trade commission and the department of agriculture the necessary funds."

Two Americans May Be Lost On Bark

London.—The British bark Galgorm Castle, whose destruction by a German submarine may have cost two American lives, was attacked without warning, according to dispatches received here from Cork. The U-boat appeared as the sailing vessel was nearing the Irish coast and began shelling her. Mrs. Crampton, wife of the captain, and one of the twelve survivors, landed at Cork, declared the submarine shelled two life-boats and was approaching the missing lifeboat when darkness settled. David Walker of Baltimore, a cook, and William Jackson, of New York, a seaman, were in the missing lifeboat. Henry Merritt, of Beaver Falls, Pa., and Harry Richardson, of Boston, who were rescued, after spending twelve hours in an open boat, expressed the belief that Walker and Jackson may have been taken aboard the U-boat as prisoners, or that their lifeboat was towed to some lonely spot along the coast. The report of the possible loss of two more American lives through U-boat operations reached London while the press was busy discussing the probable effect upon President Wilson's policy of the charges of the German's plotting in Japan and Mexico.

$37,500,000 Increase In Army Measure

Washington.—An increase of $37,500,000 to the army appropriation bill, was ordered by the senate military affairs committee in completing the revision of the measure which passed the house. As it will be reported to the senate the bill will carry $27,480,708, ten million dollars in excess of the amount carried in the existing law.

Losses By Submarines Amply Offset

New York.—Shipping destroyed since the war began, exclusive of war vessels, represents 10 per cent of the world's merchant marine as it existed on August 1, 1914, according to figures published. Construction of new ships has offset most of the losses sustained, it is stated

Law Not Sunk By Austrian U-Boat

Washington.—It has been officially established that the American sailing schooner Lyman M. Law was not sunk by an Austro-Hungarian submarine.

Carranza Forces Gain In Mexico

El Paso, Texas.—Carranza forces are slowly gaining control of northern Mexico, according to American travelers arriving at the border. They say General Francisco Murguia has gained control of the situation in the north and has undertaken problems of policing the state of Chihuahua, including the district evacuated by Pershing's punitive expedition. General Francisco Murguia is now in Chihuahua City reorganizing his forces for another campaign against Villa, after having defeated him at Jiminez.

British Driving To Take Bagdad

Paris.—The British are rapidly pushing their way up the Tigris river towards Bagdad. The latest official statement from London on the Tigris operations shows that from Kut-el-Amara General Maude's forces have pursued the Ottoman troops more than thirty miles west and northwest of Kut. This indicates an advance of some fifteen miles since the last report and places the British not more than 75 miles from Bagdad, their objective after forcing the Turks from Kut-el-Amara.

RAILROAD LOWERS SUGAR CANE RATE

PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION ANNOUNCES BIG REDUCTION MADE BY C. OF GA.

AT THE STATE'S CAPITAL

Interesting News Budget of Happenings In Various Departments of State.

—Montgomery.

The Public Service Commission announced that an arrangement has been made with the Central of Georgia Railroad, whereby the freight rates on sugar cane by the car load lots are reduced from 35 to 40 per cent, being taken from the sixth class and placed in class D. Action on the matter was taken by the Commission at the request of farmers, who claimed that the sugar production of Alabama would be greatly increased if satisfactory rates were obtained.

State Renews Temporary Loan.

Governor Henderson has closed a deal in New York whereby the temporary loan of $300,000 permitted by the constitution has been renewed at a rate of interest greater than the rate paid last year. A warrant also has been issued for the payment of $500,000 to the National Park Bank of New York for state warrants which have been hypothecated there for several months. The amount under agreement due March 1 and the warrant was issued in order that it might be delivered at that time.

Report of Auditor is Made.

The annual report of the State Auditor for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1916, just issued, shows an excess of disbursements over receipts for the year of $422,719.37. Receipts amounted to $7,138,674.86, and disbursements to $7,561,394.23. At the close of the fiscal year the balance in the treasury was $83,358.34. The total amount of outstanding warrants for former year and fiscal year ending September 30, 1916, amounted to $2,422.06.

The excess of disbursements over receipts has been no customary occurrence in Alabama within recent years, for, according to a table supplied in the report, it is necessary to go back a year is reached when receipts equalled or exceeded disbursements. Of the twenty-nine years immediately preceding 1906, going back as far as 1877, nineteen show an excess of receipts over disbursements, while since 1906 none do.

The general statement follows:

By cash on hand October 1, 1915, $180,196.21 by cash from general receipts, 1916, $6,838.86; by cash, temporary loan, $300,000.00; outstanding warrannts October, 1915, $2,117.56; to warrants drawn during year 1916, $7,561,394.23; to cash on hand October 1, 1916, $83,358.34; by outstanding warrants October 1, 1916, $2,442,959.06. Totals, $9,731,830.13; $9,761,830.13.

Insurance Fees Foot Up $252,000.

The state insurance department, through Deputy Commissioner Frank P. Samford, certified $60,274.89 into the state treasury Tuesday from license collections. The state has received $252,000 since January 1. The insurance department is the greatest revenue producer the state has. Yast year the receipts were approximately $290,000, making, after expenses were paid, a total of about $250,000.

Property and Debt of the State.

The state owns property to the amount of $20,697,142.19. The capitol is valued at $1,800,000, the public schools at $8,768,745, state insane hospital at $1,093,000, normal schools at $2,432,156, university at $1,410,000, Alabama Polytechnic institute at $713,000, state prisons at $1,030,172.54 and sixteenes indemnity lands at $1,111,680. Including money borrowed from the state's educational institutions and the bonded indebtedness of $9,057,000, the state's total indebtedness, exclusive o fthe amount carried openly as a deficit, is $13,265,136.51, and the total interest on the indebtedness is $601,626.44 a year.

Poll Taxes Show Big Loss.

Alabama poll tax payments in the office of the State Auditor totaled $137,555, or $76,445 less than last year, when the total amount was $213,000. This decrease represents a loss to the public schools, since it is paid into the treasuries of the several counties from which collected for the support of the schools.

Counties Ask Federal Aid.

Seventeen counties have made application for federal aid in constructing stretches of highway. No project will be considered at an expenditure of less than $10,000 and each county will be expected to contribute a like sum.

Fourteen Animals Rabid.

Reports from the state laboratory show that 24 animals were examined for rabies during February, 14 being found rabid. One was a horse, the other dogs. Sixteen persons received treatment.

WILSON PLEADS FOR NEW UNITY

OUTLINES "PLATFORM OF PURPOSE AND ACTION" IN HIS INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

STAND TOGETHER AMERICANS

Hope of Peace Is Theme of President's Speech at His Second Inauguration as President.

Washington. — Woodrow Wilson with the major part of the world at war and America poised on its verge, consecrated his second inauguration as President of the United States with a last message of hope for peace.

Standing in the shadows of the nation's capitol, with his face turned toward the eastern war-scared skies, the President renewed his oath of allegiance to the constitution, praying to God that he might be given wisdom and prudence to do his duty in the true spirit of the American people.

While trumpets blared and martial accoutrements rattled propheticaly about him, the President pictured the deep wrongs the United States patiently had borne in the conflict of other peoples without wishing to wrong or injure in return. Asserting that the tragedies of another continent had removed provicialism and made American citiens of the world and that the principles of this republic should be applied to a liberation of mankind, he resolutely voiced a determination that America, standing "firm in armed neutrality," must demonstrate her claim to a "minimum of right and freedom of action" in world affairs.

Peculiar interest and significance, in the light of his rebuke to senators who prevented passage of the armed neutrality bill, were attached to the President's assertion of this point. Even more interest and concern were aroused when he added:

"We may even be drawn on, by circumstances, not by our own purpose or desire, to a more active assertion of our rights as we see them and a more immediate association with the great struggle itself. But nothing will alter our thought or our purpose. We desire neither conquest nor advantage. We wish nothing that can be had only at the cost of another people. We have always professed unselfish purpose and we covet the opportunity to prove that our professions are sincere."

Making no attempt to review the legislative record of the last four years, the President said that this was no time for retrospect. The time was one to speak of thoughts and purposes for the immediate future. To be indifferent to the influence of the war upon America or independent of it, he said, was imposible, and he was firm in the conviction that the part this country wished to play in the vital turmoil was the part of those "who mean to vindicate and fortify peace."

Marshall's Address.

Vice President Marshall made his second inaugural address before the Senate—a statement of his creed of citizenship under a government for which, he said, "I ought to be willing to live or to die, as God decrees, that it may not perish off the earth through treachery within or through assault from without."

He said in part:

"I believe that the world now advancing and now retreating is nevertheless moving forward to a far-off divine event, wherein the tongues of Babel will again be blended in the language of a common brotherhood; and I believe that I can reach the highest ideal of my tradition and my lineage as an American—as a man, as a citizen and as a public official—when I judge my fellowmen without malice and with charity, when I worry more about my own motives and conduct and less about the motives and conduct of others. The time I am liable to be wholly wrong is when I know that I am absolutely right. In an individualistic republic, I am the unit of patriotism and if I keep myself keyed in unison with the music of the union, my fellowmen will catch the note and fall into time and step."

JUDGE PELHAM DEAD.

Well Known Jurist Passes Away After Lingering Illness.

Montgomery, Ala.—Judge John Pelham, a member of the Alabama court of apepals since that court was organized in 1911, died at a local hospital here after a lingering allness. His death followed an illness of several weeks and his condition has been such for the past 10 days that but little hope was held for his recovery.

His remains were taken to Anniston for burial.

Alleged Bomb Maker Arrested.

Hoboken, N. J.—With the arrest here of Fritz Kolb, a German, the authorities expressed the belief that they had frustrated a well developed plot to aid Germany by blowing up munition plants in this country engaged in turning out contracts for the entente allies. The police said they found in Kolb's room two bombs which, according to rumors that had reached them, were to be sent to President Wilson.

GOOD FRIEND TO WOMEN

That's What Mount Pleasant Lady Says Cardui Is and Tells What It Did for Her.

Mt. Pleasant, Tenn.—"As a girl I was always well and hearty," says Mrs. M. E. Rail, of this place. "I have always been accounted healthy. I never felt any trouble like . . . weakness until I came to the change of life. I was about forty-five when that began. I think I would have died had I not found out what a good friend to women Cardui is.

"I suffered a great deal. I had a number of fainting spells, and . . . would be obliged to lie in bed a week or two at a time. I never liked to lie in bed because it interfered so with my work. The swimming in my head was nearly continuous. I could not stoop down it would make me so dizzy. I think I used Cardui off and on for two or three years, using in that time about 8 or 10 bottles. I began to feel the improvement in health before I had taken one bottle, but kept on taking it until I got in perfect health.

"Had it not been for Cardui I know I would have been dead. . . . Now I am 62 years old, and weigh about 175, and am in the most perfect health."

Give Cardui a trial for your troubles. It should do for you what it has done for thousands of others.—Adv.

DEMOBILIZE STATE TROOPS IN APRIL

MONTGOMERY MAKING PREPARATIONS TO ENTERTAIN TROOPS ON ARRIVAL HOME.

COAL PRODUCTION HEAVY

If Continued at Present Rate, Production Will Be Over 20,000,000 Tons for 1917.

Montgomery.—The Alabama brigade will leave Nogales for the demobilization camp here about April 15, according to a message received by the Montgomery Chamber of Commerce from the war department. It had been thought the soldiers would be home soon after the first of April, but this telegram indicates that they will not return before about April 20.

The Chamber of Commerce is arranging for the entertainment of the soldiers when they arrive.

Coal Production Heavy.

Montgomery.—Coal production during first two months of year is on a basis of more than 20,000,000 tons for the year. This information came from the chief state mine inspector, C. H. Nesbitt, who asserts that in addition to a big production at all the larger coal mines of the district, there has been considerable temporary development put on foot, that is, mines have been opened with no intentions of permanency, but to get the coal out as quickly as possible. Figures are now in hand on the coal production in Alabama in 1916, which indicate that the total will go above 16,500,000 tons, the figure that was estimated on the close of the past year. It is not improbable that the total for 1916 may go to 17,000,000 tons. Coke production last year was around 4,000,000 tons, if not more, and 6,000,000 tons is an estimate made for this year. About five fatal accidents are noted for the past month.

Mobile Gets 1917 Bankers' Meet.

Montgomery. — Official announcement was made that the state convention of the State Bankers' association will be held in Mobile May 10, 11 and 12. Mobile is making preparations to entertain the bankers, the attendance at the convention this year expected to be much larger than usual. The officers of the state association are: C. E. Thomas, Prattville, president; J. Kirk Jackson, Montgomery, vice president; H. T. Bartlett, Montgomery, secretary-treasurer.

Bankers to Meet March 14.

Montgomery.—Group No. 2, Alabama Bankers' association, will meet in Birmingham March 14, according to announcement made. Thomas Bowron is vice president for this group, which includes Jefferson, Tuscaloosa, Walker, Talladega, Etowah, Calhoun and several other counties. A large attendance is expected. A strong program has been arranged, and special entertainment will be provided for the visitors. Group No. 1, Thomas A. Bowles, vice president, will meet at New Decatur March 13. Group No. 3, W. H. Hubbard, vice president, will meet at Montgomery March 15. Group No. 4, J. S. Crum vice president, will meet at Brewton March 16.

Iron at $30 Per Ton.

Birmingham.—An inquiry was received in Birmingham this week by one of the prominent manufacturers for a round tonnage of ron, delivery during the first half of 1918, on a basis of $30 per ton, standard reckoning, No. 2 foundry. Other reports of inquiries for iron for delivery during the first half of the year are announced though concessions are being sought. Announcement that iron prices had reached $26 per ton, No. 2 foundry, is followed with the statement that there is but little iron to be had for second quarter delivery this year, and that, with but one or two exceptions, manufacturers are holding off the market, expecting still better prices.

G. A. R. Veterans Meet.

Birmingham.—The twentieth annual encampment of the department of Alabama, Grand Army of the Republic, was held in Birmingham March 8, and was attended by Commander in Chief William J. Patterson of Pittsburg of the G. A. R. General Patterson is one of the most prominent insurance men in the country.

Thieves Rob Prison.

Birmingham.—Unidentified persons entered the store rooms of the Southside stockade and made their getaway with 46 24-pound sacks of flour, over 100 pounds of white meat, three sacks of feed and six 50-pound sacks af meal.

Dr. Anderson Buried.

Auburn.—Funeral services for Dr. James T. Anderson, chemist at the Alabama experiment station since 1888, died at his home, were held at the Methodist church. Dr. Anderson was born near Hopkinsville, Ky., in December, 1850. He graduated at Washington and Lee university and later took the degree Ph. D. at Vanderbilt university. He also studied at the University of Berlin, Germany, and taught chemistry at Central college, Fayette, Mo. From that college he came to Auburn.

Short Courses in Farm Work Given.

Auburn.—For nine weeks a number of the members of the staff of the extension service at Auburn has been engaged in holding meetings of three days each for the benefit of the boys who belong to the corn and pig clubs. With the closing of the meeting in Centerville, Bibb County, on March 3, these meetings will have been held in 18 counties. They are held at the same time and place as the Teachers' Institutes. Such meetings have thus far been held in the counties of Morgan, Jefferson, Walker, Franklin, Clay, Randolph, Cherokee, DeKalb, Lamar, Marion, Lee, Coosa, Tallapoosa, Macon, Crenshaw, Dale and Pike.

Clean-Up Week Planned.

Gadsden.—Clean-up week in Gadsden will be earlier this year than last, according to the statement of Mayor W. P. Johnson, and of leaders of civic work. The Alabama Federation of Women's Clubs has set April 2 to 7 as clean-up week and Mayor Johnson had been asked to issue a proclamation setting that week aside as clean-up week. Civic leaders here favor an earlier date as more effective work can be done then. Mayor Johnson probably will issue a proclamation soon setting a date a week or two earlier than the date set by the federation.

Still Is Destroyed.

Gadsden.—J. H. Glass, Walter Glass and T. L. Layton were arrested by Deputy United States Marshal T. S. Lipsley in the mountains of St. Clair county, charged with operating a moonshine still. When tried before United States Commissioner Pickard the trio were bound over to the Federal grand jury. The still was located near Bethany church. It was a 60-gallon outfit, and 750 gallons of beer was destroyed with the still.

Walks 28 Miles to Court.

Mobile.—James E. Quinley of Conecuh county, was fined $100 and 30 days in the Conecuh county jail on the charge of illicit distilling. Quinley failed to arrive in court early in the day, and a forfeture of bond was taken against him. He appeared as court was about to close for the day and told the court that hewalked 28 miles in order to answer to the charge. For that reason Judge Ervin made his sentence light.

Gadsden Plant Can Make Armor.

Gadsden.—If the Gulf States Steel company were given a contract to furnish armor plate steel the Gadsden plant of thec ompany could be making the armor plate of the required analysis within 30 days with its present equipment and force. This was the statement made to the armor plate plant locating board by C. A. Moffett, vice president of the Gulf States Steel company.

Judge Williams Dies of Old Age.

Tuscaloosa.—Judge Bedford H. Williams, aged 96, died here. He was probate judge of Tuscaloosa county for two terms, and of Fayette county for three terms, serving there during the Civil war. He was believed to be the oldest man in west Alabama. He was ill for a few weeks with grip and succumbed to complications from old age.

Negro Arrested in Ohio.

Anniston.—A search that has extended over a large part of the United States has resulted in the arrest at Newark, Ohio, of Charley Williams, a negro, who is now in jail here, charged with the murder of C. H. Wakefield, an Oxford merchant, who was fatally injured by a blow on the head November 23.

Dothan to Entertain.

Montgomery. — The Chamber of Commerce and Rotary clubs will accompany Alcazar Temple, Shriners, on the trip to Dothan, March 29, when a big ceremonial will be staged in the Houston county metropolis. An elaborate program of entertainment has been prepared for the visitors in Dothan.

Light Plant to Be Sold.

Roanoke.—The municipal electric light plant will be sold to the Alabama Power company and the city will be supplied by them. This was decided by a vote of thec itizens when not more than 12 opposition votes were placed against the deal. It is thought that as a result of the action a number of industries will be located here.

Randolph to Vote on Tax.

Roanoke—The commissioners' court of Randolph county has ordered an election to be held May 21 to give the voters an opportunity to decide whether they will levy the extra 2 mills school tax.

Painter Falls to Death.

Mobile.—Frank Etesch, a painter of Chicago, employed at work on a big tank of the Cuban Molasses company, was killed here. He fell from a scaffold 50 feet high and was badly crushed.

Father of 28 Given Leniency.

Mobile.—Judge R. T. Ervin of the United States court, southern district of Alabama, showed leniency to Elish Aaron, father of 28 children. Aaron lives with his family in Conecuh county, Alabama. His attorney asked that his case be continued, saying: "Your honor, my client is the father of 28 children; 20 by his second wife. I think he should be given some leniency." The prosecuting attorney concurred and Judge Ervin granted the continuance.

German Plot Against United States

Berlin's Order to Its Mexico City Minister to Form a German-Mexican-Japanese Alliance Against the United States if the Break Came Between the Kaiser's Government and Washington.

Washington.—Following is the text of the instructions sent by German Foreign Minister Zimmermann at Berlin to Minister von Eckhardt in Mexico City, ordering the latter to propose to Carranza the projected alliance between Germany, Japan and Mexico:

"Berlin, Jan. 19, 1917.—On the 1st of February we intend to begin submarine warfare unrestricted. In spite of this it is our intention to endeavor to keep neutral the United States of America.

"If this attempt is not successful we propose an alliance on the following basis with Mexico: That we shall make war together and together make peace. We shall give general financial support, and it is understood that Mexico is to reconquer the lost territory in New Mexico, Texas, and Arizona. The details are left to you for settlement.

"You are instructed to inform the president of Mexico of the above in the greatest confidence as soon as it is certain that there will be an outbreak of war with the United States and suggest that the president of Mexico, on his own initiative, should communicate with Japan suggesting adherence at once to this plan; at the same time, offer to mediate between Germany and Japan.

"Please call to the attention of the president of Mexico that the employment of ruthless submarine warfare now promises to compel England to make peace in a few months.

"ZIMMERMANN."

PLAN TO RECONQUER STATES

Kaiser's Foreign Minister Offered Carranza Financial Support in Attempt to Regain Texas, New Mexico and Arizona—President Has Copy of Instructions Outlining Details of Gigantic Plot.

Washington, March 3. — Senator Swanson of Virginia announced in the senate today that he had been authorized by the president to state the Zimmermann note of January 19, 1917, inviting Mexico to join Germany in war against the United States as published this morning was textually correct.

Washington, March 3.—The Western Newspaper Union was enabled to reveal last Friday morning that Germany, in planning unrestricted submarine warfare and counting its consequences, proposed an alliance with Mexico and Japan to make war on the United States if this country should not remain neutral.

Japan, through Mexican mediation, was to be urged to abandon her allies and join in the attack on the United States.

Mexico, for her reward, was to receive general financial support from Germany, reconquer Texas, New Mexico and Arizona—lost provinces—and share in the victorious peace terms Germany contemplated.

Details of the Plot.

Details were left to German Minister von Eckhardt in Mexico City, who by instructions signed by German Foreign Minister Zimmermann at Berlin January 19, 1917, was directed to propose the alliance with Mexico to General Carranza and suggest that Mexico seek to bring Japan into the plot.

These instructions were transmitted to Von Eckhardt through Count von Bernstorff, former German ambassador here, now on his way home to Germany under a safe conduct obtained from his enemies by the country against which he was plotting war.

Pictures World Dominion.

Germany pictured to Mexico by broad intimation England and the entente allies defeated; Germany and her allies triumphant and in world domination by the instrument of unrestricted warfare.

A copy of Secretary Zimmermann's instructions to Von Eckhardt, sent through Von Bernstorff, is in possession of the United States government.

The document has been in the hands of the government since President Wilson broke off diplomatic relations with Germany. It has been kept secret while the president has been asking congress for full authority to deal with Germany, and while congress has been hesitating. It was in the president's hands while Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg was declaring that the United States had placed an interpretation on the submarine declaration "never intended by Germany" and that Germany had promoted and honored friendly relations with the United States "as an heirloom from Frederick the Great."

Of itself, if there were no other, it is considered a sufficient answer to the German chancellor's plaint that the United States "brusquely" broke off relations without giving "authentic" reasons for its action.

The document supplies the missing link to many separate chains of circumstances, which until now have seemed to lead to no definite point.

It sheds new light upon the frequently reported but indefinable movements of the Mexican government to couple its situation with the friction between the United States and Japan.

It adds another chapter to the celebrated report of Jules Cambon, French ambassador in Berlin before the war, of Germany's world-wide plans for stirring strife on every continent where they might aid her in the struggle for world domination which she dreamed was close at hand.

It adds a climax to the operations of Count von Bernstorff and the German embassy in this country, which have been colored with passport frauds, charges of dynamite plots and intrigue, the full extent of which never has been published.

Emphasizes Our Perils.

It gives new credence to persistent reports of submarine bases on Mexican territory in the Gulf of Mexico; it takes cognizance of a fact long recognized by American army chiefs, that if Japan ever undertook to invade the United States it probably would be through Mexico, over the border and into the Mississippi valley to split the country in two.

It recalls that Count von Bernstorff when handed his passports was very reluctant to return to Germany, but expressed a preference for asylum in Cuba.

It gives a new explanation to the repeated arrests on the border of men charged by American military authorities with being German intelligence agents.

Last of all, it seems to show a connection with General Carranza's recent proposal to neutrals that exports of food and munitions to the entente allies be cut off, and an intimation that he might stop the supply of oil, so vital to the British navy, which is exported from the Tampico fields.

What Will Congress Do?

What congress will do, and how members of congress who openly have sympathized with Germany in their opposition to clothing the president with full authority to protect American rights will regard the revelation of Germany's machinations to attack the United States is the subject of the keenest interest.

Such a proposal as Germany instructed her minister to make to Mexico borders on an act of war, if, actually, it is not one.

No doubt exists here now that the persistent reports during the last two years of the operations of German agents not alone in Mexico but all through Central America and the West Indies are based on fact.

There is now no doubt whatever that the proposed alliance with Mexico was known to high Mexican officials who are distinguished for their anti-Americanism. Among them are Rafael Zubaran, Carranza's minister to Germany, and Luis Cabrera, Carranza's minister of finance.

The Hand of Mexico.

It is apparent that the proposal had taken definite form when Zubaran returned to Mexico City from Berlin recently. His return from his foreign post was covered by the fact that Carranza had called in many of his diplomats for "conferences."

It was declared by a high Japanese authority on Wednesday night that if the German proposal of an alliance ever reached Tokyo it was regarded as merely a new ebullition of German "kultur" and that it was thrown in the wastebasket where it belonged.

He asserted no such proposal had been made to the embassy here and that if it had been no attention would have been paid to it.

He said: "The whole idea was absolutely preposterous."

In order to make an alliance with Germany, he added, it would be necessary for Japan to break from the allies and negotiate a separate peace with the Teutonic powers. But above all that, he said, the Japanese sincerely desired friendly relations with the United States.

DOG SAVES LIFE OF A BABY

Warns Mother When the Infant Falls Into a Millrace at Portland, Ore.

Mrs. Ben Gehlen dived into the millrace which runs past her home in Portland, Ore., and rescued her two-year-old son, who was being swept down the stream, when the boy's dog, with which he was at play, warned her of the child's danger.

The mother noticed the dog running frantically up and down the bank of the stream and barking. She rushed to the ditch to investigate and found the boy being carried away by the current. The boy suffered little, but the mother has been ill since from the shock.

Instantaneous!

"I am tired to death," declared Mrs. Younghusband, as she reached home from town the other evening.

"What's the matter?" asked her husband.

"Been having the baby's portrait taken. They have a way of taking them instantaneously now, you know."

"How long were you at it?"

"Three hours and a half."

This is said to be a woman's age, yet women have little to say about their age.

Children do many things they shoudn't, but so do grownups.

After July 1st you can't order a "drap." We hear some "prohis" already singing "How Dry I Am."

One fellow says he is a "prohi" all right, but he believes that "bone dry" is going to be a most too d——n dry.

Study about the bond issue from now to April 16th and be prepared to vote intelligently on the proposi-

"If any man hauls down the American flag, shoot him on the spot." Thus spake John A. Dix. The German governor of Brussels never heard of him.

If those Democrats in Congress had consented for La Follett to deliver that speech he had packed up in his head he might have consented to vote on the armed neutrality bill.

Remember that the bond issue does not mean making a new debt on the county. It is the means of getting the old debt already made, in a shape where it will not take all the income of the county to pay the interest each year.

Millions For Tribute

The extra session of the Senate means that time will be taken for the consideration of the Colombian treaty —which calls for a payment of $15,000,000 from the treasury of the United States and an apology for our enterprise in building the Panama Canal. The President has argued that this will bring us friends. It is far more likely to invite other international blackmailers to demand tribute from us.

April 16th has been set by the commissioners Court as the day when the people of Chilton county will vote on the proposed bond issue to take care of the county debt.

It is the opinion of The Banner that in calling for the vote of the people on this matter the commissioners are working to the fulfillment of their promises, viz: The best and safest solution of the financial condition of our county. We believe that if the voters will study the conditions thoroughly they will readily see that the issuance of bonds is the best that can be done under the circumstances.

The commissioners want to do the best they can for the county. They have given careful consideration to the matter, and candidly decided what is the best course.

Now they are asking the people to sanction their opinions and give them the authority to proceed.

If the people object, then they are at the end of the row. If the people approve, then the court can proceed further with their work of preserving the roads and bridges of the county as necessity demands.

ORGANIZATION OF THE HOUSE

The committee named by the Republican caucus to take steps to insure a Republican organization of the next House of Representatives is proceeding actively to the accomplishment of that highly desirable purpose. Congressman Madden of Illinois, the chairman of the committee, is not only an experienced and courageous legislator, but he is in addition a thorough-going Republican and fully imbued with the principles of the forward movement in American politics which can make itself effective only through the agency of the Republican party. At the Chicago convention last June Mr. Madden gave frequent and adequate evidence of the liberal tendencies of his political programme and he contributed not a little toward the complcted action of the convention which drew so many of the former progressives back into their old party affiliations.

He will do no less with his present problem. The powers of his committee are ample and we fully expect to see the efforts of Mr. Madden and his associates crowned with complete success and the next House doing business under a Republican organization.

A HIGH SCHOOL DORMITORY

A plan is now being devised for the securing of means to erect a dormitory for girls in connection with the Chilton County High School at Clanton.

The enterprise is indeed most commendable; one upon which our citizens can well afford to spend their very best efforts. There are many girls in our county who ought to be in the high school here, but cannot, owing to various hindrances of one kind an another.

The erection of a dormitory in connection with the school would mean the removal of the greatest barrier that lies between these girls and the advantages of training and education in the school.

Our High School has already gained distinction in the state educational system by its auxiliary activities, and the addition of a dormitory would give us the lead among that class of institutions, in a line of advancement that could not be surpassed in real value to girls of the county.

You will hear much more about the movement as time goes on. Let us appeal to you here and now to get ready to do your part in heping it to success.

Remember that when you help the high school you are helping the boys and girls of our county.

You, as a citizen, whoever you are, should not entertain one moments hesitation to act your part, freely and well.

THE BUSINESS BREEDS

The right kind of poultry will help you solve the boll weevil problem. My hens have the laying habit bred into them, by selecting heavy layers and the sons of heavy layers to breed from year after year. To be profitable poultry must be bred to lay.

"THE SYLACAUGA NEWS."

The initial number of "The Sylacauga News" has reached our exchange table, and it is such a creditable newspaper that we feel inclined to hand our friend "Vic" May a little bouquet. "Vic" has been promising for a long time that he would some day publish a newspaper in Sylacauga that would properly gauge the progress and possibilities of the little "Marble City" and now he has done so, and Sylacauga is in the future, going to pace up if it lives at the gait set by the "News."

The city of Sylacauga, its people, and the people of the surrounding country will appreciate such a newspaper as "The Sylacauga News." And indeed has its producer just cause to be proud of his production.

We are glad to see Bro. May and the "News" open up with such a splendid showing, and hope they will always find a success waiting to crown their meritorious efforts.

The "News" will be issued weekly from the press of May's Print Shop.

We've Got 'Em Beat

"The Sylacauga News" speaking of the drug stores in that town says: "Sylacauga has a decided edge on most cities of our size along the drug store line."

We invite Editor May of The News to come down to Clanton and let us show him what is really the finest small-city drug store in Alabama. And incidentally we will show him the best equipped and most up-to-date hotel he can find in a town of our size in the state. If you don't believe it brother, just "ax" some of the people who have been here and seen for themselves.

A good treatment for a cold settled in the lungs is a HERRICK'S RED PEPPER PORUS PLASTER applied to the chest to draw out inflamation, and BALLARD'S HORE-HOUND SYRUP to relax tightness. You get the two remedies for the price of one by buying the dollar size Horehound Syrup; there is a porus plaster free with each bottle. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co.

Which Way Are They Blowing?

One day you see the Democratic daily newspapers praising Wilson for not plunging into war with Germany. Then the next day they are bitterly ridiculing La Follette for preventing the President from arming ships to combat the Germans on the high seas.

They blame one man for preventing Wilson from doing something, which the day before they praise Wilson for not doing. It looks to us like a funny argument.

J. H. Martin of Jemison Route 3, was in Clanton Wednesday on business. He thinks the fruit was killed this week.

Burleson Bilked

In a few of the larger cities of the United States, there is maintained what is known as the pneumatic tube service, by which first class mail is sent in small packages by underground conduit from one part of the city to another. New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Baltimore and St. Louis have such service, and it greatly expediates the handling of mail, not only locally but in placing on board out-going trains. Postmaster General Burleson recommended that the service be discontinued and that he be allowed an increased appropriation for automobiles. When the House of Representatives renewed the appropriation, Burleson wanted the matter left in his hands to make terms with the tube company, which would mean that he would make terms they could not accept. The Senate not only stood by the appropriation but added a clause directing the postmaster general to renew the contract for a year.

Congress could not have acted more wisely. For a number of years the head of the postoffice department has been assuming more and more dictatorial power, doing some things that Congress refused to give it power to do and ignoring the clear intent of legislative enactments. The Constitution made Congress the sole legislative body and it is gratifying and reassuring to observe that Congress proposes to be recognized as such. Failure in this respect would constitute abdiction of power and consequent increase of bureaucracy with all its attendnnt evils and dangers.

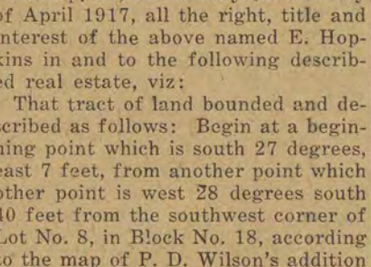
SHERIFF'S SALE, REAL ESTATE.

THE STATE OF ALABAMA,
Chilton County.

By virtue of an execution issued out of the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Ala., and to me directed whereby I, as Sheriff of said County, was commanded to make the sum of One hundred seventy-one & 36-100 Dollars, principal and interest, and Eight & 10-100 Dollars, costs of suit, the amount of a certain judgment and costs therein obtained at the Spring Term, 1917, of said Court of said County, Alabama, in favor of Carolina Portland Cement Co. against E. Hopkins, I have levied upon and will sell to the highest bidder for cash, at public sale, at the Court House door of said County, between the hours of 11 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m., on Monday the 9th day of April 1917, all the right, title and interest of the above named E. Hopkins in and to the following described real estate, viz:

That tract of land bounded and described as follows: Begin at a beginning point which is south 27 degrees, east 7 feet, from another point which other point is west 28 degrees south 40 feet from the southwest corner of Lot No. 8, in Block No. 18, according to the map of P. D. Wilson's addition to the City of Clanton, Ala., and from said beginning point thus found and established, run thence west 28 degrees, south 175 feet, thence south 28 degrees, east 150 feet, thence east 28 degrees, north 175 feet, thence north about 27 degrees, west 150 feet to said beginning point, and containing one-half acre, more or less, and being situated in the north-west fourth of the south-east fourth, Sec. 35, Tp. 22, Range 14, East, in the Town of Clanton.

Sale to be made subject to mortgage executed on the 8th day of July 1912, by Elias Hopkins and wife, Alvira Ann Hopkins, to Guy Higgins, recorded in Book of Mortgages 121, page 554, on which said mortgage there is now due about $1,800.00.



This 6th day of March 1917.

TONOLINE IS BEAUTY AID, ANNOUNCES SPECIALIST

Mildred Louise Talk of Interest to Women.

As health is a first aid to beauty this story, told by Mildred Louise, beauty specialist, of Boston, Mass., is of unusal interest.

"I can recommend no better health giver than tonoline," said Mildred Louise.

"I was for many months a victim of stomach trouble and nervousness. I had suffered terribly from pains that followed eating. Headaches would also add to my worries. Poor digestion finally brought on nervousness.

"Relief came, however, when I took the advice of several women who said, "Take tonoline.'

"Not long after I started the tonoline treatment, my patrons began to remind me of the improvement in my condition. And because health is the quickest way to beauty, the improvement was particularly noticeable in in my face.

"What tonoline really did for me I cannot say. I am so grateful that I am very willing to reccommend tonoline publicly."

Tonoline is a purely vegetable preparation which goes to the seat of common maladies—stomach and kidney troulble, catarrhal affections of the mucous membranes, liver ailments and impurities of the blood—and quickly restores proper action. Tonoline is being explained daily to many people at your druggist.

Notice:—As tonoline is a wonderful flesh builder it should not be taken by anyone not wishing to increase his weight ten pounds or more. Although many reports are received from those who have been benefitted by tonoline in severe cases of stomach trouble and nervous dyspepsia, chronic constipation, etc.

Half Your Living Without Money Cost

A right or wrong start in 1917 will make or break most farmers in the South. We are all facing a crisis. This war in Europe puts things in such uncertainty that no man can foresee the future with any degree of clearness.

The sure and certain increase in cotton acreage means lower cotton prices next fall. Cost of all food and grain products is high, so high that no one can afford to buy and expect to pay out with cotton.

It's a time above all others to play safe; to produce all possible food, grain and forage supplies on your own acres; to cut down the store bill.

A good piece of garden ground, rightly planted, rightly tended and kept planted the year round, can be made to pay half your living. It will save you more money than you made on the best five acres of cotton you ever grew!

Hastings' 1917 Seed Book tells all about the right kind of a money saving garden and the vegetables to put in it. It tells about the field crops as well and shows you the clear road to real farm prosperity. It's Free. Send for it today to H. G. HASTINGS CO., Atlanta, Ga.—Advt.

NOTICE

Local Unions will take notice that the County Union will meet with Collins Chapel Local No. 223 on Friday and Saturday, March16-17, 1917.

Those coming by rail will be met at Thorsby on first day. Notify H. C. Vance, Clanton, Ala. Route 4.

First day will be public. Speakers will be present to discuss farm problems that are difficult for the ordinary farmer to solve.

We want the co-operation of all who are interested in better farming.

EX-LEGISLATOR IS OUT WITH THE FACTS

"Tanlac Has Certainly Done Great Things for Me" Says A. J. Skidmore.

"This Tanlac has certainly done great things for me," said A. J. Skidmore, of Winchester, Tenn., in a recent statement regarding the benefits he has derived from the medicine. Mr. Skidmore has lived on his present farm for the past forty-five years. He is the father of fifteen children, has been a member of the Tennessee legislature for two terms, was county surveyor for twenty-five years and county trustee two terms. 'Uncle Jack,' as he is familiarly known—although now seventy-six years of age—says he fels years younger and attributes his good health to the use of Tanlac

"I suffered a general break-down some time ago," continued 'Uncle Jack,' "and my health seemed to be on a general decline which I of course thought was due to my age. My appetite was very poor and what little I did eat failed to nourish me. I ached all over with rheumatism and each day I felt that I was getting a little weaker. Other medicines failed to do me any good and my condition not only worried me greatly, but my family became alarmed about me. I slept poorly and didn't seem to get any rest. I would feel all tired out in the mornings and all day long I was languid, and I tell you, I was just getting weaker all the time.

"Tanlac was recommended to me by friends and in a few days after I began taking it, I felt a marked change for the better. My appetite came back to me and I began to eat and enjoy my meals and pick up in strength. I continued taking the medicine until I used six bottles. The rheumatism has disappeared, all my other symptons have left me and I feel that years have been added to my life. I feel stronger and more energetic and I don't hesitate to say Tanlac is the best up-builder for people up in years that I have ever used, and I have used lots of them. It has gotten me over my troubles and restored my health and I recommend it to other aged people as the best mdicine they can get."

Tanlac is sold in Clanton by Upchurch Drug Co, in Mt. Creek by J. E. Deon, in Jemison by Langston Drug Co, in Thorsby by A. K. Horn & Son, in Cooper by McSwain Mercantile Co, in Verbena by Gulledge Bros, in Marbury by Plateau Drug Co, in Riderville by E. E. Jackson Lumber Co, in Stanton by W. C. Dyer and in Maplesville by Maplesville Drug Co.

MOTHER! LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE

If cross, feverish, constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is ofttimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Adv.

WHAT IS LAX-FOS

LAX-FOS IS AN IMPROVED CASCARA
A DIGESTIVE LAXATIVE
CATHARTIC AND LIVER TONIC

LAX-FOS is not a secret or Patent Medicine but is composed of the following old-fashioned roots and herbs:

CASCARA BARK
BLUE FLAG ROOT
RHUBARB ROOT
BLACK ROOT
MAY APPLE ROOT
SENNA LEAVES
AND PEPSIN

In LAX-FOS the CASCARA is improved by the addition of these digestive ingredients making it better than ordinary CASCARA, and thus the combination acts not only as a stimulating laxative and cathartic but also as a digestive and liver tonic. Syrup laxatives are weak, but LAX-FOS combines strength with palatable, aromatic taste and does not gripe or disturb the stomach. One bottle will prove LAX-FOS is invaluable for Constipation, Indigestion or Torpid Liver. Price 50c.

LESSON FOR MARCH 11

JESUS THE BREAD OF LIFE.

LESSON TEXT—John 6:24-37.
GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life.—John 6:35.

Following the feeding of the five thousand, Jesus saw the design of the multitude (v. 15), and separated himself unto prayer. Following that communion, the disciples went over the sea toward the City of Capernaum (v. 17), but in his supernatural power he followed them, walking upon the water (v. 19). Midway he entered their ship, and immediately they reached the land toward which they had been striving (v. 21; Mk. 6:48-49). The next day (John 6:22) the people who at this period were following him in such great multitudes, took steps to reach him. Finding that he was not at their side of the lake, they took boats and came to Capernaum, "seeking for Jesus" (v. 24). We read that the common people heard him gladly. These people wanted the comradship of Jesus, and the longest bread line in the world today is that of hungry-hearted men. The question is, are we willing to give them the loaves of comfort?

I. Bread Which Perisheth (vv. 23-24). "If you think you will always get the loaves and fishes simply because you have followed the Lord, you have handed yourself a goldbrick."—Dr. Griffin Bull. Most of us will go further for victuals than we will for a vision. When the people found Jesus (v. 25) they rather reprimanded him for leaving them, when the fact of the matter was that he was not beholden to them in any sense whatsoever. It looks very well for these people to be "seeking Jesus," but they were seeking the wrong thing (v. 26). It was not really Jesus himself they wanted, but the loaves and the fishes. It was not the "sign" as indicating his divine character that drew them, but simply the wonder as indicated by the fact that they expected a constant supply of bread, nor did they see in that bread the sign but only the bread.

Salvation is the free gift of God apart from works. Nevertheless he commands the exercise of will. "This is the work of God that ye believe on him whom he hath sent" (v. 29). This is not inconsistent with I Cor. 12:3, i. e., "No man can say that Jesus is the Lord but by the Holy Ghost." Like the two blades of a pair of shears, the executive act of my will in believing on Jesus is met by the regenerating energy of God's spirit making me a son of his.

The Jews demanded a sign as a condition of believing on him, when he, himself, was the greatest of all signs (v. 36). They sought to enforce their demands by reference to Moses and the manna, but Jesus showed them that the manna was a type of "the (true) bread of God." The characteristics of this bread are: (1) It comes down from heaven; (2) it giveth life unto the world. Jesus' hearers did not understand what he meant, and exclaimed: "Evermore give us this bread." Jesus was trying to impress upon his hearers the same diligence in heavenly matters as in the pursuit of earthly meals.

III. The Everlasting Bread (vv. 35-37). Misunderstanding his teaching (v. 34) Jesus said unto them plainly: "I am the bread of life," meaning that he is the true bread of God. He is not only the giver of the bread of life, but he, himself, is the Bread of Life. As bread will satisfy the needs of the physical body, giving strength, vitality and energy, so he will supply the needs of the soul. He will satisfy the deep hunger and longing which is the evidence of need, and he will also satisfy the thirst which is the more intense desire—the spiritual craving of the soul. Jesus ministers to the never-failing strength of all who come to him, and who believe on him. Coming to him is seeking help and blessing from him. Believing on him is the absolute abandonment of self to him. This multitude had actually seen the living bread (v. 36), yet they believed not because they were so occupied with the material and unreal things of this world.

Today we find men so taken up with the material and unreal that they neither appreciate nor believe upon the true bread which has been sent down from God out of heaven. Not all will come to him (John 5:24), but anyone can prove that he belongs to the elect of God and the company of the Father by coming to Jesus (v. 37). If any man does come, he will be received. These words of Jesus are very positive, "I will in no wise cast him out."

Jesus, the One who raises the dead, is therefore co-equal with God. Note the remainder of this chapter: "I will raise him up at the last day" (v. 40); "He that believeth on me hath everlasting life" (v. 47); "I am the bread of life" (v. 48); "Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, ye have no life in you" (v. 53); "Whoso eateth my flesh hath eternal life" (. 54); "For my flesh is meat indeed" (v. 55); "He that eateth my flesh dwelleth in me and I in him" (v. 56); "He that eateth me, even he shall live by me" (v. 57).

This is symbolical, it is true, but it is very real.

Innovations in Spring Suit Styles

Spring suits lie uppermost in the mind of almost every woman just now, and each one earnestly hopes to make a happy choice for herself. It is not a subject to be easily disposed of, especially for the American woman, who has a reputation to maintain in this matter. All the world concedes her suits to be the best ever, and she knows how to wear them, for she is essentially a "tailor-made" personality. But this spring there are some innovations in styles, and uneasy lies the head that is considering them!

One of these new claimants for consideration is illustrated here. It has the distinction of originality, and it is very good looking. The skirt is box-plaited all around; the narrow plaits lying edge to edge about the waist line. It is about two inches longer than the skirts of last season, but it may be shorter and still hold its own as good style, for women are very reluctant to lengthen the tailored skirt.

In the coat, which is half length, a box-plaited skirt is set on to a plain body with a heavy covered cord. Braided buttons set close together fasten it at the front, extending from the throat to a point below the bust line. The narrow, plain girdle of the material, looped at the front, plays its part in the adjustment of the coat to the figure. The sleeves are long and the collar very wide and quite plain.

Beautiful braiding in the conventional palm-leaf pattern is put on in braid of contrasting color. This is a novel feature in the suit and is important as any other item in its make-up. The success of this model will depend upon its perfect adjustment to the figure. It has everything to recommend it.

In the Realm of Blouse Fashions

Georgette crepe and crepe de chine reign together in the realm of blouse fashions, the most favored of all materials for the lovely new spring models. Crepe de chine demonstrates that it may be used for equal effectiveness for both tailored and costume blouses, but georgette is a medium that designers revel in for developing all the dressier bodices. In tailored and sports styles crepe de chine has a rival in silk jersey. Just a glance at blouses of any kind reveals the fact that light colors are shouldering white in point of popularity. Among voile blouses white predominates, but in organdie there is a more than liberal sprinkling of yellow, rose and blue models.

Color is the rule in georgette blouses. A wonderfully pretty model is shown in the picture made of plain navy blue georgette, combined with a broad stripe in navy and white. This is broken by a narrow figured stripe in paisley colorings. A panel of the plain navy, widening toward the bottom, is set in at the back and front.

A convertible collar and deep, turn-back cuffs of the navy georgette are decorated with white silk machine stitching and French knots. Three rows of the stitching extend up each side of the fronts. Small black ball buttons, with white markings on top, fasten the blouse.

Embroidery in colored silk and beads, hemstitching and French knots are the hallmarks of elegance on the best blouses.

Sand color with coral satin, sand with vivid green, and again with nattier blue are combinations with georgette that are irresistibly lovely.

Julia Bottomley

Rest Gowns.

The vogue of the rest gown continues and a practical little model is slipped over the head minus any fastenings—a pretty little lacing down the front holding it in place, and forming a charming finish at the same time—while a girdle passed around the waist secures the graceful folds of drapery beneath the arms. Once on it seems surprising that there is actually no fastening, save the loose twist in front to that aforesaid girdle. Velveteen and wool-back satin are both delightful fabrics for such a gown.

TWO MONTHS ON BARREN ISLAND

Seward Mining Man Tells How He Subsisted on Mussels for Weeks.

IS A TRAGIC STORY

Many Ships Pass the Island, but Fail to See Frantic Attempts of Two Men to Signal Them—How They Escaped.

Seattle, Wash.—For E. H. L. Mitchell, a mining man of Seward, truth will always be stranger than fiction. Mitchell, who is one of two survivors of the party which attemped to go from Seward to a new strike at Cold Bay, on Alaska Peninsula, in a two-ton gasoline launch last spring, is spending a few months here, and is showing to his friends the diary covering the 58 days that he spent with one comrade on one of the Barren islands at the mouth of Cook's Inlet.

The story of the disagreeable experience, which was written with a stub of a pencil Mitchell found on one of the victims of the storm of March 13, has been typewritten.

Is Tragic Tale.

The story of the attempt of the four men to cross from Seward to Cold Bay during the stormiest month of the year, of the wrecking of the launch Success, off Barren islands on March 13, and the desperate but successful attempt of Mitchell and Charles Hanson to cross Cook's Inlet in a 12-foot skiff has been told before, but in Mitchell's account there is a touch of naturalism that the conventional versions of the tragedy lack.

He relates in the diary how, after the wreck of the launch in which two of the party, "Tom" Campbell and John Larson, were drowned, he and Hanson lived for nearly two months on the island which was "so rugged that you can't find a level place on it big enough to straighten a nail," and how the two eked out a living on mussels and such game as they could shoot. The diary is full of accounts of ships passing the island and of the vain efforts of the two men to signal to them.

Lived Nearly Two Months on the Island.

Escape at Last.

On May 9, after nearly futile attempts, Mitchell and Hanson managed to row across Cook's Inlet in the skiff, which had withstood the months of storm. The 25-mile row in the face of a strong tide was accomplished after a six-hour struggle. The two arrived at Dog Fish Bay and were met by a family of Indians. On the next day Mitchell walked through the sleet and snow to an Indian village, English Berg, a distance of 18 miles. From there he was taken to Seldonia and later to Seward on the Admiral Farragut.

LETS CLIENT BITE HIS ARM

Heroic Action of Lawyer, However, Fails to Convince Court in Boston.

Boston.—Attorney Henry B. Roberts, counsel for John R. Sandiford, negro janitor of a Boston apartment house, recently bit his own arm until it bled, and then allowed his client to masticate another portion of the member in a similar manner, in an attempt to convince Judge Barnes that Sandiford was innocent of an alleged assault upon William J. Sarfaty, a tenant.

Sarfaty, finding his flat chilly on a recent cold day, remonstrated with Sandiford, whereupon the janitor was said to have bitten Sarfaty's left arm and thumb. A physician who treated the injured man examined Sandiford's teeth, and declared that it was he who had bitten his patient.

Attorney Roberts told the court that, in his opinion, any two bites would look alike, and attempted to prove it. His heroic action, however, did not convince the court, and Sandiford was found guilty.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Mrs. Quinn's Experience Ought to Help You Over the Critical Period.

Lowell, Mass.—"For the last three years I have been troubled with the Change of Life and the bad feelings common at that time. I was in a very nervous condition, with headaches and pain a good deal of the time so I was unfit to do my work. A friend asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and it has helped me in every way. I am not nearly so nervous, no headache or pain. I must say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best remedy any sick woman can take."—Mrs. MARGARET QUINN, Rear 259 Worthen St., Lowell, Mass.

Other warning symptoms are a sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness, inquietude, and dizziness.

UGH! CALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK! CLEAN LIVER AND BOWELS MY WAY

Just Once! Try "Dodson's Liver Tone" When Bilious, Constipated, Headachy—Don't Lose a Day's Work.

Liven up your sluggish liver! Feel fine and cheerful; make your work a pleasure; be vigorous and full of ambition. But take no nasty, dangerous calomel, because it makes you sick and you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver, which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel crashes into sour bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping.

Listen to me! If you want to enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone. Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal money-back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick.

Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning, because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headache and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and your bowels regular.

Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and cannot salivate. Give it to your children. Millions of people are using Dodson's Liver Tone instead of dangerous calomel now. Your druggist will tell you that the sale of calomel is almost stopped entirely here.—Adv.

DRUGGISTS PRAISE DR. KILMER'S SWAMP-ROOT

CUSTOMERS ALWAYS SATISFIED WITH RESULTS

I have received some very satisfactory reports from my customers who have used Swamp-Root, stating that they obtained the most beneficial results from its use and speaking very favorably regarding it. I have been selling it for from fifteen to eighteen years and during my entire experience have heard nothing but grateful praise.

Very truly yours,

"What does this sentence mean," asked the teacher: 'Man proposes, but God disposes'?"

A small boy in the back of the room waved his hand frantically.

"Well, Thomas," said the teacher, "what does it mean?"

"It means," answered Thomas with conscious pride, "that a man might ask a woman to marry him, but only the Lord knows whether she will or not."

PAIN? NOT A BIT! LIFT YOUR CORNS OR CALLUSES OFF

No humbug! Apply few drops then just lift them away with fingers.

This new drug is an ether compound discovered by a Cincinnati chemist. It is called freezone, and can now be obtained in tiny bottles as here shown at very little cost from any drug store. Just ask for freezone. Apply a drop or two directly upon a tender corn or callus and instantly the soreness disappears. Shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it off, root and all, with the fingers.

Not a twinge of pain, soreness or irritation; not even the slightest smarting, either when applying freezone or afterwards.

This drug doesn't eat up the corn or callus, but shrivels them so they loosen and come right out. It is no humbug! It works like a charm. For a few cents you can get rid of every hard corn, soft corn or corn between the toes, as well as painful calluses on bottom of your feet. It never disappoints and never burns, bites or inflames. If your druggist hasn't any freezone yet, tell him to get a little bottle for you from his wholesale house.—adv.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as the prescription othine — double strength — is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—Adv.

GAS, DYSPEPSIA AND INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" settles sour, gassy stomachs in five minutes—Time it!

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; its harmlessness; its certain unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any dealer and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them; if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eructations of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its prompt ness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.—Adv.

DOINGS OF THE LATE CONGRESS

Notable for Response to the Demand for Preparedness.

AUTHORIZED A GREAT NAVY

Provided Also for Increase and Reorganization of Army—Some of the Momentous Economic Statutes That Were Passed.

Washington, March 5.—The Sixty-fourth congress, which has passed into the annals of things that were, will be long remembered as the congress which responded to the demand for national preparedness. While economic statutes of pith and moment have been written into the law of the land, preparedness measures, inspired by the European war, out-top all other legislation.

Although ample provision has been made for fortifications, and authority has been granted by congress to more than double the standing army of the country, the metamorphosis of the United States from a commercial to a fighting nation has been wrought by the naval increases authorized. The congress now expired has authorized naval armaments destined to make Uncle Sam eventually the peer of any nation on earth in sea power, excepting, perhaps, Great Britain.

In the two sessions comprising the Sixty-fourth congress there have been authorized and appropriated for no less than 118 war craft. Nor is this all. The first session adopted a three-year-building program, the construction of which should be undertaken prior to July 1, 1918. This program included this allotment of fighting ships: Ten battleships, six battle cruisers, ten scout cruisers, 50 torpedo-boat destroyers, nine fleet submarines, 58 coast submarines, one experimental submarine (Neff system), three fuel ships, one repair ship, one transport, one hospital ship, two destroyer tenders, one fleet submarine tender, two ammunition ships, two gunboats.

Naval Vessels Appropriated For.

By the act which adopted this building program congress appropriated for four battleships, four battle cruisers, four scout cruisers, 20 destroyers, 30 submarines, and one each of these craft: Experimental submarine, fuel ship, hospital ship, ammunition ship and gunboat. During the second session provision was made for three battleships, one battle cruiser, three scout cruisers, 15 destroyers, one destroyer tender, one submarine tender and 18 submarines.

If the Sixty-fifth congress adopts the three-year program the remainder of the units for the reorganized battle fleet will be appropriated for next year. Staggering sums have been required to meet these demands, the naval appropriation for the second session of the expired congress alone amounting to almost a round half-billion dollars.

So great have been these expenditures that the ordinary sources of revenue are not sufficient and a special revenue measure had to be passed. Representative Kitchin, majority leader and chairman of the house ways and means committee, a small-navy man, in drafting the revenue measure and pressing it to passage through the house charged full responsibility for the measure to the advocates of preparedness.

Increase of the Army.

Increases of the regular army and its reorganizations under the national defense act were less striking than the naval increases. But the regular army was increased from an authorized peace strength of 100,000 to an authorized peace strength of 216,000, capable of expansion in war time to 256,000. After prolonged agitation for preparedness both on land and sea, the consensus of the military experts was that the United States with its enormous length of coast line must rely on its fleet to defend its shores.

In the discussions that preparedness agitation in congress provoked it was again and again demonstrated that the temper of the American people is absolutely against a big standing army. Former Secretary Garrison formulated and laid before congress with President Wilson's approval a scheme for a Continental army to be recruited and trained under the universal military training principle. Representative Hay of Virginia, then chairman of the powerful house military committee, opposed the Continental army idea and substituted for it in the national defense act, the federalization of the National Guard. Mr. Hay won President Wilson over to his way of thinking—the Federalized National Guard became the second line of the land defenses and Secretary Garrison resigned from the cabinet.

Other Notable Acts.

Although preparedness was the keynote of legislation, the Sixty-fourth congress found time also to enact a ship purchase bill, the Adamson eight-hour railroad law, a child labor law, a measure to forbid the immigration of illiterate aliens, a rural credits bill, a vocational educational bill and an act reorganizing the government of Porto Rico and extending citizenship to the islanders.

The ship purchase bill established a government shipping board to supervise shipping matters generally. It appropriated $50,000,000 to be obtained from the sale of Panama canal bonds for the purchase or construction of ships to be leased to private individuals in an effort to restore the American merchant marine.

The Adamson eight-hour railroad law was enacted on the eve of adjournment of the first session of the last congress. The enactment of the measure prevented a nation-wide railroad strike. It, however, has never become effective. Between the time of its enactment and the time for the commencement of its operation, January 1 last, the constitutionality of the measure was challenged by the railroads, and the whole matter is now pending in the Supreme court.

Supplemental railroad legislation, proposed by President Wilson in his annual message last December, failed of enactment. This legislation would have provided for the prevention of strikes by compulsory legislation. It was heartily opposed by all of the bodies of organized labor which had previously sought the eight-hour railroad law.

Child Labor and Immigration.

The child labor law barred from interstate commerce all products of children under sixteen years of age in mines or of children under fourteen in factories.

The passage of the immigration bill with its literacy test was accomplished over President Wilson's second veto. The literacy feature had been a subject of controversy between the executive and legislative branches of the government for the past twenty years. Presidents Taft and Cleveland both vetoed immigration measures because they carried the literacy feature, which all three presidents thought was not a proper measure of the fitness of aliens for admission to the United States.

The federal farm-loan act, commonly called the rural-credits bill, created 12 federal land banks with $750,000 capital each. The bill provides a system whereby loans may be made to farmers for productive purposes through national farm-loan associations. It will meet more particularly the needs of agriculturists in the West and South.

Under the vocational educational act the federal government on a gradually increasing scale covers every state appropriation dollar for dollar for secondary school instruction in agriculture and the mechanical and industrial arts.

On the eve of adjournment congress passed the post-office appropriation bill, with an amendment making "bone dry" all states having prohibitory laws. This measure was introduced in the senate by Senator Reed of Missouri. Its unexpected enactment had the effect of absolutely prohibiting the shipment in interstate commerce of intoxicants into states or territories which forbid the manufacture or sale of liquor.

It also closes the mails to all liquor advertising, including newspaper advertising. Neither can letters soliciting liquor orders be carried in the mails.

Sixteen Senators Retire.

Sixteen senators have now discarded their togas and prefixed their titles with "ex." This disturbance of personnel reduces but does not upset the Democratic control of the upper house. The Democratic majority of 16 is cut to 12, leaving out of consideration such senators and senators-elect as La Follette, Hiram Johnson, Poindexter and Norris, officially classed as Republicans but not always voting according to classification.

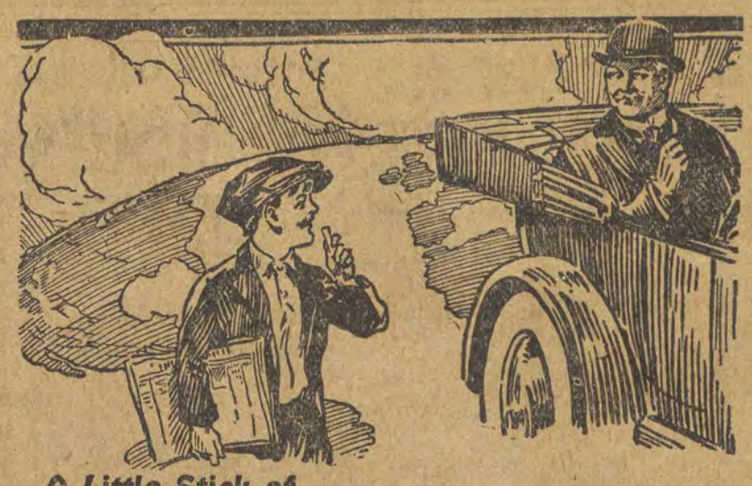
Among the nationally known senators now retired to private life are Clarence D. Clark of Wyoming, who has served in the senate continuously since January 23, 1895; Moses E. Clapp of Minnesota, one of the original Progressives; Luke Lea of Tennessee, now only thirty-seven years old, known as the "Baby Senator;" James E. Martine of New Jersey, who acquired fame early in his senatorial career by his stanch defense of applejack as a beverage, and John W. Kern of Indiana, who has been Democratic leader of the senate.

"Needing no introduction" among the new senators are Hiram Johnson of California, Frank B. Kellogg, "trust buster," of Minnesota, and Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania. Unlike the rest of the senators-elect, "their reputations are made;" all they need to do is to "live up to 'em."

WRITERS BEHIND THE TIMES

Complaint Made That They Have Taken No Cognizance of Changes Occurring in Dialects.

When Joseph Vance, of whom De Morgan wrote a book, was a boy in London, the local dialect was like this:



"He's a-goin' for to fight Mr. Gunn beyont the Pinnerforty works, and you better look sharp if you want for to see anythink."

Vance went away to South America and returned after many years to find the jargon altered to this pattern:

"It (the noise) was a lidy with a biby fighting another lidy and both was took off to the Sytion."

All American dialects have changed in 50 years as that of London did, with the possible exception of the tongue spoken in the southern Appalachian country. Yet, to judge by American comic papers and the gentlemen of the stage, our dialects are as immutable as the stars. They change no more than the faces of great cliffs.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Beautify Your Hair! Make It Soft, Fluffy and Luxuriant—Try the Moist Cloth.

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable luster, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any store and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all. Adv.

Diet, Exercise or Death!

An eminent medical authority writes that most of our city folks die of a thickening of the arteries or of kidney disease. The kidneys become clogged and do not filter the poisons from the blood, and one trouble follows another, high blood pressure damages the heart, arteries and kidneys. Usually its danger signals are backache, pain here or there, swollen feet or ankles, rheumatic twinges or spots appearing before the eyes.

"The very best remedy is this: Eat meat but once a day, or not at all. Plenty of outdoor exercise, and drink pure water frequently. Before meals take a little Anuric, the great uric acid neutralizer that is easily obtained at the drug store. When you have dizziness, chills or sweating, worry, or dragging pains in back, try this wonderful enemy to uric acid, which Dr. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y., discovered and named Anuric. Anuric, more potent than lithia, dissolves uric acid as hot water does sugar."

HEALTHY CHILDREN come from healthy mothers. And mothers will certainly be healthy if they'll take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Nothing can equal it in building up a woman's strength, in regulating and assisting all her natural functions, and in putting in perfect order every part of the female system. It lessens the pains and burdens, supports and strengthens weak, nursing mothers.

It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, a soothing and bracing nervine.

Castor oil is good for children or adults, and especially good for aged people. A pleasant form of a vegetable laxative that is to be had at any drug store, was invented by Dr. Pierce, who put together May-apple (podophyllin), aloes, jalap. Ask at any drug store for "Pleasant Pellets," and they can be had for little money. They contain no calomel and are of vegetable constituents, therefore harmless.

BEST FOR ALL CROPS

SOUTH ATLANTIC GUANO COMPANY

(SUBSIDIARY MORRIS FERTILIZER CO.)

ATLANTA — MONTGOMERY

A poor crop never pays. A farmer is not living up to his opportunities when he fails to make a good profit on his year's work. Outside of actual Providential casualties, there is no excuse for crop failure in these days of scientific methods of feeding the crop so that each plant is nursed and nourished from the time of sprouting till final maturity.

The methods of mixing and blending the South Atlantic Brands and the excellent class of materials used in them as actual food for the plant make them a scientifically perfect fertilizer. Their mechanical condition is so fine and free from lumps that each plant gets its full share of each element of plant food, thus insuring better stands and vigorous growth.

Their liberal use means larger yields, better profits and eminent satisfaction.

THE UNION-

VOLUME V. CLANTON, CHILTON COUNTY, ALA., MA

LETTER FROM CHILTON BOY IN U. S. SERVICE

Description of how They Guard the Border, day and Night.

Nogales, Ariz., Feb. 27, 1917.

Editor Union- Banner:

I thought perhaps you would like a little news from the Mexican border. I am a private of Co. B. 2nd Ala. Inf. stationed at Nogales, Ariz.

I want to say a few words in regard to treatment, camp life, guard duty, etc.

The Alabama brigade has a very good place for a camp. It is a little hilly but just enough to make it look good.

Some boys wrote to the Montgomery papers telling of the hardships, unjust treatment, and a lot of other things which were untrue. Some of the regulars here refer to us as the "Boo Hoo Boys." I want to say that I have had as good treatment from officers as I would have had at home. I have enjoyed our camp life here very much. Of course I want to return home to see my loved ones again, but I would rather stay here another year longer than to go home and be referred to as a member of the "Boo Hoo Boys." We have about as much privilege here as anyone could wish. We get up at 7:00 have breakfast at 7:30 or 8:00, we then go on drill for about 2 hours, then practically all of the afternoon is devoted entirely to us until 5 o'clock when retreat sounds and we and our rifles, bayonets, etc., are inspected. We are then free until taps, which sounds at 12 o'clock.

We go on guard duty about once in 8 or 9 days, and stay on duty 24 hours. We are then relieved by another detachmnt, and return to camp. Usually one Batallion goes on duty at the same time. It is divided into three reliefs. Each relief stands duty 2 hours and then is off duty for 4 hours, so you see we get plenty of rest when off duty. The Alabama boys do guard duty mostly on the border line next to Mexico. The most conspicous place is at a hill called Titicomb Hill overlooking the border. One post is known as the graveyard post. It overlooks a large cemetery just over the line. In it are buried all the Mexicans that have been executed and those that were killed in the battle before we came. One feels kind of skittish walking that post alone in the dead of night. His only companion is his trusty rifle and bayonet. Each guard carries 40 rounds of steel jackets, and carries gun loaded and locked for immediate service. He knows not what moment a greaser might sneak upon him and knife him or shoot him. At Titicomb Hill one of the regulars was killed by a greaser while on guard duty.

Our camp is named "Camp Stephen Little" in memory of him.

There is now stationed at Nogales, the 6th Field Artillery, the 12th Regof Regulars, the Alabama Brigade, the Base Hospital No .5, besides other non-combatant forces.

The boys are mostly all anxious to return to their families and friends, but they will stay to a man until we are relieved and then return feeling that we have served our country to th best of our ability. I am not boasting, but for myself I would rather go home in a black box than go home and be called a "Piker" and a "Boo Hoo."

Respectfully,
DANIEL T. JOHNSON,
Co. B. 2nd. Ala. Inf.
Nogales, Ariz.

Better Farming in the

PEANUTS AS A CAS

D. B. OSBORNE

To make money is the object of the farmer as well as of the manufacturer or the merchant.

Real profit is the difference between the market value of a commodity over its cost of production. A crop that has not a "Cash Surrender Value" (in an interrupted market demand) cannot be considered as a crop grown for Real Profit, although an indirect profit may result in reducing the cost of a Money Crop.

Money Crop Gives Real Profit

It is the Money Crop that gives real profit to the farm and a Money Crop can only be a crop of a known market value immediately convertible into money in any town at any time.

The problem of supplying the Southern farmer with a cash market for other crops that would yield as much or more profit than he derives from the cotton crop, has engaged the attention of the farmer and his friends, and with the assistance of the Boll Weevil, they have found a solution of the problem in Peanuts.

The Peanut

The Peanut crop offers wonderful opportunities. It can be grown over the entire South with profit.

It reaches its perfection in growth and yield on well drained, gray, sandy loam soils such as exist in the Coastal Plains along the Atlantic Seaboard, which territory is now either occupied or is being rapidly encroached upon by the Boll Weevil.

There is a constant demand at a "Cash Surrender Value" from a market that would be difficult to glut with the peanut, for the reason that there are five avenues of profit.

Five Avenues of Profit

First: Progressive oil mills throughout the South are eager buyers of the Peanut and offer a spot cash market at very remunerative prices. The oil is in great demand.

Second: The nut and vines are a splendid feed for cattle, producing a quick growth of firm and tender meat. A profit in the sales of cattle thus fed and fattened is a certainty.

Third: The best quality of peanuts find a ready sale at top prices to the manufacturers of candy, of peanut butter and other confections.

Fourth: Peanut cake (from the oil mills), fed to hogs, makes a vigorous growth and gain in weight and when properly "finished off" with corn, gives a firm meat with the fat containing a proper proportion of stearine for making good firm lard.

Feeding the whole nut to the hog is a mistake for two reasons: First, the value or profit from the oil is lost, and second, the oil of the nut gives an excess of oil over stearine and produces in meat, the fat c duce lard of a

Fifth: The Pe is a soil builde the soil and w rotation with c which are vora gen and requiring c idly deplete the soil

Proper Fertilization

Because it is a legume, many people believe that it requires no fertilizers and in this they are badly mistaken. Nitrogen gathering nodules do not begin to form on the roots of the plant until the nut is two-thirds matured and if through lack of proper nourishment, the plant is allowed to languish until this stage is reached, the crop will be greatly curtailed and profits lost.

The plant requires a sufficient amount of nitrogen from a quick acting source to carry it to the nodule forming period while the presence in sufficient quantities of phosphoric acid and potash is essential during the growth and maturity of the plant.

An application of a fertilizer containing 12 per cent available phosphoric acid, 1 1-2 to 2 per cent ammonia and 2 per cent potash, applied at the rate of from 400 to 600 pounds per acre, will make a crop of both nuts and hay sufficient to return the cost of the fertilizer and leave a handsome profit while an unfertilized crop will barely return cost of production.

The Profit Value

The profit value of an acre of well cultivated and fertilized peanuts is equal to the profit value of an acre of cotton producing two-thirds of a bale to the acre.

The following tabulated cost and value estimated by Dr. J. N. Harper, clearly proves this point:

Comparative Cost Per Acre of Cotton and Peanuts

Cotton Cost	Per Acre	Peanuts Cost

UNION SPRINGS

The balmy weather and singing birds indicate the approach of spring.

Measles are raging here. The school was forced to close on account of the measles.

Mr. Newt Atchison of Ensley came home recently. He is on the sick list.

S. N. Waldrup recently moved to Birmingham to make his home there, but just as his goods reached the Randolph depot for shipment he gave orders to have them returned, so he is back home, we presume a happier if not a wiser man.

Mr. Ed Smitherman and family of Pletcher visited here Saturday and Sunday.

The Russ Turpentine Company seem to be doing much at present.

John S. Waldrup recently visited Birmingham.

Mrs. Isaac Waldrup of Fenwood has been sick, but is better.

The road overseers are getting their roads in better condition. Let the the people get interested and work the roads both public and private and ther esults will be pleasing to all. People living on or near the highways or private roads could give a small portion of their time to the roads, looking after them often, they would hardly miss the time, but it would add so much to thecounty and all would be proud of it. Some of our people are doing that way. Some who reside on private roads just let them go to the bad as if they had no care for their home or county.

People should wake up and think more, as the present order of things are being shaped people are destined to be aroused sooner or later, how much better to get awake now than to sleep on and have to experience the rude awakening to come. No chance to avoid it. Our people should be more public spirited on many lines. The Sunday school for instance is a mine of knowledge if we would just think. Those in a position to know tell us Denominational schools are dying, hence the importance of the Sunday school. The children are designed by nature to be real men and women, then how needful to get them to thinking how to be men and women in the true sense. They are destined to be awakened, so persuasive measures are to be preferred to those more rigid later.

Last but not least don't forget your county paper, The Banner. It is in sympathy with every progressive movement in the county. It merits our hearty support. We can't afford to be without it.

The friends of Mr. W. M. Wood in this part were shocked and made sad to read of his death in last week's Banner. We remember him back in the seventies when he came from Bullock County. He was a sweet singer, his voice was musical. He was loving and kind. An impressive man. Alas, he is gone.

NOTICE OF ELECTION

Notice is hereby given that by an order of the Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County, Alabama, an election will be held on the 16th day of April, 1917, at the various polling places in the several beats of said County, for the purpose of voting upon the question of issuing bonds to the amount of Two Hundred Thousand Dollars, bearing interest not to exceed five per cent per annum, and to run for a period of thirty years from date of issue, for the purpose of paying debts created for constructing roads and bridges in said County.

...eeps an accurate record of work done and the cost of carrying on the project, and is required to make a report at the end of the year showing the net profit or loss. In this way the practical side of such an undertaking is taught as well as the theoretical, and the pupil can judge for himself whether or not the operation has been worth while.

During 1916, 21,532 school pupils of Indiana carried on home projects work. They produced $180,331 worth of products at a cost of $56,677, leaving a net profit of $123,654. Disregarding the financial advantage from such work, there is an individual gain for each pupil in the proper exercise of mind and muscle, and in the ability to plan and execute genuine work which leads to better farming and better homemaking. The work was largely carried on under volunteer leaders such as local teachers, members of farmers' unions, county farm demonstration agents, as well as pain township supervisors employed during the summer months.

Consolidation of Rural Schools Gaining in Public Favor in Escambia.

As typical of what is being done in Escambia County, the following incident is cited:

On Monday, J. F. McGowan, trustee of the Dixie school and Charles Clements and J. M. Messick, trustees of the Mason school, appeared before the county board of education and presented a petition signed by a large majority of the voters in the districts mentioned, requesting the consolidation of the two schools and also asking for an election for a special three mill tax for the new district. The request was granted and the commissioners will have the matter of an election before them at their meeting in March.

Secretary Lansing

es Action

TS APRIL 16

d To Pass Press-
d Give Suprnment

sident Wilson, red the arming
t ships against ss submarine war-
same time issued a proclamation calling an extra session of congress to meet April 16.

The president's decision came suddenly, following the action of the senate in revising its rules to permit prompt action on important questions and the submission of formal opinions by Secretary Lansing and Attorney General Gregory that he has the power to arm merchantmen without action by congress.

Details of the government's armed neutrality plans for defending the merchant marine were withheld to avoid endangering Americans and their ships by permitting the information to reach Germany. The only statement at the white house and the navy department was that the president had determined to fully protect American rights.

The decision, coming at the end of a period of tense waiting, was generally hailed as the natural and unavoidable next step in the policy adopted by the president when he broke off diplomatic relations with Germany and gave warning that the United States could not tolerate attacks on American ships and citizens in violation of international law.

Fraught with the grave possibility of war with Germany, the action was taken by President Wilson only after he was convinced that Germany actually was proceeding with her campaign of ruthlessness and had made efforts to plot with Mexico and Japan against the territory integrity of the United States.

Long before the order was given from the white house, all necessary preparations for the arming of merchantmen had been completed at the navy department. Secretary Daniels, however, issued an appeal to the press of the nation to refrain from discussing these preparations.

The president's decision sent a thrill through the senate, meeting in special session, and in government departments. Still hoping that war with Germany will be avoided, officials and senators declared that the issue rests entirely with Germany.

625 LIVES LOST WHEN TRANSPORT GOES DOWN

British Steamer Mendi, Carrying African Laborers, Sinks In Collision. Off Isle Of Wight

London. — The British transport Mendi, carrying South African native laborers, was sunk after a collision on February 21 and 625 persons lost their lives. Ten of the persons lost were Europeans, according to the announcement of Premier Botha. The collision occcred off the Isle of Wight. The official announcement says:

"Premier Botha stated to the South African parliament that the transport Mendi, carrying the last batch of the South African native laborers' contingent (the rest of whom were landed safely in France) collided with another vessel en route from England to Havre and sank in 25 minutes. The collision occurred off the Isle of Wight February 21. The escort's searchlight could not penetrate the fog, but the survivors were rescued by passing vessels. Twelve European officers and 191 natives were saved. Ten Europeans and 615 natives were lost.

Inventor Of Zeppelin Goes Hence

London.—Count Zeppelin is dead, according to a dispatch from Berlin. According to a Berlin telegram transmitted by a news agency, Count Zeppelin died at Charlottenburg, near Berlin, from inflammation of the lungs, superinduced by pneumonia.

Germany Releases 59 Americans

Berlin.—Fifty-nine Americans taken from vessels sunk by the German raider in the south Atlantic and taken to Swinemuende on January 1 on board the captured British steamer Yarrowdale were released from quarantine and left for the Swiss frontier. News of their impending release was conveyed to them in the detention camp at Brandenburg. Most of them were seamen and were unaware that the Georgic and Mount Temple, upon which steamers they had shipped, were merchantmen.

Preparing For U. C. V. Reunion

Washington.—Directors of the committee on arrangements for the Confederate veterans' reunion to be held here the week of June 4, held the first of a series of weekly meetings, planned between now and June. A subcommittee was named to investigate the advisability of holding assemblies of the veterans in a convention hall here, or in a big tent located in the middle of the group of sleeping tents on the campus near Washington monument. Ten thousand dollars has been collected from Washington citizens.

WAR LOSSES ARE ENORMOUS

First Official Tabulation of Reports Of Killed, Wounded, Captured And Missing Soldiers

Washington.—More than ten million men are recorded as killed, wounded, captured or missing in the European war, in the first complete tabulation of official and authenticated semi-official reports of the various belligerents received here.

Among the military proper 4,441,200 are reported dead; 2,598,500 wounded, and 2,576,500 captured and missing. Among civilians, especially on the Russian and Balkan fronts and in Armenia, another 400,000 are figured as either dead or wounded through the war.

These figures are admittedly only approximate and in some instances necessarily several weeks old. They are not called exact in any sense, but are known to be so nearly so as to give a fairly reliable picture of the war's results. The figures are certainly minimum figures, and then on a careful rechecking with all available authentic information.

The entente's losses are given as 6,318,400, as against 3,384,800 for the central empires. One reason for the great discrepancy between the two is believed to be the relative unpreparedness of the entente, the disastrous retreats in France at the beginning of the war; in Russia from the Mazurian lakes and the Carpathians and in Roumania.

The entente's dead total 2,890,400, against 1,550,800 for the central empires; the entente's wounded total 1,676,500, against 922,000 for their enemies; and their captured and missing, 1,652,500, against 912,000 for the central empires. These losess are based upon the assumption that in Germany 90 per cent of the total wounded return to the front and 80 per cent in all the other countries.

Russia is infinitely the heaviest loser so far, with a grand total of 3,084,200 men. The bulk of these losses occurred in the Mazurian lake disaster, and the two retreats from the Carpathians when prisoners were taken by the tens of thousands. Moreover, lack of communications and hospital facilities has made the death rate in Russia extraordinarily high. Their dead total 1,50,000, their wounded 784,200, and their prisoners and missing 800,000, which is said to be much lower than the probable number.

ARMENIANS BUTCHERED FOR THEIR LOYALTY TO CHRIST

When They Rejected Mohammed, They Were Slain, Lord Bryce Says

New York.—Massacres of Armenians were inspired by the desire of the Turkish ruling clans to eliminate from the empire all sects and creeds except that of Mohammed, according to Lord Bryce, former British ambassador to the United States, in a cable message to the American committee for Armenian and Syrian relief, made public here.

"During these recent massacres, whenever any Christian would turn Mohammedan he was spared," Lord Bryce said in his message. "Many a Christian child was torn from its parents to be brought up as a Mussulman. Thousands of Armenian Christian girls were sold in the market or distributed among Turkish officers to be imprisoned for life in Turkish harems and there forced into Mohammedanism.

"But many more thousands of Armenian women, as well as men, were offered their choice between Christ and Mohammed, and when they refused Mohammed were shot or drowned forthwith. For days and days together the bodies of Christian women who had thus perished were seen floating down the Euphrates."

Postmasters To Go Under Civil Service

Washington.—Postmaster General Burleson announces that after April 1 the appointments of all postmasters of the first, second and third classes will be subject to competitive examinations. Nominations will be sent to the senate, but in making selections the president will be guided by the results of examinations and send in the names at the head of the lists. Whether the civil service commission, under which fourth class postmasters are now named, will conduct the examinations has not been determined.

Submarine Sinks French Destroyer

Paris.—The torpedo boat destroyer Cassini of the Mediterranean patrol service was torpedoed by a submarine on February 28. According to the official announcement, the vessel sank in two minutes. The text of the announcement reads: "The torpedo boat destroyer Cassini of the Mediterranean patrol service was submarined on February 28, at 1 p. m. The powder magazine having exploded, the vessel sank in less than two minutes." The captain, six officers and 100 of the crew perished."

U. S. SHIPS ARMED; NATIONS NOTIFIED

SECRETARY LANSING SENDS WORD TO ALL EMBASSIES AND LEGATIONS.

ARMED GUARD FOR ALL SHIPS

Action Explained as Necessary for Protection of Vessels and Lives of Persons on Board.

Washington.—The United States government took the only formal step that will precede the sailing for the war zone of American merchant ships armed to resist attacks by German submarines.

Notice to the world of the intention to place an armed guard on merchantmen was given in a communication sent by the state department to all embassies and legations in Washington. The statement which it is assumed will be transmitted to Germany by the Swiss minister, follows:

"In view of the announcement of the imperial German government on January 31, 1917, that all ships, those of neutrals included, met within certain zones of the high seas, would be sunk without any precaution being taken for the safety of the persons on board, and without the exercise of visit and search, the government of the United States has determined to place upon all American merchant vessels sailing through the barred areas an armed guard for the protection of the vessels and the lives of the persons on board."

Officials continued to be reticient regarding the arming of ships and the probable date the first would be ready to sail. All such details are regarded as miltary secrets. In fact, there is a general disposition to avoid discussing any phase of the situation pending the outcome of the defiance of the submarine menace by American vessels with naval guns and gunners on board.

Speculation continues as to the part the United States may play if forced into actual hostilities by Germany. In official quarters the opinion is very clear that President Wilson for the present, at least, is contemplating no more direction in connection with the European war than is necessary to protect American rights on the high seas. Preparations for any eventuality are going forward but the President is known still to cling to the hope that there will be no actual clash between America's armed merchantmen and German submarines.

ANOTHER AGAINST GERMANY.

Chinese Senate Approves Severance of Relations With Germany.

Peking.—The Senate approved the severance of relations with Germany by a vote of 152 to 37.

Peking.—Premier Tuan Chi Kui, accompanied by the entire cabinet, appeared before the House and the Senate and stated that the cabinet and the President had decided that China should sever diplomatic relations with Germany. The House approved severance of relations by a vote of 431 to 87.

NEW CASTLE COLD AND DARK.

Town Settles Down to Find Its Dead and Care for Its Wounded.

New Castle, Ind.—The city of New Castle, which was swept by a tornado, settled down to another night of chill and darkness, with National Guardsmen patrolling the streets. Arrangements had been made to care for practically all the homeless; churches, schools, lodge rooms, public halls and dwellings having been thrown open to them, but suffering in many cases was intense.

The death roll showed 20 dead, two persons missing and about a score seriously injured, with a hundred more suffering from minor hurts. No more bodies had been found in the ruins but some of the injured died in hospitals.

GOVERNOR JOHNSON RESIGNS.

California Senator-Elect Gives Up Present Office March 15.

Sacramento, Cal.—Governor Hiram W. Johnson, senator-elect, announced his resignation from the governorship here, effective March 15. Governor Johnson's second term of four years was slightly more than half completed. He was succeeded automatically by William D. Stephens of Los Angeles, a former congressman. Stephens was appointed lieutenant governor by Governor Johnson after the death of Lieutenant Governor John Eshelmann, February 28, 1916.

Union Labor to Stand by Nation.

Washington.—Organized labor in America, through its representatives in conference here, offered its services to the country in every field of activity, if, despite all endeavors and hopes, the United States should be drawn into war. The action was taken by unanimous vote of more than 150 delegates from trade unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and five unaffiliated organizations, including the great railroad brotherhoods. In all about 3,000,000 American workers were represented

MANY PERSONS KILLED AND INJURED IN TORNADO

Hundreds Of Houses Wrecked—Estimated Property Loss Will Be In Excess Of Million Dollars

Indianapolis, Ind.—A tornado swept over central eastern Indiana, killing more than a score of persons at Newcastle and two children in Wayne county.

The total number of injured will run over two hundred, some of whom are probably fatally hurt. The damage will total well nigh over a million dollars at Newcastle and several thousand dollars in Wayne county.

Adjt. Gen. Harry B. Smith of the Indiana National Guard was at his office directing measures of relief. He said his reports were that twenty-six were dead and 150 injured at Newcastle. Two companies of militia were ordered to Newcastle.

Physicians, nurses, undertakers and ambulances were ordered to Newcastle from Indianapolis, Muncie and other towns.

George Dyer, general superintendent of the Lake Erie and Western railroad, said that he had received word from railroad officials at Newcastle that forty-two bodies had been removed from the wreckage in the storm-swept district in that at least twenty-five persons in the hospitals probably would die. He said the report came from a division superintendent, who, in an automobile, had made a trip through the devastated district.

General Carranza Chosen President

Mexico City.—Gen. Venustiano Carranza was elected president of Mexico by what is believed to have been the largest vote ever cast in the republic. Although the voters had the privilege of writing in or declaring any name they desired, General Carranza received all but a few scattering ballots. The estimated vote cast runs all the way from several hundred thousand to a million. The presidential election was provided for in articles adopted by the constitutional assembly which met at Queretaro.

Germany Ready Now To Face U. S.

Amsterdam.—The Koelnische Volks Zeitung, a copy of which has been received here, admits that the arming of United States merchantmen will make Germany's position more difficult. It expresses the belief that the Americans will not find it easy to provide guns and gun crews and says it does not believe the danger to German submarines will be increased. "We have always maintained," says the newspaper, "that a victory over England would be impossible unless we determined to face the United States.

after effecting a surprise crossing of the Diala and bridging the Tigris, drove the Turks back to within three miles of Bagdad. It is evident that the Turks have been unable to offer any serious resistance since the fall of Kut-el-Amara.

They were said to be hurriedly summoning reinforcements from other theaters of the war where Turks were engaged, but the distances to be covered were so great that additional forces were unable to arrive in time to save the ancient city which, after Mecca, occupies first place in the Mohammedan mind.

The fall of Bagdad, besides ending German hopes of near eastern dominion, based on a Berlin-Bagdad railway, will reverberate throughout the Mohammedan empires and, it is believed, will more than rehabilitate British prestige in the far east, damaged by the earlier loss of Kut-el-Amara.

Perhaps no more welcome news could come at a time when the British public for the first time, owing to the submarine war, is beginning to feel the effects of the war in a greatly reduced food supply besides being thrown into depression by the revelations of the Dardanelles report.

Apparently the occupation was effected without resistance and with only slight losses. Even if the Turks succeeded in extricating all their forces, the loss of Bagdad is a grave blow to them. Bagdad has been the base for all Turkish operations in Persia. Up to within a few days ago the Turks occupied about thirty thousand square miles of Persian territory, but with the Russians pressing them closely from Kirmanshah, as well as from the direction of Erzerum, indications point to a speedy junction of the British and Russian forces which would soon compel the Turkish evacuation of Persia.

SHIP APPAM RETURNED TO HER ENGLISH OWNERS

Supreme Court Holds German Government Has No Right To The Vessel

Washington.—In a unanimous opinion the Supreme court has decreed restoration to her English owners of the liner Appam and cargo, brought into Hampton Roads more than a year ago by a prize crew from the German raider Moewe. Ship and cargo, valued at between three and four million dollars, must be delivered within thirty days, as the court's order is final.

The decision, written by Justice Day, affirms decrees by Federal Judge Waddill of Virginia and upholds the original ruling by Secretary Lansing that prizes coming into American ports unaccompanied by captor warships have the right to remain only long enough to make themselves seaworthy.

American neutrality was violated in bringing the Appam into Hampton Roads, the court says, and neither the ancient treaties relied upon by Lieutenant Berg, the German prize commander, The Hague conventions nor the Declaration of London entitles any belligerents to make American ports a place for deposit of prizes as spoils of war under such circumstances.

Combine Charge To Raise Coal Cost

New York.—The federal grand jury which has been investigating the high cost of food and fuel returned two indictments naming as defendants in the first 108 corporations and fifty-five individuals; in the second, ten corporations and sixteen individuals in the business of producing or selling coal. The defendants in the first indictment are charged with participating in a combination among selling agents and producers of 22,000,000 out of 35,000,000 tons of coal produced annually.

May Call Extra Session Of Congress

Washington.—The impression is growing here that an extra session of congress is certain, and the time of calling it is believed to depend almost wholly on developments in the senate and on the decision of the president on arming merchantmen. Senator Lodge attempted to introduce in the senate the armed neutrality bill killed by the filibuster, but Vice President Marshall sustained a point of order that the senate could not consider legislation in an extra session when the house is not called to meet.

Fierce Fighting On British Front

New York.—Fighting continues on various sectors of the Somme and Ancre fronts in France. North and south of the Ancre, the London war office reports, the British have made additional gains, in the former region north of Puisieux-au-Mont and in the latter northwest of Irles. East of Bouchavesnes, in the Somme sector, the British report the raiding of a German trench and the scattering of German forces who were massing for a counter attack.

INDIGESTION, GAS OR SICK STOMACH

Time it! Pape's Diapepsin ends all Stomach misery in five minutes.

Do some foods you eat hit back—taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic, jot this down: Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered you will get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear.

You feel different as soon as "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructations of undigested food.

Go now, make the best investment you ever made, by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or bad stomach. Adv.

Solar Surface Temperature.

The latest estimate of the absolute temperature of the solar surface is that of F. Biscoe of Warsaw, whose computation is based upon the intensity of radiation for individual wave-length in the solar spectrum as obtained with the spectro-bolometer at the Smithsonian astrophysical observatory. He gets an average of 7,300 degrees plus 100 degrees Centigrade.

With the Fingers! Says Corns Lift Out Without Any Pain

Sore corns, hard corns, soft corns or any kind of a corn can shortly be lifted right out with the corn a few drops of freezone, says a Cincinnati authority.

At little cost one can get a small bottle of freezone at any drug store, which will positively rid one's feet of every corn or callus without pain or soreness or the danger of infection.

This new drug is an ether compound, and dries the moment it is applied and does not inflame or even irritate the surrounding skin. Just think! You can lift off your corns and calluses now without a bit of pain or soreness. If your druggist hasn't freezone he can easily get a small bottle for you from his wholesale drug house.—adv.

India's Hoarded Treasure.

The "hoarded treasure" of India is estimated by the Financial Review at over £400,000,000. Most of this is believed to be hidden in comparatively small sums. It is a financial axiom in London that all the gold and silver which is sent to India annually by the British government is immediately absorbed and passes quickly out of circulation. In India, however, the existence of any really important hidden wealth is declared a myth.

BILIOUS, HEADACHY, SICK "CASCARETS"

Gently cleanse your liver and sluggish bowels while you sleep.

Get a 10-cent box.

Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months. Adv.

NITRATE BOARD VISITS ALABAMA

PLEAS FOR THE LOCATION OF NITRATE PLANT AT MUSCLE SHOALS PRESENTED

WILL MEAN MUCH TO STATE

Location of Plant in State Would Mean the Immediate Expenditure of $20,000,000.

Birmingham.—Pleas for the government $20,000,000 nitrate fixation plant to be established at Muscle Shoals were heard here by the Government Nitrate Board, composed of Secretary of War Baker, Secretary of Interior Lane, Secretary of Agriculture Houston and government engineers and experts.

The hearings opened with an address of welcome by Governor Henderson.

A brief, the chief feature of which was a discussion of the "navigation of the Tennessee river and what the development of Muscle Shoals would do for it," was presented.

The location of the nitrate plant in Alabama means the expenditure of $20,000,000 to establish same and thousands of dollars will be paid out regularly for labor after the plant is established.

Board Visits Tuscaloosa.

Tuscaloosa.—The claims of the Warrior river for the location of a nitrate plant were submitted here to the commission appointed by President Wilson. That a strong case was made out was admitted by members of the party of engineers that accompanied the commission and by advocates of the Muscle Shoals proposition.

Tick Eradication Work Pleasing.

Montgomery.—Tick eradication work for February in Alabama shows a lower percentage of infected cattle following the dipping than that of any previous month during the winter. According to the report just issued by R. E. Jackson, Inspector in charge of the work in Alabama, out of 15,000 cattle dipped, only 17 herds, comprising 265 head of cattle, remain with a vestige of infection. This is considered an extremely good report, and the progress of the work in practically every county in the State is declared to be very satisfactory to the Department of Agriculture.

Girl Tries to Join Army.

Montgomery.—Giving her name as William M. Callaway, and claiming to be the son of J. T. Callaway, of Deatsville, Alabama, a girl, disguised as a boy, tried to enlist at the local recruiting station. When asked to strip for examination, the girl burst into tears and said she thought she could get into the army without her sex becoming known.

Pleads Guilty to Embezzlement Charge

Huntsville.—E. B. Shoemaker, former manager of the Tennessee Valley Bank at Gurley, this County, charged with embezzlin gapproximately $15,000 of the bank's funds, pleaded builty and by agreement accepted a setence of three years in the State penitentiary. Shoemaker and his friends made good the shortage. He is 36 years old.

Designer of Confederate Flag Dead.

Marion.—News of the recent death in Louisville, Ky., of Nicola Marschal, the noted artist, designer of the first Confederate flag and the Confederate uniform, was received with regret by Marion friends. He was for many years a resident of Marion, and beautiful portraits, the work of his hands, are to be found in various sections of the State.

Girard Liquor Stolen.

Girard. — Several hundred more cases of liquor and beer were stolen from the Phenix City depot. This is the third time in a few months that the warehouse has been broken into, large quantities of liquor being stolen each time. Officers are working on clues, and it is thought that arrests will be made soon.

Monkey Sets House on Fire.

Haleyville.—Fire destroyed the office building of the Mascot-Delmar Coal Co., located at Delmar, three miles west of Haleyville. It was thought that a pet monkey overturned a lighted lantern and set the building on fire. The loss is estimated at $500. The monkey was burned.

Dothan Entertains Woodmen.

Dothan.—The annual meeting of the Head Camp of Alabama Woodmen of the World, held here March 13, 14 and 15, was a grand affair. More than 700 delegates and many more visitors were in attendance.

Free Chautauqua For Dothan.

Dothan.—Dothan will have a free chautauqua. Citizens have contributed enough money to meet all expenses of the business and a contract has been closed with a well known chautauqua bureau for a three-days' meeting, March 20, 21 and 22.

Woman Dies From Burns.

Gadsden.—Mrs. Annie Owens, age 27, of Slackland, died as the result of burns received in rescuing her small child from an open grate.

TROOPS TO MOVE MARCH 15.

Signal Company, Ambulance Corps and Field Hospital to Come Home Then.

Birmingham.—The first of the Alabama troops at Nogales, Ariz., began entraining for home on March 15. Orders were issued from the Southern Department for the Signal Company, Ambulance Company and Field Hospital Company to entrain on the above date.

The next movement of the Alabama troops will be on March 17, when the Second Infantry and Brigade Headquarters will leave for the mobilization camp at Montgomery.

Definite orders for entrainment of the First and Fourth Infantries have not been issued as yet, but the statement has been made by the War Department that an effort is being made to have all the guardsmen now on the border in mobilization camps by April 1. The troops will go to Montgomery and be mustered out there.

EDITORS HOLD MEETING.

May 10 and 11 Selected for Annual Gathering.

Birmingham. — Plans to make the next meeting o fthe Alabama Press Association the most successful in the history of the organization were launched at a meeting of the executive committee held in Birmingham. The meeting is to take place May 10 and 11 and Gadsden will be host to the newspaper men of the State. Harry M. Ayers, editor of the Anniston Star, president of the association, presided at the meeting, which was held at the Tutwiler.

Noted Educator Dies.

Birmingham.—Funeral services over the remains of Prof. Joel C. DuBose, aged 61 years, who died in a local infirmary, were held here. Professor DuBose was one of the best known educators in Alabama and had been identified with the educational activities of the state for many years. Professor DuBose was a member of the legislature of Alabama from 1902 to 1906. The only other honor he sought at the hands of the people of the state was the office of superintendent of education, for which he was a candidate in 1910, without success. He was author of "Alabama History," which is a textbook for the schools of the state. He also wrote "A Sketch of Alabama History," and was a regular contributor to magazines and newspapers.

Farm Work Delayed.

Goodwater.—The farmers in this section are behind with preparations for early planting. But little work was done in the way of ground preparation before Christmas, and less has been done since the first of the year. There has been few days when the ground was suitable for plowing. The cotton crop is going to be extremely light, and with but little commercial fertilizer used. Practically all grain that was sown in the fall has been killed.

Iowa Father Hunting For Boy.

Montgomery. — Detective agencies throughout the state have been asked for information as to Clarence D. Mickelson, aged 17 years, height 5 feet, 11 inches, weight about 140 pounds, complexion medium, gray eyes, brown hair, circular scar on left wrist and scar on right leg just above knee from burn. A sick mother is anxious to find her boy, and D. B. Henderson, sheriff at Waterloo, Iowa, is making the inquiry.

Record Broken by Mobile Jury.

Mobile.—The grand jury of the February term of the Circuit Court, made a new record in the matter of indictments when in a partial report it returned 160 true bills. The past three grand juries of Mobile County had returned the smallest number of indictments known. It is said that a majority of the indictments are against persons for violating the prohibition law.

State Must Feed Herself, Slogan.

Birmingham.—"Not only the South, but Alabama, must feed itself." This was the substance of the remarks of Mrs. G. H. Mathis, Alabama's greatest woman farmer, and one of the greatest farmers of the country, at an open meeting held in the assembly room of the Civic Association here, attended by several hundred people.

County Fair Is Wanted.

Selma.—Mayor Louis Benish suggests that Selma get ready to hold a city and county fair during the early fall of the year. It is not his idea to start a big affair, but to hold a fair of large community interest, embracing Dallas County.

Attalla Man Injured.

Gadsden. — Marion Ledford, of Attalla, was seriously injured when a string of loose cars struck the engine on which he was working. He was badly bruised, but is expected to recover.

Pig Iron Resold at $27.50 Per Ton.

Birmingham.—Pig iron, standard No. 2 foundry, sold in Birmingham, f. o. b furnaces, at $27.50 per ton, an advance of $1.50 per ton in a week. High manganese iron sold in Birmingham at $30.50 per ton, while special analysis iron as well as special brand iron sold at a premium of $1 and more on the foundry prices. Some of the manufacturers announce that they have a little iron for sale for the first half delivery, but will not consider the above prices while there is a considerable tonnage for last half delivery.

DECREASE IN POLL TAX COLLECTIONS

MORE THAN 17,000 PERSONS HAVE DELIBERATELY DISFRANCHISED THEMSELVES.

AT THE STATE'S CAPITAL

Interesting News Budget of Happenings in Various Departments of State.

—Montgomery.

No less than 17,900 persons have deliberately disfranchised themselves this year by failure to pay their poll taxes before February 1. Records of A. C. Pearson, file clerk of the state auditor's office, show that only 77,824 persons paid poll taxes during the year and put themselves in position to vote in the event of any elections this year.

During the preceding year 89,998 poll taxes were paid, showing a decrease of 12,174 for this year. The annual increase of poll taxes because of boys becoming of age and persons moving into the state is estimated at 7500. Thus the real decrease this year is about 19,000, minus between 2000 and 3000 who were not required to pay poll taxes because they became members of the organized militia during the year.

Total collections from poll taxes this year were $140,062.50, compared with $212,911.50 last year, a decrease of $72,849. The burden caused by the decrease will be borne by the public school system.

Jefferson county paid in the largest amount for poll taxes, $18,328.50, while Walker was second with the $4641 and Mobile third with $4296.

Joel B. Brown, Presiding Judge.

Attorney General Martin announced that Judge Joel B. Brown, of the Court of Appeals, has succeeded the late Judge John Pelham as Presiding Judge of that court. Differences of opinion has existed, some holding that the death of Judge Pelham created a vacancy in the position of Presiding Judge, and the man appointed by the Governor to succeed him would become the presiding judge. Judge Brown, however, by right of his seniority among the judges of the court, has automatically succeeded Judge Pelham.

Funds Needed by State's Chemist.

The annual report of the pure food bureau of the Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1916, states that inspection work under the food and drug act, insofar as human food and drugs are concerned, has been impractical and ineffective, owing to the fact that sufficient funds have not been provided for the State Chemist at Auburn to carry on inspection work.

According to E. M. Moore, Chief Clerk of the Pure Food and Drug Bureau, the law provides that before legal proceedings can be taken against violators of the law, a chemical analysis must first be obtained of their products, showing that it has been adulterated. Mr. Moore states that the sum of $800 appropriated for the use of the State Chemist at Auburn, is entirely inadequate.

The receipts of the department for 1916 amount to $31,549.40, as against disbursements of $7,079.94, leaving a surplus of more than $24,000. In order that the pure food and drug law may be enforced, he urges that necessary funds be appropriated, that the department may be allowed to act against such violations.

Bricken's Pay Held Up.

Because of doubt that Charles R. Bricken, judge of the court of appeals, can draw a salary from the state during the time he was brigadier general of the Alabama National Guard, M. C. Allgood, state auditor, has declined to issue a warrant for $416 to Judge Bricken and has requested William L. Martin, attorney general, for an opinion covering the case. The action was inspired by the executive department, which is refusing to approve any vouchers where there is doubt that they are regular.

Three Convicts Escape.

State convict department announced the escape of three negro convicts, Gilbert Reeves, Frank Ray and Tom Winters from Seigner. Convicts escaped by scaling the wall of the prison. Reed has been captured.

Teachers' Warrants Issued.

It was announced from the department of State Auditor that warrants for the February salary for teachers in 62 counties of the State have been issued. The total amount is $285,492.58.

Will Codify Laws.

Col. Sam Will John, member of the house of representatives from Dallas County, and the second oldest legislator in the state in point of service, has announced that he will codify all the laws passed by the legislature and amended since Mayfield's digest was prepared in 1907, thus putting the laws in such a manner as to be easily found by lawyers. He will begin work at once and about 12 months will elapse before the manuscript can be given to the printers, it was stated.

SPORTIVE SPOOKS HOLD HIGH REVEL

Three Days of Mysterious Doings in Newark House Astound Neighbors.

TOYS WITH HAIRPINS

Wildest Yarns Ever Spun in an Old Sailors' Home Outdone by Tales Circulating in Vicinity of "Haunted House."

Newark, N. J.—Stanislaus Lysaj of Newark is getting weary of being haunted, but Mrs. Stanislaus Lysaj is getting wearier. She does not enjoy the consolations of her spouse, for whom the neighborhood buys rounds and rounds of drinks while he spills the yarn about the ghostly manifestations in Tyler street.

After a three-day revel the invisible presences, who are said to have been throwing furniture, stove lids and parlor ornaments at Mr. and Mrs. Stanislaus, took a day off and the Lysajs are devoutly hoping that they have gone away to spend the week in the country and that they will never come back. Mrs. Lysaj's sister died two months ago and on her deathbed she swore she would "get even" for a quarrel they had had, according to the story told by the haunted couple.

Outdoes Wildest Yarns.

The wildest yarns ever spun in an old sailors' home are outdone by the tales now circulating in the vicinity of the "haunted house." Wednesday night, the narrative runs, a flock of mysterious footsteps ran all around the Lysajs' four-room apartment, and the footsteps had no feet attached to them. On Thursday the invisible visitors descended to low, slap-stick comedy, and loose ornaments around the place jumped off mantels and tables and hit Mrs. Lysaj while her back was turned. A flatiron crawled off the back of the stove and knocked Mrs. Lysaj down, she testifies, without leaving a mark of any kind.

Mrs. Lysaj thought little or nothing of the activity displayed by the house furnishings, and so, the story goes, she called in a priest, who is reported to have seen pictures fall off the mantelpiece and all the hairpins merrily jump out of Mrs. Lysaj's Psyche knot. Around evening Mrs. Lysaj called in some of the neighbors, who were treated, they assert, to a regular Simon pure spiritual seance, in which the hairpin trick was repeated.

Throwing Ornaments at Mr. and Mrs. Stanislaus.

Spooks Become Bashful.

The Lysajs summoned two priests to view the proceedings Friday, and it is stated that the pictures, aided and abetted by a powder box, again performed their act of flitting around the place. The priests are said to have brought in half a dozen more members of the cloth in the afternoon, at which the bogies became bashful and refused to disport themselves. All was quiet the following day also, much to the delight of the Lysajs and to the vast disappointment of the crowds that have been blockading the house.

Stanislaus and Mrs. Stanislaus are bravely holding the fort. They intend to keep right on living in the "haunted house," they say, and it is hinted that they don't even intend to ask the landlord to lower the rent.

TOO MANY ENOCH ARDENS

War Victims Don't Stay Dead and Widows Are Warned to Go Slow.

Berlin.—Since the beginning of the war many German soldiers who were believed dead have turned up alive in prison camps in Russia, France or England. In some cases the wives of these men, believing themselves widows, have married again, and some even have ended their lives when they learned that they had involuntarily committed bigamy.

To prevent such tragedies, the German government has warned all soldiers' widows not to remarry too hastily, and advises them to wait at least one year after receiving official notice of the death of their husbands.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of Sunday School Course of Moody Bible Institute.)
(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR MARCH 18

JESUS SAVES FROM SIN.

LESSON TEXT—John 8:12, 31-37, 56-58 (Read entire chapter).

GOLDEN TEXT—If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed.—John 8:36.

Teachers should sketch rapidly in a chronological way the events in the life of our Lord, (See any good harmony) and show that this lesson belongs to the period of the Galilean ministry of Jesus when he had gone up to Jerusalem to attend the feast of the tabernacle (John 7:1-52). Let us be sure to load our guns with temperance ammunition, be familiar with facts, take careful aim, concentrate all we have to say upon one definite aim, and then pull the trigger e. g. be sure to shoot a temperance charge and make a temperance application.

I. The Slavery to Sin. Jesus' previous references to water (Chs. 4 and 7) and to bread (ch. 6) were occasioned by outward occurrences; so with this reference to light. In the treasury (v. 20) near to Jesus as he spake were two colossal, golden lamp stands around which when lighted the people gathered with rejoicing. Amid the blaze of this illumination, Jesus exclaims: "I am the light of the world." What is more beneficent than light as it reveals, cheers and brings life, health and happiness to mankind? Without light there is no vision. Without Jesus there is no spiritual wisdom. Without light we know not whither we are going. Without Jesus we grope in the darkness. Every ray of light, of truth, of holiness and love comes from him, for God is light, and in him is no darkness at all (I John 1:15). Some think that these words were occasioned by the onlookers, seeing what Jesus had written in the sand (vv. 1-11). The first step in the slavery of sin is blindness; the second is habit; and the third is that of absolute slavery (Prov. 5:22). Jesus was the incarnation of the light of God. We cannot conceive of Jesus making such an assertion as this, and being merely a good man.

II. The Possibility of Freedom (vv. 31-36.) These words were spoken to "those which had believed on him," and as the result they were to know the truth, and the truth should make them free. Knowledge and liberty come from a continuance (abiding) in the word of God (John 14:15; 16:12-13). Many men reject Jesus Christ because they claim they wish to have their liberty, and by so doing they lose their liberty. A disciple is a learner; Jesus is the teacher; the entrance examinations to the school of Christ are the simple and necessary condition of believing or accepting him as Lord and teacher. The scholars are all the disciples who continue under his instruction. The object of the schooling is to make perfect men, "unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ" (Eph. 4:22; Col. 4:12). Christ's school is not only in the church and in the Sunday school and Young People's society, but it is everywhere, in the home, in the office, at work and play; wherever one is trying truly to live according to Christ's will, he is in his school, and that school is open both day and night; there are no vacations and no recesses. The text book is the Book of books. We need not argue as to the necessity of sin, but realize the fact that all are under sin (Rom. 5:12), but being under sin does not necessitate our abiding there, nor is sin necessary to our being. This freedom here is from sin and the love of sin and the curse and the penalty of sin and the bondage and corroding care of sin. It is also mental freedom, freedom for Christian activity. A knowledge of the English Bible is a liberal education, and brings true liberty to those who are thus educated. As contrasted to that we have the slavery of sin (vv. 34, 36). The drunkard is a slave because he is restrained from doing what he knows he ought to do. He cannot even do wrong freely for his conscience constantly upbraids him. He is a slave because he is compelled to bear the consequences of sin against his will. The way of escape (v. 36) is through the son: "If the son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed."

III. The Authority (vv. 56, 58). The Jews took exception to the words of Jesus (33-55). When did Abraham see Jesus? Read the 18th and 19th chapters of Genesis, and we find that one of the three who visited Abraham was different from the other two, and remained hind while two went on to Sodom. The one who remained was the Lord Jesus, Jehovah appearing in human form before his later incarnation as Jesus of Nazareth.

Chocolate-Dipped Grapes.

Wash one-half pound of malaga grapes, and dry perfectly. Stir one-half cake of chocolate over hot water, until melted, in a small cup. Dip stem end of grapes in, one at a time, to one-fourth depth of grapes. Invert to cool, then dip the other end in warm fondant, cool, and then into the chocolate.

In Place of Eggs.

Chopped suet is very useful in taking the place of eggs in milk puddings. Simply sprinkle a little on the top and the pudding will be rich and creamy.

SYRUP OF FIGS FOR A CHILD'S BOWELS

It is cruel to force nauseating, harsh physic into a sick child.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—castor oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Adv.

Read Good Books.

Young women dependent upon their own efforts should give a thought to tomorrow as well as today. The girl alone hasn't anyone to look after her interests, so she must guard them herself. She should keep track of how she spends her salary, and should also join a good benevolent society, so that in the event of an illness or an accident she will be assured of proper medical treatment, and at the same time receive the benefit all such organizations provide.

WOMEN SUFFERERS NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer a great deal with pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness and may be despondent and irritable.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, restores health to the kidneys and is just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a fifty cent or one dollar bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

Please allow me a small space in your paper to say a few words to my Chilton friends.

We have just begun to plant corn and truck some. Owing to the rough weather this time we are a little late, though everything is looking good at present.

I see that you are to have an election for bond issue.

That may be all right, but if you ever vote in the tick eradication I'm afraid somebody will be sorry. Some of the people here tell me it won't do. They have it here now. You will have no ticks, cattle or milk. Milk is so thin after dipping it won't color coffee, so you will have to try condensed milk for coffee. They say it has ruined the cattle business here.

Best wishes to The Union-Banner.

One Small Saving

We imagine that little has been lost by the failure to provide money for the Trade Commission's invstigation of the high cost of living. The four hundred thousand dollars which the administration wanted for this purpose can be better spent in some other way; and there are enough agencies with ample funds to make the investigation without special appropriations. The Trade Commission itself could probably go on with the work within the limits of its present monies. But the policy of the administration always is to get more special appropriations wherewith to give employment to more "deserving Democrats."

Busy John Bull.

The export trade of Great Britian continues to expand, the total for January, 1917,—£48,860,500 being £10,103,000 greater than for January, 1916. Large increases are reported in exports of such manufactures as machinery, cotton goods, woolens and worsteds, carpets, haberdashery, jute goods, silk manufactures, wearing apparel, boots and shoes, earthern and chinawear, and paper, also some increases in iron and steel, cutlery and hardware, coal, coke, linen goods, and soda compounds. For a country that is declared by the free-trade Democrats to be industrially paralyzed, England appears to be doing pretty well.

The Lord's Plan for Soil-Building

Did you ever think what is the Lord's plan for making land rich?

When a man has done his best to "wear out" a piece of land what does He do? Simply puts humus into it. Starts to growing weeds and grasses and shrubs and trees and putting a coating of rotting vegetation—humus—on the ground.

All of which works very well unless there is some foolhardy Man around to set the trash afire and burn it up. Unles this does happen, the land gets rich again more or less rapidly and is soon fit for growing paying crops once more.

Our whole point is that Nature's plan, the Lord's plan, for soil-building is to get humus into it—and man can find no better.

Are you profiting by Nature's teachings or are you ignoring them?

RUB-MY-TISM—Antiseptic, Relieves Rheumatism, Sprains, Neuralgia, etc.

McKINLEY AND WILSON —1898 AND 1917

"Why," asks the New York Times, "cannot the Republicans trust Mr. Wilson, as the Democrats and Republicans trusted Mr. McKinley in 1898?"

In 1898 Congress was in session, when the Maine was blown up and throughout the active period of hostilities with Spain. McKinley did not try to run war single-handed and alone. He did not scorn the counsels where he had served many years and where he knew there was just as much patriotism and just as much good judgment as in the White House. He did not take advice from members of his own party alone, nor did he limit his confidence to one man, irresponsible and without experience in public affairs. He did not with hold information from Congress; he did not seek to supplant Congress as the war-making power. He had himself been a soldier—but that did not blind him to the fact that he alone was not justified in taking blanket authority from Congress, in dismissing that body, and in pursuing a stumbling course by himself.

McKinley worked with Congress. Wilson wanted to work without Congress. As soon as Mr. Wilson gives evidence of good faith toward the representatives of the people, they in turn, Republicans and Democrats alike, and the people likewise, will trust him to the extreme. Congress in 1898 responded to McKinley with patriotic alacrity because McKinley dealt with Congress in a spirit of frankness and good will. Congress in 1917 is unresponsive to Wilson because he deals with Congress vaguely and in a spirit of distrust. Whenever Wilson meets Congress as McKinley did, Congress wil trust Wilson as it did McKinley.

EDUCATE MORE FARMERS

It is coming to be recognized as a most obvious fact that if we as a people are to again put our country on an equitable living basis we must educate more farmers. Not educate more farmer boys for professions, but educate more BOYS for FARMERS.

From the incipiency of the public school up to within the last decade the entire trend of education has been away from the farm and toward the professions. Even the manual training schools have tended to swell the ranks of the mechanical trades at the expense of the farms.

No nation can achieve permanent prosperity without a great and prosperous farming class. When the farm decays the nation deteriorates. Our farms are the very life and heart of our country.

Some, though, may ask how we are to educate more farmers.

Very simple. Make every free school in the land primarily an agricultural school, and a literary school as a secondary matter. Belles lettres is not the crowning necessity of existence. Bread and meat are. Educate the youth of the land first toward that which is most vitally necessary to our national life, and when this is acocmplished, if there be leisure and means for adding the frills, let them be added.

Nine out of every ten high school pupils on emerging from that school enter the ranks of the toilers, in some department or other. If in their education the farm has not only been made attractive to them, but they have been given a thorough and practical knowledge of its workings, then a large per cent of them will as a matter of course choose that as their occupation in life.

When war broke out between the allies and the central powers the world stood amazed at the wonderful perfection of the German military machine. But the cause behind it was as simple as A, B. C. Every German youth had been educated and trained as a soldier FIRST OF ALL— after that for a vocation.

But in time war will cease. The arts of peace will again demand the attention and energies of the world, and among them there is none to compare with the great art of coaxing from Mother Earth her golden harvests.

But, you may ask, if all the boys are educated to a farmer's life, what of the professions?

There will always be some who, by natural fitness, will gravitate to the professions, enough to keep their ranks recruited. As a matter of fact these same professions could spare half of their present members and not suffer in the least.

Educate farmers! The farms are suffering for them, and the professions and trades are overburdened with them.

PLEASANT GROVE

We are all thankful to report our community in good health at present, and every body is ready for spring when it does come.

Rev. Ed Littlejohn gave us an excellent sermon Sunday, and Rev. Whiddon also was enjoyed by all who heard him Sunday afternoon.

We are still proud of our Sunday school here and glad to see so many trying to make it still better.

The houses that were blown away by the terrible cyclone are being rebuilt and will soon be ready for their occupants.

Miss Lettie Walker has returned home form the Bryce Hospital where she has been nursing for the past eight months. She wil remain at home during the summer, then she will take up her work again as nurse.

Mr. Chancey Bearden has returned to Mobile. He has been spending his vacation at home.

Mr. Ira Kelley attended church services Sunday afternoon.

Blind preacher Walker will preach here the 3rd, Saturday night and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hicks are visiting their daughter this week, Mrs. Dollie McGee. Mrs. Hicks is not in the best of health.

Saturday Mr. Loyd Gentry was killed by a tree and laid to rest in the Rehoboth cemetery Sunday afternoon.

Miss Lula Mae Mull and Miss Alice Bearden ate dinner with Miss Ila Walker Sunday.

A pain in the side or back that catches you when you straighten up calls for a rubbing aplication of BALLARD'S SNOW LINIMENT. It relaxes the contracted muscles and permits ordinary bodily motion without suffering or inconvenience. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Sold by Upchuch Drug Co.

WOMAN COULD HARDLY STAND

Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Fulton, N. Y. — "Why will women pay out their money for treatment and receive no benefit, when so many have proved that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will make them well? For over a year I suffered so from female weakness I could hardly stand and was afraid to go on the street alone. Doctors said medicines were useless and only an operation would help me, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved it otherwise. I am now perfectly well and can do any kind of work."—Mrs. NELLIE PHELPS, care of R. A. Rider, R.F.D. No. 5, Fulton, N. Y.

We wish every woman who suffers from female troubles, nervousness, backache or the blues could see the letters written by women made well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Actual Bullion Value.

The United States realizes the difference between the actual bullion value of the gold or silver in the coins it issues and the money value it places on them by coinage and by its stamp of approval. The gold and silver coins issued by the government are not pure gold or silver, but are alloyed with copper to the extent of making them 900 parts fine, as required by law. If made of pure gold or silver they would be too soft and the copper alloy of 100 parts in 1,000 is for the purpose of hardening them. The difference between the nominal or face value of a coin and its bullion value at the moment of coining represents a profit to the government which is supposed to cover the cost of coinage.

But Don't Tear His Shirt.

The woman advanced ominously. "Are you the teacher that tore Henry's shirt?" "Yes." "What did you do it for?" "Because Henry was naughty and wouldn't behave. To make him listen to me I took him by the collar, and he broke away." The woman swung the ball bat toward the teacher. "Next time he don't behave," she said, "you hit him with this."—Newark News.

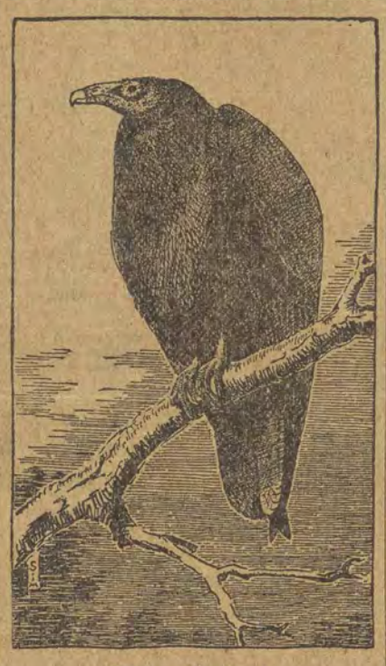
The Most Economical of Prepared Cereals

IS BUZZARD A MENACE?

Accused of Spreading Hog Cholera and Anthrax.

For Nearly Three Centuries Work of Bird Has Been Appreciated at Its Full Value in South—Persecution Is Begun.



(By W. L. MCATEE.)

Turkey buzzards are familiar features of Southern landscapes. Their wonderful soaring flight has been a subject of study by a multitude of observers, and the buzzard is not only the model but also the inspiration of the American-invented airplane.

All vultures specialize in feeding on carrion. While under natural conditions the number of dead animals available for them is somewhat limited, yet when the human population is considerable and sanitary conditions not over good, there is much work for buzzards, and they fill an important place. For nearly three centuries their work has been appreciated at its full value in the South, and these birds have been scrupulously protected.

The turkey buzzard now is threatened with persecution in the land where heretofore it has received the most zealous protection, for the bird has been accused of spreading such diseases of live stock as hog cholera and anthrax. The charge that it spreads hog cholera has never been demonstrated, and until this is done judgment should be suspended. Its relation to anthrax has been investigated with the result that in the distribution of the disease the bird must be considered a minor agency as compared with man and various domestic and certain wild animals.

The nature of their food would indicate that buzzards have strong digestive powers. The spores of anthrax, or carbon, a virulent stock disease, have been shown by two independent investigations to be destroyed by passing through the alimentary canals of buzzards. Anthrax spores are not destroyed in the digestive tracts of other carrion-feeding animals, as the dog, cat, hog, chicken, or opossum.

Turkey Buzzard.

It is true that buzzards may carry the germs of anthrax or other stock diseases on their plumage, feet, or bills, and thus distribute them; but all the other animals just mentioned may similarly carry disease germs on the surfaces of their bodies, as may also flies, domestic pigeons and other poultry, horses, mules, and cattle, not to mention members of the human family. In fact at the same time that steps are being taken greatly to reduce or exterminate a wild bird—the buzzard—which may possibly play a minor part in the transmission of anthrax, farmers are harboring several domestic animals that have far greater possibilities as spreaders of the disease. The fact that anthrax may be carried by flies is more than sufficient to explain the most severe epidemics.

Obviously, it is unfair to attempt to place the blame for general dissemination of stock diseases on the buzzard. Considering the multitude of ways in which these diseases may be spread, it cannot be doubted that stock diseases would be as widely distributed as now if turkey buzzards were eliminated, as has been proposed. What amounts to proof of this is the fact that hog cholera at times is virulent and seriously destructive in regions where there are few or no turkey buzzards, as in certain northern states and Canadian provinces.

Attacks in the South by buzzards upon living farm animals indicate that there are too many buzzards there for the best economic interests. In the North, where buzzards are fewer, such attacks are believed never to occur. Reduction in the number of buzzards may be desirable, especially if accompanied by or resulting from a proper system of carrion disposal, but there is a wide gulf both in meaning and desirability between reduction in numbers and extermination.

FERTILITY SOLD FROM FARM

Too Common Practice of Producer to Calculate Value of His Crop on the Market Price.

(By C. A. WILLSON, Kentucky Experiment Station.)

Nothing else has mitigated so much against the rational relation of live stock to average farm operations as the utter disregard of the fertility sold from the farm when corn and other crops are sold direct and not fed. In other words, for the sake of the soils of the state and their future production it has been altogether too common a practice for the producer to calculate the value of his crop on the market price. The market price less the fertility sold in each pound, bushel, ton, or other commercial unit, is a more logical basis of estimate, and yet under any system of direct marketing of crops we lose sight of the possibility of a better price if fed to live stock on the farm, the value of the utilization of roughage, the accumulation of elements of plantfood and vegetable matter in the manure, a more judicious and profitable rotation and diversity of crops, and an increasing crop yield at much less cost per acre.

Realizing the rather unconscious effect which market values, as ordinarily interpreted, are having, and may have, upon live-stock interests, and hence upon the general agriculture of the state, the station has undertaken a series of experiments with the view of comparing market and farm values of various Tennessee crops.

WHITEWASH GOOD FOR FARM

Formula Submitted by Expert of Oklahoma Station—Especially Useful on Walls and Fences.

The following formula of a whitewash containing lime, skim milk and salt is submitted by Dr. Charles K. Francis, chemist at the Oklahoma experiment station at Stillwater:

Slake one bushel of good quicklime with not more than 12 gallons of water. Slake the lime and keep the vessel covered until steam ceases to rise, stirring occasionally to prevent scorching. Prepare a second mixture containing two pounds common salt and one pound zinc sulphate in two gallons of boiling water. Pour this into the slaked lime and stir in two gallons of skim milk. Stir vigorously.

This makes an excellent weather-proof white wash, suitable for walls and fences.

IDEAL HOUSE FOR CHICKENS

Should Be Well Ventilated and Free From Drafts—First Item Is of Greatest Importance.

The ideal winter poultry house is dry, free from drafts, and well ventilated. Proper ventilation does not mean sacrificing warmth or comfort in a properly designed house.

The importance of good ventilation cannot be overestimated. Poor ventilation soon results in a decrease in the egg supply, and in disease in the flock.

MARKET FOR BREEDING CATTLE IN SOUTH

GROUP OF HEREFORDS READY FOR MARKET.

With the South driven to diversified farming on account of the boll weevil's foray on the cotton crop, and the resultant fight on the Texas fever tick that has been the bane of the cattle industry, stock raising is beginning to loom large on the horizon of the Southern states.

The advantages of the South as a live stock country are manifold. There is a ready market with high prices for beef, dairy and poultry products and grains; land is cheap; the climate is mild; two and sometimes three crops can be grown on the same soil in the same year, and the soil is adapted to the growing of a great variety of forage crops, corn and other grains.

Beef and pork can be produced at low cost, as live stock can be pastured the year around. Rainfall is abundant and everywhere are streams and springs to water the herds. At present land is cheap and the South can produce as much corn to the acre as the most fertile lands of the corn belt in the North.

One of the New Spring Suits

One of the new spring suits, with many novel features in its construction to make it interesting, is shown in the accompanying picture. It is trim looking and graceful, to start with, and these commendable characteristics are brought about by the cleverest sort of management in the cutting. It seems for the past three years that tailors have studied the desired silhouette, then bent their energies on accomplishing it, each season, by original methods of cutting.

In the coat pictured the side bodies are cut away under the arms in a curve that is extended into the belt across the front. A panel at the middle of the back terminates a little above the waistline and the short skirt of the coat is gathered under it. At the front the waistline is a trifle lower and the coat skirt is laid in a plait under it at each side. Four wide tucks are laid in the lower part of each side body. At the head of each of these tucks, soutache braid, in white, is stitched in a double row, with beautiful exactness. It appears on the back panel, where two large bone buttons, one at each side, form an additional decorative feature.

The coat has plain coat sleeves with turned back cuffs and a large collar of white satin trimmed with braid. It fastens with bone buttons at the front.

In the skirt the side panels in the coat are repeated and they are finished with tucks headed with braid in the same manner. There are wide inverted plaits at the back and front and the skirt is just long enough to fall an inch below the boot tops. Women have not taken kindly to the lengthened skirt, especially in suits, and the skirt pictured may be accepted as quite long enough.

Spring Coat for General Wear

Last season those who make it their business to provide coats for womankind centered their attention on novelty in the manner of cutting and draping the backs of these garments. In the new spring models their energies appear to be concentrated on pockets and collars. The latter are ample in size and the former as varied and novel in design as the untrammeled fancy of designers can make them.

Many of the new coats are in plain colors and a great many of them are plaited. Most of them have a narrow belt, but often it extends only part way about the figure, and sometimes merely across the back or front. But however conservative the new coats may be in other things, they go to all sorts of lengths and breadths and turns in pockets.

A very good example of spring modes is pictured above. It is a sand-colored model with inlay of black satin on the collar, and this combination of sand color and black has the indorsement of the highest authorities. It is cut with a deep yoke, to which the body of the coat is plaited, and it reaches almost to the bottom of the skirt; but in the matter of length there is considerable latitude in choice.

The sleeves are shaped into a deep, flaring cuff, headed with a narrow band of the material finished with a button. The all-important pockets are of the saddlebag variety, somewhat more ornamental than useful. But they perform their whole duty by providing a setting for cloth-covered buttons, which no right-minded designer would think of omitting from a top-notch spring coat.

Save Your Night Thoughts.

A memorandum book or tablet, which is at hand during the day for the reception of the ideas of literary people and other brilliant folk, is not generally available at the bedside, and many good thoughts are lost by the failure of the author to get out and make a note of it. An electrically-lighted memorandum pad is for this man. One end is equipped with a hood, under which is a tiny electric lamp and the battery to supply the current. Contact is made by pressing a slide at the end of the cylinder, and the hood shields the eyes from the light and throws the rays down upon the paper sheet.

ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE DOES IT.

When your shoes pinch or your corns and bunions ache get Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into shoes and sprinkled in the foot-bath. Gives instant relief to Tired, Aching, Swollen, Tender feet. Over 100,000 packages are being used by the troops at the front. Sold everywhere, 25c. Don't accept any substitute.—Adv.

Saves Eggs

Royal Baking Powder makes it possible to produce appetizing and wholesome cakes, muffins, cornbread, etc., with fewer eggs than are usually required.

In many recipes the number of eggs may be reduced and excellent results obtained by using an additional quantity of Royal Baking Powder, about a teaspoon, for each egg omitted. The following tested recipe is a practical illustration:

SPONGE CAKE

1 cup sugar
½ cup water
3 eggs
2 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ cup cold water
1 teaspoon flavoring

DIRECTIONS:—Boil sugar and water until syrup spins a thread and add to the stiffly beaten whites of eggs, beating until the mixture is cold. Sift together three times the flour, salt and baking powder; beat yolks of eggs until thick; add a little at a time flour mixture and egg yolks alternately to white of egg mixture, stirring after each addition. Add ⅛ cup cold water and flavoring. Mix lightly and bake in moderate oven one hour.

The old method called for six eggs and no baking powder

Do Modern Business Methods Justify th' Increased Cost o' Livin'?

A highly illuminatin' discussion closed th' monthly meetin' o' th' Commercial Club, last night at K. of P. hall, when th' question "Do Modern Business Methods Justify th' Increased Cost o' Livin'?" wuz debated. Uncle Ez Pash defended th' uncovered prune barrel, while Tell Binkley championed th' new order o' things. After callin' th' attention t' th' cost o' publicity, th' expense o' installin' fixtures an' maintainin' a delivery system an' other things essential t' conductin' a modern business institution Mr. Binkley took a drink o' water an' continued, sayin':

"T'night as I stand here my memory is wafted back thro' th' mist o' years t' th' ole time 'grocery an' queensware' establishment that only washed its windows when ther wuz goin' t' be a perade—th' ole family provision store with its fly-specked dried apples an' mackerel natartorium that wuz a pop'lar swimmin' pool fer ever' winged germ carrier that chanced t' come its way. When we loaf thro' th' modern grocery with its appetizin' atmosphere, its tastefully arranged wares sanitary arrangements, temptin' window displays, blonde cashier, quick delivery an' correct scales we should not be surprised that a few staples cost a penny or two more than they did when th' average grocer should have been keepin' a livery stable. A few decades ago ever' feller who went home in th' evenin' wuz carryin' a sack o' flour, or a new broom, or some petrified dried peaches, or a can o' kerosene with a potato on th' spout, or a loaf o' bread, or a pound o' butter that could easily be distinguished in th' dark.

"Th' ole time grocer even used th' same quart measure fer sorghum that he used fer coal oil. If you got too fer from th' scales he sold at catch weight. If th' raisins appeared t' be alive he set 'em in th' sun. Stationed at ever' pop'lar stop-over in his store wuz a wooden box full o' sawdust fer th' convenience o' terbacker chewers. When we think o' th' open dried apple bin o' yisterday we realize how fer we've traveled. If dried apples cost a trifle more than they did durin' th' reconstruction period we must remember that th' care an' treatment accorded them t'day, when ther surrounded by ever' safeguard, is 5,700 per cent better.

"Who has fergotten th' ole dusty grocery show case on th' left hand side o' th' door as you entered? Stick candy, tallow candles, gum drops, combs, licorice root, fire kindlers, lamp wicks, marshmallows, suspenders, beeswax, citrons an' liniment—all on th' friendliest terms o' equality! We're all supposed t' eat a pound o' dirt in a life time, but how our grandfathers escaped under two tons is a mystery.

"With th' passin' o' th' ole time grocery passed th' practice o' dickerin' an' quibblin'. A feller used t' go in a grocery an' say, 'I'd like to trade you out o' some codfish if we kin make a dicker.' An' then th' figurin' an' bargainin' would begin, th' transaction often consumin' th' better part of a day. Now th' prices are fixed an' you kin either take th' codfish or leave it alone. Ever'buddy used t' buy somethin' like they wuz tradin' hosses. Th' grocer asked what he thought he could git, an' th' consumer offered what he thought he'd take.

"Th' feller who complains about th' way modern business is conducted should be made t' spend one whole week at th' only hotel in Hamlet, Indianny."

"A Few Decades Ago Ever' Feller Who Went Home in th' Evenin' Wuz Carryin' a Sack o' Flour or a New Broom, or Some Petrified Dried Peaches, or a Can o' Kerosene With a Potato on th' Spout, or a Loaf o' Bread, or a Pound o' Butter That Could Easily Be Distinguished in th' Dark."

Opportunity Knocks Lots of Times

OPPORTUNITY—"Master of human destinies am I!
Fame, love and fortune on my footsteps wait.
Cities and fields I walk; I penetrate
Deserts and seas remote, and passing by
Hovel and mart and palace—soon or late.
I knock unbidden once at every gate!
If sleeping, wake—if feasting, rise before
I turn away. It is the hour of fate,
And they who follow me reach every state
Mortals desire, and conquer every foe
Save death; but those who doubt or hesitate,
Condemned to failure, penury and woe,
Seek me in vain and uselessly implore.
I answer not, and I return no more.
—John James Ingalls.

It's been th' sayin' fer years that opportunity only knocks once, an' yet lots o' us have gone t' th' door a hundred times—allus either broke er afraid t' take a chance. Opportunity is jist like Dan Cupid when it comes t' reliability. It don't guarantee nothin'. It jist says: "You quit th' livery stable an' take that job at th' saw mill," er "you buy them lots east o' th' mill pond an' they'll double in price in a year." Opportunity seems t' go on th' theory that ever'buddy has got money. If some fellers jist had th' opportunity they'd be broke all th' time, er keep somebuddy else broke all th' time.

Th' main thing is t' be able t' tell th' opportunity o' a lifetime from th' common, er roadside variety. Some years ago Pinky Kerr's uncle offered him a drug store in a dry town if he'd pitch in an' run it, but Pinky said he'd ruther stay at home an' play in th' band. Th' drug store sold fer nine thousan' dollars yisterday an' th' band still owes eleven dollars on th' slip horn. Tipton Bud heard a knock on his door one day an' he bought five hundred dollars worth o' minin' stock. He thought it wuz his opportunity, but it proved t' be th' agent's. So that's th' way it goes. If opportunity wuz responsible, er carried a few gilt edged references, it wouldn' be so bad. It don't even argue with you.

Some fellers give up after they miss ther first opportunity. Ez Pash hasn' done anything since th' time he could have bought th' ground where th' Statehouse stands fer a song. I don't believe opportunity ever met anybuddy that loafed around waitin' fer it. Some fellers are too lazy t' git up when opportunity enters, an' lots o' us make it a point t' be out.

Opportunity may only knock once with some certain proposition, but it'll be back lots o' times with somethin' else. So th' thing t' do is t' plug along an' be available.

Ole Niles Turner says opportunity did not knock at his gate till he wuz ninety-one, an' then it offered him five hundred acres o' Texas rice land until he got it paid for.

It Don't Guarantee nothin'. It Jist Says: 'Y Quit th' Livery Stable an' Take That Job at th' Saw Mill,' er, 'You Buy Them Lots o' th' Mill Pond an' They'll Double in Price in a Year.'

Sulphur in Shoes a Grippe Cure.

Sprinkle sulphur in your shoes to avoid catching the grippe, is the advice of Dr. George Angel. Years ago, when the epidemic of grippe swept the country, Doctor Angel recommended at the time that everybody wear sulphur in the shoes as a preventive, the discovery having been made that miners employed in the sulphur mines were immune from the disease.

The discovery led to experiments which were said to indicate that sulphur prevented the disease, and but a few mild cases developed where sulphur was worn in the shoes.

It is recommended that a teaspoonful of sulphur be sprinkled in the sole of each shoe and worn during the duration of the epidemic.

Doctor Angel, whose practice among the working classes is very large, says that the data he had kept proves conclusively that the disease rarely, if ever attacks a person armed against it.

CALOMEL MAKES YOU SICK, UGH! IT'S MERCURY AND SALIVATES

Straighten Up! Don't Lose a Day's Work! Clean Your Sluggish Liver and Bowels With "Dodson's Liver Tone."

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. Take a dose of the vile, dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you feel sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store or dealer and get a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful tonight and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous by morning I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it cannot salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.—Adv.

NEVER HAD A CHILL
After Taking ELIXIR BABEK

"My little daughter, 10 years old, suffered nearly a year with chills and fever, most of the time under the doctor's care. I was discouraged and a friend advised me to try Elixir Babek. I gave it to her and she has never had a chill since. It completely cured her." Mrs. Cyrus Helms, 302 E St., N. E., Washington, D. Consolation.

Little Joe's mother was the proud possessor of a new automobile, which she was learning to run with some difficulty. Watching her efforts to back the car out of the garage one day, Joe consolingly said: "Anyway, mother, you know how to work the self-starter fine, don't you?"

FALLING HAIR MEANS DANDRUFF IS ACTIVE

Save Your Hair! Get a 25 Cent Bottle of Danderine Right Now—Also Stops Itching Scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its luster, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any store, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, luster and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp. Good Way to Test Diamonds.

Suspected diamonds are frequently tested by placing them between two coins and pressing hard with the fingers. It is said to be impossible to make the smallest impression on a real diamond, but, in the case of a paste article, the edges may be crushed. The effect can be discerned by a critical examination with a lens.

Don't tell all you know. Keep a little for seed.

WHAT IS

LAX-FOS

LAX-FOS IS AN IMPROVED CASCARA

A DIGESTIVE LAXATIVE

CATHARTIC AND LIVER TONIC

Lax-Fos is not a secret or Patent Medicine but is composed of the following old-fashioned roots and herbs:

CASCARA BARK
BLUE FLAG ROOT
RHUBARB ROOT
BLACK ROOT
MAY APPLE ROOT
SENNA LEAVES
AND PEPSIN

In Lax-Fos the Cascara is improved by the addition of these digestive ingredients making it better than ordinary Cascara, and thus the combination acts not only as a stimulating laxative and cathartic but also as a digestive and liver tonic. Syrup laxatives are weak, but Lax-Fos combines strength with palatable, aromatic taste and does not gripe or disturb the stomach. One bottle will prove Lax-Fos is invaluable for Constipation, Indigestion or Torpid Liver. Price 50c.

Sudden Death

Before an insurance company will take a risk on your life the examining physician will test your water and report whether you are a good risk. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog, you suffer from backache, sick-headaches, dizzy spells, or twinges and pains of lumbago, rheumatism and gout, or sleep is disturbed two or three times a night—take heed, before too late!

You can readily overcome such conditions and prolong life by taking the advice of a famous physician, which is: "Keep the kidneys in good order, avoid too much meat, salt, alcohol or tea. Drink plenty of pure water and drive the uric acid out of the system by taking Anuric, in tablet form." You can obtain Anuric, double strength, at drug stores, the Discovery of Dr. Pierce of Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

ALABAMA NEWS

Hartford, Ala.—"When I commenced the treatment of Anuric I was in bad shape. My back ached all the time and, oh, how my back would ache at night until I would have to get up. I could never sleep all night through. But since I have taken Anuric my backache is all gone and I can lie down and sleep good and sound all night. Oh! how much better I do feel—no one knows but myself! My advice to all sufferers of kidney troubles is to give Anuric a trial and they will find relief from their trouble."—MRS. EXA COKER, Hartford, Ala.

Simply ask your druggist for Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets. Every package of Anuric is sure to be Dr. Pierce's. You will find the signature on the package just as you do on Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the ever-famous friend to ailing women, and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, proven by years to be the greatest general reconstructor.

Mr. Rogers has been conducting special meetings at the Congregational church in Thorsby the last two weeks, which have been very helpful to a great many people. The good wishes of the many friends he has formed in Thorsby will follow him in his work.

PLANTERS

Ledbetter,
Hoosier,
John Deere

We have the LEDBETTER, the JOHN DEER, and the HOOSIER Planters. The Ledbetter has the distinction of being the only Machine that drops one cotton seed in a place, and is equally satisfactory in planting other grain.

The John Deer and Hoosier Planters have been sold here a number of years. All seed are high price now, and you can well afford to buy a planter that will not waste them.

We have points, slides and wings for the Syracuse plow. We are the only people here who can furnish you the Genuine Oliver Chilled Plows and Repairs.

BEST FOR ALL CROPS

SOUTH ATLANTIC GUANO COMPANY

(SUBSIDIARY MORRIS FERTILIZER CO.)

ATLANTA — MONTGOMERY

Every farmer has it in his power very largely to prevent crop failure. By proper selection of seed, timely cultivation and, most important of all, a careful selection of dependable fertilizers, he gives his crop a good, healthy start and keeps it vigorous throughout critical seasons.

The South Atlantic Brands are made of high class materials, selected with a view to giving service when service is needed. They start the crops off quickly and maintain the growth and fruit till harvest. The high grade animal ammoniates we use insure late fruiting and development, and also liberate potash from the soil.

By their liberal use. the cotton crop is brought to a quick and healthy maturity, thus escaping shedding losses and the ravages of the boll weevil.

Don't risk your crop on inferior fertilizers, but demand and insist on getting the South Atlantic Brands.

DAVID D. OVERTON SHOT BY OFFICERS

Famous Prisoner Killed After Making Escape from Jail In Birmingham.

...TON DIED RATHER ...N TO SURRENDER

... D. Overton, who was under ... sentence for the murder of ...ate Judge W. T. Lawler of Hun...ille, together with several other prisoners, escaped from the Birmingham jail early Tuesday morning.

Officers searched all day for the party of escaped prisoners. About six o'clock Tuesday evening they were located. Overton and his companions were heavily armed with winchester rifles and pistols.

When the ogicers called to them to halt they dodged behind trees and opened fire on the pursuers.

David Overton and Tony Malino were instantly killed, and J. L. Latham, another one of the escaped prisoners was so badly wounded that he could not escape. Other members of the party got away.

The tradegy occurred a few yards from the home of Solicitor Joseph R. Tate who prosecuted Overton in the court and obtained the sentence of death against him. It is thought that Overton, immediately on getting out of jail, began to seek vengeance against the Solicitor.

The sensational escape of the prisoners from the jail has aroused officials and authorities of the law. A grand jury is already investigating the matter, seeking to determine if the jail officials are to blame in any way.

"DR. IGNORANCE DROPS" SCOTT WANTS BONDS.

ALSO TOUCHES ON SOME OTHER MATTERS THAT CONCERN THE COUNTY.

Jemison, Ala., March 19, 1917.
Editor Union-Banner:

Here comes the Doctor "Ignorance Drops," asking for a space in your good paper again to say to the people of Chilton county that now is the time for us all to put on our thinking caps for a while.

As you all know, the bond issue is going to be submitted to the people for their votes on April 16. You will also remember that the proposition was submitted to us 5 or 6 years ago, and there were a great many people opposed to it, because at that time it was considered that we had the banner county of the state. We were out of debt, and we got our money when we had to attend court or hold elections. The county's claims were worth 100 cents on the dollar, and we were afraid of debts.

But those fine conditions that prevailed then have changed a great deal now. Our county is over two hundred thousand dollars in debt, with warrants drawing 6 per cent. Eighty thousand dollars is already past due, and a contract existing, made by the commissioners court, levying a special tax upon us if the warrants are not paid. Our warrants are not worth over 50 cents on the dollar. We can't get anything for what we do for the county. What is the reason for all this? It is because the county is already head over heels in debt.

Now brother voter, think over the conditions and study the bond issue proposition, and investigate it. I have made up my mind that on account of the present indebtedness of the county already existing, that to issue bonds would relieve the great strain we are in just at present. It would give us some money to put on our roads and bridges.

Some are not going to vote for it just because Reynolds is for it, they theink he will get a rake-off. But the ballots at the election, and the entire legal procedure of the whole affair avows and declares that the money obtained by the bond issue will have to be appropriated to the payment of the time warants already issued against the road funds of the county.

Gentlemen, our present officials want to get tour county out of debt and in better financial shape. They believe earnestly and sincerely that the bond issue will bring us the quickest and best relief. They are asking for your help, and you should not hesitate to render it unto them. If you know of any leak that could be stopped and save the county a dollar, they want you to suggest it to them. Now will you do it, or will you continue to go around over the county hollering that you think the people ought to be taken out of the poor house, and that we have no need for Conway and Mrs. Jones and the county fair business? Now you are called upon to meet with the commissioners in the April term, and express yourselves on these issues. If we haven't got the manhood to do it I think we ought to keep our mouths shut afterwards.

I for one, stand for the bond issue, as I think it the most advisable course under the present conditions of the county. I favor the commissioners cutting off all appropriations that are not essential. So far as the work of Mr. Conway and the canning club is concerned, they have done as good work in the past as anybody could have done; but as I see it these officers have just about filled their mission. If people will not learn how to farm and can up produce in 6 or 8 years, it looks like foolishness to bother with them any longer. For if father has learned to raise corn and mother to can, the children will in turn, learn from them.

As to the county fair, it has never done me any good. But I am an advocate of all these things if we were out of debt, and had the money to pay for them with. But it is like some

EVERGREEN

Just a few words from Evergreen. Everything seems to be moving along nicely these pretty days. I hear of no sickness in this section. Every body is planting corn, all you can hear is Gee and Haw.

Our Sunday school at Floyd is doing fine. Bad weather don't hurt our Sunday school. We have good attendance every Sunday.

We had a little run-a-way last week, but no one was hurt. Mr. Kenly Williams and Miss Velma Martin run-a-way and got married in the Capitol city. We wish the young couple all the good luck in their married life.

Arthur Beaird and wife spent last Sunday with home folks at Evergreen. They like their new home at Prattville fine. Miss Clemmie Beaird spent last week in Prattville.

W. G. Calloway and family spent last Sunday evening with W. S. Beaird on their way to Prattville.

The poultry club met at the school house last Saturday afternoon on some important business. The have about 30 or 35 members in the poultry club and are going to shipping eggs soon.

Well it seems that every body in this community is interested in velvet beans this time. Corn and beans is all the talk. We want beans this time all the way around. Velvet beans in the field and Prof. W. T. Bean in the County Supt. office in Clanton. Beans is the saving of Chilton county, we all realize that, so lets hold to what is best for us all the time.

Don't forget the singing the 1st and 3rd Sunday evenings at Floyd.

Success to the Union-Banner and its many readers.

MT. PLEASANT

Everybody is getting their fields and gardens ready to plant, although it looks mighty disheartening some time.

There was an excellent sermon delivered here Sunday by our pastor, Rev. C. F. Stephenson.

Prof. T. T. Tailer spent last Tuesday night at Mr. R. T. Robinson's.

Mrs. Mary Avery spent last Wednesday and Thursdey with her daughter, Mrs. Gustlee Campbell.

Rev. and Mrs. C. F. Stephenson spent Sunday afternoon at Mr. Bob Campbell's.

Mr. Forest Williams is putting up a saw mill in this community.

FOUND—South of Clanton, one bundle of dress goods. Owner can get same by paying for ad.

L. D. POPWELL.

UNION SPRINGS

The rain fell in torrents Friday night. People are planting corn here now.

Mr. Hubbard Russ and Miss Amber Nix were married Saturday, then motored to Calera to catch the fast train for Florida. Rev. J. P. Gentry tied the nuptial knot.

Robert Waldrup of Herron, Ill., is spending some time with the home folks near Fenwood.

Rev. M. C. Abercrombie, of Cox, delivered a nice sermon here Sunday. He is a young Methodist minister of promise.

Measles are still plentiful here.

S. N. Waldrup and daughter spent Sunday with the family of W. R. Redding.

The bond issue is creating some talk just now. We would like to have explanatory articles in the Banner on that subject from such men as the Editor, Judge Reynolds, J. N. Dennis, Prof. Moore and others, it would be good for the people to read both sides of the question.

Miss Vic Martin who has been spending some time in Sylacauga has returned.

The singing Sunday afternoon was very well attended.

We have long looked in vain for the promised reduction of the high cost of living, and in addition to that heavy burden we fear we are going to be plunged into war. Let us try to be optimistic and look beyond the dark shadows of the present, for "Light is shining behind the cloud." Rigid means are needful to awake people politically, to arouse sleeping lethargic church members, to make us be real men and women, to seek lofty ideals as nature has designed.

COMMISSIONERS DESIRE TO SAVE COUNTY MONEY

PEOPLE ASKED TO MEET WITH THE COURT AT ITS NEXT SESSION IN APRIL.

Clanton, Ala., March 12, 1917.
To the people of Chilton County:

We invite all parties that are interested in the welfare of the county to meet with the Commissioners court the first Monday in April, as salaries and other matters where the Commissioners have authority to fix the amount will be taken up at this Court.

We would be glad to have all parties that know of any leaks or any place that we can save the county any money, and not do any injustice to any one to come to this meeting.

We are anxious to save all we can and we would be glad to have any suggestions from any tax payer that knows where we can save any money for the county.

We have not fixed any salaries, nor made any appropriations for any purpose this yer, but as stated above we expect to take up this class of business at this meeting, so if you have any advice to give come to this meeting. We would be glad to have you.

Respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

S. E. WALDRUP
R. J. WILLIAMS
A. P. VINSON
W. T. HERROD,
Commissioners.

Play-goers of Verbena and several nearby towns were given a rare treat last Friday evening at the Verbena academy when the Clanton High School pupils presented "Mrs. Tubbs of Shantytown." The auditorium of the academy was filled to overflowing and quite a neat sum of money was made and divided between the Clanton and Verbena schools.

Miss Mary Mullins, as "Mrs. Mollie Tubbs," the shunshine of Shantytown, displayed a talent seldom seen in amature shows. Her part was unusually hard to play, but her splendid portrayal of the quaint Mrs. Tubbs brought forth a continual stream of laughter and applause from the large audience. In fact Miss Mullins was almost the whole show.

Others who ably supported Miss Mullins and who greatly pleased the audience were Kathleen Mullins, Sybil McDonald, Roberta Curry, Wallace Jones, Thomas Jones, Inez Higgins, Wilbert Hayes, Harold Marler, Susie Hayes, Fonza Cunningham, and Sarah Adams.

Verbena highly appreciates the visitation of such high-classed entertainers and another show by the Clanton pupils will be welcomed.

B. J. Sessions, ... carrier on Route 7 from Clanton was one of the delegates from Clanton Camp W. O. W. to the convention of the order at Dothan last week. The delegates were given an excursion down to Panama City and on the Gulf of Mexico. Also a big fish fry was enjoyed while they were on the gulf.

Clanton people are glad to see the re-opening of the picture show by Mr. Smith at the Candy Store.

"A Rolling Stone Gathers no Moss"

Feagin applies the old adage to transient class of School Teachers.

THE ALABAMA EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION

Annual Conventionof the Teachers of the State will be Held at the Capitol on April 5, 6 and 7.

The Rolling Stone

In one of the county institutes not long since a request was made for a show of hands on the part of those who were teaching with a raise in salary of five dollars a month over the amount received the year before. Although there were practically 100 teachers present only six hands were raised.

In another institute in which 104 teachers were enrolled it was found that 92 of the number enrolled were teaching for the first time in the communities in which they were employed at the time the institute was held. In other words, only 12 or 11.5 of the teachers in this particular county had returned to their former communities to follow up the work begun the previous year.

Data given in teachers' examinations show that few of those who write the examination remain in a community as long as two years consecutively. Even those who apply for life certificates usually give proof of having gained their experience in at least four or five different communities during the five or six years preceding the examination. A varied experience, to be sure, but what of the results?

Questionnaires were sent out by this office a few weeks ago to men who are in position to observe the work of rural school teachers in every county in the State. One question asked was, "What per cent of the rural school teachers in your county do you consider really have the community-building spirit?" Forty-four replies were received. The percentages given were found to average less than 30, and yet, the facts cited above would lead one to believe that those giving these estimates were exceedingly generous.

Further comment would be very much out of place. These facts speak for themselves. We might add in passing, however, that several county boards are resolving that, when all other things are equal, they will show special preference to those teachers who serve their communities for more than one year.

Alabama Educational Association.

"Let us consecrate ourselves afresh in the shadow of our historic Capitol, and then take counsel together for the battles we must go out to fight in behalf of Alabama's neglected childhood."—J. Alex Moore, Secretary.

"Educationally Alabama is just beginning to grow. Team work is needed to secure best results. And this can best come by having the teachers get together annually in one great body at the meeting of the Educational Association."—James J. Doster, President.

"The annual meeting of the teachers furnishes an occasion for developing a better fellowship, and a finer spirit of co-operation, and for receiving inspiration for our professional tasks. The department programs are especially attractive. The practical problems to be discussed in these meetings will prove of great value to all who attend. Montgomery is planning to give the teachers a royal welcome, and it is hoped that all who can will go to Montgomery and enroll as members of the association."—Chas. A. Brown, Chairman Executive Committee.

NOTICE OF ELECTION

Notice is hereby given that by an order of the Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County, Alabama, an election will be held on the 16th day of April, 1917, at the various polling places in the several beats of said County, for the purpose of voting upon the question of issuing bonds to the amount of Two Hundred Thousand Dollars, bearing interest not to exceed five per cent per annum, and to run for a period of thirty years from date of issue, for the purpose of paying debts created for constructing roads and bridges in said County.

ALABAMA THOOPS REAURN.

Montgomery Extends Warm Welcome to Soldier Boys.

Montgomery.—After months of service on the Mexican border, and undergoing the hardships incident to the life of a soldier, members of the First, Second and Fourth regiments arrived here to be mustered out of service. The Fourth regiment was the first to arrive, followed by the signal company, ambulance company, field hospital, Second regiment, brigade headquarters and First regiment, in the order named.

Despite a long and tiresome trip the boys were in a joyous mood, a smile lighted the countenance of each as he stepped from the train to meet and caress loved ones, or shake the hand of some friend, who had journeyed to the depot to welcome him home. It was a welcome of welcomes, that Montgomerians gave the returning troops.

Diversified Crops Being Increased.

Auburn.—The questions asked by farmers regarding diversified crops, show the growing interest in producing, on Alabama farms, crops and livestock not generally grown here for market in the past.

The correspondence of every member of the staffs of the Experiment Station and Extension Service at Auburn has increased rapidly, and a large proportion of this correspondence deals with the crops that are only recently coming into general cultivation. As an example of the extent of these inquiries, it may be stated that the number of individual letters mailed out from the office of the Director, Professor J. F. Duggar, during the calendar year of 1916 was 12,583. Other departments of the Experiment Station and Extension Service have also had an immense volume of correspondence.

Can't Get Away Club Organizers Held.

Mobile.—S. E. Edwards, Henrietta Parris, Carrie Frolichstein and Mary Rhodes were arrested here, it was stated by the police on the charge of defrauding 642 negroes out of $3 each. It was stated that they organized the Can't Get Away Club, and collected the money, supposedly to take negroes to Philadelphia to get jobs. The quintet were jugged as they were about to take a train for Cincinnati.

To Ask Federal Road Aid.

Tuscaloosa.—W. S. Keller, state highway engineer, had a conference with the Board of Revenue of this county as to the proposal of Tuscaloosa county to make application under the provisions of the new law for federal aid to build roads. Mr. Keller and the board inspected several of the county highways and a decision was reached by the board to apply for a federal appropriation of $10,000.

Alabama Postmasters Named.

Washington.—The President sent to the Senate the following Alabama postmasters' nominations: J. L. Thornton, Alexander City; A. A. Leach, Dadeville; W. L. Crew, Goodwater; Dora G. Wendel, Tallassee; Mary E. Cain, Wetumpka; Thomas S. Hoskins, Vrendenburgh; T. H. Alexander, Albany.

State Y. M. C. A. to Meet.

Albany.—The annual meeting of the State Young Men's Christian association will be held in Albany April 6. Several prominent speakers will be in attendance. This will be the first annual meeting of the state organization, which was perfected at a meeting in Selma last year. Seventy-five delegates are expected.

Crops Affected By Car Shortage.

Mobile.—Traffic Manager R. G. Cobb, of the Mobile Chamber of Commerce, stated that crops in this vicinity are liable to be seriously affected if the car shortage is not soon relieved. "If the cars are not available it will be impossible to distribute fertilizer, and hence crops cannot be raised.

Camp Ground Inspected.

Mobile.—Inspection of the Gulf Coast Fair Grounds was made by Col. C. D. Mills of the uniform rank, Woodmen of the World, of Jacksonville, Fla., one of the seven members of the sovereign executive committee of the Woodmen. This is the site selected for the national encampment of drill teams of the order to be held in July.

Goodwater.—Something like $32,000 was distributed through one of the country's banks, at Rockford, when the former owners of 800 acres of graphite lands received payment for lands sold below Hanover to W. R. Thompson, of Jacksonville, Fla.

Attalla to Be Extended.

Attalla.—It was announced that plans for extending the corporate limits of Attalla are being undertaken.

Condemn Convict Lease System.

Birmingham.—Severe condemnation of the convict lease system in Alabama was incorporated in resolutions adopted by the Alabama Sociological Congress in its final session held in Birmingham and it was announced that a strong fight for the abolition of the system will be made at the next session of the Alabama Legislature. Following the election of Dr. Middleton S. Barnwell as president to succeed Dr. Morris Newfield, retiring president, the final adjournment was taken.

AMERICAN BOATS UNARMED SUNK WITHOUT NOTICE

City of Memphis, The Illinois And Vigilancia Sent To Bottom By German Submarines

VIRTUAL STATE OF WAR EXISTS

President Wilson Convinced Germany Intends To Sink Every Ship Entering Forbidden Lane

Washington. — Three American steamships—the City of Memphis, the Illinois and Vigilancia—have been sunk by Germans without warning. Fourteen men on the Vigilancia are missing and a number of the crew of the City of Memphis. The Illinois crew landed in safety. The Illinois and Vigilancia were torpedoed, while the City of Memphis was sunk by gunfire. The City of Memphis and the Illinois were in ballast and were bound for Great Britain from the United States. The Vigilancia sailed from New York for the Azores and Havre with a cargo valued at seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars and consisted largely of provisions. A large consignment of coffins was also on board.

Technically the United States remains in a state of armed neutrality, although virtually a state of war exists between the United States and Germany. Some of the highest officials of the American government hold that President Wilson has ample power to declare that a state of war exists and to proceed with aggressive protective steps pending the assembly of congress. There is no indication, however, that the president will follow that course, but the probabilities are that the work of arming American merchant ships will be pressed rapidly and the next move will probably be to send orders to the United States battleships to seek out submarines and clear the trans-Atlantic lanes.

The sinking of these three ships brought the government face to face with the problem of forming a definite policy for their action in case the United States actually enters the war.

The sinking of these three ships brought the government face to face with the problem of forming a definite policy for their action in case the United States actually enters the war.

All the conditions outlined by the president in his message announcing the diplomatic break with Germany as leading to a state of armed neutrality have now been fulfilled. The "overt act" described by him then has actually come.

GERMAN ARMIES RETREATING ON ONE HUNDRED-MILE FRONT

Peronne, Bapaume, Nesle And Chaulnes Taken By British—French Capture Carlepont And Other Towns

New York.—Important advances over a front of about one hundred miles by the British and French armies in France, and additional gains by the Russians and British over the Turks in Turkish Armenia, Persia and Mesopotamia are the outstanding features in the war news.

The important towns of Peronne, Bapaume, Chaulnes and Nesle, and more than sixty villages have been taken by the British troops on a front of some forty-five miles, and King George's men are continuing their pursuit of the retreating Germans.

The operations were carried out on a front running from Arras to Chaulnes.

Taking up the operations south of Chaulnes, the French troops recaptured their old positions on the Roye-Noyon road and including the important town of Noyon. In this region, northeast of Lassigny, the French have penetrated more than twelve miles through the German positions toward the town of Ham. To the southeast the entire first line of the Germans, including the villages of Carlepont, Morsam and Nouvron Vingre were captured by the French, while northeast of Soissons, Crouy has been taken.

Germany Recounts Work Of U-Boats

Berlin.—Merchant ships of an aggregate tonnage of 781,500 were destroyed in February as a result of war measures of the central powers, the admiralty announces. The statement follows: "In February 368 merchant ships of an aggregate gross tonnage of 781,500 were lost by the war measures of the central powers. Among them were 292 hostile ships, with an aggregate gross tonnage of 644,000 and seventy-six neutral ships of an aggregate gross tonnage of 137,000."

National Guardsmen Held In Service

Raleigh, N. C.—The adjutant general's office announces receipt of an order suspending the instructions for the muster out of the Second and Third North Carolina regiments of the National Guard, and brigade headquarters, and directing that they be held under arms after arrival here from the border. The Second regiment has not yet started from El Paso, but is now in readiness to entrain for Goldsboro, where it was to have been mustered out

CHINA AND GERMANY BREAKS

Teutonic Ambassador Handed His Passports And All German Ships In Shanghai Harbor Seized

Washington. — American Minister Reinsch, at Pekin, has reported to the state department that China has severed diplomatic relaions with Germany and that the German minister has been handed his passports.

China has taken possession of all German merchant ships in Shanghai harbor, about six in number, placed their crews on shore under guard, and placed armed guards on the vessels.

China's severance of relations has been expected here for weeks. The action of the United States in breaking relations was received with acclaim by Chinese officials and press.

Feeling against Germany has run high, not only because scores of Chinese on the way to Europe have been killed in German submarine operations, but from memory of the kaiser's order to his Boxer punitive force to make the word "German" dreaded in China for a century, and the seizure by Germany of the whole province of Shantung for the murder of two missionaries.

Seizure of the German ships may be taken by Germany as an act of war as in the case of Portugal.

China's action may be followed by seizure of German property in China, which is very extensive.

China's action is expected to have far-reaching effect on far eastern history, as it aligns herself with Japan and the other entente powers. German trade before the war had become the most dangerous competitor to British and Japanese business in China, and this phase of the commercial situation was widely discussed at the Paris economic conference when plans to drive Germany out of the far eastern markets were adopted.

The immediate effect of China's severance of relations probably will be a greatly increased output of munitions for Russia. China is Japan's source of iron and has provided much of the raw material on which the latter's immense munition trade has been built up. China also has six large arsenals which, with her mines, will add large resources against Germany.

GERMANY STILL SINKING BELGIAN FOOD VESSELS

Another Grain-Laden Vessel Torpedoed Without Warning—U. S. Workers Likely To Quit

London.—The Norwegian steamship Lars Fastenaes (Lars Fostenes), bound from America for Rotterdam, with grain for the United States relief commission, has been sunk without warning outside theb lockade zone, according to the Norwegian Mercantile Shipping Gazette.

No steamer under the name of Lars Fastenaes is listed in available shipping registers. The Lars Fostenes is a new Norwegian steamer of 1,259 tons net. She was last reported as sailing from New York, December 19, for Rotterdam, arriving at Louisburg, Cape Breton, on the 26th. She proceeded for Halifax for repairs to her propeller blades.

U. S. Workers May Be Withdrawn

Washington.—Probable early withdrawal of all Americans participating in Belgian relief, including the withdrawal of Brand Whitlock, United States minister, from Brussels, as the result of the pressure of the German submarine campaign, was forecast at the state department. The official report on the submarining of the relief ship Storstad intensified the situation. mission which examined Thaw.

Harry K. Thaw Declared To Be Insane

Philadelphia.—Harry K. Thaw was adjudged a lunatic by the common pleas court of this city, and, under the law, cannot be taken to New York, on requisition, to stand trial on charges of assaulting a Kansas City high school boy. Thaw will be kept in St. Mary's hospital here pending his removal to a Pennsylvania asylum. The court's action is based on the report presented by a lunacy com-

German Airships Raiding England

London.—An air raid on the southern counties of England has taken place, according to an official communication. Bombs were dropped in Kent. The official statement says: "Hostile airships attacked the southeastern counties.

Orders Prepared For Arming Vessels

Washington.—Complete and definite instructions to the "armed guards" to be placed aboard American merchant craft bound through the German submarine zones have been completed by the navy department and approved by Secretary Lansing. They will be forwarded to the navy personnel aboard the merchant craft whenever the ships are ready to sail. The nature of the instructions will not be made public. They were carefully prepared by navy officials and then submitted to Secretary Lansing.

Appam Used To Violate U. S. Neutrality

Norfolk, Va.—Evidence that Capt. Hans Berg, German commander of the prize ship Appam, violated the neutrality of the United States constantly while the ship was at Newport News, has been placed in the hands of department of justice agents. When the Appam was awarded to her English owners by the United States Supreme court, Berg and his German crew were sent to Philadelphia. It was then found that they had rehabilitated the wireless outfit, and were using it to send messages.

NATION-WIDE RAIL STRIKE IS AVERTED

Secretary Lane Says Basic Eight-Hour Day Going Into Effect Regardless Of Court Decision

ROADS AND UNIONS AGREE

Brotherhoods Seem To Have Won Important Victory, But Do Not Get All Demands

New York.—The conference committee of railroad manager authorized the president's mediators to make whatever arrangements were necessary with the railroad brotherhoods to call off the threatened strike.

The formal letter in which this authorization was made signed by Elisha Lee, chairman of the managers committee, was as follows:

"In the national crisis precipitated by events of which we heard this afternoon (March 18) the national conference committee of railroads joins with you in the conviction that neither at home nor abroad should there be fear or hope that the efficient operation of the railroads of the country will be hampered or impaired.

"Therefore you are authorized to assure the nation there will be no strike, and as a basis for such assurance we hereby authorize the committee of the council of national defense to grant to the employees who are about to strike whatever adjustment your committee deems necessary to guarantee the uninterrupted and efficient operation of the railroads as an indispensable arm of national defense."

The decision reached by the managers at the midnight conference means that the brotherhoods have won an important victory, although it does not bring them all their original demands. By the agreement it is assumed they will be awarded pro rata time for overtime on the basis of an eight-hour day which they have been assured.

Their original demands called for time and a half for overtime on the same basic day.

Secretary Lane issued this statement: "Regardless of the decision of the Supreme court on the Adamson law, the basic eight-hour day will go into effect."

BOMB EXPLODED IN THE COURT HOUSE AT BOSTON

Two Men Killed And One Injured In Explosion—The Bomb-Bearer a Foreigner

Boston.—A bomb exploded in the Suffolk county court house here, killing two men and injuring another. One of the dead was Louis A. Zellinger, a janitor employed in the building. The other, unidentified, was believed by the police to have been the bearer of the explosive.

The object of the bomb carrier is uncertain, but the fact that Judge Loring's session of the supreme judicial court was only 25 feet from the anteroom in which the explosion occurred, indicated to the authorities that this may have been the objective. It is thought that the explosion was premature.

Except for the shattering of windows, no damage was done in Judge Loring's court, which was in session. The anteroom was damaged materially. Girl stenograhpers fainted; a jury that was locked up for deliberation in a room overhead clamored for release and a court officer collapsed, but order was quickly restored and strong guards were placed over both the court house and the nearby state house.

The unidentified dead man apparently was a foreigner, probably of southern European origin, it was announced by a medical examiner.

Major Gillett Dies At Philadelphia

Philadelhpia.—Maj. Cassius E. Gillett, U. S. A., retired, died at his home here. He was 58 years old and an engineer of note. In 1903 Major Gillett took a prominent part in the Greene-Gaynor Savannah harbor investigation. He retired from the navy in 1905 to become head of the bureau of filtration here.

Villa Forces Defeat Constitutionalists

Juarez, Mexico.—Villa holds Parral, Jiminez, and all of the country in southwestern Chihuahua while Gen. Francisco Murguia is making a desperate effort to reorganize his forces to repel the advance of the Villa forces on the state capital, passengers arriving from Chihuahua City over the Mexican Central railroad reported. Villa decisively defeated Gen. Francisco Murguia's command at the second battle of Rosario, Durango, according to information received in Juarez.

Big Gains Made By British In France

Paris.—Continuing their attack on the German lines in the center of the Somme region in France, British troops have gained further successes. Almost all of the St. Pierre Vaast wood, the scene of previous heavy battles between French and German forces, has been occupied, says the official statement from the British war office. German trenches on a front of 3,000 yards north and south of the wood also were taken, the communication adds. The St. Pierre Vaast wood lies about midway between Bapaume and Peronne.

NO EMBARGO FOR THE U. S.

Carranza Informed That Such Move Would Be Contrary To International Law

Washington.—The United States sent to General Carranza a formal notification that it cannot participate in his proposed Pan-American concert to cut off munitions and food shipments to the European belligerents with a view to forcing peace.

The reply is understood to point out that such a move would have no justification in international law.

Officials emphasize that although the note refuses flatly to co-operate in General Carranza's plan, it is friendly in tone and avoids any statements which might give offense to the de facto government. From this it is inferred that the communication does not reflect the suspicion of German influences behind the proposal ... been general among officials ... the first and was accentuated ... elation of Foreign Minister Zi... mann's report to align Mexico ... Germany against the United Sta...

Soon after it was received a mont... ago General Carranza's proposal was acknowledged by the state department in a note neither approving nor disapproving the proposal. Officials have not revealed whether any further communication prompted the reply, but it is regarded as not unlikely that the de facto government let it be known that a more definite response would be acceptable.

Neither has it been disclosed whether General Carranza has replied to the American inquiry for such further information as Mexico might have regarding Germany's alleged machinations against the United States. Press reports from the Mexican capital a week ago indicated that some reply was about to be made, but whether such a communication would be made public in the present situation is doubtful.

Five Latin-American governments have accepted in principle a formal suggestions from Ecuador that delegates from the republics of North, South and Central America assemble immediately for the purpose of "taking necessary measures for securing a continental expression, principally for the guarantee of the rights of neutrality, and, if it is possible, for the alleviation of the rigors of war."

The United States has not indicated its attitude toward the conference.

STEAMSHIP ALGONQUIN SUNK BY SUBMARINE

Ship And Cargo Was Worth $1,700,000 And Had Ten Americans On Board

New York.—The American steamship Algonquin, with ten Americans aboard, was sunk by a German submarine on March 12, with a loss of vessel and cargo valued at $1,700,000. A cable message received here by her owners, the American Star line, and dispatches from London, told of the apparent safety of all the officers and crew, twenty-seven of whom have been landed.

The message said the vessel was torpedoed, but did not indicate where she was at the time. According to a consular report from Plymouth, England, the Algonquin's captain stated his ship was sunk by shell fire without warning.

The Algonquin sailed from New York on February with foodstuffs. Her destination was London. She was one of the first American ships to leave the United States after Germany established her submarine blockade.

Formerly a Canadian-owned boat under British registry, the Algonquin was transferred to the American flag last December, when she was purchased by the American Star line.

While under Canadian ownership she was engaged in trade between New York and St. John, N. B.

Prior to sailing the Algonquin captain said he had no fear that his vessel would be torpedoed.

Japan Thanked By United States

Washington.—Charge Wheeler at Tokio was instructed by the state department to express to the Japanese government the gratitude of the United States government the gratitude of the United States for the many marks of respect shown the memory of the late Ambassador Guthrie, and to accept the offer of a warship to bring the body of the ambassador home.

President Names Tariff Commission

Washington.—President Wilson has selected the following men as members of the tariff commission: Prof. Frank W. Taussig of Harvard university, former Representative David J. Lewis of Cumberland, Md., former Representative William Kent of Kentfield, Cal., Daniel C. Roper of McColl, S. C., E. P. Costigan of Denver, and W. S. Culbertson of Emporia, Kans. Professor Taussig, who will be chairman of the commission, is a native of St. Louis. He has been connected with Harvard university since 1882.

Dynamite Plot To Destroy Reservoir

Jersey City, N. J.—Acting on rumors of a plot to dynamite the 1,000,000,000-gallon reservoir at Boonton, thereby flooding the Passaic valley, where many large ammunition plants are located, the city commissioners passed a resolution calling upon Governor Edge to provide a military guard for the works. Meantime, thirty policemen, all of whom have served in the regular army under command of Maj. Joseph D. Norton of the Fourth New Jersey regiment. The policemen were supplied with rifles and ammunition.

CZAR ABDICATES RUSSIAN THRONE; REVOLT SUCCEEDS

Grand Duke Michael Made Regent—Duma in Control.

CZAREVITCH IS NEW RULER

Soldiers Aided Revolutionists in Overthrowing the Government — 500 Persons Reported Slain During the Fighting at Petrograd.

London, March 19.—A Reuter dispatch from Petrograd says that the emperor is expected to arrive at the Tsarskoe-Selo palace and that several regiments with artillery are hastening to the same place.

The Grand Duke Nicholas is reported in a Reuter dispatch from Petrograd to have reached the Russian capital. The dispatch says that he will probably take command of the troops.

Czar Gives Up Throne.

London, March 19.—Czar Nicholas has abdicated the throne of Russia.

The czar abdicated in favor of his young son.

A dispatch to the London Chronicle from Petrograd on Thursday says the empress of Russia has been placed under guard.

According to information received here the Russian people have been most distrustful during recent events of the personal influence of Empress Alexandra. She was supposed to exercise the greatest influence over Emperor Nicholas.

The Empress Alexandra, before her marriage to the emperor of Russia in 1894, was the German Princess Alix of Hesse-Darmstadt.

A popular revolution has been successful and the government of Russia rests temporarily with a self-appointed committee of the duma.

After three days of battle, in which the majority of the 30,000 troops in Petrograd mutinied and supported the revolutionists, calm has returned.

Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, brother of the czar, has been appointed regent.

The czar's abdication was in compliance with the urgent demand of the committee of the duma, which notified him that upon his assent depended the fate of the dynasty.

Troops Back the Duma.

Telegraphing from Petrograd Wednesday, Reuter's correspondent says Kronstadt, the fortress and great naval station at the head of the Gulf of Finland, 20 miles west of Petrograd, has joined the revolutionary movement. Two deputies, Pepelauff and Taskine, on instructions from the duma committee, proceeded to Kronstadt, where the troops placed themselves at the disposal of the duma.

The Copenhagen Ekstrabladet reports that the Russian consul in Haparanda, Sweden, says that former Premier Sturmer and Minister of the Interior Protopopoff were killed in Petrograd. Both were charged with pro-German sympathies.

New Cabinet Announced.

A new national cabinet is announced, th Prince Lvoff as president of the uncil and premier, and the other ofes held by the men who are close to he Russian people.

The members of the new national abinet are announced as follows:

Premier, President of the Council and Minister of the Interior—Prince Georges E. Lvoff.

Foreign Minister—Prof. Paul N. Milioukoff.

Minister of Public Instruction—Professor Manuiloff of Moscow university.

Minister of War and Navy, ad interim—A. J. Guchkoff, formerly president of the duma.

Minister of Agriculture—M. Ichingareff, deputy from Petrograd.

Minister of Finance—M. Tereschtenko, deputy from Kiev.

Minister of Justice—Deputy Kerenski of Saratoff.

Minister of Communications—N. V. Nekrasoff, vice president of the duma.

Controller of State—M. Godneff, deputy from Kazan.

The proclamation by the military governor in Petrograd forbidding any street assemblages and declaring that any disorders would be ruthlessly suppressed made it apparent that affairs were graver than the dispatches allowed by the Russian censorship would indicate.

Blow for Germany.

Authenticated dispatches from Petrograd, together with the consensus of governmental advices here, indicate that the uprising was a rebellion against the growing German reaction believed responsible for the food shortage and lack of effective military organization.

In this connection Andrew Bonar Law, chancellor of the exchequer, announcing the success of the revolution to the house of commons, said that it was comforting to England to learn that the revolution "was not directed at securing peace by Russia."

That control by the new government is complete is undoubted. Telegrams from generals commanding at the various fronts have displayed an astonishing unanimity of support of the new order.

Demonstrations against the government have been frequent during the last few weeks. The attempted proroguing of the duma fanned the fires which spread rapidly from class to class and from civilians to troops.

Sunday it broke forth in flame. Panic-stricken, the government ordered the mounted patrols to fire on the people. The patrols refused, and a battle between the police and the troops followed, regiment after regiment joining the revolutionists, seizing arsenals, burning prisons and jails arsenals, burning prisons and jails and throwing the heads of the secret police into prison.

For three days open battle raged in the streets of Petrograd. Strikes in factories and on street cars were called in sympathy with the revolution.

Wednesday the week's nightmare of revolution ended more suddenly than it had begun. Planks were pulled from windows, doors were unbarred, factories, stores and banks reopened.

The only evidence that a revolution had been fought and won was the smoldering ruins of a few public buildings. The cost in life is unknown. It is believed, however, that it did not exceed 500.

Magical and sudden as was the transition from the old to the new, it is believed here that its results will be almost immediately visible in the institution by the new Russia of a more vigorous and efficient prosecution of the war against Germany.

The duma telegraphed the principal generals at the front to use their influence with Emperor Nicholas in support of the duma's appeal for a popular government, says Reuter's Petrograd correspondent.

General Brussiloff, commander in chief of the armies on the southwestern front, replied:

"Your telegram received. I have fulfilled my duty to my emperor and my country."

Gen. Nicholas V. Ruzsky, member of the supreme military council, replied:

"I have carried out your request."

M. Rodzianko, president of the duma, sent the following telegram to Emperor Nicholas:

"The situation is becoming worse. Measures must be taken immediately, for tomorrow it may be too late. The hour has arrived when the fate of the country and of the dynasty is being decided."

M. Chtchegiovitoff, president of the council of empire, was arrested in his home and temporarily held in the ministerial room of the duma.

A telegram received by the naval attache of the Russian embassy in Paris reported that the railways and public services in Petrograd had resumed work.

The revolution, which evidently was carefully prepared, broke out simultaneously in Petrograd and Moscow. The garrisons, which obeyed the instructions of the revolutionaries, immediately took possession of these cities after comparatively little fighting and equally small amount of destruction of property.

Petrograd Bridge Blown Up.

In Petrograd one bridge was blown up. Strict military rule prevails and the army has the situation so well in hand that it is not expected adherents of the late government will be able to offer any serious resistance, even in remote provinces.

After receiving word of the revolution, it is reported, Emperor Nicholas returned to the palace, where he arrived on Wednesday.

The following details of the revolution have been given to the press from a source usually well informed on Russian affairs:

"The soldiers refused to act against the crowd which started trouble when it heard of the ukase issued by Emperor Nicholas proroguing the duma. On Sunday the committee which had met to discuss the food situation was partly transformed into a provisional government under the presidency of President Rodzianko of the duma and included representatives of the duma council of the empire and of the municipality. The garrison agreed to support the provisional government."

Papers Fail to Appear.

Newspapers, with the exception of revolutionary publications which sprang into life with the success of the revolt, had failed to appear. Street car service at noon had not been resumed, but it was believed that night would see partial service.

The government was declared to be overthrown by the duma leaders, who met in the Maveritchisky palace after the regular session had been adjourned by imperial ukase, and in a telegram to the emperor the popular representatives declared that a special committee, composed of the leaders of the various parties in the duma, would submit a list of names for the new cabinet.

The imperial palace at Tsarskoe-Selo is said to be in a state of siege, but thus far no fire has been reported between the guards defending the palace and the revolutionists and troops.

It is stated that General Michael V. Alexieff, former chief of staff, has been offered the military dictatorship.

Two Statesmen Killed.

Stockholm, March 19.—Passengers arriving at Haparanda, Sweden, with hospital train reported that two men of prominence in Petrograd had been murdered.

One of them was said to have been Alexander D. Protopopoff, minister of the inferior, and the other was believed to be Boris Sturmer, former premier.

The old Russian government, it is alleged, tried to bring troops to Petrograd from Finland to save the situation, but the troops refused to go.

Helsingfors is declared to be in a state of siege.

EIGHT-HOUR LAW UPHELD BY COURT

ADAMSON ACT HELD CONSTITUTIONAL AND VALID BY HIGHEST TRIBUNAL.

LEGAL IN EVERY PHASE

Decision Makes Eight Hours Standard of Day's Work and Legalizes Wages Increase.

Washington.—In an epochal decision holding Congress to be clothed with any power necessary to keep open the channels of interstate commerce, the supreme court, deciding five to four, sustained the Adamson law as constitutional and enforceable in every feature.

The immediate effect of the decision will be to fix a permanent basic eight-hour day in computing wage scales in interstate railroads, and to give, effective from January 1, this year, increases in wages to trainmen of about 25 per cent at the cost to railroads estimated at from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 a year.

The court, through Chief Justice White, declared both carriers and their employes engaged in a business charged with a public interest subject to the right of Congress to compulsorily arbitrate a dispute affecting the operating of that business.

"Whatever would be the right of an employe engaged in private business to demand such wages as he desires, to leave employment if he does not get them and by concert of action to agree with others to leave on the same condition," said the opinion, "such rights are necessarily subject to limitation when employment is accepted in a business charged with a public interest and as to which the power to regulate commerce by Congress applied and the resulting right to fix in case of disagreement and dispute a standard of wages as we have seen necessarily obtained."

In delivering the opinion the chief justice departed at this point from his written text to emphasize the position of men operating trains in a time of national emergency by comparing them to soldiers facing an enemy.

Joining in with the chief justice in sustaining the law were Justices McKenna and Holmes—his immediate seniors in point of service—and Justices Brandies and Clarke, junior members. Dissenting for various reasons were Justices Day, Van Davanter, Pitney and McReynolds.

WILL HUNT GERMAN U-BOATS

President Goes to See Daniels and It Is Planned to Spend $115,000,000 Emergency Fund.

Washington.—Preparations for aggressive action by the navy against the German submarine menace began at the direction of President Wilson.

The President authorized the expenditure of the $115,000,000 emergency fund, provided by Congress to speed up naval construction and pay for special additional war craft and the suspension of the eight-hour labor law in plants engaged on navy work.

Imediately afterward Secretary Daniels obtained the New York navy yard to begin building 60 submarine chasers of the 110-foot type to be completed in from 60 to 80 days.

With the President's approval the secretary also ordered the graduation of the first and second classes at the naval academy. The first class will go out March 29, releasing 172 junior officers to fill existing vacancies and the second in September, furnishing 202 more a full year before they otherwise would be available.

While the energies belong to the navy will be concentrated for the present on efforts to get into commission sraft designed particularly to destroy submarines and guard the coast, warship building generally will be speeded up under the recent agreement with private builders and with the funds now made available.

The announcements from the department followed an hour's conference between Secretary Daniels and the President, who walked over from the White House to the state, war and navy building for the purpose.

Germans Shell Small Boat.

London.—A boat containing the first, second and third mates and five seamen of the Dutch steamer Selien (Selene), chartered by the Belgian relief commission, has been shelled by a submarine and all the occupants killed, according to a Reuter dispatch from Stavanger.

No Americans Hurt in Russian Revolt.

Washington.—Ambassador Frances at Petrograd cabled the state department that no Americans had been reported injured during the disturbances in the Russian capital.

Torpedo Boats Shell English Coast.

London. — German torpedo boats and destroyers shelled towns along the Kentish coast early Sunday morning but little damage, according to an official statement. They fired a number of shells [illegible] certain coast towns. There were no casualties. The material damage was slight, one occupied and two empty houses being hit.

London.—The capture by the Russians of the city of Van, in Turkish Armenia, is reported in a Reuter dispatch from Petrograd.

Wending Besch of Cullman county, who had received a sentence of six months at hard labor for violating the prohibition law, was also paroled by the governor.

Convicts to Be Worked.

More prisoners will be worked on the public roads this year than ever before, according to information received at the state highway department from Washington. The communication states that an added interest has been given to the movement to the convict road work, through the publication of a bulletin entitled, "Convict Labor for Road Work."

Inspectors Named.

Col. E. H. Hanna of Anniston has been appointed license inspector of Calhoun county to succeed C. D. Martin, deceased; Joe G. Savery, license inspector of Talladega county, and James C. Gordon, member of the board of equalization of Limestone county to succeed George L. Sherrill, resigned. These appointments were announced by the state board of equalization.

Requisition Granted.

Despite a strenuous fight made by their attorney, Governor Henderson ordered the return of J. Solis and P. Coovetz to Hartwell, Ga., for trial on a charge of entering a cheating and swindling conspiracy. Governor Henderson honored a requisition drawn on him by Governor Nat E. Harris of Georgia. Solis and Coovetz were arrested at Birmingham. They resisted extradition on the ground that the charges were not true and were trumped up against them.

LESSON FOR MARCH 25

JESUS THE WAY, TRUTH AND LIFE.

(Review.)

SCRIPTURE LESSON—Read John 14: 1-14.

GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life, no man cometh unto the father, but by me. —John 14:6.

The purpose of John's gospel is revealed in John 20:31. It was to prove that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and to prove it in such a way that men might believe it in their hearts, and thus obtain, through that belief, eternal life in his name. Therefore the best method of review for the lessons of the past quarter would be to go over the lessons one by one, and find out how it is that this great truth, which brings life to men, is illustrated in each of the several lessons. The object of such a review should be to make Jesus as real to us as if we were with him and his disciples, and could realize that the Word is now dwelling among us, full of grace and truth, giving daily of his fulness and "grace for grace." (Ch. 1:14-16). Jesus is "the way," the way to heaven, the way to all that is highest and best on earth, the way of life, the way to the Father, the goal of all human aspirations, the way out of all human darkness and sin, the way to holiness and to God. Jesus is also the truth, the revealed truth about God. He revealed the forgiveness of God for the sins of men, the right way of living. Jesus is the life, the source of life, the life itself, the true life here on earth, and the eternal life which is to abide forever. Thus our entire review centers about Jesus Christ. It would be good to have a map chiefly of the vicinity of the Sea of Galilee to use in this review.

Lesson I. Jesus, the Life and Light of Men. This is the central truth of the gospel. Note the pre-existence of Jesus Christ as the eternal Word, "In the beginning with God." Then again we see it as plainly showing forth or declaring him to be God. We see him also as the Creator of all things.

Lesson II. John the Baptist. This is a lesson of John's testimony to Jesus as the Son of God; also that Jesus was the Lamb of God, eternal, pre-existent, the One who was baptized by the Holy Ghost, showing us the real nature of Jesus as the Word of God. Describe who and what he was and did that made him the perfect Savior.

Lesson III. The First Disciples of Jesus. Andrew and Philip discovered the Messiah of whom Moses and the prophets did write, and revealed him unto Nathaniel, who discovered in Jesus the Son of God and the King of Israel. Relate how Jesus found these disciples, their names and their characteristics, and why each one was especially fitted for his particular work.

Lesson IV. His Father's House. Jesus, manifesting himself as the Son of God, the Father, was the Ruler of God's house, and drove from it those who defiled it by making that house a house of merchandise.

Lesson V. The Savior of the World. Jesus, as the only begotten Son of God, can give eternal life to those who believe on him. Describe the character of Nicodemus, what it means to be born again, and what is meant by being born of water and of the spirit.

Lesson VI. The Woman of Samaria. Jesus declared himself to this woman as the Christ, and also as the giver of eternal life; therefore he was God. Referring to the last lesson, emphasize what Jesus meant by his reference to Moses and the brazen serpent, and bring out the fact that the water of which he speaks is the gift of everlasting life.

Lesson VII. The Nobleman's Son. Jesus made his glory to be seen a second time in Cana of Galilee by healing sickness although not present at the bedside of the sick one. Healing and faith are co-partners.

Lesson VIII. The Pool of Bethesda. Again Jesus manifests his power by healing by his bare word the man who had been infirm thirty and eight years, and who was utterly helpless and hopeless. Bring out how the man showed his faith. Explain why Jesus should say to him: "Sin no more lest a worse thing befall thee."

Lesson IX. Five Thousand Fed. Divine power multiplying the loaves and fishes, and divine prudence in assembling the fragments reveals the unquestionable, creative act of the power of Jesus Christ as perhaps none other of his miracles. Emphasize the part which the boy played in co-operating with Christ.

Lesson X. The Bread of Life. Jesus is the Bread of Life as well as the giver of everlasting life. He is the Bread of Life which cometh down from heaven, and the one going to whom we shall never hunger nor thirst.

Lesson XI. Jesus Saves From Sin. Jesus, the Light of the World, has power to set men free from sin, and "whom the Son shall make free is free indeed." In this lesson we have the slavery of sin and the freedom of believers.

True faith is built upon facts, and those who accept and believe on the facts have "everlasting life."

FRUIT LAXATIVE FOR SICK CHILD

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs" that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleaning" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Adv.

Nebraska Leads the World.

Now that European production has been shut off, Nebraska leads the world in the potash industry.

"CASCARETS" ACT ON LIVER; BOWELS

No sick headache, biliousness, bad taste or constipation by morning.

Get a 10-cent box.

Are you keeping your bowels, liver, and stomach clean, pure and fresh with Cascarets, or merely forcing a passageway every few days with Salts, Cathartic Pills, Castor Oil or Purgative Waters?

Stop having a bowel wash-day. Let Cascarets thoroughly cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken or cause any inconvenience, and cost only 10 cents a box from your store. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never have Headache, Biliousness, Coated Tongue, Indigestion, Sour Stomach or Constipation. Adv.

Contentment is a virtue, but ever in the matter of virtues one should beware of counterfeits.

STOP THAT HACKING COUGH.

Mansfield (formerly Hungarian) Cough Balsam heals the inflamed and lacerated membranes and quiets the tickling nerves that lie underneath the infected portions. Invaluable for babies. Price 25c and 50c.—Adv.

He who knows a woman has solved a great mystery.

Rest Those Worn Nerves

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Don't give up. When you feel all unstrung; when family cares seem too hard to bear, and backache, dizzy headaches, queer pains and irregular action of the kidneys and bladder may mystify you, remember that such troubles often come from weak kidneys and it may be that you only need Doan's Kidney Pills to make you well. When the kidneys are weak there's danger of dropsy, gravel and Bright's disease. Don't delay. Start using Doan's now.

PROCEEDING DELIBERATELY

Everywhere the arming of American merchantmen is interpreted as meaning war. Yet no nation never set out upon such a ventur more calmly than America is going into the pathway of hostilities. To those of us who can recall the feverish days of 1898 and to that fewer number who remember the excitement of 1861, there is something uncanny about this. The military condition of the country, to be sure, is not such as to excite enthusiasm. Quite the contrary. And we hope that the calm seriousness with which we are apparantly marching into war means that the real mind of the nation is finally concentrated upon our needs with a determination to go through to the end with whatever is necessary.

If you are a young man, old man, middle aged man, or any kind of a man as for that matter, hanging around Clanton on Sunday, you are denying your soul the most wholesome bit of inspiration you ever missed in your life if you don't come up to the meeting of the Baraca class of the Baptist Sunday school and hear the lecture of Prof. McDonald. He has that forceful way of preaching a most powerful sermon in a concise, short and pointed way. He will cause you to see better the way of truth and light, and instill in your mind the desire to live a nobler and more pious life. There are some in our town who sorely need the beneficent weight of Mr. McDonald's lecture to bear upon their heads at least every Sunday for a year. We hope the Spirit may move them to join the class and get the great good which they are and have been denying themselves.

William Knox Tate.

The whole South mourns the passing of one of its educational leaders in the person of William Knox Tate, Professor of Rural Education in Peabody College for Teachers at Nashville, Tennessee. Although he died at the age of forty-six, he lived to accomplish much for the betterment of rural education and the improvement of country life in the South. He was a native of Tennessee, and taught in Arkansas, South Carolina and other southern states. He was for several years State Supervisor of rural schools in South Carolina. His ability attracted the attention of the Federal Government and he was sent to study rural life conditions and the public school systems of Sweden and Denmark. Having returned to America he was offered the chair of rural education in the George Peabody College for Teachers and it was here while in the very prime of life, and with a brilliant career as a trainer of leaders for country life in the South already begun, that the final summons came His services were in demand as an authority on rural life problems the country over. He visited Alabama a number of times, his last public appearance being on December 30, 1916, when he addressed the annual State meeting of the Alabama School Improvement Association. Those who knew him will never forget his charming personality, his conspicuous ability, his untiring energy and his devotion to popular education.

RUB-MY-TISM—Antiseptic, Relieves Rheumatism, Sprains, Neuralgia, etc.

Take Care of Horses.

The winter has been long and wet, feeding stuff is scarce and high. For these reasons horses and mules have been allowed to stand idle on a light ration. Many of them are tender and weak. The long period of wet weather has forced the heavy plowing to be done just in advance of planting and will work a hardship on the farm animals even with the best of masters. In view of the weak tender condition of the animals, the volume of heavy work to be done in a short time and the increasing tempature, the wise master will give his animals close attention and increase their feed in proportion to the work which they perform. It will not pay to economize by the loss of horse flesh and horse power either by over work or short feeding at the beginning of a crop.

See that the collars fit the shoulders and the harness is otherwise comfortable. Horses fret when uncomfortable, often enraging the temper of the plowman and criminal abuses are somtimes the result; all of which may be avoided by a little carefulness in looking after the comfort of the animals. The horses will furnish the power in proportion to their treatment and feed but the man must furnish the common sense.

Early Planting of Cotton.

Planting cotton early has been advocated so extensively that serious mistakes may occur in many cases by planting too early and the crop getting killed by late frost. The extreme in either case would be bad. Early planting is the ebst but does not mean planting much earlier than the usual time of first planting. It simply means to begin about the usual time and hurry through with it and avoid stretching planting through a whole month and ending up late. It is a common habit with many people to jump from one extreme to the other which is equally as dangerous. The conservative side of any proposition is the middle ground between two extremes.

Cultivation of a cotton crop should begin just as soon as the plants come up. Cotton dates its age nearly as much from the beginning of cultivation as it does from planting. Much earliness is often lost by allowing cotton to stand two or three weeks before cultivation is started. All cultivation should be shallow and often.

All the talk of a Russian-German-Japanese coalition against the United States after the war has its origin in German minds and is given publicity through German propaganda. The wish is father to the thought. If we do our full duty now in the face of what confronts us, we shall be in position when the war is over, to make a few coalitions of our own if the necessity arises.

CAN'T LOSE HAIR

Twenty years from Today a Baldheaded Man Will Be an Unusual Sight.

One of the most prominent druggists of America made a statement a few weeks ago which has caused a great deal of discussion among scientists in the medical press.

He said: "If the new hair grower, Mildredina Hair Remedy, increases its sales as it has during the past year it will be used by nearly every man, woman and child in America within eight years.

"When Mildredina Hair Remedy is used almost universally, dandruff will disappear and with its departure baldness, itching scalp, splitting hair and all scalp diseases will follow and twenty years from now a bald head will be a rarity."

There is only one way to cure dandruff, and that is to kill the germs. There is only one hair preparation that will kill the germs and tath is Mildredina Hair Remedy. This unusual hair restorer with its record of thousands of cures will grow hair on any head where there is any life left; it will cure dandruff, stop falling hair and itching of the scalp in three weeks or money back.

It is the most pleasant and invigorating tonic, is not sticky, orgreasy and is used extensively by ladies of relnement who desire to have and to keep their hair soft, lustrous and luxuriant. Fifty cents for a large bottle druggists everywhere. Mail orders filled by American Proprietary Co., Boston, Mass.

Judge E. E. Birdsong Makes a Statement.

Says Tanlac Restored His Health After Years of Suffering and He Endorses It.

"To me, the strongest evidence possible that Tanlac does what is claimed for it, is the remarkeble improvement it has made in my condition", said Judge Edgar E. Birdsong, who is one of theb est known men in Hancock County, Ga. Judge Birdsong resides at Jewell, Ga., and enjoys a reputation for honesty and integrity that stands unimpeached throughout the thirty years in which he has presided over the court in official capacity. His statement, given before and witnessed b ya notary public, will bear great weight, as he has a vast acquaintance through this section of the country.

"I can hardly remeber the time when my supper has not caused me such torture from indigestion and heartburn, that I didn't almost dread to see beadtime come," he continued. "Long into the night I have suffered agonies until it seemed I would never get any rest. Undigested food gathered in my stomach like hard lumps an dseemed to sour, and pained me like hot colds of fire. Gas would form from pieces of fermented food and swell me until I was forced to belch it up and it seemed almost like a flame had found its way into the region of my heart.

"Although it was more uncomfortable at night, I suffered almost as much discomfort at breakfast and at my noon meal. I lost weight and strength alarmingly and became so weak and worn out, that I dreaded to think of sitting through a session of my court.

"I saw so many endorsements from prominent people telling of the merit of Tanlac, that I decided to see what it would do for me.

"My improvement began immediately after I had taken the first few doses of Tanlac. I can now eat and get the nourishment from anything that is set before me, and it digests readily. My stomach is in fine condition and the belching up of gas which caused my heartburn is a thing of the past, and I am gaining in weight and strength every day.

"I am glad to give you this affidavit for I feel that there are numbers of people who will see my statement and try Tanlac, and I kanw they will get results from it, for I think it is unequalled as a remedy for troubles like mine."

EXPLANATION OF SOME FACTS RELATING TO A COUNTY BOND ISSUE.

Judge Reynolds Issues an Address to People by order of Commissioners.

Our People Should Give Their Most Sincere and Unbiased Thought in This Critical Hour.

Clanton, Ala., March 19, 1917.

To the People of Chilton County:

In view of the election to be held on April 16th, 1917, to determine whether or not there shall be a bond issue in this county, the Commissioners Court has directed me to issue a statement for the public showing the financial condition of the county, and giving the reasons of the court for ordering the election.

The county owes in warrants already passed by the court about $211,000.00; claims now before the court, which have not been passed $8,000.00; making a total indebtedness of proximately $219,000.00; exclusive of interest already due.

Of this amount, there is past due something like $70,000.00; and the county is behind about three years with payments on past due warrants, so it will be seen that if the county could meet all debts as they fall due in the future, it would still have to buy its material on three years time. But there is another very important feature of the present condition of the county, which we desire to get clearly before the minds of the people, and that is the interest bearing warrants which have already been issued will fall due faster than the county can pay them with the present tax rate, by applying all road and bridge taxes, each year for the next twelve years, by applying every cent of the road and bridge taxes this year there will be a shortage of $6,000.00 on the warrants, besides $25,000.00 which is due our own people here in the county, of which not one cent can be paid.

The people will naturally ask why it is that the treasurer pays the foreign creditors and not the people at home. The answer is this: When the Commissioners Court borrowed the money from these outside bankers they gave them a contract that they would levy a sufficient tax each year until the debt and interest was paid, you see in complying with this contract we can not use any road and bridge taxes until all the interest bearing warrants are paid, and as I have already stated they fall due fasthan the present tax rate will pay them.

You may ask if we will be compelled to comply with this contract in levying special taxes? It is my understanding of the law that we will. In fact, Judge Grubb in the Federal Court, in deciding the Shelby County case a few days ago held that the contract of Shelby County, which is identically like the Chilton County contract, would have to be complied with. There is no doubt that the contract will have to be complied with.

There are some instances in which the expenses of the county can be cut, and I assure you that the expenses will be cut whenever it is possible to do so, but weare face to face with this proposition: When we buy material the county is compelled to have we are forced to pay from 50 to 100 per cent above the cash price, because under the present condition we can not hope to pay the money in three years. Three years ago our county warrants were discounted at 10 per cent, now they are discounted at 50 per cent, and when we buy goods we have to pay the price according to the value of the warrants. The Commissioners Court called two meetings at the court house to advise with the people to find out what they wanted to do to relieve the county of its present financia lcondition. While each of the meetings were not largely attended owing to the disagreeable weather, it seems that they represented the entire county, and at each meeting they voted unanimously requesting the Commissioners Court to order an election, which has been accordingly done.

I want to say that the Commissioners Court has considered this question from every standpoint, and they are only seeking to serve the best interest of the county. Collectively and individually, they believe the bond issue is the only salvation for the county at this time, but they consider it their bound and patriotic duty to leave the question to the determination of the people of the county, and whatever theresult of the election may be, the responsibility finally will rest upon the people where it properly belongs.

If the bond issue carries it will not increase the present indebtedness one penny, but on the contrary, will largely reduce it. Not one cent of the money derived from the sale of the bonds will be spent for any purpose other than to take up the debts that have already been created. The warrants are now drawing interest at 6 per cent. We can get the money on bonds at an interest of 5 per cent, thereby saving something like $2,000.00 per year interest.

Some sinister individuals will doubtless whisper it around that there will be a rake off of some kind, if the bond issue carries. In anticipation and refutation of that charge, I desire to say that we have already signed a contract wherein it is provided that thebonds are to be sold at par, no fees of any kind to be allowed, not even Attorney's fees, not anything for advice or for printing of the bonds, no commissions, but the county is to get dollar for dollar, and as I have already stated the money can not be used for any purpose except to pay the debts already created.

The question is now up to the people for dicision. Do you think it best to put our county on a cash basis and buy what we are compelled to have cheap and keep up our roads, or do you think it best to stop all improvements, quit building bridges and not spend any more on roads and everything stop except the Courts?

I want to say on behalf of the Commissioners Court that if you decide you want to keep up the roads and bridges and you vote this bond issue, we are going to see that each precinct in the county gets its prorata of every dollar that is spent. We do not believe in any special priviledges, and we are going to look after all the people and see that each community in the county gets its share.

I want it made clear that this election is not called to create a debt, but to get time on debt already made, and get a cheaper rate of interest, and to put the county on a cash basis.

Now in conclusion if the people of this county think best to let matters stand as they are, stop all improvements, and apply all the tax money on the debts, except what we are compelled to have, I say for the Commissioners Court, we will do the best we can, and buy as little as possible. We are not in favor of raising the taxes, as we think the people are not able to pay the present tax, unless times get better.

Respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

days I have seen in past life. I liked biscuit, and it seemed almost essential, but because I didn't have the money to buy it with, I had to make out with corn bread.

You know that a large family is harder to keep up than a small one, unless all members work and make something. Well you know we have new children born into our official family every two to four years, and they come in triplets some times. Our official family is getting mighty large, and some of them are not making any corn or cotton. So the money is gone, and supplies are high, and it looks to me like somebody is going to have to get out and go to work.

Well, brother voters, lets lay down all regrets and politics, and look at the conditions of our county. Let us all pull together for the best interests of all the county, and work to get our affairs back on a cash basis.

I want you all to look over the above "ignorance drops" and take them according to directions. Think over them, and shake them up by reading them. They are guaranteed not to sicken, though they may have a tendency to put somebody to work. But that would not hurt any worse than produce sore hands, sore shoulders, skinned heels, ingrowing toe nails, etc.

Wishing that our county may find the very best possible solution for its financial troubles, and hoping that finally it will result in the greatest good to the greatest number, and wishing the Union-Banner success

ELMORE'S SPRING OPENING AN OCCASION OF RARE BEAUTY

There never has been a store anywhere nor any time that showed more beauty and taste in arrangement than that of Elmore's at their Spring opening Wednesday.

They had on display the most varied and tempting arrangement of Millinery and Ladies dresses and suits that could possibly be gathered from patterns and fashions from the very foremost designs in the country.

Aside from having the very finest line of goods obtainable, there is a touch of artfulness in the way they are displayed that places Elmore's this season in the front rank. The window shows were the most unique ever seen; the minature lake especially added charm to the scene in one window.

Elmore's has made the most impressive opening of high class Ladies outfittings ever seen here before. They deserve credit for their efforts they have made to please their customers, and will be no doubt, accorded just recompense in the volume of trade which will come to them.

WOMAN NOW IN PERFECT HEALTH

What Came From Reading a Pinkham Advertisement.

Paterson, N. J.—"I thank you for the Lydia E. Pinkham remedies as they have made me well and healthy. Sometime ago I felt so run down, had pains in my back and side, was very irregular, tired, nervous, had such bad dreams, did not feel like eating and had short breath. I read your advertisement in the newspapers and decided to try a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It worked from the first bottle, so I took a second and a third, also a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Purifier, and now I am just as well as any other woman. I advise every woman, single or married, who is troubled with any of the aforesaid ailments, to try your wonderful Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier and I am sure they will help her to get rid of her troubles as they did me."—Mrs. ELSIE J. A Day's Wage.

It is interesting to note the definition of a living wage as formulated by the court of industrial arbitration of New South Wales in 1914:

"The living wage is standardized as the wage which will do neither more nor less than enable a worker of the class to which the lowest wage would be awarded to maintain himself, his wife and two children—the average dependent family—in a house of three rooms and a kitchen, with food, plain and inexpensive, but quite sufficient in quantity and quality to maintain health and efficiency, and with an allowance for the following other expenses: Fuel, clothes, boots, furniture, utensils, rates, life insurance, savings, accident or benefit societies, loss of employment, union pay, books and newspapers, train and tram fares, sewing machine, mangle, school requisities, amusements and holiday intoxicating liquors, tobacco, sickness and death, domestic help, unusual contingencies, religion, or charity."—National Geographic Magazine.

Taffeta in Spring Coat Fashions

Taffeta dresses and coats reappear each season, sure of a good following. This season, countenanced by Paris—if that makes any difference—it promises to be more used for afternoon and evening dresses and for separate skirts than any other silk. It leads for the last mentioned by a long way. These separate silk skirts are in plaids, checks and occasional stripes, and in combinations of many colors, some of them rather startling. It is a fancy to wear long coats of plain silk over them, made in the fashion of a suit coat or a long coat of black taffeta will serve this purpose and many others.

The coat of black taffeta shown in the picture is touched up with white braid and buttons and a white collar. Contrasting collars of chiffon broadcloth are a feature of these coats as well as of blouses and suits. There is a wide, soft girdle with hanging ends tied loosely about the waist.

Pockets are conspicuous by their absence on this coat, but they are suggested and the inevitable widened hip effect attained by plaited panels let in at the sides. They are set in in box plaits, stitched down with a braided strap that leaves a standing plaiting over two inches wide.

One of the best of the new taffeta coats is made with a plain, tight-fitting body, decorated with pin tucks running in parallel rows from the center of the back to the underarm seams. The front is similarly trimmed. The sleeves are plain and flare at the wrists, revealing their lining of soft, white satin.

The skirt of the coat is very full and slopes from the front to the middle of the back, where it is pointed. It is lined with satin also. It is heavier by the weight of its lining than coats of the sort shown in the picture.

Keeps White.

To keep crepe de chine articles white, be careful to use luke warm water, not hot; use white soap, rinse at least three times, then wrap in a towel for two or three days (keeping damp if inclined to dry out), and then iron on the wrong side with a warm (not hot) iron. If these directions are followed carefully your things will keep like new. It is the standing wrapped in the damp towel that is the most important part.

Blouse of Silk Jersey

Somewhere between a sweater coat and a dressy blouse stands this novel model made of bright green jersey silk trimmed with white satin. It is fashioned with a rather long peplum, provided with a belt made of the jersey and has the easy adjustment to the figure of a sweater. But its wide collar, turned back cuffs and fancy sleeves place it in the class of dressy blouses. This compromise between two purposes makes it a useful garment for the woman who likes to spend the day in a garment that will not be out of place, whatever its environment.

Novel management of the body of the blouse and of the sleeves, in cutting, makes this an interesting garment and it looks as if it would be a good selection for the woman with a stout figure. At each side pockets are simulated by narrow bands of satin set onto the front. The small buttons are black and white, making a very sparkling combination with the vivid green of the material.

Silk in various weaves from the thinnest crepe georgette to rather heavy jersey, like that in the blouse pictured, appears to have displaced cotton and linen materials to a considerable extent. But nothing can ever be more elegant than these same sheer cottons and linens that emerge from the laundry as good as new. Midsummer brings back our wandering allegiance always to the refinement and beauty of white in washable blouses. It is just as well to get them ready now; they are to be our main dependence in hot weather.

Julia Bottomley

Old Gold Blouses.

Since the short outside blouse was put up as a rival to the wash waist tucked into the skirt there has been strong rivalry in the way of new designs. Colors have been accepted without question, and, so far, women have gone in heavily for blue and dull burgundy red; but now there is a new blouse of old gold satin, which is lined with crepe and has a belt of Japanese embroidery. This is offered for any kind of skirt and can be worn in the home or under a top coat.

The blouse that is worn with the tail under the skirt is no longer smart. The peplum blouse is the fashion.

HARMLESS LYIN'

Th' grace an' alacrity with which most of us lie these forward lookin' days is in perfect accord with th' spirit o' th' times. As th' world progresses we become broader an' as we grow broader we become more liberal, an' as we become more liberal we grow less exactin'. Things that wuz not even tolerated among th' Indians are winked at by us t'day. Things that wuz regarded as abominable a few years ago are now looked upon as unavoidable an' necessary in our pursuit o' happiness. Most anything is all right t'day but sidewhiskers. So th' gentle art o' lyin' has plugged steadily along until it has become firmly entrenched well up in th' first division among th' traits that have bloomed an' thrived durin' th' greatest commercial period in th' history o' th' world.

We all lie with impunity. I don't mean t' say that all of us lie when anything of a serious nature is involved. We're not all malicious liars. Some o' us lie t' be entertainin' or t' avoid appearin' stupid. Others lie t' be funny or excite comment, while still others lie t' save time an' trouble. But most o' us lie fer convenience. Th' truth is often too prosy. It don't draw. Folks are not attracted t' it. It rarely fills th' bill. Th' truth, too, is allus liable t' start somethin'. Disagreeable people are invariably truthful. Th' plain-spoken person is celebrated fer hittin' the nail on th' head an' you know we all sidestep when he's around. Lots o' folks don't care as long as you don't tell th' truth about 'em.

Th' truth'll often make a mess o' things when a neat little mouse-colored lie 'll put ever'thing on a cheerful basis without leavin' a brush mark. Th' feller who used t' turn purple an' stammer an' stutter when confronted by his wife has only t' say, "Mamie, I tried t' git you over th' phone four times, etc." Then they sit down t' a cold dinner an' discuss th' desirability o' municipal ownership o' telephones till bedtime. Jest think what th' truth would have done t' that little home!

Follerin' are some o' th' more pop'lar styles o' lyin'—little things we hear at ever' turn that have th' ring o' a plugged quarter, but which we smilin'ly pretend t' believe jest as a matter o' form:

"You're lookin' fine, ole chap."

"I hated t' miss it, but I wuz too tired t' come downtown."

"I wouldn't have a Palm Beach suit."

"I'll come if I kin git away."

"We'll cheerfully give your money back."

"I had a perfectly lovely time."

"We've Never Been Up a Night With Him."

"Come in any time, I'll be glad t' see you."

"I wuz under th' impression that I'd paid that."

"We've never been up a night with him."

"Sure, we'll send it out t'day."

"I'll have a man out there t'morrow."

"I tried t' find you all day."

"I'll make it t' you fer jest what it cost."

"We could have sold it a dozen times yisterday."

"What a becomin' dress!"

"I'll hand it t' you Saturday."

"I'm fond o' grand opery."

"I'll hav t' ask my wife."

But when it comes t' veracity th' ole-time hoss trader haint in it with th' feller who's been t' Louisville an' back in a second-hand car.

CLERKS

Next t' automobiles ther seems t' be more different kinds o' store clerks than anything else, unless it's grafters. Ther's th' preoccupied clerk who shows you a bolt o' bed tickin' instead o' cretonne while her mind is on a dance in th' near future; th' tall indifferent clerk who looks toward Pittsburgh while you try t' tell him what size you wear; th' sallow society clerk with th' weather-beaten throat who dreamily directs you t' th' socks in th' last aisle next t' th' tinware as she vainly endeavors t' lift her heavy eyelids; th' pompous clerk who loses all interest in you if you don't buy th' first umbreller he shows you; th' serious clerk who dresses like a corpse an' assures you you can't find what you're lookin' fer in any store in town; th' under-sized clerk with th' bow legs who tells you what they're wearin' down East; th' busy clerk who slips a raincoat on you an' don't come back fer an hour; th' persistent clerk who stands in front o' you when you promise t' come in agin an' start fer th' door, an' th' real 88-note regular clerk who is willin' t' tear down every'thing in th' store t' please you.

Some clerks are so pleasant they scare you. Your whole disposition t' buy vanishes th' moment they take you by th' arm. Then ther's other clerks you hate t' bother. If a feller knows jest what he wants when he goes in a store he's a crank. If he don't know what he wants he's a dub. Th' hardest thing is t' make a clerk understand what you want if he hasn't got it. If a feller is undecided as t' what he wants he allus buys somethin' he don't want.

Th' feller who goes int' a store jest' t' look around is nearly allus a coward. He wants t' buy but he's afraid. He has carried home so much junk in th' past that he can't trust himself. If he wants a new round-crowned brown derby jest like th' one he's got on, th' clerk 'll fish out a green Fedory with a bow in th' back an' give him th' hypnotic eye an' he buys it. When he gets home he gives it t' his wife's little brother. Some fellers part with an' ole hat like they wuz about t' swing int' eternity. Did you ever see a timid feller hangin' around a show window nearly breakin' his neck tryin' t' read a price tab that wuz turned th' wrong way? He's afraid t' go in. It seems like th' better you know a clerk th' more anxious he is t' sell you a coat with a cup in th' back. Th' worse a suit o' clothes fits you th' longer it lasts.

Th' task o' pickin' out a new suit o' clothes or a new hat, coupled with th' ordeal o' partin' with your money, is bad enough, but your close communion with a triple mirror durin' th' transaction destroys what little interest in life you may have saved out o' th' wreck. How good a feller feels wher he gits out o' a store where he nearly bought somethin'!

Th' Task o' Pickin' Out a New Suit o' Clothes, Coupled With th' Ordeal of Partin' With Your Money, Is Bad Enough, but Close Communion With a Triple Mirror Durin' th' Transaction Destroys What Little Interest You May Have Saved Out o' th' Wreck.

But th' worst o' all th' clerks is th' one who shows you what he wears.

Handkerchief as Newspaper.

In contrast to the poetic and romantic side of its character are the odd uses to which the handkerchief has been put and of the part it has played in history. For in 1710 the British government, in the absence of a penny newspaper, did not disdain to resort to this humble means of casting broadcast the address delivered by Queen Anne on the opening of parliament and this strange practice, more or less in vogue throughout her reign, commemorated the victories of Marlborough over the French and of the treaty of Utrecht.

SON HAD TO DO HOUSEWORK

Lady Became a Nervous Wreck From Three Years Suffering With Head. Says Cardui Made Her Well.

Texas City, Tex.—In an interesting statement, Mrs. G. H. Schill, of this town, says: "For three years I suffered untold agony with my head. I was unable to do any of my work. I just wanted to sleep all the time, for that was the only ease I could get, when I was asleep. I became a nervous wreck just from the awful suffering with my head.

"I was so nervous that the least noise would make me jump out of my bed. I had no energy, and was unable to do anything. My son, a young boy, had to do all my household duties.

"I was not able to do anything until I took Cardui. I took three bottles in all, and it surely cured me of those awful headaches. That has been three years ago, and I know the cure is permanent, for I have never had any headache since taking Cardui. . . . Nothing relieved me until I took Cardui. It did wonders for me. Three bottles of it did more for me than all the medicine or doctor's treatments, or baths I ever took."

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer any slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as the prescription othine — double strength — is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—Adv.

"Pape's Diapepsin" cures sick, sour stomachs in five minutes —Time It!

"Really does" put bad stomachs in order—"really does" overcome indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, heartburn and sourness in five minutes—that—just that—makes Pape's Diapepsin the largest selling stomach regulator in the world. If what you eat ferments into stubborn lumps, you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food and acid; head is dizzy and aches; breath foul; tongue coated; your insides filled with bile and indigestible waste, remember the moment "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. It's truly astonishing—almost marvelous, and the joy is its harmlessness.

A large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin will give you a hundred dollars' worth of satisfaction.

It's worth its weight in gold to men and women who can't get their stomachs regulated. It belongs in your home—should always be kept handy in case of sick, sour, upset stomach during the day or at night. It's the quickest, surest and most harmless stomach doctor in the world.—Adv.

THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND DON'T KNOW IT

Weak and unhealthy kidneys cause so much sickness and suffering and when through neglect or other causes, kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results may be expected.

Your other organs may need attention—but your kidneys should have attention first because their work is most important.

If you feel that your kidneys are the cause of your sickness or run down condition commence taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because if it proves to be the remedy you need and your kidneys begin to improve they will help all the other organs to health.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are among the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patients, who usually content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease constantly undermines the system.

A Trial Will Convince Anyone.

Thousands of people have testified that the mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, is soon realized and that it stands the highest for its remarkable results in the most distressing cases.

Symptoms of Kidney Trouble.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you suffer from annoying bladder troubles, frequently passing water night and day, smarting or irritation in passing, brick-dust or sediment, headache, backache, lame back, dizziness, poor digestion, sleeplessness, nervousness, heart disturbance due to bad kidney trouble, skin eruptions from bad blood, neuralgia, rheumatism, lumbago, bloating, irritability, worn-out feeling, lack of ambition, may be loss of flesh or sallow complexion, kidney trouble in its worst form may be stealing upon you.

Swamp-Root Is Pleasant to Take.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at all drug stores.

SPECIAL NOTE—You may obtain a sample size bottle of Swamp-Root by enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. This gives you the opportunity to prove the remarkable merit of this medicine. They will also send you a book of valuable information, containing many of the thousands of grateful letters received from men and women who say they found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed in kidney, liver and bladder troubles. The value and success of Swamp-Root are so well known that our readers are advised to send for a sample size bottle. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

ANY CORN LIFTS OUT, DOESN'T HURT A BIT!

No foolishness! Lift your corns and calluses off with fingers—It's like magic!

Sore corns, hard corns, soft corns or any kind of a corn, can harmlessly be lifted right out with the fingers if you apply upon the corn a few drops of freezone, says a Cincinnati authority.

For little cost one can get a small bottle of freezone at any drug store, which will positively rid one's feet of every corn or callus without pain.

This simple drug dries the moment it is applied and does not even irritate the surrounding skin while applying it or afterwards.

This announcement will interest many of our readers. If your druggist hasn't any freezone tell him to surely get a small bottle for you from his wholesale drug house.—adv.

WHAT IS LAX-FOS

LAX-FOS IS AN IMPROVED CASCARA

A DIGESTIVE LAXATIVE

CATHARTIC AND LIVER TONIC

Lax-Fos is not a secret or Patent Medicine but is composed of the following old-fashioned roots and herbs:

CASCARA BARK
BLUE FLAG ROOT
RHUBARB ROOT
BLACK ROOT
MAY APPLE ROOT
SENNA LEAVES
AND PEPSIN

In Lax-Fos the Cascara is improved by the addition of these digestive ingredients making it better than ordinary Cascara, and thus the combination acts not only as a stimulating laxative and cathartic but also as a digestive and liver tonic. Syrup laxatives are weak, but Lax-Fos combines strength with palatable, aromatic taste and does not gripe or disturb the stomach. One bottle will prove Lax-Fos is invaluable for Constipation, Indigestion or Torpid Liver. Price 50c.

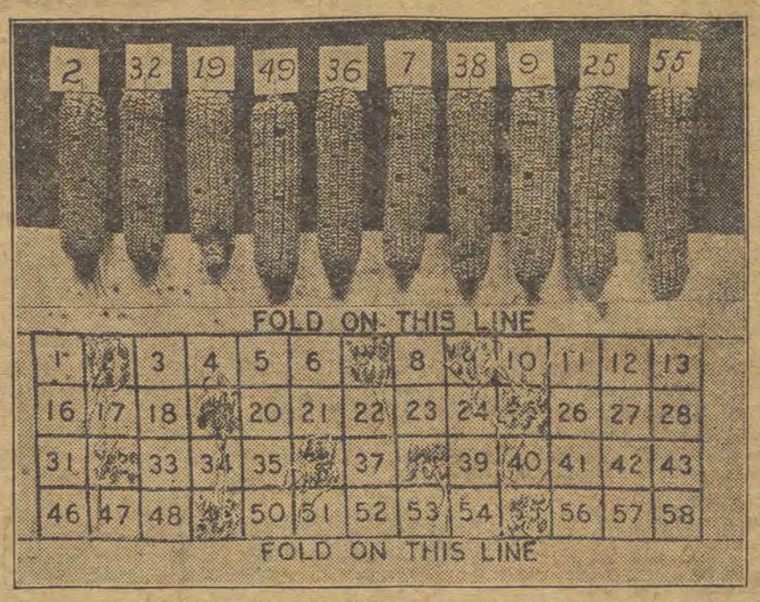
GIRLS! GIRLS! TRY IT, BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR

Make It Thick, Glossy, Wavy, Luxuriant and Remove Dandruff—Real Surprise for You.



Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderine hair cleanse." Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it, surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any store and just try it. Adv.

EARLY CORN PLANTING IS RECOMMENDED

ORDINARY RAG-DOLL SEED-CORN TESTER.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Corn will not grow during cold weather as wheat and oats. Corn planting time is, therefore, a little later than the best time for sowing spring wheat or spring oats. However, according to Farmers' Bulletin 773, when seed of perfect vitality is used, it is remarkable how early in the spring corn can be planted and result in good stands and good yields. Seed of perfect vitality will often remain in cold or dry soils for several weeks and afterwards germinate and yield well. Irregular stands are sometimes attributed to poor seed, when dry, poorly prepared spots are the cause. Fields are sometimes seen in which the seed germinated promptly in moist spots but did not germinate in dry spots until rains came.

Wait for Warm Soil.

Where the seasons are long and moisture plentiful, it is customary to wait until the soil is warm before planting. In semiarid regions, however, corn should be planted early. With the soil in proper condition it is generally advisable in semiarid regions, south as well as north, to plant corn before danger from frost is entirely past. Corn planted very early usually makes a slow, tough growth and a month after planting may be smaller and look less promising than that planted later. The early-planted corn ripens first, however, and usually produces the larger or the better crop. Because of its slow, tough growth corn planted very early is not so susceptible to frost and drought as corn planted later and growing more rapidly.

Injury From Frost.

In a series of years the gain in mature corn secured from early planting will more than make up for any injury from spring frosts. Excellent corn crops have been produced from plantings frozen off or frozen back when the plants were from a few inches to a foot or more tall. Corn is not often entirely killed by spring frosts, and if some should be injured the loss is much less serious than that from summer drought or from fall frost.

Early-planted corn derives more benefit from the spring moisture supply, becomes well rotted before summer droughts begin, and may even mature before these droughts become severe.

Where the growing season is very long and warm, plantings made at about 30-day intervals increase the chances of hitting the season right and raising some good corn.

SAFE FARMING URGED

Food, Feed and Fertility Go to Make Up Foundation.

Circular Issued by Department of Agriculture Points Out True Value of Cotton—Money Crop Is Last on the List.

(From the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Food, feed and fertility are the foundations of safe farming, according to the United States department of agriculture. A circular sent to farmers, bankers and business men in cotton territory by the chief of the office of extension work in the South says: "Let us feed the people, feed the live stock, and feed the soil. When we have done these three things, then raise such acreage in money crops as we have the labor to tend."

The circular points out that the true value of cotton to the farmer is to a great extent the amount of food and feed that it will purchase. The price of cotton has risen, it is true, but so has the retail price of all other farm produce. "By growing all cotton," says the author, "and exchanging it for a living, you are simply swapping a high-priced product produced by your labor for a high-priced product produced by the labor of the other fellow. When you follow safe farming, however, you produce your own food and feed at cost and sell your cotton for the other fellow's dollars."

Safe farming is defined in the circular as including these items:

(1) A home garden for every family on the farm, from one-tenth to one-fourth acre, well located, well tilled, and tended as carefully as any other crop on the farm, planted in rotation to time the vegetable crops so as to have a continual supply for the family table as many days in the year as possible. To this should be added one-fourth of an acre of potatoes, either Irish or sweet, or both, to be used as food for the family.

(2) Enough corn on each farm to last the family and the live stock for one year, with a little excess for safety.

(3) Sufficient oats and other small grain to supplement the corn as food for one year with certainty. These small grains conserve the soil in winter and provide summer grazing for live stock.

(4) Hay and forage crops to supply the live stock on the farm for one year, with a little excess for safety. The legumes, which add fertility to the soil and produce the best hay, should not be forgotten.

(5) The necessary meat, eggs and milk for the family. The meat should be procured by increased attention to poultry and hogs because of the rapidity with which these can be produced. Every family should have at least two cows, so that one can be in milk all the time. A sufficient number of brood sows should be kept to produce the pork for the family, with some excess for sale. The average number of poultry per farm should be gradually increased to at least fifty. There should be eggs and poultry for the home table, with a sufficient excess for sale. The live stock on the farm should be gradually increased so as to consume the otherwise wasted products and make productive the unproductive and untillable lands.

(6) Cotton for the main money crop after the living has been amply provided for.

(7) The sale of the surplus products of the garden, the orchard, the poultry, the live stock, and the feed crops to cover the necessary running expenses of the farm, leaving the cotton as the real cash crop.

The present prices of cotton, says the circular, should not be permitted to tempt any farmer to depart from this program. It is the only safe plan to follow, no matter what the price of cotton may be.

TO PRODUCE SANITARY MILK

Cows Must Be Clean, Healthy and Well Cared For—Avoid Feeds With Objectionable Flavors.

In order that milk may be sanitary and healthy the cows must be healthy, clean and well cared for and must not be given feeds that will produce objectionable flavors in the milk; barns must be well lighted, ventilated and kept clean and be roomy enough to prevent undue crowding of the cows; barnyards must be kept reasonably clean, and should be well drained so as to insure, as far as possible, cleanliness of cow; manure must not accumulate near or be piled against the barn; the floor of the milk room should be of concrete, the room being well lighted, ventilated and screened; utensils such as cans, bottles and milk pails must be washed and scalded after each use, and all tinware must be free from open seams and rust; water supply for cows and for cooling and cleaning purposes must be clean and free from contamination; steam or hot water should be used for cleansing and sterilizing utensils.—Clemson College Bulletin.

NEGLECT OF POULTRY FLOCK

All Products, Particularly Eggs, Are High This Year—Good Care Is Quite Essential.

It costs considerable to feed a flock of fowls this season because of the high price of grain, but it does not pay to neglect the poultry on that account. All poultry products, particularly eggs, are high this year, and good care and feeding will make the flock very profitable.

CALOMEL WHEN BILIOUS? NO! STOP! ACTS LIKE DYNAMITE ON LIVER

I Guarantee "Dodson's Liver Tone" Will Give You the Best Liver and Bowel Cleansing You Ever Had—Doesn't Make You Sick!

Stop using calomel! It makes you sick. Don't lose a day's work. If you feel lazy, sluggish, bilious or constipated, listen to me!

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile, crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you feel "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store or dealer and get a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it cannot salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste. —Adv.

Died of Premature Old Age!

(BY V. M. PIERCE, M. D.)

How many times we hear of comparatively young persons passing away when they should have lived to be 70 or 80 years of age. This fatal work is usually attributed to the kidneys, as, when the kidneys degenerate, it causes auto-intoxication. The more injurious the poisons passing thru the kidneys, the quicker will those noble organs be degenerated, and the sooner they decay.

To prevent premature old age and promote long life, lighten the work of the kidneys by drinking plenty of pure water all day long, and occasionally taking Anuric (double strength) before meals. This can be obtained at drug stores. Anuric will overcome such conditions as rheumatism, dropsical swellings, cold extremities, scalding and burning urine and sleeplessness due to constant arising.

"Worth Its Weight in Gold"

Porterville, Miss.—"I have been a sufferer for five years with trouble from which women suffer. Before my first baby came I suffered with a heavy, bearing-down feeling and backache all the time and when baby arrived, I suffered four days. I recovered very slowly. I was confined to my bed four months before my second child came. The doctors said I could not live. I was living in Florida at the time. My husband sent after my mother and she came and carried me back to Mississippi and began giving me Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and it saved my life. I took six bottles. With my third child I had practically no suffering. Baby is four weeks old and I feel as well as I ever did. 'Favorite Prescription' is worth its weight in gold; it saved my life when the doctors had given me up."—MRS. EVA GRANTHAM.

THORSBY ITEMS

Thorsby Institute Y. M. C. A. and the Boy Scouts had a "Stag Party" at the Institute Saturday night, which was a very enjoyable occasion. After several stunts by members of the faculty and of the student body, refreshments were served and enjoyed by all. The evening closed with the forming of a friendship circle and singing, "Blest be the tie that Binds."

The Baptist Ladies' Aid Society was held last Thursday at the home of Mrs. Felix Eiland. A large number of ladies were present and the occasion was an enjoyable one.

Carl Wood, a student in Thorsby Institute, went to Montgomery Saturady to meet his father, Mr. P. M. Wood, of Phil Campbell, who was on his way home from the Woodmen Convention at Dothan. Carl returned to Thorsby Sunday morning.

Rev. J. M. Graham made a flying business trip to Atlanta and Demorest, Ga., last week.

Do not fail to hear Brooks Lawrence, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, at Bates Hall Sunday night at 7:45. The meeting will be held under the joint auspices of the B. Y. P. U., Luther League and Y. P. S. C. E. of Thorsby. Brooks Lawrence is a good speaker and his theme is a vital one at this time. The Thorsby concert band will be present to furnish music.

The following program will be rendered in connection with the Pie Social next Saturday night at Bates Hall beginning at 7:30 p.m.:

Song, Society.

Sketch, "War or no War," Lowells, Kinsler Ferrell.

Longfellows, Buren Brown.

Poems, Lowells, Lorena Graham.

Longfellows, Olga Soberg.

Stunt, Lowells and Longfellows, Raymond Calson, Nettie Hinson, Annolie Jowers, Olaf Larson, Luella Winslow, John Ford, Haber Hanson, Waltre Morgan, Lois Abernathy, Mary L. Hughes, Bernard Landrum, and Maud Johnson.

The proceeds from the sale of the pies will be used by the Thorsby School Improvement Association for needed improvement on the Public School Building.

Mrs. Martha B. Hunter, although 70 years of age, is still, quite a pedestrian, as evidenced by the fact she walked out to Pates Chapel last Sunday morning and back in the evening. She was accompanied by Mr. Gowan Woodham and they were entertained for dinner at the home of Mr. Foss Maddox.

The teachers of Thorsby Institute will entertain the Ladies' Guild at the teachers' cottage on Thursday of this week.

Miss Nona Akard and Miss Flora Rice spent Saturday of last week in Montgomery.

Mr. Carl Leham of Boston, Mass., and Rev. L. E. Brubaker of Birmingham, will be the principal speakers at the Christian Endeavor Institute to be held in Thorsby Friday and Saturday April 6, 7. A cordial invitation is extended to all who are interested in religious work for young people to be at these meetings.

Mr. John Husby spent Friday of last week in Birmingham. Mr. Husby has improved in health since last report.

Mr. Amos Knott returned to his home in Phil Campbell Friday of last week. He expects to go to Iowa for the summer.

Mr. Cary Speer left for his home near Mulberry Monday morning to help with the spring work on the farm.

The business of the Thorsby Meat and Produce Co., will in future, for a few months, be conducted by J. L. Foss of Thorsby Hardware Co.

Mr. and Mrs. White and children of Ill., are here for a few days awaiting their automobile which is expected to arrive by freight, when they expect to continue their trip south.

Miss Alma Lefstead entertained for a number of ladies on Saturday afternoon. Among those present were:

Mrs. James Bosworth, Mrs. C. R. Foss, Mrs. E. Diefenderfer, Mrs. C. S. Howard, Misses Mabel and Harriet Swan, Clara Soberg, Marie Green and Nell Werness.

The present outlook indicates that the presten strawberry crop will not be one half the normal crop, some plants having been killed by the earlier freeze and the early berries having been killed by the last freeze. Peaches, so far, are not seriously damaged. All winter grain has been damaged, wheat suffering the least.

J. Ousley Johnson, who enlisted last year for Border service with a Chattanooga Tennessee regiment was in Clanton with his mother, Mrs. Belle George, this week. "Joshua" has many interesting things to say about the camp life of the boys down there. He will return to Chattanooga soon to resume his work there. His many friends here are glad to see him in such splendid health.

Uncle Tom Henderson of Mt. Creek was in Clanton Sunday. He says he had the finest time of his life at the W. O. W. convention at Dothan last week. On the excursion down to Panama City, Uncle Tom said things looked lively with everybody wearing straw hats, palm beach suits, etc. He didn't say anything about what styles of bathing suits the girls were wearing. Guess he didn't see any of those.

BEST FOR ALL CROPS

SOUTH ATLANTIC GUANO COMPANY

(SUBSIDIARY MORRIS FERTILIZER CO.)

ATLANTA — MONTGOMERY

It is not sufficient that your crop gets an early start to enable it to win the race against drouth, excessive rainfall, rust, shedding and boll weevil. It must have a steady, healthy growth which constant nourishment alone can give, if it is expected to come in ahead on the homestretch.

The South Atlantic Brands not only give all crops a quick start, but by reason of the scientific linking together of the best and most dependable fertilizing materials, they afford constant and steady feeding of the plant and enable it to resist such diseases and conditions as are usually fatal to a weakly, stunted plant. A healthy plant should be kept healthy and that is the office of the South Atlantic Brands.

Send your orders early to your dealer and be sure to name the SOUTH ATLANTIC BRANDS.

VOLUME V. CLANTON, CHILTON COUNTY, ALA., MARCH 29, 1917. NUMBER 52.

A SEVERE STORM IN SOUTHERN ALABAMA

Destroyed Much Property and Killed Several People at Midnight Monday.

Montgomery, March 27.—Four counties in central Alabama were storm-swept after 1 o'clock Tuesday morning and 11 lives are known to have been lost, while property damage is heavy. The people in and around Crenshaw County, where the heaviest damage was done, are destitute and much suffering exists. The storm-swept portions of Crenshaw, Pike, Hale, and Chilton Counties.

The known dead are: Prof. Thomas W. Dendy, a former minister and later a school teacher, his daughter, Miss Bessie Dendy, a teacher, Robert A. Jeter, a wealthy planter, and Waren Kelly, a negro, at Petry, Crenshaw County, William Middlebrooks and his wife and an unidentified negro near Petry, Charles Ramsey, a negro blacksmith near Ansley, Pike County, and two negroes, a man and a woman, on the Carl Reese place, near Troy, Pike County. Mrs. Hollis Little was fatally injured in the destruction of her home near Shellhorn, Pike County. W. Streetman and his little daughter in the same neighborhood, were probably fatally injured.

Every dwelling hous in Petry, 20 miles from Luverne, was demolished and many blown away with their contents of clothing, bedding and food supplies. The schoolhouse, masonic lodge and church were wrecked and the depot placed across the railroad tracks. The Middlebrooks were killed a few miles away and this territority also devastated. The people are destitute in this section, and much suffering resulted during the day.

At Ansley the Methodist and Baptist churches were destroyed and many houses throughout this section wrecked. North of Troy several houses were wrecked and a negro woman killed. Milo, a small place out side of the storm path, had a severe lightning storm, and the Whitehead barn, heavily loaded with corn, hay and farming tools, was set on fire and destroyed.

At Greensboro, Hale County, the new public school was unroofed and completely wrecked, while many of the houses were blown down. There were no fatalities here, however. The town of Clanton suffered a slight property loss, and a number of minor injuries are reported. The Confederate veterans home at Mt. Creek, in this vicinity was unroofed and badly damaged, although none of the veterans were injured. Panic seized the inmates for the time.

Report from Troy.

Troy, March 27.—(Special)—Four persons are reported killed at Ansley, just north of here, in the storm which swept over that town early this morning. The dead are:

Mr. and Mrs. Billie Middlebrook and two negroes, Pete Kelly and wife of Dave Harris.

The Methodist and Baptist churches were also blown down, as well as scores of dwellings in the storm swept area.

Reports from Petry reports that four were killed. Just above Troy a negro woman is reported killed, and Mrs. Hollis Littles badly injuried. Bob Jetter, white farmer, is also reported killed.

Demopolis, March 27.—Two persons are reported dead in the storm which swept the southern part of Hale county early this morning. Mr. Charles Wright, a rural mail carrier and a negro are repoted victims. The worst part the storm struck the secion beween Laneville and Prairieville.

The property damage is said to be vry large. The death list may grow as details come in.

MARRIAGE OF INTEREST

Last Saturday night a marriage of much interest took place, when Mrs. Fannie Taylor of Coopers became the wife of Col. A. C. Smith, a prominent lawyer of Clanton. Both parties are highly esteemed by a large number of friends in this county, and they took the surprise of the incident with a feeling of congratulations and best wishes.

Our good old friend, W. L. House of Jumbo, was in Clanton Monday. We are in a good notion to tell our readers what we think about him, but as he does not take the Banner, and therefore would not know what we said, we will not say it. We do not like to say things about a fellow to his back, when we are afraid to say them where he will hear it.

"THE UNION DEPOT"

The above is the title of an attractive and entertaining play that was presented to the public on last Friday night by the ladies of the Civic League. A good number of spectators witnessed the performance.

TURPENTINE COMPANY BUSY ARRANGING THEIR BIG PLANT

The Alabama Turpentine Company, who are erecting a big manufacturing plant ten miles east of Clanton, are hastily arranging for beginning their operations, for the season for running gum is now at hand.

Hundreds of barrels and other necessities are being hauled to the camps, and in a few weeks they will be marketing the refined products of the millions of long-leaf yellow pines that stand thick on the numerous hills in the vicinity of their plant.

The output of the concern will be large. They have an immense source of timber to draw from, and they have built a big plant to operate on.

Convict labor is employed in the work, over a hundred convicts having been out there for several weeks. A huge stockade is provided, already erected, for their retention, also a pack of blood hounds is kept for recovery of anyone who might take voluntary leave of absence.

CLANTON AND VICINITY HIT BY WIND STORM

Late Monday night and early Tuesday morning this vicinity was visited by a wind storm that came near to being a cyclone, and resulted in quite a lot of minor property damage. Barns and outbuildings at Prof. McDonald's, Grady Reynolds' and J.W. Foshee's and Dr. Gragg's were considerably damaged. While the storm was in progress many persons were aroused by the disturbance, and serious consequences were expected. It is thought the main body of the storm passed below Clanton.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

Though it is very bad weather, John and Fanny say they just can't help but pack the campus.

I have on hand a pack of love letters for sale, which are interesting and very entertaining. Apply at once to Tom Robinson.

LAWLEY, ROUTE 1

Health of this community is not very good at present, as there are a few cases of grippe in this vicinity.

We are glad to say that Mrs. C. Hall, who has been very sick with grippe and asthma is improving nicely.

Rev. Blauvelt gave us an excellent lecture Sunday p.m., and it was enjoyed by a large crowd.

Mr. Iva and Willie Kelly and Mr. Porter Shoults attended our Sunday School Sunday. Come again, gentlemen, we are glad to have you with us.

Mr. Walter Lawley from Blocton attended church services Sunday, p.m.

The wedding bells are beginning to ring around here.

Misses Mae Hamrick, Bee Hamrick, Gertie Bearden, Toy Bearden, and Lilly Bearden all dined with Mrs. Sula Merchant Sunday.

Misses Maude and Sula Merchant spent the night at Mr. George Hamrick's Saturday night.

Misses Mae and Bee Hamrick visited Miss Eva Hall Saturday.

Our Sunday school is still improving. We have 100 students on roll.

We are going to observe Missionary Day the Second Sunday in April. We invite everybody to come. A program will be rendered by the Sunday School.

Miss Eva Hall visited Miss Ila Walker Thursday.

Miss Lettie Walker is visiting her sister, Mrs. Lena Sneed at Centerville.

Mr. Calhoun Garner and wife visited the former's parents Saturday night.

SHOOTING SCRAPE OUT NEAR MAPLESVILLE

Sheriff H. A. Harris received word on March 27, of a shooting affair which occurred thirty miles from Clanton out in the "tall timper". He sent Deputies Gillespie and Gore to investigate and make arrests.

On arriving at the scene, the Deputies ascertained that Oscar Shoults had taken a shot at Milton Lawrence, and after he had fired the gun, Lawrence advanced and "clubbed the gun", and broke it to pieces over Shoult's head.

Shoults was severely beaten up, and his recovery will be slow. The officers made the arrest of all parties engaged, and they are held for trial.

COLLINS CHAPEL

Health here is good at present. Owing to the rainy weather the farmers are behind with their crops.

Messrs Julius Smith, Akins Collins, Herlie Mims, and Misses Nora and Lucile Mims attended the concert at Union Grove Saturday night.

Mrs. J. M. Honeycutt of Sylacauga spent a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Mims last week.

Miss Lummie Murrah spent last week with relatives and friends in Jemison.

Rev. W. P. Lowery, son and daughter, Herbert and Stella, and Mrs. Melton spent a few days last week in Sylacauga.

Mr. J. M. Mims went to Jemison on business Saturday.

Several of the boys from here went to Union Grove Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. H. N. Martin of Jemison is spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. W. P. Murrah.

Much success to the Banner.

Mr. J. W. Sorrell of Union Grove was in town Monday. Mr. Sorrell is one of the most prominent farmers in the county and had many interesting things to say about conditions confronting the farmers at present.

LOMAX BOOMING WITH WORK OF BIG MILL

They tell us that Lomax is certainly coming to the front. Work on the big mill plant of the Vida Lumber Company is being put under way. The railroad out to the timber lands is being built.

Rumors say that many buildings including a large hotel, are to be erected this summer, and for aught we know, the citizens of the rising city may within a very few months be going down town every morning to their offices in the sky-scrapers, making the trip on electric cars.

There is no telling what Lomax is going to do if it keeps on.

But aside from all this foolishness, in reality, the big mill work there is going to make it a lively place.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Brown are returning to their home in Maplesville. Their many friends here regret to see them leave Clanton.

POPLAR SPRINGS

The Eleventh Annual Singing will convene at this place Sunday, April 8, 1917. Everybody come and bring your 1917 song books, together with a well-filled basket.

We want everybody to enjoy themselves. Those that have "booze" will please leave same at home.

J. L. McDowell, H. W. Devaughn,
Wiley Cooper, Committee.

A. L. Robinson of Corinth was in Clanton Monday on business.

Mr. Albert Gore of Route 8 was in the Banner office on Monday. He says he is going to raise some big water melons this summer, and promised the editor one. We hope he doesn't forget it when they get ripe.

Dr. P. I. Hopkins of Dothan, announced that he will be in Clanton on March 30, to see his former patrons and friends.

NOTICE OF ELECTION

Notice is hereby given that by an order of the Court of County Commissioners of Chilton County, Alabama, an election will be held on the 16th day of April, 1917, at the various polling places in the several beats of said County, for the purpose of voting upon the question of issuing bonds to the amount of Two Hundred Thousand Dollars, bearing interest not to exceed five per cent per annum, and to run for a period of thirty years from date of issue, for the purpose of paying debts created for constructing roads and bridges in said County.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate of Chilton County, Alabama.

THE UNION-BANNER,

COMMISSIONERS DESIRE TO SAVE COUNTY MONEY

PEOPLE ASKED TO MEET WITH THE COURT AT ITS NEXT SESSION IN APRIL.

Clanton, Ala., March 12, 1917.

To the people of Chilton County:

We invite all parties that are interested in the welfare of the county to meet with the Commissioners court the first Monday in April, as salaries and other matters where the Commissioners have authority to fix the amount will be taken up at this Court.

We would be glad to have all parties that know of any leaks or any place that we can save the county any money, and not do any injustice to any one to come to this meeting.

We are anxious to save all we can and we would be glad to have any suggestions from any tax payer that knows where we can save any money for the county.

We have not fixed any salaries, nor made any appropriations for any purpose this yer, but as stated above we expect to take up this class of business at this meeting, so if you have any advice to give come to this meeting. We would be glad to have you.

Respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

THREE MEN ARRESTED IN WHISKEY CASE

It is a pity that fellows who are enjoying life like these were on Sunday afternoon should be disturbed and have their immense amount of fun put under check.

In an old rattling buggy, an ideal vehicle for such an occasion, Tom Holley, Martin Wright and Luther Wright were engaged in spreading joy all along from Clanton to Kincheon on Sunday afternoon. It was that peculiar joy that comes out of about half a gallon of the worst sort of wild-cat liquor, and they evidently imagined themselves taking posession of everything with which they came into contact.

It is not hardly sufficient to say that the trio was having somewhat a Christmas time indeed.

But somehow, the people who live along the Kincheon road did not enjoy the fun as these three did, and somebody reported the parade to the Sheriff's office. Deputies Gore and Gillespie started at once in pursuit, and it was only a short time until they overtook the super-happy mortals and had them turned in the direction of the county jail.

They arrived in Clanton late Sunday afternoon, placed the joy riders in jail, where the two Wrights still repose. Holley made bond.

When the next County Court meets the succeeding chapter of the happy occasion will be written on the big book by Judge Reynolds.

J. E. Dorminey of Union Grove was a visitor to Clanton Saturday.

INTERESTING TIME FOR THE TEACHERS

Judge of Probate, 1Jan16

BEING ARRANGED FOR ALABAMA EDUCATIONAL ASSOCIATION APRIL 5, 6, 7. IN MONTGOMERY.

FEAGIN URGES TEACHERS IN "GET-TOGETHER" HABIT

The several committees entrusted with the responsibility of providing entertainment for the teachers who come to Montgomery April 5th, 6th, and 7th are putting forth every effort to see that the program is pleasing throughout. The Montgomery Music Club, the Male Chorus and the Treble Clef Club will provide many splendid numbers to add life and inspiration to the meeting.

Reception.

The Chamber of Commerce and Capitol officials are planning a reception which will prove both profitable and enjoyable. At five o'clock Thursday afternoon the visitors will assemble at the state capitol where they will be received by the state officials, who will be at home in their offices. The head of each department will explain in a brief way the function of his office and the nature of his duties. Refreshments will be served in the rotunda on the first floor of the capitol.

Interesting Pictures.

On Friday evening at 7:45, pictures representing every phase of educational progress in Alabama will be thrown on the screen at the Grand Theatre. These pictures have been selected with considerable care and expense to those who have not had the opportunity of visiting the various communities and institutions throughout the state. In this way one may learn more in thirty minutes about Alabama's schools, her needs and her opportunities than can be learned otherwise in several months.

Let us make this annual meeting af the teachers of Alabama the best ever held in the State. Surely we can spare the time and money necessary to get together once a year. School-teaching should become a real profession. Professional men and women believe in the get-together habit.

FRANKS-MIZE

The engagement of Miss Minnie Mize of Blocton, Ala., to Mr. Arthur Franks of Vance, Ala., is announced. The marriage will be solemnized in April.

EX-PRESIDENT TAFT VISITS MAGIC CITY

BELIEVES U. S. WILL GET INTO EUROPEAN WAR WITHIN NEXT THIRTY DAYS.

"TIME HAS COME FOR ACTION"

Nation Must Enter in Spirit Which Will Be Productive of a Permanent Peace.

Birmingham.— The United States it is believed, will enter the nation must enter it in a spirit which will be productive of the establishment of permanent peace and the country should extend financial aid to the Entente Allies, in the opinion of William Howard Taft, former President of the United States, former Secretary of War, former Judge of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals of the United States, who was in Birmingham as a worker in behalf of the League to Enforce Peace.

Mr. Taft delivered an address at the Tutwiler Hotel at a luncheon tendered him by the Chamber of Commerce, and spoke at the Central High School auditorium. He was given rousing receptions at both places.

"United States armed merchantmen should sink a German submarine on sight," the former President declared in his speech in the High School Auditorium. "The time has come for action, not mere words."

State Teachers to Meet.

Montgomery.—Montgomery is making special preparations for the thirty-sixth annual convention of the Alabama Educational Association, to be held April 5, 6 and 7, when thousands of teachers from every part of the State will visit the city. Reports coming from the enrollment bureau indicate that this convention will be the greatest ever held by the Alabama Educational Association, even outnumbering in delegates that of Birmingham last year.

Among the educational leaders of national recognition who will appear on the session programs of the convention are: President Samuel C. Mitchell, of Delaware College; President H. L. Whitfield, of the Industrial Institute and College of Mississippi; Dr. Charles H. Judd, of the University of Chicago; Miss Eleanor M. Lally, of the School of Education, University of Chicago; C. J. Brown, Supervisor of Rural Schools of Louisiana; Dr. P. P. Claxton, Commissioner of Education of the United States. Among the educators of Alabama who will be heard are Superintendent W. F. Feagin, Dr. J. H. Phillips of Birmingham; President Thornwell Haynes of Birmingham College.

William F. Feagin, State Superintendent of Education, in an announcement to Alabama teachers, urges that they attend the meeting of the association in Montgomery.

"For the first time in the history of the Alabama Educational Association, the program of the convention will deal almost wholly with problems which confront the teacher in his daily work," says Mr. Feagin.

Bids on Emergency Coal Order Asked.

Birmingham.—Bids on 300,000 tons of coal from Alabama mines in excess of regular orders have been asked for by the United States government to be delivered on demand at Florence or Sheffield. Though the government has not explained its request for these bids, coal dealers in Birmingham consider it as part of the general emergency preparedness plan of the nation.

Taft Visits Birmingham.

Birmingham.—More than 400 persons attended the Taft luncheon given by the Chamber of Commerce in the ball room of the Tutwiler hotel. The luncheon was presided over by Oscar Wells, who presented former President William H. Taft. The ex-President delivered an address on "The League eo Enforce Peace" at the Central Hgh School auditorium.

Rousing Meeting of Farmers Held.

Sulligent.—A rousing meeting of the farmers and merchants was held to discuss diversification of farm work. Talks were made by Lon Morris, head of the Farmers' Union; W. W. Ogden, president of Bank of Sulligent; Dr. T. H. Young of Vernon, and State Demonstrator of Agriculture Bottoms of Vernon, and others. About 1500 farmers were present and much enthusiasm was shown.

Strawberry Crop Is Cut.

Thorsby.—The present outlook indicates that the strawberry crop will not be one-half the normal crop, some plants having been killed by the earlier freeze, and the early berries killed by the last freeze. Peaches, so far, are not seriously damaged.

Election Date Set.

Clanton.—April 16 has ben designated by Probate Judge Reynolds as the date for the voters of Chilton county to approve or reject the proposed $200,000 bond issue to pay off the Chilton county debt.

Many Hogs Are Shipped.

Opelika.—An Opelika firm shipped a car load of hogs to the markets of Louisville this week. The shipment amounted to about $1,200. there being 75 head. These buyers have shipped three car loads since January.

Many Will Attend Road Meeting.

Birmingham.—Delegations from the States of Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas will attend the annual meeting of the United States Good Roads Association and Bankhead Highway Association which will be held in Birmingham April 19 and 20, according to the secretary of the two associations. Governor Gardner of Missouri has written that heh as named a delegation which will come to Birmingham to attend that he has named a delegation compose the Missouri delegation, Judge W. W. Brandon of Tuscaloosa has named a delegation from Tuscaloosa county, which will attend the meeting. The governors of Georgia, South Carolina, Arkansas and Louisiana have accepted invitations to be present and members of the State Highway Commission of six states will also attend.

Grand Judy Indicts Inner Wardens.

Birmingham.—A. B. Batson, brother of Sheriff Thomas R. Batson of Jefferson county; Lem Lavender, warden in charge of the woman's department and cook house at the county jail, and W. R. Orr, inside warden, were placed under arrest on a charge of voluntarily permitting David Overton to escape. The indictments were returned by the grand jury at their adjournment.

Messina Is Still Being Hunted.

Birmingham.—Sam Messina is still at large, and the sheriff's officers are still searching the small towns to the west and north of Birmingham hoping to find him there. J. L. Lathen died from his wounds, and the body of Overton was removed to Huntsville, where a tremendous crowd met it at the station. Frank Smith, J. Anderson and F. C. Winters are still being sought, and it is believed they have all separated. These are the only developments following the sensational escape of Overton and six other prisoners from the county jail.

Tax to Be Voted On.

Decatur.—The voters of Morgan County will vote on a proposed three mill tax for educational purposes May 22, the election having been ordered by the Morgan County Board of Education. The additional school tax was authorized by the constitutional amendment, ratified by the voters of the State in November. As this county gave a big majority in favor of the amendment, it is expected that the additional tax levy will carry.

Funeral Services Held for Overton.

Huntsville.—The funeral services of David D. Overton, who was shot and killed by Birmingham deputies near Birmingham, after he had escaped from the Jefferson county jail, were held here. The services were attended by a large number of friends and relatives.

John M. Parker Speaks.

Dothan.—John M. Parker of New Orleans, prominent progressive leader spoke here to a large crowd of farmers at the Dothan Chautauqua, in the interest of live stock raising in this section. Mr. Parker visited Dothan at the invitation of several local organizations to assist in a campaign now being waged in tick eradication in Houston county.

Pioneer Tuscaloosa Citizen Dead.

Tuscaloosa.—The sudden death of Col. Andrew Fuller Prince, removed another of Tuscaloosa's pioneer citizens. Colonel Prince was a leading merchant of Tuscaloosa from the Civil War until a little more than a year ago, when he sold out and retired from business.

Peaches Not Killed.

Ashland.—About two weeks ago, at the time of the cold snap, it was thought that all the peaches were killed in the bloom or bud, but now it is reported that there will be a quarter to half a crop. The prospects are favorable for a full crop of apples. Owing to the cold weather the gardens are two weeks late.

Vice President Marshall in Alabama.

Montgomery.—Vice President Marshall was the guest of Montgomery for a day, and while here was royally entertained. From Montgomery the vice president went to Selma, where he made an address and from Selma he went to Marion. He is on a lecture tour and visited several other towns in the State before returning to Washington.

Five Carloads of Cattle Sold.

Tuscaloosa. — Demonstrating that Tuscaloosa is a good cattle market, five carloads of cattle were shipped by one Tuscaloosa firm to a St. Louis concern in one day. These cattle were bought on foot at the ranch of a Tuscaloosa County cattle firm and brought ten cents per pound

Shoots Wife; Then Suicides.

Greenville.—John Perritt, a farmer near here, during a family quarrel, shot and seriously wounded his wife and then committed suicide by shooting himself. The five children were School Tax Carries.

Haleyville.—The special three-mill school tax passed in Winston county by a vote of 350 against 250. Practically every beat in the county went for the measure. Supporters of the measure are being congratulated on the success of the campaign.

Hardeman Freed of Charge.

Florence.—The jury in the case of Stanley Hardeman, one of the principals in the shooting affair on Towhead Island in July, 1915, returned a verdict of "not guilty."

U. S. ORDERED TO PREPARE FOR WAR

Country Divided Into Six Military Zones And Navy To Be Recruited Up To Full Strength

GUARDSMEN HELD IN SERVICE

Charleston Fixed As Headquarters Of Southeastern Department—Gen. Leonard Wood Will Command

Washington.—President Wilson took steps to place the nation on a war footing.

By executive order he directed that the navy be recruited without delay to the full authorized war strength of 87,000 enlisted men. Taken in connection with emergency naval construction already ordered, this means that the president has exercised the full limit of his legal powers as commander in chief to prepare the navy for war.

For the army, the president directed that two new military departments be created in the Atlantic coast region. The order means that the task of organizing whatever army congress may authorize will be divided among six departmental commanders instead of four in the interests of speed and efficiency in mobilization.

The third step was to assume as a national duty the task of protecting American industries from domestic disorders in the event of hostilities. For this purpose eleven full infantry regiments, two separate battalions and one separate company of the National Guard were called back into the federal service to act as national police in important districts. Supplementing these troops, a regiment of Pennsylvania guard and two companies of Georgia infantry, en route home from the border for muster out, were ordered retained in the federal service.

The president's orders were made known in terse official statements issued by both departments. No explanation accompanied them except the statement that reorganization of the military department, effective May 1, was designed to facilitate decentralization of command.

Following is the executive order bringing the navy up to war strength: "By virtue of the authority vested in the president by the act of congress approved August 29, 1916, entitled 'An Act Making Appropriations for the Naval Service for the Fiscal Year Ending June 30, 1917, and for Other Purposes,' it is hereby directed that the authorized enlisted strength of the navy be increased o 87,000 men.

"WOODROW WILSON."

FRENCH AND GERMANS FIGHTING WITH FURY

Position Embracing Castres And Essigny-le-Grand And Extending Front Of 2½ Miles Taken

New York.—The French forces and the Germans again have been engaged in heavy fighting on several sectors of the front between the Somme and the Aisne rivers, and again the French have made advances toward the strongly defended town of St. Quentin. According to the French war office the French troops have pushed forward over a front of about two and a half miles south and southwest of St. Quentin, the new position taken in the town of Castres, three miles to the southwest of Essigny-le-Grand, four miles south of St. Quentin. Gains also were made south of the Oise and north of Soissons.

Berlin admits the retirement of the Germans "according to orders," before the British between Beaumetz and Boisel, northeast of Peronne, but says the Germans repulsed French attacks to the northeast of Soissons. For the most part the fighting on the British end of the line has consisted of reciprocal raiding and bombing attacks.

Food Crops Urged By Government

Washintgon.—A statement urging that as a patriotic duty city residents transfrom their yards into gardens and farmers so diversify their crops as to make each section self-sustaining, was issued by Carl Vrooman, assistant secretary of agriculture.

54 Americans Held As War Prisoners

Newport News, Va. — Fifty-four American muleteers were aboard the British steamer Esmeraldas, reported in Berlin dispatches, as having been sunk by the German raider Moewe, according to shipping agents here. The agents believed the men were among the 593 prisoners taken to Germany by the raider. The Esmeraldas sailed from this port on January 28 for Liverpool with a cargo of horses. Six weeks ago she left England on her return trip, since which time nothing had been heard from her.

Belgian Relief Commission Abolished

The Hague.—Orders to the American relief commissioners to withdraw from Belgium have been sent forward. Some days must elapse before the settlement of affairs and the transfer of the relief commission's work to new hands can be concluded according to information sent out by a prominent member of the relief commission at Rotterdam. He added that he saw no reason why the German government should place any obstacle in the way of the departure of the Americans

ALL CONTRABAND INSURED

War Risk Bureau To Take Risk On Everything Except Arms And Ammunition

Washington.—The government war risk insurance bureau, which heretofore has insured only non-contraband, it is announced will "broaden the scope of its operations" and hereafter insure practically all forms of contraband for European countries except arms and ammunition.

The decision to insure contraband was reached at a meeting between Secretary McAdoo and the advisory board of the bureau and was then announced in the following statement:

"Secretary McAdoo, following a meeting with the advisory board of the war risk insurance and the director of that bureau, announces that, owing to present conditions, and with a view to more thoroughly facilitate the commerce of the United States, the bureau of war risk insurance will broaden the scope of its operations and insure more generally cargoes and vessels bound for European countries. Future policies will cover practically everything except guns, arms and ammunition."

Under the law no insurance can be issued on vessels or cargo of vesssls other than American. Heretofore the bureau has declined to issue policies on articles declared contraband by the belligerents, including almost all American products, with the result that only a small percentage of the American trans-Atlantic merchant fleet was insured by the government. Even with this restriction, the bureau has issued approximately $200,000,000 in insurance since its inauguration in September, 1914. Total losses have been small, the amount of the original appropriation of $5,000,000 by congress for the payment of losses having been reduced about $600,000. Premiums for policies are not available for the payment of losses, but have to be turned into the treasury.

Congress recently appropriated $15,000,000 additional for the payment of losses, bringing the total up to approximately $20,000,000 and indications are that at the extra session request will be made for a still further appropriation.

SEVEN AMERICANS LOST WITH THE HEALDTON

And Thirteen Persons Of Other Nationalities—Submarine Struck Vessel Without Any Warning

Rotterdam, Holland.—The seven Americans who perished in the sinking of the Healdton were: W. Chandler, second mate, Brooklyn; Hudgins, third mate, Norfolk, Va.; Walter Johnson, third engineer, Hoboken; E. Leveaux, oiler, Hoboken; George Healey, second messman, San Francisco; R. W. Smith, able seaman, Chicago, and John Steiner, able seaman, Pittsburg.

Captain Christophere reached Rotterdam with all the survivors, who were feeling well, notwithstanding the hardships they had undergone.

In a statement Captain Christopher says:

"If we had not shown our lights we might have escaped. At 8:15 o'clock in the evening, with a moderate breeze and choppy sea, I was in the cabin when aroused by a terrific concussion. All the lights went out and I rushed on deck in my shirtsleeves to stop the engines. I found that a torpedo had gone through amidships at the spot where the ship's name was illuminated brightly, wrecking the engine room. The light clearly served as a target.

"The lifeboats were made ready and equipped for lowering. I rushed back to the cabin in the dark and was just able to grab a coat and the sextant when a second explosion shook the ship. This time it had been torpedoed aft, setting the tanks ablaze. The burning oil ran in all directions, necessitating a quick getaway. I found that my boat, No. 1, apparently having been cut from the towline prematurely, had capsized near the ship and none of its occupants was seen again.

Railways And Unions Have Agreed

New York.—Railroad managers and representatives of the four trainsmen's brotherhoods have agreed upon a tentative basis for the application of the Adamson law, it was announced by Elisha Lee, chairman of the national conference committee of railway managers.

1916 Cotton Crop 11,442,838 Bales

Washington.—The 1916 cotton crop of the United States was 11,442,838 equivalent 500-pound bales exclusive of linters, according to final figures of ginning announced by the census bureau. That compares with 11,191,820 bales in 1915 and 16,134,930 bales in 1914, the year of record production. Lintres produced in 1915 were 931,141 equivalent 500-pound bales and in 1914 were 856,900 bales. Round bales included in the ginnings for the season numbered 142,040 compared with 111,716 for 1915 and 57,168 in 1914.

Submarine Sinks French Warship

Berlin.—A French battleship of the Danton class was sunk by a German submarine in the Mediterranean, it is announced by the admiralty. The official statement says: "A German submarine commanded by Lieut. Capt. Moraht, on March 19, in the western Mediterranean, sank a large French battleship of the Danton class, protected by destroyers. The battleship was running a zigzag course. Immediately after being hit she listed heavily and capsized 45 minutes later."

PRESIDENT PLANS AGGRESSIVE MOVE

Wilson And Cabinet Convinced That Only Far Reaching Measures Will Accomplish Results

U. S. TO HIT GERMANY HARD

The Possibility Of Sending Army To Europe Discussed—Great Army Will Be Trained

Washington.—The American government has decided upon sweeping measures to be put into effect following the expected declaration by congress soon after it meets on April 2 that a state of war exists between the United States and Germany.

Fully appreciating Germany's policy of acting in war first and talking afterwards the government has determined to provide against every possible emergency.

Broad questions involved were disclosed at a long cabinet meeting to which heads of departments carried reports on preparations already made and other contemplated preparations. Details are being taken up between President Wilson and the individual cabinet members.

Regretfully the governmeint apparently has decided that since Germany is making war upon the United States through ruthless killing of Americans and destruction of their ships, the issue must be met with steps much more far-reaching than mere attempts to protect individual merchant craft. If anything is ahead to prevent this it is not now foreseen. Once a state of war is declared to exist aggressive measures are expected to be taken.

As outlined after the cabinet meeting the preparations of the government are not to be for a short war or a war marked by half-way measures. Nothing is to be taken for granted. A complete program has been prepared so that everything done will be carried out in a systematic and orderly manner.

The exact measure of American participation in the war is not expected to be revealed until after the president addresses congress and until public sentiment crystalizes. So far as is known no political alliance with the entente allies is contemplated, although military as well as naval cooperation is possible, and the government will be unsparing in both money and supplies for the allies.

MANY PERSONS KILLED AND INJURED BY STORM

Big Part Of Indiana Town Wrecked And Scores Of Residences In Ruins

New Albany, Ind.—Between twenty-five and fifty persons were killed and proably one hundred or more were injured in a storm which swept over New Albany, demolishing scores of residences and several industrial plants.

Twenty-five bodies are known to have been recovered and it is expected this number will be materially increased when debris of wrecked buildings is cleared away.

The lighting system for the residence section was put out of commission and the work of rescue is proceeding with difficulty.

A baby, about six months old, was found floating in a small stream into which it had been borne by the wind. The child was alive and clinging to a dog which apparently had been killed by the storm. It died in the arms of its rescuer. Later an aunt identified the baby and reported that both the father and mother had been killed.

The streets in the path of the storm were a mass of wreckage and it was quickly found that outside assistance was needed. An appeal was made to the city authorities of Louisville, who sent policemen to the scene. In addition, every available officer from the Indiana state reformatory at Jeffersonville and from the Jeffersonville police force were hurried to the stricken district. A call was made on the governor for state troops, and it was reported that these were on the way. Numbers of citizens from surrounding towns hastened to New Albany and offered such aid as they were able to render.

Campaign Pushed Against The Turks

New York.—Southwest of Kermanshah, Persia, the Russians have progressed to within forty-five miles of the Mesopotamian border, according to Petrograd. This would bring the Russians to within 100 miles of the British force that has been advancing up the Diala river from Bagdad. In a sixteen-hour battle near Kerind, Petrograd also reports the Turks were forced to retreat to Kerind. The Russians have attacked the Turks along the River Shirwan, a tributary of the Diala.

Germans Halt Retreat And Give Battle

New York.—Temporarily at least the retirement of the German forces in France appears to have halted as both the British and rFench communications report counter attacks and stubborn resistance along the front. Notwithstanding this line the British report progress southeast of Arras, and the British and rFench communicatween one and a quarter and two and a half miles in the St. Quentin region. The French also have gained on the heights overlooking the Oise valley.

CONGRESS CALLED TO ACT

Because Of German Ruthlessness President Wilson Has Advanced Date Of Extra Session

Washington.—President Wilson has met the constantly increasing probability of war with Germany by summoning congress to assemble in extraordinary session Monday, April 2—two weeks earlier than the date he had chosen before the latest assaults upon American rights on the seas.

The president's proclamation follows:

"Whereas, public interest requires that the congress of the United States should be convened in extra session at 12 o'clock noon on the second day of April, 1917, to receive a communication by the executive on grave questions of international policy;

"Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim and declare that an extraordinary occasion requires the congress of the United States to convene in extra session at the capitol in the city of Washington on the second day of April, 1917, at 12 o'clock noon, of which all persons who shall at that time be entitled to act as members thereof are hereby required to take notice.

"Given under my hand and the seal of the United States of America, the 21st day of March, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and seventeen, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and forty-first."

When the president addresses congress he is expected to show how a state of war actually has existed for some time because of the unlawful aggressions of German submarines.

Congress is expected to formally declare a state of war existing, vote a large sum, probably half a billion dollars, for national defense, and clothe the president with authority to use the armed forces of the United States as it empowered President McKinley to deal with the menace of Spain in 1898.

President Wilson and his advisers in the cabinet and in congress have no intention that war shall be declared by the United States. By the hostile acts of German submarines they believe the imperial German government is actually making war on the United States, and that it shall be recognized as such a state.

45 BRITISH VESSELS DESTROYED IN A WEEK

Report On U-Boat Campaign For The Week Ending March 18—Many Small Boats Sunk

London.—Sixteen British ships, each of a tonnage of more than 1,600, and eight of a tonnage under 1,600 were sunk during the week ending March 18, according to a British official statement. Twenty-one fishing vessels also were sunk.

The communication also gives the number of vessels arriving and sailing from United Kingdom ports during this period. It says:

"For the week ending March 18, merchant vessels of all nationalities of over 100 tons, exclusive of fishing and local craft, United Kingdom ports, arrivals 2,528, sailings 2,554.

"British merchantmen sunk by mine or submarine of 1,600 tons or over 16, under 1,600 tons 8.

"British fishing vessels sunk, including 17 sailers, 21."

U-Boat And Steamer In Battle

Halifax, N. S.—Twenty-one survivors of the British steamer Coronda, which was torpedoed 150 miles off the Irish coast on the 13th of this month, arrived here on a British steamer that picked them up nine hours after the Coronda went down. Nine men were lost by the capsizing of their lifeboat. The survivors reported that they had scarcely reached the deck of their rescuing steamer than they witnessed a thrilling battle between another tramp steamer and a submarine in which the submarine probably received its death blow.

Submarine Eluded By The Tuscania

New York.—Passengers on the Anchor line steamer Tuscania, British, which has arrived from Glasgow, said that on March 12, when 300 miles out from the Scotch coast, the ship encountered a German submarine. The Tuscania escaped by steering a zigzag course.

Emergency Peace Men Denounced

Washington.—Secretary Redfield has wired the Emergency Peace Federation in New York that its doctrines were directly promoting an attack on American citizens and property. "To accept your policy," he said, "would, in my judgment, mean more ruthless slaughter. You are those who are doing more than any one else to bring about war." The secretary's message was in reply to one from the federation asking him to approve settlement of the relations between Germany and the United States by a commission.

Blue-Gray Reunion On Vicksburg Field

Washington.—The war department has ordered Lieut. Col. Willard D. Newbill to proceed to Vicksburg to arrange for the national memorial celebration and peace jubilee of the blue and gray on Vicksburg battlefield next October. Plans are being made to care for 20,000 veterans of the battle, it is said, in addition to many visitors. Congress has appropriated $150,000 for the celebration, and it is understood $200,000 more will be asked in order to have a full reunion of Civil war veterans.

'CLEAN UP' AN ANCIENT IDEA

Hercules Cleaned the Augean Stables by Using River as Broom, Long, Long Ago.

Nowadays Health and Beauty Demand Sanitation in Home and Town—More Than 6,000 Communities Are Busy This Year.

By HAROLD G. BLODGETT.

"Clean-up" effort is of prehistoric origin. Ask the school children and they will tell you that in Greek mythology they read of a "clean-up day" that for colossal endeavor and results probably beats any renovating job of the rapid-fire sort undertaken since. It is not a pretty story, but here it is: Augeas, the king of Elis, was not strong on sanitation.

For decades he had permitted filth to accumulate. He didn't care much about his people or his health, but he had a little herd of some 3,000 oxen of which he was considerably proud. For 30 years the stable which housed the herd had not been cleaned, when suddenly old Augeas awoke. He wanted the stable cleaned.

The job was so stupendous that ordinary mortals could make no headway against the piles of refuse, until Hercules, who had never before been famed as a sanitarian, stepped up and said he would clean it up. Two rivers, the Alpheus and the Peneus, flowed near by. Hercules changed the course of the rivers until they flowed through the Augean stables, and in a day the "clean-up" task was accomplished.

Hercules Emulated.

Since that day "clean-up" has had its place in the world's vernacular. With the spring the desire to refurbish comes subconsciously into the hearts of men and women, and communities. But without direction and sustained effort the expression of that desire, in the form of the ordinary "clean-up day" or "week," has resulted in such a superficial sally against filth that the more experienced and earnest civic workers have for long held such "days" in disrepute.

Hercules was of the gods. If he wanted to "clean-up" in a day the heavens backed him and he did it. Since that day men and women, mere mortals, have sought to emulate the original "clean-up" expert in speed, and they have failed. Communities for years have conducted "clean-up days" of the annual-bath order, only to find that the next day there was filth "behind the ears" and "between the toes." And a week later conditions generally were as bad as ever.

It remained for Allen W. Clark, publisher of a St. Louis trade paper, to turn the "spring clean-up" interests into permanent and constructive channels. Years ago Mr. Clark made up his mind that this could be done; that real campaigns, working toward definite ideals and accomplishing real results, could be organized everywhere to take the place of the old hit-or-miss "clean-up" methods.

In May, 1912, he founded a "clean-up" and "paint-up" organization. He hoped that a thorough-going movement, national in its scope and practical in its principles, might take the place of the "annual bath" idea as expressed in the old-time "clean-up day" or "week."

Movement Growing.

For four years the scope of this movement has been rapidly extended until this year it is co-operating with more than 6,000 local communities in the organization and direction of real "clean-up and paint-up" campaigns, not "days" or "weeks."

Continuous campaigns for homes and home towns beautiful, sanitary and safe, conducted by permanent committees, and involving the co-operation of city and town officials, clubwomen, commercial organizations, the schoolchildren, fire prevention interests, all business men and property owners and the press, and the goal aimed at by all of the "clean-up" propaganda. And this solid success is being achieved in thousands of cities and towns throughout the country today. In fact, requests for "clean-up" assistance have come from South America, the Philippines, Australia, India, Canada, England and France. The slogan, "Clean up and paint up" has indeed become the battle cry of earnest and practical civic workers 'round the world.

Such magazines as Outlook, Pictorial Review, Every Week, Associated Sunday Magazine, the American City, Kansas Municipalities, Journal of Michigan Municipalities have printed extensive editorials and feature articles on the practical value of the work.

OPPORTUNITY FOR BOY SCOUT

"Wonderful progress has been made during the past year in developing in Boy Scouts a recognition of their opportunities for service to others and of their community obligations. For instance, specific reports of such civic help as co-operation in "safety first," antifly, antimosquito and "clean-up' and paint-up" campaigns, improving school gardens, planting trees, protecting parks and acting as emergency police have been received from more than 200 different places which have been actually recorded.

STORMING the TRENCHES of the HOUSE FLY

Now is the time to begin your summer fight on the deadly, dirty fly pest:: Read our article and act on the information given :: Take no chance on having a case of typhoid in your family this year

DO YOU remember the story of your fairy-tale days about the little tailor who was so proud of his success of killing seven flies, all at one fell swoop, that he made for himself a belt with the words upon it, "Seven at one blow?" This was long before the days of "Swat-the-fly" campaigns, so after all, the little tailor did a greater thing than he realized.

It was not so very long ago that the common house fly was held up as a pattern of harmlessness—hence the phrase, "He wouldn't hurt a fly."

Now all this has been changed. Health officers everywhere are doing everything possible to make everyone realize it is his imperative duty to kill every fly that comes within his reach. A war of extermination has been declared against the house fly. This summer greater forces than ever are being prepared to storm the trenches of the common enemy of mankind, and rout him forever. It is realized that it is within the power of the house fly, apparently such a feeble creature, to slay more human beings than can the most modern artillery of the heaviest caliber!

Year by year the war on the house fly is gaining in strength. It started only a few years ago, when the vitally important matter of the dangers of what Ecclesiastes refers to as "the fly in the ointment" was made plain.

Prof. L. O. Howard, chief of the bureau of entomology, United States department of agriculture, has made an extensive study of flies. The results of Professor Howard's investigations are given in a recently issued government bulletin, which contains much valuable information that will enable communities to wage effective warfare on flies.

Death-Bearing House Fly.

"There are several species of flies which are commonly found in houses," says Professor Howard, "although but one of these would properly be called the house fly. This fly, which is found in nearly all parts of the world, is a medium-sized grayish fly, with its mouth parts spread out at the tip for sucking up liquid substances. On account of this conformation of its mouth parts the house fly cannot bite, yet no impression is stronger in the minds of some people than that this insect does bite.

"The house fly lays its eggs upon all kinds of filth. The number of eggs laid by an individual fly at one time is undoubtedly large, probably averaging about 120, and a single female will lay at least two and possibly four such batches. Under the most favorable conditions of temperature and moisture the egg state may last hardly more than eight hours. The maggots which issue from the eggs are very small and transparent. They grow rapidly.

"As the larvae attain full size they gradually assume a creamy white color. Just before pupation they become very restless and migrate from their feeding ground in search of a favorable place in which to pass the pupal stage. They will often congregate at the edges of piles of filth near the ground or burrow into the soil beneath, or they crawl considerable distances away to pupate in the ground or in loose material under the edges of stones, boards, etc. The pupae or 'sleepers,' are more or less barrel-shaped and dark brown in color. In mid-summer this stage lasts from three to ten days, four to five days being the usual duration.

How Fly Spreads Disease.

"The adult fly, upon emerging from the puparium, works its way upward through the soil or filth and upon reaching the air it crawls about while its wings expand and the body hardens and assumes its normal coloration. In a very few days the female is ready to deposit eggs.

"The body of the house fly is thickly covered with hairs and bristles of varying lengths, and this is especially true of the legs. Thus, when it crawls over infected material it readily becomes loaded with germs, and subsequent visits to human foods result in their contamination. When we realize that flies feed upon the most filthy substances the necessity and importance of house-fly control is clear.

"In army camps, in mining camps and in great public works bringing together large numbers of men for a longer or shorter time, there is not always proper sanitation, and the carriage of typhoid germs to food by flies is common and often results in epidemics of typhoid fever. And such carriage of typhoid is by no means confined to temporary camps. In farmhouses, in small communities and even in badly cared for portions of large cities, typhoid germs are carried to food by flies.

"In the same way other intestinal germ diseases are carried by flies. Asiatic cholera, dysentery and infantile diarrhea are all so carried. Nor are the disease-bearing possibilities of the house fly limited to intestinal germ diseases. There is strong circumstantial evidence that tuberculosis, anthrax, yaws, ophthalmia, smallpox, tropical sore and parasitic worms may be and are so carried.

"In the effort to destroy flies the use of sticky fly papers is very common. Another way is to expose in shallow dishes a mixture of formalin and milk or water, sweetened with a little sugar (one teaspoonful of commercial formalin to one teacupful of water or milk). This is most effective when no other liquids are accessible to the flies. Formalin diluted in this manner is not poisonous to man and will not injure fabrics. In this respect it is much safer than the fly poisons containing arsenic.

Methods of Destroying Flies.

"Burning of fresh pyrethrum powder is also effective in killing flies in rooms.

"Flytraps may be used to advantage in decreasing the number of flies. As a rule the larger ones are the most effective. These should be placed on the outside of houses, stores, stables, etc. Bananas, sugar and vinegar, milk and beer will be found to be attractive baits under most circumstances.

"The most logical method of abating the fly nuisance is the elimination or treatment of all breeding places. It would appear from what we know of the life, history and habits of the common house fly that it is perfectly feasible for cities and towns to reduce the numbers of these annoying and dangerous insects so greatly as to render them of comparatively slight account.

"The bureau of entomology has for some years advised that all refuse and filth in which flies are likely to breed be kept in fly-tight pits or bins. There is no doubt as to the effectiveness of this method when the necessary precautions are taken.

"Fly-breeding in accumulations of filth can be prevented by the use of chemical substances which will kill the eggs and maggots of the house fly. We have conducted a series of experiments during the last two years in which a large number of chemicals were applied to infested manure and observations made on their efficiency in killing the maggots. Of the numerous substances tried the one which seems best to fulfill these conditions is powdered hellebore. For the treatment of manure a water extract of the hellebore is prepared by adding one-half pound of the powder to every ten gallons of water and after stirring it is allowed to stand 24 hours.

"The simple and effective stock mixture thus prepared is sprinkled over the manure at the rate of ten gallons to every eight bushels (ten cubic feet) of manure. From the result of 12 experiments with manure piles treated under natural conditions it appears that such treatment results in the destruction of from 88 to 99 per cent of the fly larvae.

"Another chemical found to be even more effective as a larvicide is powdered borax. The best results are obtained when the borax is applied in solution, or when water is sprinkled on after the borax has been scattered evenly over the filth. Borax is not only effective in killing the larvae of flies, but when it comes in contact with the eggs it exerts a toxic action which prevents them from hatching.

"Antifly crusades have been very numerous in recent years, and some have been noteworthy both as to methods and results. However, it is not amiss now to emphasize the importance of concerted organized effort on the part of whole communities, not only cities, but suburban and rural neighborhoods as well. By the most painstaking care one may prevent all fly breeding on his premises, but it will avail him little if his neighbors are not equally careful. Some sort of co-operation is necessary. One of the first and most important elements in any antifly crusade is a vigorous and continued educational campaign to bring the people to a realization of the dangers from flies and the possibility of getting rid of them."

Romance of a Statue.

Of all Robert Burns' statues scattered over the world, one of the finest, and the one with the most romantic history, is that in Washington park, Albany, N. Y. It is the work of a local artist born of English parents, but the cost was defrayed by an eccentric and close-fisted old maid, Mary McPherson, who, with her false hair and the gay colors and fine clothes in which she arrayed her weary old body, was an object of ridicule to the thoughtless youth of the town.

She put aside her gaudy clothes only when she went into mourning for her father and brother. From them she inherited a considerable fortune, and, through the persistence of two old Scottish friends of her father, she was induced to leave the greater part of $40,000 for the erection of a worthy memorial to the poet of her native land. Albany, which used to make fun of "poor Mary McPherson," is today proud of her.

Austrians Contribute Coin.

Vienna says every one of the 13,000,000 German-Austrians within the empire is represented by 1,154 kronen ($231) in the war loans that have been raised in Austria. These loans have amounted to 18,000,000,000 kronen, of which the German subjects have subscribed some 15,000,000,000. The 6,000,000 Czechs have subscribed 1,250,000, while the remaining 13,000,000 inhabitants, including 8,000,000 citizens of Galicia and the Bukowina, have subscribed 1,750,000,000.

Biggest Oil Well Capped.

Word comes of the successful capping of what is probably the biggest oil well ever known. This well is in the Tampico field in Mexico, whence the British navy gets most of its fuel oil. The biggest well flows 260,000 barrels a day. It was estimated that the stream first flowed with a pressure of 1,200 pounds to the square inch. When the gusher was struck it blew a two ton drill 150 feet into the air. The oil spouted 600 feet high. Over a million barrels were lost before the flow was under control.

Irish Harps.

Evidently the Hawaiian ukelele is not the only musical instrument that is becoming more popular in the United States, for the annual report of a North American harp manufacturing company, just issued, shows that the sales of Irish harps during the past year were more than twice those of 1915, and were distributed among 35 states. It may be added that harps were also sent to Hawaii, which fact shows that the people there, however, partial they may be to their native ukulele, are not unwilling to supplement it with an instrument of very different character.—Christian Science Monitor.

Japan's Camphor Monopoly.

The camphor production of the island of Formosa is one of Japan's monopolies. The present area of camphor afforestation is 10,650 acres, and some of the trees are said to be from 500 to 1,000 years old. During the next few years the area will probably be greatly extended.

ALL WORK TO CLEAN UP TOWN

Monkeys imitate. And there's a lot of "monkeys" in most of us.

Imitation is bad for the monkey if his model is bad, but the climber who follows a good example keeps out of a lot of trouble. Just so with us mortals. Inspired by environment, we can think great thoughts and do things worth while. Depressed by environment, we can sink into the depths.

But thanks to the human power of initiative, we can shape our environment—we can make it what we will, if we will. And so intimate are our own interests linked up with those of our neighbors that when we improve our own surroundings, be it ever so little, we improve theirs.

Right there the "monkey" in man asserts itself.

The fact that we are "our brother's keeper," responsible to a certain extent for the example we set him, may not weigh heavily on our shoulders. But the "monkey" in man keeps right on working just the same.

Today your neighbor slicks up his yard, cleans the alley, removes rubbish, plants flowers, trims his hedge, paints his house.

Tomorrow you will find that your own place looks sick. You never noticed before that a little cleaning up and painting up and greening up would accomplish so much in making home life happy and healthy through the long outdoor months of summer. So you get busy with the pruning shears, the rake, the lawn mower, the garden hose and the spade. You start a painter working on your house and outbuildings. Forthwith you, your wife and the kiddies begin to realize more fully the joy of living in this community through the good old summer time.

Day after tomorrow other neighbors will begin to "perk up" their premises and their persons. Then others will follow their example, and so the spirit of spring's generation will spread from house to house and block to block.

But let's not wait for this creeping regeneration.

Let's each start something today that will help make our own little corner of the community sanitary and more safe.

If there is unsightly advertising on your property see that it is removed.

Clean up your property, business and residence, inside and outside, front and back.

Help the authorities keep streets and alleys clean. Do not throw papers or rubbish in streets or yards.

If your ash pit is full have it cleaned out. If it is out of repair and a fire risk have it repaired.

See that manure is removed from stables once a week.

See that garbage is kept only in metal containers, with tightly-fitting covers. Vermin and flies will pester you if you don't.

Clean up your vacant lots and turn them into flower or vegetable gardens.

Study the smoke that comes from your chimney and eliminate it.

If there are old shacks on your property, which are unsightly and fire risks, have them removed.

If you have no yard for a garden plant flower boxes for your windows.

If you own vacant property make it look at its best. A tenant will move in so much the sooner.

Let's make "Clean Up and Paint Up and Keep It Up" a real slogan hereabouts by living up to it.

TRAINING FUTURE CITIZENS

The boys and girls of today are the men and women of tomorrow. Boys and girls live in a very real world. It is a world of present activity, not future activity. The boy may be "president" or the girl may be "a great lady" some day—but the work and play of every day is the serious "business" at hand. It is serious business to the young people—talk with one of them for a minute and see. And it may be serious business in fact, just as worth while in human progress as the larger part of the daily activity of the "grown-ups." All that is necessary is that adults give the boys and girls real business to do, something worth while—that they consider the young people "junior citizens" rather than "future citizens."

"Clean up and paint up" effort, wisely directed, gives the boys and girls something important and definite to do for themselves and the community. Their part in the local campaign should be important.

SELF-RESPECT AND PAINT

The towns that have made themselves a part of the "clean-up and paint-up" movement are cleaner and better because of it. Naturally the paint dealer, the carpenter, florist and others profit by such campaigns. None but the pessimist will object to this. They give value received and more. The house that is painted and repainted is the better for it. A neighborhood that has cleaned up and painted up is a better one in which to live. Paint makes for self-respect and justifiable pride.

CLEAN-UP POET BUSY

Little beds of flowers,
Little cans of paint,
Make attractive neighborhoods
Out of those that ain't.

"CASCARETS" FOR SLUGGISH BOWELS

No sick headache, sour stomach, biliousness or constipation by morning.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out to-night and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse your stomach; remove the sour fermenting food; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret to-night straightens you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean, healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love Cascarets because they never gripe or sicken. Adv.

YES! MAGICALLY! CORNS LIFT OUT WITH FINGERS

You say to the drug store man, "Give me a small bottle of freezone." This will cost very little but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

A few drops of this new ether compound applied directly upon a tender, aching corn relieves the soreness instantly, and soon the entire corn or callus, root and all, dries up and can be lifted off with the fingers.

This new way to rid one's feet of corns was introduced by a Cincinnati man, who says that freezone dries in a moment, and simply shrivels up the corn or callus without irritating the surrounding skin.

If your druggist hasn't any freezone tell him to order a small bottle from his wholesale drug house for you.—adv.

FAVORING THE BOND ISSUE.

Had you thought about why it is that Chilton County hasn't any money with which to meet its current expenses? And why it has not a single dollar in the treasury to expend for keeping up the roads and bridges?

The reason is very plain. The commissioners court, while building the "highways," issued warrants and they were discounted to brokers in order to obtain money to advance the contractors doing the work . The county is held under a contract made by the court to pay off these warrents as they become due.

The time on the warrants has already begun to expire on some of them, a certain amount each year. They must be paid as they expire, and they accumulate by expiration, faster than the funds accumulate with which they are to be paid. Consequently it takes all the road and bridge money to be applied on these warrants, and even then, there is not enough paid in to pay all the warrants that come due each year.

Therefore, when all the road tax each year is paid on the warrants the expiring debt is not all paid, all the money is used, and so you see, there is nothing left to pay for the roads and bridges that are decaying, washing out and otherwise deteriorating, while the county is helplessly struggling under the financial burden of the ever accruing warrants.

Now, think about this question. How would a bond issue better these conditions? How would it give us money with which to pay these current expenses of roads and bridges?

Why would an indebtedness on bonds be better than the present indebtedness under the county warrants?

Well, in the first place, the bonds would not expire in thirty years. So the money obtained on the bonds could be used in paying off the warrants that are already due, and others not yet due, which the holders would be willing to surrender upon payment of the face value. Or if they would not surrender those not due, and prefer to hold them till maturity, the bonds could be held by the county and not issued until the warrants expired and were ready for collection by the holders. But of course it is the more probable that all who hold these warrants, even tho they be not due till years, would right now be glad to surrender them for the cash.

In this instance the bonds would postpone the debt, or in other words, extend the maturity date for thirty years. And indeed, it is a very great accommodation for one who owes a debt to receive a liberal extension of time, when he has not the money to pay the obligation. So it is with Chilton County. The advantage of time received by bonds is indeed worth very much, as it is evident that there is no money to pay off the debt which we owe.

Now, the bond issue would give the county money with which to pay its current expenses, roads and bridges etc. In what way will it do this?, you ask, when it is said that the bonds are to be issued strictly for the purpose of refunding the warrants.

Well, at present, all the tax money that is paid into the county is going to apply on the warrants. If the bonds are issued to pay the warrants, then the tax money can be put in the ordinary channels of usage to take care of these obligations. It could be kept in the treasury to pay our people for work done for the county, for serving on Juries, for holding elections, etc.

In our opinion, this fact that bond issue would give us a means to pay our current expenses as we go, is the greatest argument in favor of the issue.

If Judge Reynolds and the Commissioners are given the cash to work with, think how much they can save each year, over what they are having to pay under the present uncertain credit system. Besides saving the county over $2,000 a year in interest on its indebtedness, the bonds would save thousands by the fact that we would have cave cash to operate on. When a county, firm or individual buys for cash the price is made with a certain discount taken off. When it is bought on credit, an interest is added which is equal to the discount which on the other hand was taken off.

If you would see a return of the times that used to be, when you did a job for the county, fixed a bridge, came to court, or held an election, and then received cash for what you did, then you should vote for the bond issue on April 16th. That is what the issuance of bonds will bring us.

While we are waiting for the Federal Farm Loan Banks to get in working order and to help us get easier credit with our home banks it will be interesting to read the following clippings from R. L. Bennett of Texas in "System on the Farm:"

"Bankers are glad to loan to farmers because loans to them are the safest a bank can carry if these farmers are engaged in safe farming.

"A safe basis for farming is laid when not exceeding one half of the cultivated land is planted in one crop, and when sufficient acres are planted in food and feed crops, including the necessary poultry, milch cows, and hogs, to supply the family and stock on the farm with food and feed and to maintain the soil. The balance of the cultivated land may be planted in crops for market or for feeding stock for market.

"Safe farming will also enable us to borrow money at lower rates.

"An excess acreage in one crop, or total dependence upon one kind of live stock, is speculation. The man who speculates in this way is not entitled to credit and will not get it very long."

MORAL, Be careful of putting too much of your acreage in any new money crop, DIVERSIFY.

Yes, it would have been the height of folly for the Democrats to ask for a bond issue. The people of Chilton county have so little confidence in them that they will not even risk them in office any longer, to say nothing of giving them two hundred thousand dollars of the cash to handle.

The Clanton Press says it is for the bond issue, and we are glad it is, but it tickles us to see how they are itching to get back into their same old pre-election plan of biting and annoying those who are with the people of the county and trying to redeem the financial reputation that has gone to the bad.

COTTON PLANTING TIME TO BEAT BOLL WEEVIL

"Successful cotton crops in weevil infested territory must be made rapid," says Dr. W. E. Hinds in a recent publication by the Alabama Extension Service. "This means that everything possible must be done to force the setting of the largest possible number of bolls within the shortest possible time after squares begin to form, so that weevils can begin to reproduce therein. This involves more factors besides mere earliness of planting.

"Unquestionably, moderately early planting is safest and best as a rule. This means that the planter should wait ten days or two weeks after the average date for last killing frost in this section. That date ranges from about March 24 in southern Alabama to April 5th in northern Alabama.

"Make certain that the ground is well prepared, with sufficient moisture to bring the young plants along rapidly after the seed is put into the ground. Proper fertilization will be found essential to the best crops under weevil conditions.

"Extremely early planting runs the the preparations for the Army and ed or completely killed by cold, and in either case, the crop will be late at best. Uniform planting at moderately early dates gives the plants the best possible chance.

"It should be clearly understood that there is no chance whatever to beat the boll weevil by exceptionally late planting. This has been tried by many thousands of planters with disastrous results. Neither should cotton be planted on poorly drained or cold bottom land under weevil conditions.

"As a general rule, therefore, plant cotton as quickly as it can be done after thoroughly prepared soil has been settled by good rains falling in South Alabama during the first week in Central Alabama during the second week, and in North Alabama during the third week in April."

Mr. J. C. Brown plans to begin traveling over North Alabama, giving attention to the promotion of his insurance business.

Save several dollars per ton on roughage

NO matter how much or little you are paying for old style hulls you always can save several dollars per ton by buying

TRADE MARK
BUCKEYE COTTONSEED HULLS
LINTLESS

You pay more for the old style hulls because you are paying for about a pound of lint to every three pounds of hulls.

You pay less for Buckeye Hulls because you pay only for hulls. The lint is sold separately.

Other Advantages

Buckeye Hulls are 100 per cent roughage.	Every pound goes farther.
They do not contain lint which has no food value.	They allow better assimilation of other food.
You get 2000 lbs. of real roughage to the ton—not 1500.	No trash or dust.
	Sacked—easy to handle.
	They mix well with other forage.

R. S. Parkham, Greenville, Ga., says:
"I feed about fifty cows and calves and use Buckeye Hulls very successfully. I consider Buckeye Hulls as good feed and cheaper feed than the old style hulls."

To secure the best results and to darken the ensilage odor, wet the hulls thoroughly twelve hours before feeding. It is easy to do this by wetting them down night and morning for the next feeding. If at any time this cannot be done, wet down at least thirty minutes. If you prefer to feed the hulls dry, use only half as much by bulk as of old style hulls.

Book of Mixed Feeds Free

Gives the right formula for every combination of feeds used in the South. Tells how much to feed for maintenance, for milk, for fattening, for work. Describes Buckeye Hulls and gives directions for using them properly. Send for your copy to the nearest mill.

Get at The Source of Your "Skin Diseases"

Don't be misled by this term, for the appearance of pimples, boils or rashes indicate something more serious than a mere "breaking out" of the skin. These eruptions are, in reality, signals from nature that the blood is impoverished, debilitated and in need of help. Of course you can sometimes drive away the infected places by applying a salve or lotion, but unless you treat them through the medium of the blood, they will occur again and again.

S. S. S. has proven its wonderful building and tonic properties in thousands of cases arising from disorders of the blood. It washes the poisons from the system and aids the blood in its work of cleansing and invigorating the body organs, throwing off waste matter, and keeping the body in a normal, healthy condition.

Prove these facts for yourself by taking a bottle of S. S. S. and write to our Medical Department for information about your case. Swift Specific Co., 304 Swift Building, Atlanta, Ga.

WHOSE HEAD WILL FALL?

The report that ex-Senator Kern is to be made a member of the boundary commission causes wonderment as to which of the three men who now hold down those well paid jobs is to retire. The sole Republican member of the board is ex-Congressman Tawney of Minnesota and the two Democrats are ex-Gov. Glenn of North Carolina and ex-Senator Gardner of Maine. It is, of course, inconceivable that a North Carolina Democrat should be severed from the payroll during this administration; but there is no such friendly feeling in White House circles for a Maine Democrat since that State went so strongly Republican last fall. So maybe Mr. Gardner's head will go in the basket in order to make a place for Kern. It is by no means impossible that the President might displace Mr. Tawney for this purpose. The law creating the commission does not provide, we believe, for mandatory minority representation, and the administration has never shown itself very keen either in keeping Republicans in office or in putting Republicans into office, even when the law required it.

Washington, D.C., March 27.—Since the rising of a real war cloud the colors of the United States. Facts Navy have been speeded because it has been possible for executive officers to put into being plans definitely adopted long since, but up to this time, kept unused on account of lack of legal authority to employ them. It is the first thought to speed recruiting in both arms of the service. There are several reasons why many young men have refrained from joining the Navy. These reasons are not sound. They are based on false beliefs. In the first place it seems to have been a fairly general opinion that the men in the Navy, as a class were not of the highest standard socially, and that there was a great percentage of foreign-born wearing sitions are mostly from the Island poas explained to a representative of the Navy League by one of the higher officers in the Navy are these:

Statistics show that of all the enlisted men 95.5 per cent are citizens of the United States. Of this number, 92 per cent were born in this country; and of all branches of the Naval service about 4.5 per cent are mess attendants and men in such positions prinsipally from the Island posessions. No man is received in the Navy unless he is first of all an American citizen, then he must be of the character and type of man to be welcomed in any trade or profession.

The advantages offered to young men in the Navy are more than the average person realizes. This fact is strikingly illustrated by a canvass recently made for the reasons given for enlistment of 230 men. These men were the first ones received at the Great Lakes Station, Illinois. The results were as follows:

Ninety-three men gave as their reason their desire to learn a trade, or that thew had always intended to enter the Navy, and simply waited until they were old enough; 67 men were persuaded to enlist by relatives informed regarding the conditions; 63 men enlisted because of the reasons men enlisted because of the reasonn furnished by the literature issued by the department and newspaper articles. 6 men enlisted because they were out of work, and one man because he took this means of entering the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Since the enactment of the law making it possible for 100 men every year to be admitted to the Naval Academy at Annapolis, more men entered there than have ever entered the service. While some of these men do not reach the goal of their ambition, the great majority are none the less contented because the same work which would prepare them to enter the Academy puts them in line for billets as petty officers.

The Coming Baby

Every help that will tend to aid the expectant mother and foster the well-being of the tiny infant should be promptly rendered.

The time before childbirth is one of much discomfort. This is caused in a large measure by the tightening and straining of the abdominal tissues, as well as the network of cords, ligaments and muscles in that part of the body.

For many years thousands of women have successfully used the preparation known as "Mother's Friend." It is safe and dependable to be used by every prospective mother. A famous physician formulated the preparation. "Mother's Friend" is for external use, and is composed of special oils and other ingredients which have a penetrating and softening effect. Relief from much of the pain at the crisis is found.

Any woman awaiting childbirth should secure a bottle of "Mother's Friend" from her druggist, when the abdomen first begins to expand. No time should be lost in beginning its use. Apply it night and morning without fail. Address Bradfield Regulator Company, Dept. B, 554 Atlanta, Ga., for valuable guide book; it is free.

LET'S CLEAN UP

Even if we are about to have a war, and everybody is shaping up their potriotism and learning the national hymns, let us not forget the sanitation and purification of our domestic life.

As a matter of fact, we could prepare for war in no better way than to first carry out a most decisive campaign of extinction of the disease germs and the deadly agents of these fearful enemies of our vitality and perseverance.

We invite our readers to give special attention this week to the page of the Banner (page 7) which is devoted to the "clean-up" idea.

Be sure to read the article on that page entitled, "Storming the Trenches of the House Fly."

The house fly is as dangerous to our homes as an invasion of the Germans. Let's make a more vigorous campaign against his strongholds this year than ever before. Let us as citizens of our individual communities, see that no harbor is left in our neighborhood for this deadliest enemy of our lives.

Read page 7 of this issue of the Banner and take heed in due time.

Cross Andes in Balloon.

The mighty Andean mountain range of South America, the highest in the western hemisphere, has just been crossed by aeronauts for the first time. The feat was accomplished by two men in a balloon. The aeronauts left Santiago, Chile, on the Pacific side, and descended five hours later in Mendoza, on the eastern slope of the range, in the Argentine Republic. They report a very difficult trip, and had to rise to a great height to catch a favorable air current. So far the Andes have not been crossed by airplane.

STOMACH MISERY GAS, INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" fixes sick, sour, gassy stomachs in five minutes.

Time it! In five minutes all stomach distress will go. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas, acid, or eructations of undigested food, no dizziness, bloating, or foul breath.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest and most certain indigestion remedy in the whole world, and besides it is harmless.

Please for your sake, get a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any store and put your stomach right. Don't keep on being miserable—life is too short—you are not here long, so make your stay agreeable. Eat what you like and digest it; enjoy it, without dread of rebellion in the stomach.

Pape's Diapepsin belongs in your home anyway. Should one of the family eat something which doesn't agree with them, or in case of an attack of indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis or stomach derangement at daytime or during the night, it is handy to give the quickest relief known. Adv.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON FOR APRIL 1

JESUS GIVES SIGHT TO BLIND.

LESSON TEXT—John 9:1-11, 35-38. (Read entire chapter.)

GOLDEN TEXT—I am the light of the world.—John 9:5.

This, another of the signs which Jesus performed, is recorded only by John. It probably occurred in October, six months before the crucifixion, while Jesus was attending the Feast of the Tabernacles. There are six other cases of blindness recorded as having been cured. Look them up.

I. The Case (vv. 1-4). It was absolutely hopeless. No human skill could touch it, but Jesus "passed by," and that changed everything. What men cannot do Jesus can. Jesus is passing today, and we may expect things quite as wonderful to happen (John 14:12). This blind man illustrates the unsaved sinner (I Cor. 2:14). He never had seen. He was beyond human help (v. 32). He had doubtless given up all hope of seeing. He was without sympathy, suspected and despised (vv. 2, 34). Poor—he was a beggar. He is also a type of the nation of Israel (Rev. 3:17). We must not attempt to explain all sickness (v. 3). God frequently uses it for the advancement of his kingdom (John 11:4). Jesus not only passed by but he "saw." The feeling of the crowd was that of curiosity and contempt. His feeling was that of compassion (vv. 2, 4 and 6). Sickness sometimes manifests God's sustaining grace (II Cor. 12:8-10). It is doubtless true that a large percentage of sickness is the direct result of sin (John 5:14; Mk. 2:5; Acts 12:23), some, of course, indirectly (Job 23:14-30).

II. The Cure (vv. 4-11). The word "must" in verse four is a strong one. The time for us to do our work is "now." This word "must" carries with it the idea of a divine imperative, and the reason for that imperativeness is the approaching "night." Night is coming fast, when no man can work. Notice the works we are to do are not our own, but "the works of him that sent me." Compare carefully verses two and four, and see that Jesus considered delivering the man from evil far more important than speculating about the origin of his complaint. Too much time is spent in investigation. Let us have more of action. The means used in this cure were clay and spittle. The miracle was performed in plain view of all who might see. The man did not ask Jesus to help him, but Jesus had gone where he was (v. 5). His words, "Go wash" were a test of the man's faith (II Kings 5:10-14), and his part in the transaction was a testimony that it was Christ who worked the cure. The use of the material means in this ceremony made the man more willing to go and wash. It gave him something to do, and doing is always an end to faith. Siloam means "sent," and was a type of Jesus himself (v. 4; John 10:36; Rom. 8:3; Gal. 4:4). If we wish to receive sight for our blind eyes, we should go to him and bathe (John 8:12).

III. The Controversy (v. 12 to end of chapter). This controversy gave opportunity for testimony, as we have already seen, first of all upon the part of the man whose testimony was progressive. At first he merely spoke of the fact. He was not acquainted with Jesus, for he calls him "The man called Jesus." Later on he is moved to call him a "prophet." He is a prophet (v. 17), and later still he recognizes him as "The Son of God" (vv. 35-38). This controversy established beyond question the fact of the cure. It brought out the deity of Christ (v. 33). The man was excommunicated, but for that matter he was already outside because of his physical infirmity, but, best of all, he became truly Christ's disciple.

IV. Comments. This lesson with its vivid contrasts of belief and unbelief gives us a wonderful opportunity to urge upon pupils a decision to live the Christian life. Has Christ opened the eyes of our scholars to the love of God, to the awfulness of sin, to the need of a Savior, our divine Leader and Brother? Urge them, in the class and out, to be as outspoken and courageous for Christ as was this man who had never before perhaps seen or heard of Jesus, and whose gratitude at once called forth this wonderful confession.

Being cast out by the rules of the synagogue brought this man into closer and deeper fellowship and communion with Jesus.

He had believed far enough to obey his bidding, and had thus been healed.

Now he is brought to a great saving, transforming faith, viz., that Jesus is the Son of God.

Do we take advantage of our privilege of confession?

Before Christ came there were no hospitals.

He is the inspiration of all charitable institutions, but healing of the body is of secondary importance; the healing of the soul is primary. "Whereas I was blind, now I see."

Start with what you know—your own experience—and he will reveal himself according to your developing and progressive needs.

GAME FISHING

HIS MAJESTY, THE BROOK TROUT.

My Dear Buck:

Without a doubt, oldtimer, I feel like tacking the blue ribbon on the brook trout for being the wisest, liveliest and gamest of the fresh-water fish. For downright nerve and fight, he is in a class by himself and he carries more tricks in his tail than any other fish. He is truly an American and of a sturdy type that can forage a living in any stream or spring-fed lake that is cool. Although he does not grow as large as his cousin, the rainbow trout from the West, or his foreign relative, the brown, or German trout, for his small size and weight he puts up the keenest fight of the trout family.

The trout is a trim-built fish with graceful lines and his constant battle with swift currents makes him a strong, husky youngster. As a general thing he is found in the small flowing streams where the water is cool and fresh, while the rainbow and brown trout can thrive in warmer and deeper streams as well as lakes. As a rule I have found the rainbow and brown trout in the roily waters below falls, in the swift rapids, and the brook trout in the quieter pools, especially those with grassy beds. The trout is a rapacious feeder, and takes his food from the surface, in midwater and at the bottom; he is, however, mostly a surface feeder and dotes on flies, grasshoppers, insects, worms, small minnows and even small frogs.

Trout Has Keen Sight.

Undoubtedly he has the keenest sight of any fish, and he evidently watches his prey before it strikes the water, as he will close his jaws on a fly the instant it hits the water, often leaping up and catching it on the wing. It's a pretty good guess that he watches the flies or insects as they fly over the water and this same sight makes it necessary for the rod wielder to match his wits against those of Mr. B. Trout.

Trout are caught with artificial flies, grasshoppers, worms, minnows, crickets, grubs and almost any small insects that are found along streams, also with very small spoons. When fishing with a fly it should be kept in motion, imitating as near as possible the movements of a fly that has dropped on the surface and is struggling to rise again. This can be accomplished by a slight broken twitching of the wrist. When a trout takes the fly, strike quickly, but not with a heavy jerk, only a slight move of the wrist is necessary. In taking a fly he snaps his jaws together over the fly, but is quick to throw out the artificial feathery substitute for a square meal.

Lot Depends on Rod Work.

The sport begins with a rush right after you hook your fish and you sure have to work your gray matter, Buck, before you can creel a trout. He seems to know every rift, rooted hold, snag or windfall in the stream, and you got to keep your mind on the game to hold him from reaching cover, which means a lost fish and a snagged line. Let your rod do most of the work, that's what a good fly rod is for—keep your line tight, at no time give any slack, as the trout may not be securely hooked, and a slack line gives him a chance to cough out the fly. You will find the trout is more quickly landed if worked down stream, especially with a large fish, as the current is in your favor. Keep the rod well up and the line shortened, as a short line gives better control over the fish and you need every extra bit of advantage, as the sole object of the trout is to get away and at that game he is some little getter.

Fish Both Up and Down Stream.

If you are fishing a slow running stream it is best to fish up stream and on swift-running streams fish down, making it a point to walk around pools and fish them from the lower end up to the head. In fishing up stream the fly comes quickly down with the current, this can be slowed up by casting diagonally up and across.

Trout Gorge Angleworms.

Early in the season the common angleworm is considered a delicacy by the trout and this bait if floated down stream under a shelving bank or around a log, which makes an ideal hiding place for trout, it's a twenty-to-one shot that another fish will be added to the creel. Hook the worm so that the entire hook is covered, using a No. 6 or 8 snelled hook. Always fish down stream with worms, as the natural action of the current carries the worms down stream. Let the bait float from about thirty feet above the spot where you anticipate the trout are lying and throw in the shut-off or all noise.

LAYING QUALITIES OF HENS

American Breeds, Most Desirable for Producing Winter Eggs, Should Be Hatched in April.

Experience has taught that the laying qualities of any breed of fowls can be much improved by always breeding from the best layers as well as can the milking qualities of cows be brought to high standard by always breeding from the best milkers. In selecting your flock for winter laying get a good bred-to-lay strain of whichever breed you choose to keep. Fowls of the American breeds, which are perhaps the most desirable for producing winter eggs, should be hatched in April. They then will have ample time to mature before winter sets in. If possible the pullets should have free range during the summer to enable them to grow strong and hardy frames. The parent stock must, of course, be healthy and it is better if they have a reputation as winter layers. Select the earlier hatched pullets and one-year-old hens that molt early in the season so their new feathers will get ripened up by November. This is the foundation of your winter egg production.

RAISING PIGEONS FOR PROFIT

Unless Houses Are Comfortably Warm It Is Not Wise to Grow Squabs in Cold Weather.

It is not best to attempt to grow squabs during the colder months unless your houses are warm enough to prevent the freezing of the eggs, or the young after being hatched.

When the young are hatched during the cold months they are very likely to become chilled when the parent bird leaves them for food. Once they are chilled through, they are quite likely not to seek a food supply, and, chilled through, they are a lost product which cannot be regained or replaced.

"I wouldn't raise pigeons, they're too dirty," is the complaint often made against these beautiful birds; while, as a matter of fact, it is far less work to keep a pigeon loft and fly free from ill-smelling odors than a poultry house. Step into a pigeon loft where litter has been allowed to accumulate two or three weeks and you will notice merely a slight ammonia odor; but allow the same condition in your poultry house and—well, you'll fully realize that it is time to clean up.

Homer Pigeon.

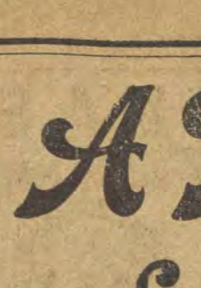
The color of the feathers of a pigeon has little to do with its utility value; but the color of its skin is of much importance, as the dark-skinned squabs are sold at a very low figure. It pays to watch one's flock very carefully and cull out all pairs producing such birds.

LOOK FOR RUNNING NOSES

Colds Usually Caused by Poor Ventilation, Overcrowding and Drafts—Good Cure Given.

Do your chickens have running noses? Look at the flock as they eat and note whether the nostrils are clogged with dirt or show a slimy ooze. If they do, and if the under side of the wing is soiled, you may know that the birds have taken a slight cold, and conditions need changing.

Sometimes these colds come from poor ventilation; sometimes from overcrowding and piling up; sometimes from drafts. Whatever is the cause, these running noses must be cleaned up and the cause removed, or there will be constant trouble with roup and roupy colds.



Get a dime's worth of permanganate of potash crystals and dissolve in a pint of boiled water for a stock solution, using enough each day to color all the drinking water, a rose tint.

A Medicine for Women

For Forty Years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has Relieved the Sufferings of Women.

It hardly seems possible that there is a woman in this country who continues to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, proving beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other medicine in the world.

Mrs. Kieso Cured After Seven Month's Illness.

Aurora, Ill.—"For seven long months I suffered from a female trouble, with severe pains in my back and sides until I became so weak I could hardly walk from chair to chair, and got so nervous I would jump at the slightest noise. I was entirely unfit to do my house work, I was giving up hope of ever being well, when my sister asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took six bottles and today I am a healthy woman able to do my own housework. I wish every suffering woman would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and find out for herself how good it is."—MRS. KARL A. KIESO, 596 North Ave., Aurora, Ill.

Could Hardly Get Off Her Bed.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—"I want you to know the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was in such bad health from female troubles that I could hardly get off my bed. I had been doctoring for a long time and my mother said, 'I want you to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.' So I did, and it has certainly made me a well woman. I am able to do my house work and am so happy as I never expected to go around the way I do again, and I want others to know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. JOSIE COPNER, 1668 Harrison Ave., Fairmount, Cincinnati, Ohio.

His Move Next.

A woman in a railway waiting room the other day had a great deal of trouble with one of her children, a boy of seven or eight, and a man who sat near her stood it as long as possible and then observed:

"Madam, that boy of yours needs the strong hand of a father."

"Yes, I know it," she replied, "but he can't have it. His father died when he was six years of age, and I've done my best to get another husband and failed. He can't have what I can't get."

A Little Skeptical.

"As I was walking through Central park, in New York, when I was there last summer," the fat plumber remarked, "I saw a round, shallow sort of vessel on top of a short post and I have been wondering ever since what it was."

"Where was it located?" the thin carpenter asked.

"Right out in the middle of a lawn."

"And don't you know what that was?"

"Nope."

"Well, I'll tell you. It was a bird bath."

"Quitcher kiddin'."

"It's the truth."

"I don't believe it for a very good reason."

"What is the reason?"

"Because I don't believe there is a bird on earth that can tell Saturday night from any other time."—Youngstown Telegram.

Pausing, he reflected a moment, and then broke out:

Victor Hugo's Grandson.

George Victor Hugo, the grandson of the great Victor Hugo, is now showing in Paris about 100 sketches which are attracting great attention. At the beginning of the war he was a censor, an occupation in which he appreciated too keenly the humor of exercising such a function by the grandson of his grandfather. So, in spite of his white hair, he gave up the censorship and set out for the army. He did not become a general, but he is a lieutenant. After a year and a half at the front he has returned from Champagne with a hundred choice acquarelles, which al Paris is running to see. He has added somewhat to the splendor of the name of Hugo, as he has been twice in the course of the war cited in the orders of the day for meritorious conduct.

IS CHILD CROSS, FEVERISH, SICK

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Adv.

You Can Make Excellent Cake With Fewer Eggs

Just use an additional quantity of Royal Baking Powder, about a teaspoon, in place of each egg omitted.

This applies equally well to nearly all baked foods. Try the following recipe according to the new way:

CREAM LAYER CAKE

Old Way	New Way
1 cup sugar	1 cup sugar
½ cup milk	1 cup milk
2 cups flour	2 cups flour
2 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder	4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
3 eggs	1 egg
½ cup shortening	2 tablespoons shortening
1 teaspoon flavoring	1 teaspoon flavoring

Makes 1 Large 2-Layer Cake

DIRECTIONS—Cream the sugar and shortening together, then mix in the egg. After sifting the flour and Royal Baking Powder together, two or three times, add it all to the mixture. Gradually add the milk and beat with spoon until you have a smooth pour batter. Add the flavoring. Pour into greased layer cake tins and bake in a moderately hot oven for twenty minutes. This cake is best baked in two layers. Put together with cream filling and spread with white icing.

CLAIMS GERMANY VIOLATED TREATIES

GOVERNMENT EXPLAINS WHY INSTRUMENTS WERE NOT OBSERVED.

ABROGATED BY VIOLATIONS

United States Could Not Do Otherwise Than Refute the Old Agreement.

Washington.—Germany's "clear violations" of the treaties of 1799 and 1828 and her "disregard of the canons of international courtesy" were assigned by the United States as reasons for refusal to reaffirm these agreements.

The note of refusal to Germany, transmitted through Dr. Paul Ritter, the Swiss minister, was made public by the state department and discloses that this government "is seriously considering" whether Germany's conduct has not in effect abrogated these treaties.

"In view of the clear violations by the German authorities of the plain terms of the treaties in question, solmenly concluded on the mutual understanding that the obligations thereunder would be faithfully kept, in view further of the disregard of the canons of international courtesy, and the comity of nations in the treatment of innocent American citizens in Germany, the government of the United States cannot perceive any advantage which would flow from further engagements, even though they were merely declaratory of international law, entered into which the imperial German government in regard to the meaning of any of the articles of these treaties, or as supplementary to them. In these circumstances, therefore, the government of the United States declines to enter into the special protocol proposed by the imperial government."

ANOTHER CALL MADE BY NAVY.

Marine Corps Will Be Brought to Full Strength.

Washington.—War preparations by the government included calling into the federal service a score of additional National Guard regiments for police service in the western and middle western states, and an order for the immediate recruiting of the marine corps to full war strength of 17,400 men.

With both the navy and the marine corps ordered up to full strength, the only step remaining to increase the navy personnel without action by Congress is the calling out of the naval militia. It has been understood that the militia will be needed to fill out crews for the many vessels to be added, but no announcement on the subject has ben made.

Secretary Baker said no further call upon the National Guard was in prospect. More than 32 regiments have been summoned to federal duty to guard industries or other property which might be threatened by internal disorder growing out of the German situation.

The order to increase the marine corps from its present authorized maximum of 14,981 to 17,400 was announced by Secretary Daniels.

WILL ORGANIZE HOUSE.

Representative Randall Says Democrats Will Be in Control.

Washington.—Orgnization of the new House by the democrats was declared to be assured by Representative Randall of California, prohibitionist, and one of the five so-called independents, upon whom the political complexion of the House has seemed to hinge.

Mr. Randall returned to Washington from Los Angeles. On reading a statement issued by Republican Leader Mann, offering to retire from the race for the speakeship in favor of Speaker Clark if a bipartisan or nonpartisan organization was agreed upon, he said Mr Mann was too late, that he was in a position to say that enough of the independents would vote with the democrats to give the latter a majority and assure the administration of control by its party of both houses of Congress

Democrats and republicans go into the organization fight with 214 members each and 218 votes are required to elect the speaker

First American Armed Ship Safe

Washington.—The American liner St. Louis, first armed American ship to cross the Atlantic, has arrived at her destination, Secretary Daniels announced.

New York.—The St. Louis, owned by the American line, left here March 17 with 31 passengers, of whom 14 were American citizens. Among he crew of 394 persons were 131 Americans.

Three Killed, 8 Hurt in Explosion.

New York.—Premature explosion of a blast set in the new Queensborough subway at the point where it crosses Blackwell's island penned several men in a section of the tunnel. Police reported three or four men were believed to have lost their lives, and that eight were injured. Twelve hundred prisoners on the island were thrown into a state of excitement which led the police to concentrate heavy bodies of reserves on the island. Many workmen were covered by the debris

SAMFORD MEMBER COURT OF APPEALS

WINS APPOINTMENT OVER FIELD OF APPLICANTS SAID TO NUMBER 21.

AT THE STATE'S CAPITAL

Interesting News Budget of Happenings in Various Departments of State.

—Montgomery.

William H. Samford of Montgomery, confidential adviser of Governor Henderson since his administration began, will succeed John Pelham as a member of the court of appeals. Governor Henderson announced that he had named Mr. Samford to take the position vacated by Judge Pelham's death. Mr. Samford will be sworn in at once and will hold office until the general election in 1918, when a successor for the full unexpired term will be named. It is believed that he will be a candidate to succeed himself.

Mr. Samford won the appointment over a field of applicants said to have numbered 21.

Judge Samford will sit for the first time April 2, when the court takes up the second call of the first division for the term of 191617.

Rogers Heads Prisor System.

P. J. Rogers of Bilmingham was reappointed president of the state board of convict inspector and J. M. Kyser of Albertville and Dr. Russell A. Smith of Brewton were reappointed associate members of the board by Governor Henderson. They will serve two years and will rtire shortly after the end of Governc Henderson's term unless reappointedby the next governor.

In reappointing he board, Governor Henderson annouced that their services had been satisfactory and that if he had searched the State he could not have found ay others who would have shown and greater interest in the State' busines. All terms will expire during the month as the board is appointed everytwo years.

Paroles Granted.

Paroles were recommended in 12 cases and 14 petions were reused by the State boai of pardons at the March meetin according to the board's annourement. Ten cases were postpone until the next meeting in order th the views of the trial judge and solicor might be obtained.

Those whose petitions received the favorable consideration of the board were: Clanton Holborn, Montgomery, murder; Caesar Daniels, Montgomery, forgery; Arthur Drane, Lee, burglary and grand larceny; Joseph Foster, Tuscaloosa, murder; Wince Garth, Morgan, murder; Jim Gohlson, Jefferson, murder; John Horn, Lee, burglary; Arthur Jones, Choctaw, grand larceny; Sam Mathews, Pike, murder; Jim Nelms, alias Bug, Lee, larceny; Manuel Toswell, Pullock, assault to murder; Ural Gowin, Dallas, grand larceny.

Governor Revokes Parole.

Efforts of the state convict department and the executive department to eliminate illiteracy from the state prisons received a temporary setback when Governor Henderson was forced to revoke the conditional parole of Arthur A. Strock who had been in charge of the women under the supervision of Dr. W. D. Hubbard, chaplain of convicts. Governor Henderson revoked the privilege of Strock and ordered him return to the state's regular service.

Little information has been given out about the affair, but it is known that during the past few days charges have been brought against Strock in connection with his methods. An investigation has been made of the matter connecting Strock with trouble at the prison at Wetumpka and Governor Henderson and officials of the convict department decided it would be better for the state to return Strock to the regular service and to entrust the work to other persons.

Col. Bibb Graves Succeeds Steiner.

CALOMEL IS MERCURY, IT SICKENS! STOP USING SALIVATING DRUG

Don't Lose a Day's Work! If Your Liver Is Sluggish or Bowels Constipated Take "Dodson's Liver Tone."—It's Fine!

You're bilious! Your liver is sluggish! You feel lazy, dizzy and all knocked out. Your head is dull, your tongue is coated; breath bad; stomach sour and bowels constipated. But don't take salivating calomel. It makes you sick, you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel crashes into sour bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping.

If you want to enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone. Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal money-back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick.

Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headache and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and your bowels regular. You will feel like working; you'll be cheerful; full of vigor and ambition.

Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and cannot salivate. Give it to your children! Millions of people are using Dodson's Liver Tone instead of dangerous calomel now. Your druggist will tell you that the sale of calomel is almost stopped entirely here.—Adv.

Prickly Pear Makes Fodder.

The utilization of the prickly pear in the production of feeding cakes for cattle is reported by the British and South African Export Gazette as engaging the attention of South African agriculturists. For this purpose it is said to have food values of high quality. Its value was demonstrated during a recent drought, when only by its use were the farmers able to keep their cattle, sheep, goats and ostriches alive. The result is that many are now actually planting what they formerly tried to exterminate.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF HAIR STOPS FALLING

Girls! Try This! Makes Hair Thick, Glossy, Fluffy, Beautiful—No More Itching Scalp.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable luster, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any store, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Adv.

Healthy Skin Depends On Kidneys

The skin and the intentines, which work together with the kidneys to throw out the poisons of the body, do a part of the work, but a clean body and a healthy one depends on the kidneys. If the kidneys are clogged with toxic poisons you suffer from stiffness in the knees in the morning on arising, your joints seem "rusty," you may have rheumatic pains, pain in the back, stiff neck, headaches, sometimes swollen feet, or neuralgic pains—all due to the uric acid or toxic poisons in the blood. This is the time to go to the nearest drug store and simply obtain a 50c. package of Anuric (double or triple strength), the discovery of Dr. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y. Then drink a cup of hot water before meals, with an Anuric Tablet, and notice the gratifying results. You will find Anuric more active than lithia.

WHAT NEIGHBORS SAY

Hampton, Ga.—"I have used Dr. Pierce's medicine in my home for over 40 years, and can say to those suffering with torpid liver, it will pay you to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. You will find it all he claims it to be." —THOMAS C. JONES, Hampton, Ga.

Golden Medical Discovery has had a fine reputation for the past 40 years, and indorsed by many well-known people. It contains no alcohol or narcotics. Put up in both liquid and tablets.

If not obtainable at your dealer's, send $1.00 to Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and he will mail large package of tablets.

THORSBY ITEMS

Mr. Robert Anderson of Lock 12 spent a few days last week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Magne Anderson.

Mrs. Magne Anderson left Saturday for South Amboy, N. J., to spend a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Ivy Horn.

The people of Thorsby and vicinity will have an unusual opportunity in the privilege of hearing Mr. Karl Lehman on April 6th and 7th, in connection with the Christian Endeavor Institute, which will be held at the Congregational Church. Mr. Lehman will be of interest to those not only connected with the Christian Endeavor work, but to all young people and to all who are interested in work with young people. The Montgomery Advertiser in speaking of Mr. Lehman, said, "Mr. Lehman possesses that rare attribute, unostentatious enthusiasm that convinces those who hear him that they can do wonderful things." The LaPorte (Ind) Herald says, "Mr. Lehman is a whirlwind. He is full of fire. He talks rapidly and he utters a truth every time he opens his mouth." Sessions at which Mr. Lehman will speak will be held at 11:00, a.m., Friday, April 6th, 2:30 and 7:30, p.m., and also in the forenoon and afternoon of Saturday, April 7th.

A large audence listened with much interest to the address of Rev. Brooks Lawrence, Sate Supt. of the Anti Saloon League, at Bates Hall Sunday night. Over two hundred people were present. Following some selections by the band and other musical numbers provided by the joint committee of the young people's societies, Mr. Lawrence spoke at length of the prohibition situation in Alabama, the United States and the World, urging that everyone interested be not satisfied until the victory is secured throughout the whole world. His address was enlivened by many apt illustrations and humorous stories, among the being one which illustrated his advice to the citizens of Alabama, that they get together and stick together. In response to Mr. Lawrence's address, something like $50 was subscribed for the work of the league.

Mrs. L. F. Geral of Clanton spent last week with relatives in Thorsby.

The pie social at Bates Hall Saturday night was largely attended and was a decided sucess in every way. About $26 was secured for the benefit of the public school. The members of the School Improvement Association wish to extend their thanks to all who helped us tomake it a success.

Rev. Brooks Lawrence spoke at chapel at the Institute Monday morning on "Thoroughness." The students will not soon forget his illustration of the fact that it takes five hundred times more power to make light than to make a noise.

Mr. H. H. Grove is spending a few days in Birmingham.

Mr. John Husby left for his home in St. Elmo, Ala., where he will visit for a few days before going North to spend the summer.

Usual services at the Congregational Church next Sunday. The morning service will be comunion service with the receptn of members. The evening service will consist of a lecture on Sunday school work in different parts of the country, illustrated with stereoptic views.

ATLANTA — MONTGOMERY

A poor crop never pays. A farmer is not living up to his opportunities when he fails to make a good profit on his year's work. Outside of actual Providential casualties, there is no excuse for crop failure in these days of scientific methods of feeding the crop so that each plant is nursed and nourished from the time of sprouting till final maturity.

The methods of mixing and blending the South Atlantic Brands and the excellent class of materials used in them as actual food for the plant make them a scientifically perfect fertilizer. Their mechanical condition is so fine and free from lumps that each plant gets its full share of each element of plant food, thus insuring better stands and vigorous growth.

Their liberal use means larger yields, better profits and eminent satisfaction.

VOLUME V I — CLANTON, CHILTON COUNTY, ALA., APRIL 5, 1917. — NUMBER 1

JUDGE REYNOLDS IN REPLY TO QUESTION ON THE BOND ISSUE

Answer is Made to Writer of Letter in Clanton Press of Last Week.

A full explanation of legal Details and Expenses of Issuing Bonds.

Clanton, Ala., April 4, 1917.—There appeared in last week's Clanton Press an article dated March 25, 1917, signed a "County Voter," in which he asked this question, "How much does it usually cost in legal advice, broker's fees, advertising fees, etc. necessary to the issuance of bonds?" In answer tothis question, I will state that it will not cost Chilton County one cent for any fees, whatsoever, pertaining to this bond issue if the election carries.

I have seen every point has been guarded and that there is no possible chance for the county to have to pay such fees. I have even provided in contract that there shall not be any charge for printing of bonds.

The question is asked, "Is there any any other way to take care of the county's credit besides the bond issue?" I will state that I do not know of any, and I speak abvisedly because I have endeavored to find some authority to refund these time warrants or extend the time of payment from the very day I went in office on January 15th, 1917, because there was over $16,000.00 in time interest warrants due at the time I went into office, and less than $10,000.00 to pay it with; besides we owe to our people here at home something over $50,000.00 past due. If the person asking the question, or any other person can offer any suggestion to take care of the debts, I shall be glad to have the suggestion, because I have always been opposed to bonds, and would be now to make a debt, and the only reason on earth I am going to vote for bonds is to save the county's credit, keep it out of bankruptcy, stop paying the exorbitant prices for material that we have to buy, and so we can take care of our roads and bridges.

The question is asked,"Can the Probate Judge give evidence that he can sell the bonds at par?" I here by publish a contract signed by Steiner Brothers of Birmingham, which speaks for itself. You will see that the contract even provides for the printing of the bonds and provides, that should a bond be issued and have to stay in the bank for some time before we could take up some debt, that the accrued interest would have to be paid back to the county, before they could get the bond.

The question is asked, if the tickets of the election of this kind does not state, what the lowest rate of interest shall be. It will not be the fact in this case, but first, exactly the contrary. The tickets state that the highest rate of interest shall be 5 per cent. I will print the full ballot just as it will appear at the election for your information.

Copy of Ballot.

"Official Ballot of Chilton County Funding Road and Bridge Bond election, April 16th, 1917."

Shall Chilton County issue $200,000.00 of Funding Road and Bridge Bonds, to run 30 years, with interest not to exceed 5 per cent.

Make a cross mark before or after the proposition of your choice.

——For funding road and bridge bond issue——. ——Against funding road and bridge bond issue——

The question is asked, "Is it not an amazing fact that the very set of men, who only two years ago, including the Board of Commissioners, and the present Probate Judge, was opposed to the bond issue, but now they are for it. Yes, as I have stated above, I have always been opposed to bond issue and would be now, to make a debt.

I served this county six years as Judge of Probate, and my policy was to pay cash for everything we bought and to buy it as cheap as we could, and it would be the happiest day in my life today if our county were out of debt and could pay cash for what we have to buy, but the debts have been made, and I am looking to the future and to what I believe to be for the best interest of Chilton County, and if I live to go to the election on April 16th, and vote for the bond issue, I will vote not to make a debt, but to reduce one already made and to save our county's interest, and put our people at home on an equal footing with foreign creditors, which is not the fact now; for the bankers, who hold the time interest warrants have a contract that their debt and interest is to be paid first, which contract has been held valid by the Federal Court recently in Shelby County's case, just exatcly the same as ours.

In a hurried manner I have tried to answer every question asked by the "County Voter," and if there is any other information that anyone wants, I shall be pleased to give it; and if the bond issue is not the best for the county, I hope someone will suggest a better remedy, because any other plan other than bonds that would answer the purpose, would suit me better than bonds.

In conclusion, I will state that this is a matter for the people to decide, and if the bond issue is voted down, I pledge the people that I will do the best I can in managing the county's affairs.

If there be any parties in Chilton county, who would like to see the original contract with Steiner Brothers, in which they agree to take the above bonds at par, the same may be seen on application at the Probate office, and the original contract will be gladly shown to any person, who may desire to see the same.

I am now preparing a road law for the County, which provides that any money to be spent on public roads shall be appropriated equally between the beats, according to the number of miles of public road in each beat.

L. H. REYNOLDS.

Read the Following Contract, Which Speaks for Itself.

Clanton, Ala., March 3rd, 1917.—
Hon. L. H. Reynolds,
Clanton, Ala.
Dear Judge:

In accordance with conversation and agreement had with you and your Court today, we hereby agree to purchase such amount of Chilton County, Alabama 5 per cent, 30 year road bonds, as may be issued during the next ninety days, the said bonds to be part or all the funding bonds to be voted upon on Monday, April 16th, 1917, for which bond issue an election was today authorized by your Commissioners Court, at a price of par and accrued interest, we to pay all the expenses of having the bonds printed, prepare the necessary proceedings, etc., incident to calling an election, it being understood and agreed, however, that we are likewise to have the privilege of purchasing at the same price and under the same terms any and all bonds of said issue that may be issued within twelve months time from the delivery to us of the first lot of bonds.

We are also to use our best efforts in having as many of the long time warrants of said county heretofore handled by us surrendered by our clients to whom we sold them, as we can, we, however, not agreeing to have any special amount surrendered, we merely to do the best we can in this respect.

The said bonds are to be approved as to legality by our attorneys, before being tendered delivery of any part of them, and this agreement is made conditioned upon the bond election above referred to carrying in favor of the issuance of said bonds.

ABLE MAN FOR THE COMMERCE COMMITTEE

Washington, April 4.—(Special Correspondence)—Another instance of the recognition of the special ability in assigning Republican Senators to Committees was in the case of Hon. Frank B. Kellogg of Minnesota, who was given a place on the great interstate commerce committee. Mr. Kellogg probably knows as much about the administration of the railroads of the country as any other man. He acted as special council for the Interstate Commerce Commission in the investigation of the Harriman roads, and as special council for the United States in the action to dissolve the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific merger. The experience he gained in those cases will render his opinions on the enterstate comerce matters invaluable to the Senate. Senator Kellogg has served as president of the National Bar Association, and is considered one of the foremost lawyers of the country. This fact gained for him a place on the Joint Committee on Revision of the Laws of the United States, where he is sure to render efficient service.

ANNUITY FOR CIVIL WAR OFFICERS

Congressman Charles H. Roland, of Pennsylvania, was the author during the last congress of a bill proposing to create a "Civil War Officers' Annuity Roll". In his measure he fixed a monthly payment of from $45 to $75 per month, according to rank, for officers who served two years or more, and correspondingly less pay down to $35, for those who served not less than six months, or received certain specified injuries. Such officers would be entered on the "Annuity Roll" and not be entitled to a pension. Mr. Roland discovered that in 1828 and 1832, about fifty years after the close of the Revolution, Congress passed a law, providing that surviving officers of that war should receive full pay for life. A similar time has elapsed since the Civil War, and Representative Roland is of the opinion that we should make a general provision for the surviving officers of that war.

PREPARATION FOR TRADE COMPETITION

With an eye to insuring industrial prosperity of this country after the war, Congressman Charles A. Nichols of Michigan proposes that all consular officers of the United States shall be entrusted by the Secretary of State to gather information regarding the trade conditions in the countries at war, as they are likely to be affected by the restoration of peace. In a resolution which he introduced in the last Congress, Mr. Nichols also provides that such information shall be published and distributed to American manufacturers in order that they may be advised of what to expect following the industrial readjustment. Representative Nichols believes that such a course would go far to anticipate the tremendous changes that are bound to take place when peace is declared.

PROF. W. T. BEAN IS RE-ELECTED SUPERINTENDENT

County Educational Board Unanimous for his retention in office.

At the meeting of the County Board of Education last Thursday, Prof. W. T. Bean was unanimously re-elected to fill the office of County Superintendent of Education.

In view of the fact that Prof. Bean in the administration of his duties of office in the past term has made such a pleasing record with the people of the county, and owing to the spirit of progress which he has put into our educational system in the county, his re-appointment will be received with universal approval all over the county.

Mr. Bean has rendered us a wholesome and efficient administration in the past, and he highly deserved to be kept in the work. Our schools, themselves were due the consideration and good judgment which the board exercised in retaining him.

MR. FRANK HIGGIN'S VIEWS ON THE BOND ISSUE TOPIC

First, I will say I have no axe to grind, and I am a full grown Democrat and never have been any thing else. Now, as to the other set of County Officials, they are my friends and I was never treated better by any crowd, and what I shall say will not be any reflection on their administration. I will say further that when they took charge financial times were not so good as they are now, and they had to pay what interest they were asked then for money. Now, it seems that we have a chance to make a better deal for money.

Now, we propose to issue $200,000 worth of bonds for the purpose of taking up $200,000 debts we now have out. We are paying 6 per cent and have a guarantee to sell the bonds at 5 per cent, which is a saving of $2,000 a year alone. Any purchase that we make now can't be paid for in three years. We owe over $6,000 on time warrants past due, and they are drawing 6 per cent interest; and as they have a preferred claim, theirs comes first. We are over $50,000 behind with our own people who do not get any interest, neither can they be paid until these time warrants are out of the way. We owe something near $150,000 on time warrants and you can see how long it will take to get through with them, unless we get immediate relief.

A warrant issued and payable out of the road and bridge funds cannot be paid in ten years, because it will take all the tax coming in to pay the time warrants. I understand the present administration has a contract to sell these bonds dollar for dollar.

The actual expense for the county for the year is about $15,000 leaving off court cost. Under the present condition it will cost about $30,000. Now, if we go to buy a bill of lumber, of hardware, or to have a bridge put in, or a blacksmith job done, they will charge us two prices, and you can't blame for they don't get but about half what they charge. Now, you see the county affairs are only like a personal business after all. I would not be in favor of issuing bonds if we were not already in debt. We are only issuing these bonds to pay the debts we already owe. I am tickled over the plan the county has fallen on, if it is so, and that is this: they are arranging to put any tax money that is to be put on the public roads, to be divided equally among the beats of the county, according to the number of miles in each beat. Now, if anyone has a better plan, let us have it, as we need to get in a better shape.

CARRIED DEMOCRATIC DISTRICT

One of the most popular men in Congress among his constituents is Representative Edgar R. Kiess of the Fifteenth Pennsylvania District. That District was formerly very Democratic, being represented in the three Congresses preceding Mr. Kiess' election, by no less a politician and labor man than, William B. Wilson, now Secretary of Labor. In the 63rd Congress, however, Mr. Keiss was able to defeat Mr. Wilson by 568 votes, and since that time he has so strengthened his hold on his people that he was elected to the 64th Congress, and again to the 65th Congress by 7,712 plurality. Mr. Keiss is next to the ranking Republican member of the Committee on Pensions, and takes a deep interest in legislation for the relief of the old soldiers and their dependents.

"THE SHIELDING SHADOW" A MYSTERY SERIAL PLAY

Thrilling Picture of Romance Said to Rival the "Iron Claw," to be Shown at The Ideal Fridays of Each week until the Last Episode.

Characterized by a greater mystery than the Laughing Mask in "The Iron Claw", a greater love interest than that of the "Red Circle" and greater thrills than those of "The Perils of Pauline and "The Exploits of Elaine," Pathe's Wonder Serial will open at the "Ideal" Friday, April 6th. There is a mysterious character called "Ravenger", who will baffle the audiences, then there is the mystery of "the shielding shadow". There are more thrills—real thrills, developing logically from powerful situations, than have ever been in any other serial.

"The Shielding Shadow" is a thrilling story of flesh and blood people, the novelization of which, by Randall Parrish, will be read by millions. It is based upon a scientific fact and a remarkable discovery.

COMMISSIONERS CUT SALARIES AND OTHER EXPENSE OF THE COUNTY BUSINESS

They are hewing to the line of promises to people; Determined to cut Expenses.

The Commissioners Court of Chilton County has been in session for the past two days, with Judge L.H. Reynolds presiding, and the four other members of the Court present, viz: S. E. Waldrup, R. J. Williams, W.T. Herrod, and A. P. Vinson.

Several minor matters were taken up and disposed of on Monday morning. At 10:00 o'clock, the time previously appointed by the court to take up and decide the matter of salaries and appropriations by the county to various officials and institutions, a large number of citizens were present by invitation of the court to see and hear and to participate in the proceedings.

The purpose of the meeting was to find some way to reduce the expenses of the county, and it was evident that the court had determined to make a long stride in that direction.

The first salary coming to the consideration of the court was that of the County Health Officer. After some discussion motion was made and duly carried, providing that the salary of said official be reduced from $1,000 per year to $500 per year, The change becoming effective on the first day of April, 1917.

The compensation of each member of the Board of Equalization which has heretofore been $6.00 a day was cut down to $3.00 a day.

No further donations by the Court will be made to the Chilton County Fair. A motion was made and duly carried in the court providing that no further donations be made for this purpose.

After July 1st, the county will discoutinue its contribution to the girls canning club work, in the county, according to the order of the court Monday. This is the work that has been and is yet in the charge of Mrs. Lida Jones.

The county donation to the farm demonstration work under Mr. W.H. Conway was reduced from $350 a year to $250 a year.

There was a motion made and unanimously carried to discontinue the appropriations for the boys corn and pig club work in the county.

The policy displayed by the court in cutting salaries and appropriations as they have is in keeping with their pledge to reduce the public's expense. The idea seems good in the face of the present financial condition with which they are confronted.

In the cutting of salaries and reducing appropriatnons, no regard was given to the constitutional provision of the state, nor the acts of the 1915 Legislature.

GERMANS DRIVEN AT MANY POINTS

General Haig's Forces Are Pounding Stronghold Which Is Key To Hindenburg Line

GERMAN DEFEAT ADMITTED

Announced That British Have Penetrated German Positions To Depth Of Two Miles

New York.—The British forces in France are gradually creeping up on the important town of St. Quentin, considered one of the German strongholds. Also to the northwest of the town they are swinging their line forward at various points in a straightening out movement that is making good strides eastward.

Meanwhile the French forces under General Nivelle are keeping up their offensive to the south and southeast of St. Quentin and again have made good progress north and south of the Aillett river. They have captured several German trench systems and organized points of support east of Neuville-Sur-Margival. Inflicting heavy casualties on the Germans and driving them back to the outskirts of Vauxaillon and Laffaux.

West of St. Quentin the British have thrust their line through the village of Savy and the Wood of Savy, and now are resting only three miles from St. Quentin. Near Savy the Germans resisted tenaciously, but finally were beaten off, losing heavily in killed and wounded. To the north of this region the villages of Vendelles, on the St. Quentin-Croisilles road and Tpehy, and Peiziere, on the Roisel-Cambrai road, have been taken by Field Marshal Haig's forces.

The German war office admits that the German line for a distance of from one and a quarter to two miles was forced to give way before the British in the region bounded by the Peronne-Gouzeacourt road and the Omignon brook, but says the British suffered heavy losses.

AMERICANS LOSE LIVES WHEN U-BOAT IS TORPEDOED

Two Citizens Of United States Known To Be Dead As Result Of Torpedoeing Vessels

Washington.—Destruction without warning of four merchant ships carrying Americans in their crews was reported to the state department in official dispatches indicating that several Americans lost their lives.

The vessels were the British steamer Crispin, on which two American negroes probably perished and from which eighteen other Americans are reported missing. The Portuguese sailing ship Argo, from which three American negroes are missing, and the British steamers Eptafolos and Snowden Range, on which there apparently was no loss of life, though Americans in the crew suffered.

Consul Frost at Queenstown, England, reported the arrival of a boat with survivors from the Crispin, and says:

"Only [illegible] 19 survivors landed at Queenstown, including captain, chief steward, veterinarian and Americans, R. H. Elser, Newport News; Carl Larkenson, Augusta, Ga.; James Smith, Baltimore; Bland Tinsley, Philadelphia; R. L. Patriots Break Up "Peace" Meeting

Baltimore.—After the greatest patriotic demonstration this city has seen since the Spanish-American war, a crowd of four thousand persons stormed the Academy of Music, swept a cordon of police aside and smashed a big pacifist meeting, stopping Dr. David Starr Jordan in the middle of his speech and refused to allow other speakers to talk. Police reserves were called out and dispersed the crowd. Clubs were used freely and several men were badly injured. Douglas G. Ober was seriously beaten.

Teutons Planning Supreme Effort

Copenhagen.—Germany, according to information reaching here from Berlin, now is gathering to the colors every available man for a supreme military effort to bring the war to a victorious conclusion in this year's campaign—a goal which Field Marshal von Hindenburg and his advisers consider by no means impossible of attainment. Without altering formally the law of military service the German authorities have in practice extended the period of service beyond the forty-fifth year.

ALLIES MAKE GREAT GAINS

British And French Troops Occupy Many Villages And Press Forward In Northern France

New York.—The British and French troops have made additional important gains against the Germans on the line running from Arras to Soissons. On the British center at several points Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig's men have pushed forward, occupying the villages of Longavesnes, Lieramont and Equancourt, and in addition have captured from the Germans a position north of Beaumetz-lez-Cambrai, which the Germans took from them in an attack.

The gains of the French were made in the region to the south of La Fere, where they drove the Germans completely out of the lower forest of Coucy and also captured the villages of Petit Barisis, Vereuuil and Coucy-la-Ville, bringing the French line in this region to the western outskirts of the forest of St. Gobain and the upper forest of Coucy. In the Soissons sector further progress was made north of Neuville-sur-Margival and northeast of Leuilly.

The German war office admits the capture by the British of the town of Roisel, about eleven miles northwest of St. Quentin, and the falling back of the German forces before the French at several points in the forest region south of La Fere, in order to avoid bing outflanked.

Submarine Sinks Hospital Ship

London.—The British hospital ship Asturias was torpedoed without warning, it is officially announced here. Thirty-six persons are reported killed and missing. The statement says:

"The British hospital ship Asturias, while steaming with all navigating lights and with all proper distinguishing Red Cross signs visible illuminated, was torpedoed without warning on the night of March 20. The following casualties occurred: Military, dead, 11; missing, 3, including one female staff nurse; injured, 17. Crew, dead, 20, with nine missing, including one stewardess; crew, injured 22."

It is understood that when the Asturias was torpedoed she was carrying no wounded. She had disembarked a considerable number of wounded at a certain British port and was on a return voyage with some 300 persons aboard.

It is said that the Asturias was torpedoed about midnight.

PLEA TO THE FARMERS FOR PREPAREDNESS

Secretary Houston Urges Mobilization Of Agricultural Resources To Meet The International Crisis

Washington.—The farmers of America have been appealed to by Secretary Houston to join in agricultural preparedness measures so that the country may not be handicapped by food shortage in its effort to meet the international crisis. Elimination of waste, conservation of surplus and attainment of maximum crop returns were outlined as imperative steps for strengthening agricultural resources.

"Both for economic and patriotic reasons," the secretary said in a formal statement," the American farmer should strive this year for the highest standard of efficiency in the production and conservation of food.

"Under the conditions in which this county now finds itself it is important that everything practicable be done to increase the efficiency of agricultural activities during the coming season."

The secretary's appeal is part of the campaign undertaken by the department of agriculture to mobilize the country's agricultural resources.

Moses Ezekiel, Noted Sculptor, Dies

Rome, Italy.—Moses Ezekiel, the American sculptor, died of pneumonia. In his will he asked to be buried among his old Confederate comrades in the National cemetery at Arlington, Va., U. S. A.

British Ship Fought German Raider

London.—The fight which the German raider Moewe had with the British steamship Otaki was not the only one on the cruise. A dispatch from Copenhagen says the captain of the Norwegian bark Staut, which was sunk by the St. Theodore after it had been fitted out as a raider by the Moewe, states that on the way home the Moewe had a stubborn fight with the armed British steamer Governor. The second officer of the Governor was killed and both arms of a gunner named Huddoth were shot off. The Governor eventually was sunk.

8-Hour Work Day Goes Into Effect

New York.—An eight-hour work day will be put into effect by the Western Union Telegraph company beginning May 1 in its principal offices, it is announced here. A statement issued by the company says that all traffic and commercial department employees at functional main and functional branch offices, operators and other employees at non-functional offices, wherever it can be arranged, and plant department gang employees and others whose work admits of definite hours of duty will be paid on the 8-hour basis.

Shells For Bombs Made On Vessel

New York.—After a statement had been admitted in evidence that 250 shells for five bombs had been manufactured in twelve days on board a German merchant steamship tied up at Hoboken, N. J., the government closed its case against Capt. Charles von Gleist and five other Germans on trial for conspiracy to destroy vessels carrying munitions from American ports to the entente allies. Counsel for the defendants moved for dismissal, butJudge van Fleet said there was "ample evidence of conspiracy

WILSON WRITES WAR MESSAGE

Responsibility Is Placed On The German Government For General Terrorism And Hostile Acts Committed

CABINET HOLDS CONFERENCE

Part The United States Will Play In War Is Not Yet Fully Determined

Washington. — The administrative branch of the American government has determined definitely upon a course of action to meet the hostility of Germany.

The president had a thorough discussion with his cabinet on the subject. The meeting lasted only an hour and a half, but with conclusions quickly made known time was found for attention to individual departmental matters. Later the president conferred briefly with Secretaries Baker and Daniels, heads of the war and navy departments.

There is said to have been no difference of opinion in the cabinet on the great question. The president's advisers as well as official Washington generally have long since accepted it as a fact that war actually is being waged against the United States.

Officials believe that Germany in making war on this nation because she has taken more than 240 American lives on the high seas, because she has destroyed American ships by the wholesale, because millions of dollars' worth of damage has been done as a result of German plots in the United States, because she attempted to set on foot a conspiracy with Mexico and Japan to dismember the republic, and finally because of the belief that Germany triumphant will constitute a future menace to the peace of the world in general and of the United States in particular.

The United States, it is emphasized in official quarters, has not in the past and does not now desire war with the German people, but on the German government responsibility is placed for terrorism on land and sea, which now that it has been directed against American citizens and American interests, must be actively combatted.

ARMY ON WATCH TO DETECT SPIES

United States Calls 500,000 Civilian Employees To Aid Secret Service

Washington.—Virtually the entire force of the federal government's civilian employees, approximately 500,000 men and women, engaged in every branch of service, has been summoned to aid the bureau of investigation and the secret service in the detection of spies and the apprehension of persons engaged in plots, intrigues or other activities against the interests of the United States.

In addition the government has sought the active co-operation of the police and detective forces of every town and city of consequence throughout the country. Hundreds of letters requesting such co-operation have been mailed broadcast by the department of justice, and replies pledging unstinted aid are coming back in great numbers by telegraph and mail.

The largest single force which the government has enrolled in its nation-wide spy hunt, with the possible exception of the municipal police and detective force, is the army of postmasters, all of whom have been instructed to permit no clew as to the identity of suspected individuals and their activities to go unreported. Under the postmasters are working the letter carriers in the cities and the rural free delivery carriers in the country, a force all told of about three hundred thousand men.

Bandit Villa Attacks Chihuahua City

Chihuahua City, Mexico.—Francisco Villa, at the head of a cavalry force of 3,500 men, made a determined attempt to capture Chihuahua City, but was driven back with the loss of 500 prisoners and 350 in killed and wounded. The battery on Santa Rosa hill, the key to the city, which Villa took by a rush in his successful attack last November, repulsed the attack.

Cuban Rebels Yield To Government

Havana.—Virtually all the soldiers and civilians comprising the rebel forces of Rigoberto Fernandez in Oriente province, between 500 and 600 in number, have surrendered to Colonel Varona at Guantanamo. In surrendering the rebels gave up 30,000 pounds of rifle ammuntion and 20 rounds of machine gun ammunition, together with 16 dynamite bombs. Fernandez himself is still at large. The forces that surrendered include two and one-half squadrons of cavalry, two companies of infantry and 100 citizens.

Over 40 Americans Held By Germany

Copenhagen.—More than forty Americans were among the prisoners taken to Germany by the German commerce raider Moewe, according to Jack Benson, an American seaman, who has arrived here. The Americans, he says, now are held as prisoners of war in Germany. Benson, who, for a time, was a fellow-prisoner of the men now held in Germany, says that nearly all of the ferty men were horsemen on board the horse transport Esmeraldas, which was sunk by the Moewe.

GERMANY TO HOLD WHITLOCK

Germany Proposes To Remove Whitlock And His Fellow-Americans To Some German City

The Hague.—It is reported from an absolutely authentic source that the German government will ask American officials and relief workers of the American commission for relief in Belgium to submit to a period of "news quarantine," the time not to exceed four weeks, in order to prevent military information from leaking out.

The time would count from the day the men lay down their present charges and notify the authorities in Brussels of their readiness to depart. They will be asked to asesmble at some central point, like Liege, or preferably a German city, such as Cologne, Karlsruhe or Munich, which they would not be allowed to leave for the period mentioned.

The "news quarantine" would apply equally to Brand Whitlock, the American minister to Belgium, and his staff, whom the German government, since the break in diplomatic relations, regards on the same footing as relief workers, although personally in the case of Mr. Whitlock the period of detention, as a matter of courtesy, might be shortened. After the "quarantine" has ended, it is stated that no obstacles will be placed in the way of the departure of the officials and relief workers by any route they may choose.

U. S. Will Protect Life And Property

Washington.—The United States government is steadily pushing preparations to protect American lives and property against German ruthlessness.

As part of this preparedness program the twelve federal reserve banks have made a 90-day loan to the government of $50,000,000 at the rate of 2 per cent per annum.

More National Guardsmen were also called into the federal service, the number now under orders of the war department totaling five thousand.

Excep for information concerning German plots against American interests, it was learned, the public in a general way knows as much as the government about everything directly affecting the present crisis. Concerning German intrigues in this and other countries, the government has much information which up to the present it has not thought it wise to make public.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE COMING TO BRITAIN

Premier Lloyd-George Tells Commons Women Must Have The Ballot

London.—The house of commons by a majority of 250 expressed approval of legislation on the lines of the speaker's conference recommendations for franchise reform. The small minority against such a measure represented not the actual opponents of reform, but rather members who were desirous of postponing legislation of such a contentious character until after the war.

The great feature of the debate was the frank acceptance by ex-Premier Asquith and Andrew Bonar Law, the chancellor of the exchequer, of women's right to vote as a result of their war sacrifices and services, and Premier Lloyd-George's whole-hearted acceptance of the conference recommendation. He was even willing to go still further and make the qualifying period three instead of six months.

Left Americans At Mercy Of Waves

Halifax, N. S.—The survivors of the steamer Vigilancia, one of three American vessels torpedoed by German submarines, March 16, arrived here, homeward bound. Fifteen of the crew, including several Americans, were drowned in the launching of the boats, and Capt. Frank A. Middleton, and the 26 saved, navigated in open boats 150 miles before land was reached at the Scilly Islands. A German submarine, believed to be the one which launched the torpedoes at the Vigilancia, followed the crew in their boats through the night. Captain Middleton would make no statement after his arrival, saying that he had given an account abroad of his experiences.

8 Persons Injured In Memphis Storm

Memphis.—Eight persons were injured, several buildings were wrecked and a score or more were unroofed or otherwise damaged in a windstorm that skirted this city and struck Binghamton, a suburb.

Oliver For Governor Of The D. W. I.

Washington.—Rear Admiral James H. Oliver, chief of naval intelligence, was named by Secretary Daniels as governor of the Danish West Indies which are to be taken over by the United States. The ceremonies of transfer will take place at St. Thomas and in Washington on the same day. Secretary McAdoo will deliver the government warrant for $25,000,000 in payment for the islands, to the Danish minister. Important fortifications will be constructed and the islands used as a naval base.

No German Drive Against Russians

Petrograd.—An early spring thaw on the Russian front, from the Baltic sea to the Carpathian mountains, has rendered impossible for the present any attack in force by the Germans against the Russians. This seemingly put at naught, for the time being at least, the reported intentions of the Germans to attempt to force their way from the Riga region toward Petrograd. Minor operations are in progress, however. In Roumania the fighting continues hot in the Uzul valley region.

WILSON ASKS DECLARATION OF WAR AGAINST GERMAN EMPIRE

Tells Joint Session of Congress of Germany's Misdeeds. Characterizes Present German Submarine Warfare as a Warfare Against Mankind.

Washington.—President Wilson urged Congress, assembled in joint session, to declare a state of war existing between the United States and Germany.

In a dispassionate and unmeasured denunciation of the course of the Imperial German government, which he characterized as a challenge to all mankind and a warfare against all nations, the President declared that neutrality was no longer feasible or desirable where the people of the world was involved; that armed neutrality had become ineffectual enough at best and was likely to produce what it was meant to prevent, and urged Congress to accept the guage of battle with all the resources of the nation.

"I advise that the Congress declare the recent course of the Imperial German government to be in fact nothing less than war against the government and people of the United States," said the President; "that it formally accept the status of belligerent which has thus been thrust upon it, and that it take steps not only to put the country in a more thorough state of defense, but also to exert all its power and employ all its resources to bring the government of the German empire to terms and end the war."

When the President had finished speaking, resolutions to declare a state of war existing were introduced in both houses of Congress, and referred to appropriate committees.

The objects of the United States in entering the war, the President said, were to vindicate the principles of peace and justice against "selfish and autocratic power." "Without selfish end, for conquest or domination, seeking no indemnities or material compensations for the sacrifices it shall make, the United States must enter the war," the President said, to make the world safe for democracy, as only one of the champions of the rights of mankind, and would be satisfied when those rights were as secure as the faith and freedom of nations could make them."

The President's address was sent in full to Germany by a German official news agency for publication in that country. The text also went to England, and a summary of its contents was sent around the world to other nations.

To carry on an effective warfare against the German government, which he characterized as a "nautral foe to liberty," the President recommended:

Utmost practical co-operation in counsel and action with the governments already at war with Germany.

Extension of liberal financial credits to those government so that resources of America may be added so far as possible to theirs.

Organization and mobilization of all the material resources of the country.

Full equipment of the navy, particularly for means of dealing with submarine warfare.

An army of at least 500,000 men based on the principle of universal liability to service, and the authorization of additional increments of 500,000 each as they are needed or can be handled in training.

Raising necessary money for the United States government, so far as possible without borrowing and on the basis of equitable taxation.

All preparations, the President urged, should be made so as not to check the flow of war supplies to the nations already in the field against Germany.

Measures to accomplish all these ends, the President told Congress, would be presented with the best thought of the executive departments, which will be charged with the conduct of the war and he besought consideration for them in that light.

Wilson's Appearance Cheered.

President Wilson's appearance before Congress was marked by a scene of the greatest enthusiasm ever shown since he began the practice of delivering his address in person. Crowds on the outside of the capitol cheered him frantically as he entered and as he left. Congress roared cheer after cheer in an outburst of patriotic enthusiasm.

From the galleries the President was loudly cheered, and there was no division of spirit between republicans and democrats.

Referring only briefly to the long diplomatic correspondence with Germany in his effort to bring her back to the bounds of the laws of humanity and nations, the President launched into his denunciation of the course of the German government, which he declared had forced the United States to become a belligerent.

The wrongs against which we now arm ourselves, he said, "are no common wrongs; they cut to the very roots of human life."

Disclaiming any quarrel with the German people and anything but a feeling of friendship and sympathy for them, the President declared their government had not acted upon their impulses in entering the war, nor with their previous knowledge or approval.

"It is a war," he said, "determined upon as wars used to be determined upon in the old unhappy days when peoples were nowhere consulted by their rulers and wars were provoked and waged in the interest of dynasties or of little groups of ambitious men who were accustomed to use their fellow men as pawns and tools."

In scathing terms the President referried to German plots against the United States.

"One of the things that has served to convince us that the Prussian autocracy was not and never could be our friend is that from the very outset of the present war it has filled our unsuspecting communities and even our offices of government with spies and set criminal intrigues everywhere afoot against our national unity of council, our peace within and without, our industries and our commenrce."

It was evident, the President added, that the spies were here even before the war began. That the German government means to stir up enemies at the very doors of the United States was eloquently proved, he said, by the revelation of the plot to embroil Japan and Mexico in war with the United States.

"We are accepting this challenge of hostile purpose," said the President, "because we know that in such a government, following such methods, we can never have a friend; and that in the presence of its organized power always lying in wait to accomplish we know not what purpose, there can be not assured security for the democratic governments of the world."

The 'whole force of the nation," if necessary, the President declared, would be spent against "this natural foe to liberty" and to "check its pretesnions and its power."

Toward Germany's allies, the President said, the United States was taking no action at this time, because they were not engaged in warfare against Americans on the seas.

The United States, he said, was moving only against "an irresponsible government which has thrown aside all considerations of humanity and of right and is running amuck."

The President expressed his confidence in the loyalty of naturalized citizens and declared that if disloyalty did lift its head it would be only from a "lawless and malignant few" and would be sternly suppressed.

AMERICANS ARE DROWNED WHEN SHIP IS TORPEDOED

Paris.—A French patrol picked up 19 of the crew of the Aztec. Twenty-eight men are reported missing.

New York.—The American steamship Aztec, owned by the Oriental Navigation Company, the first armed ship to sail from an American port, was sunk by a German submarine, according to advices received here by the company from the United States consul at Brest, France.

The cable message gave no information as to the fate of the crew. There were 49 men aboard the vessel, 16 of them Americans.

The Aztec sailed from New York March 18 for Havre. She was commanded by Captain Walter O'Brien. Sixteen members of the crew were native born Americans.

The Oriental Navigation Company, owner of the Aztec, also owns the Orleins, one of the first American vessels to run successfully Germany's submarine blockade. The Aztec carried a full cargo of food stuffs and general supplies valued at more than $500,000.

CHAMP CLARK ELECTED SPEAKER OF HOUSE

Washington.—Speaker Champ Clark was re-elected by a vote of 217 to 205 over his Republican opponent, Representative Mann, as the first step in organization of the House of Representativs—the necessary preliminary to the delivery of President Wilson's war address.

I. W. W. to Order Strike.

Virginia, Minn.—Refusal to bear arms for the United States in the event that it should go to war with a foreign nation and the purpose to declare a strike among miners on the Mesaba iron range May 15, were considered in resolutions presented at a conference of 40 executive officials of the Industrial Workers of the World. Voting on the resolutions was deferred. The meeting was secret and none but holders of I. W. W. membership cards was admitted

More Soldiers Are Caied Out.

Washington.—The war department called into the federal service for police purposes the following National Guard organizations:

Second West Virginia infantry.

Fourth Virginia infantry.

Battery D, Field artillery, Virginia.

The war department also called into the federal service the first and second companies, Coast artillery of the Virginia National Guard. They will be added to the forces already employed for police protection.

ECONOMIC RULE IS UNBROKEN

The More Money, the Higher the Prices, Has Been the Law Since Earliest Days of World.

When the Indians of New England found plenty of seashells out of which to make their money called wampum, the more of it they would give for a blanket, basket, kettle, pair of moccasins or feather bonnet, says Girard in the Philadelphia Ledger.

The political economy of King Phillip's race and time still prevails. Every day this year the rest of the world has dumped a cool $3,000,000 of gold upon the United States. Now we have nearly $1,000,000,000 more gold than we had when the war began.

If we had cheap wheat, shoes, overcoats, vegetables, or coal after having added nearly 50 per cent to our gold hoard, we should be obliged to tear up all those fine-spun and dusty political economy books we were taught in school.

But the books stand, and rightly so, for the very paper they are printed on has been boosted upward by this colossal wave of gold. When this unmatched crest of yellow metal breaks and recedes, after the war—well, we shall follow King Phillip and his wampum and pay a smaller amount of it for what we buy.

You miss getting many good things by failing to ask for them.

"There's a Reason"

STATE TEACHERS MEET IN CAPITAL

SEVERAL HUNDRED PEDAGOGUES ATTEND ANNUAL CONVENTION IN MONTGOMERY.

WELCOMED BY THE GOVERNOR

President James J. Doster Presides—Addresses Delivered By Several Well Known Educators.

Montgomery.—Approximately twenty-five hundred public school teachers are here attending the thirty-sixth annual convention of the Alabama Educational Association, which began at the Grand Theatre April 5 and will continue through April 7. Governor Henderson and Mayor Robertson delivered the addresses of welcome, while the response was made by P. W. Hodges, superintendent of the city schools of Dothan. President James J. J. Doster presided and addresses were delivered by several well known educators of this and other states.

Among persons from other states who are on the programme for addresses and papers of Dr. H. L. Whitfield, president of the Mississippi Industrial Institute and College; Dr. Samuel C. Mitchell, president Delaware College; Miss Eleanor M. Lally, University of Chicago; Dr. Charles H. Judd, University of Chicago; P. P. Claxton, United States commissioner of education, and C. J. Brown, supervisor of rural schools for Louisiana.

Several departmental meetings were held during the convention, among the most important being that of the Alabama Association of Teachers of English, which has been making a campaign during the past year for speech improvement. The annual dinner of the English Association will be held at the Exchange Hotel.

Prizes Are Awarded.

Gadsden.—The prize winners in the Etowah County Boys' Pig and Corn Clubs for last year were announced by E. S. Page, county agent. Finas Hill, of Attalla, won first prize in the corn club and Ernest Anderson of Gadsden, first in the pig club. The prizes in the corn club were farm implements. The trip to the Auburn Summer school was the first prize in the pig prize, the other prizes being pigs.

Guardsman Dies.

Montgomery.—J. E. Sikes, a private in Company I, First Regiment, died at a local infirmary from pneumonia contracted at Nogales, Ariz., and his body was sent to Enterprise, his former home, for burial. This is the first death among the members of the Alabama brigade since its return from the border. Sikes was brought home in charge of the hospital corps, and carried from the train to the infirmary.

Fire Damages Hotel.

Selma.—Management of the Arcada hotel, which suffered damage estimated at $3000 from fire, announced that a new Arcadia will be the result of the blaze. The house will not close, but will be remodeled, renovated and refurnished throughout. The fire was caused from falling chimney sparks. The building was covered by insurance.

Houlditch Found Guilty of Murder.

Montgomery.—The jury in the case of Ed Houlditch, charged with the murder of M. L. Bates, watchman at the river bridge of the Mobile and Ohio railroad, returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, and fixing the punishment at life imprisonment.

Record Rainfall This Year.

Montgomery.—Rainfall thus far this year totals almost half the average rainfall for the entire year. A total of 22.89 inches has fallen during January, February and March, while the average for the year is 51.12 inches. During March the rainfall totals 10.65 inches.

Leads Son to Recruiting Office.

Mobile.—Declaring that she feels all true American mothers should be willing to make some sacrifice for their country, Mrs. R. M. Powell, of 317 St. Joseph street, has led her eighteen-year-old boy to the local recruiting station, according to Captain James B. Hutchinson, of Birmingham, to enlist him in the navy. The new recruit is Carl L. Powell.

Four Counties Swept by Storm.

Montgomery.—Eleven persons were killed and three probably fatally injured in the storm that swept a portion of Central Alabama. Six of the known dead were negroes. Crenshaw, Pike, Hale and Chilton counties were swept by the storm, but the heaviest loss of life occurred at Petrey, a small town in Crenshaw county, where four persons were killed.

Sewerage System for Dadeville.

Dadeville.—The contract has been let for the construction of a sanitary sewerage system for the town of Dadeville. Work will begin at once and when completed will give a modern system of sewerage.

Big Suit Is Filed.

Mobile.—Suit for $50,000 against the Home Telephone Company was filed in the Circuit Court here by Mrs. Harry Windley, for the death of her husband, Joseph Windley. Windley was on top of a pole on June 16, last, that broke.

Overton Policies to Be Contested.

Huntsville.—Fraternal insurance societies that carried $7000 of insurance on the life of David D. Overton, slayer of Judge W. T. Lawler, who was shot to death by deputies at Birmingham, after he had escaped from the Jefferson county jail, have taken preliminary steps to fight payment. It is stated that these orders all have a clause in their policies specifying that it becomes void when the insured is convicted of a felony. Overton had been convicted of murder, and was under death sentence, but his heirs claim that inasmuch as the case had not been decided by the supreme court, the conviction of the lower court did not invalidate the life policies. Overton also carried $12,000 of insurance in old line life companies, and it is not believed any of them will make a contest.

May Become Munitions Center.

Birmingham.—Alabama will become one of the greatest centers for the manufacturers of munitions in the United States in the event of war, and plans are now being worked out whereby the Alabama Power company, its subsidiary companies and other manufacturing enterprises of this section of the state will be utilized by the government, according to information obtained in industrial circles. Officers of many of the big steel manufacturing plants, iron plants and electric plants have been called to New York and Washington recently, and it is stated that North Alabama will become a beehive of industry in the event that war is actually declared.

Try to Take Liquor from Sheriff.

Girard.—A party of armed men attempted to break in and take approximately $7000 worth of confiscated liquor, which had been stolen from the state warehouse and recaptured by the Russell county sheriff. The men came in an automobile, but were discovered and shot at by deputy sheriffs on guard. A number of shots were fired, but no one was hurt. This is the fifth raid since the goods have been in possession of the state.

Selma Boy Shot By Playmate.

Selma.—Fred Hillmand, aged twelve years, was shot at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tim O'Flinn, by Ralph O'Flinn, a young playmate. Ralph was looking for his trousers to get a quarter from a pocket when he saw a pistol in a dresser drawer. He picked it up and pulled the trigger, and the weapon went off. Fred was shot through the side and was rushed to a hospital, and it is believed he will recover.

Dadeville Man Found Dead in Bed.

Dadeville.—Funeral service for Owen Johnson, a prominent citizen of Dadeville, who was found dead in bed at his room in a local hotel from a pistol shot in the right temple, were held here. Mr. Johnson had been confined to his bed several weeks and it is believed he became so despondent of his condition that he ended his life.

Coke Sales Are Active.

Birmingham.—Coke sales for the week are very active. The announcement of the sale of 1000 tons of coke for a smelter interest, the coke to be shipped to Laredo, Tex., is followed with announcements of renewal of contracts for 15,000 tons of coke, delivery during the next six months.

Graphite Company Sued.

Anniston.—W. H. Hanna and Lee Hanna have brought suit against the Crucible Flake Graphite company to recover damages in the sum of $100,000 for the detention of land in Clay county, said to belong to the Hannas, who seek to recover possession of the property.

Many Radishes Shipped.

Mobile.—Shipment of over a million radishes raised here on the Carol plantation, was made by the Produce Exchange. The shipment went to Kansas City, Cincinnati, Louisville, Indianapolis and Chicago for distribution.

Canning Plant Planned.

Birmingham.—Efforts of the citizens of McCalla to organize a canning plant have been successful, as evidenced by articles of incorporation of the McCalla Canning and Manufacturing company, filed in the probate court.

Large Land Deal Is Made.

Mobile.—Perhaps the largest land deal made within recent years was recorded in the Probate Court when the transfer of 5,000 acres at Wilmer, by the Wilmer Land Company to the Alabama Oil and Development Company was made. The price was $325,000, cash to the amount of $175,000.

Suffrage Is Urged By Dr. Shaw.

Montgomery.—A large audience heard Dr. Anna Howard Shaw deliver a lecture at the Sidney Lanier High school in favor of universal suffrage of all citizens of the United States.

Young Woman Burned to Death.

Huntsville.—Miss Zelma Toms, aged 21, is dead as the result of the explosion of a coal oil lamp at the home of her father, Albert Toms, near Madison.

Madison to Vote on Tax.

Huntsville.—The Madison county commissioners have called an election for April 23, to allow the voters to vote on a proposition to levy an additional school tax of three mills. Petitions asking that the election be called were liberally signed in all parts of Madison county, having been sent out by the county Board of Education. If the new tax is authorized the additional money will be expended in improvement of school buildings and equipment.

INSURANCE SHOWS LARGE INCREASE

PRELIMINARY REPORT GIVES TOTAL GAIN IN STATE FOR 1916 OF $76,548,918.36.

NEWS FROM STATE CAPITAL

What the State's Servants Are Saying, Doing and Undoing—Official Acts Disclosed.

—Montgomery.

The preliminary report of the commissioner of insurance for the year ending December 31, 1916, shows the total amount of fire and marine insurance written in the State for the year to amount to $350,950,490.36, an increase of $76,548,918.36 over the previous year, when the figure stood at $274,407,572. Figures compiled for the period since 1898 failed to show a single year in which the amount of insurance written was equal to that of 1916, the nearest approach being in 1913, when the figure was $328,449,491.00.

During 1916 the fire losses incurred was $2,025,165.86, a falling off from the year before of more than a hundred thousand dollars, which is attributed to the activity of the insurance department in catching and prosecuting "fire bugs." In 1916 the premiums received was $3,798,802.54 which showed a falling off from the years before, when the figure stood at $3,901,171.79. The ratio of losses to premiums in 1916 was 77 per cent and in 1915 79.58 per cent.

Receiver Wanted For Bank.

State Superintendent of Banks Alex E. Walker, has filed in the Circuit Court here application or the appointment of a receiver for the Montgomery Bank and Trust Company. The application shows the company has not been in the active banking business since 1913, confining itself to the functions of a trust company since that period. The reduction of the capital stock from $250,000 to $50,000, the petition says, constitutes a violation of the State banking laws, which prohibit a capitalization of a bank and trust company of less than $100,000.

Governor Orders An Investigation.

Impeachment proceedings against T. J. Batson, sheriff of Jefferson county, will be started immediately by Attorney General W. L. Martin, who is now preparing charges that will be filed in the Supreme Court as soon as possible.

On direction of Governor Charles Henderson, the Attorney General is preparing a bill charging incompetency and wilful neglect of duty, constitutional provisions for the impeachment of a Sheriff, in permitting the escape of David Overton and six other prisoners March 18.

Election in Nine Counties.

Nine counties will hold election during April and May to determine whether or not a local tax for public schools shall be levied under the constitutional amendment adopted last November. If all favor the tax, 15 counties will have levied it since the amendment became a part of the constitution. The last county to vote it was Winston, which gave a majority of 223 for a 3-mill tax which will continue during the next 50 years.

Dates for the local tax elections follows: Houston, April 2; St. Clair, April 3; Madison, April 23; Escambia, April 24; Calhoun, May 8; Etowah, May 15; Randolph, May 21; Covington, May 21; Morgan, May 22. All propose to levy a 3-mill tax except Calhoun, which proposes 2-mill, and Escambia, which contemplates the levy of a 3-mill district tax.

Counties which have levied the local tax since November are Colbert, Franklin, Geneva, Jefferson, Walker and Winston. Only one county, Marshall, has voted in the negative.

Vouchers Approved.

Governor Henderson has approved vouchers for the salaries of Perry W. Turner and Lawrence E. Brown, assistant attorney general, for the three months beginning January 1, thus officially recognizing the legality of the contracts between the state and the assistant attorneys general. Following the recent decision of the supreme court which held that contracts approved by the governor whereby Mr. Turner and Mr. Brown were employed at stipulated salaries were binding.

Storm Sufferers Need Assistance.

Governor Charles Henderson issued a proclamation calling upon the people of Alabama to aid the citizens of the little town of Petrey, swept by a cyclone, where the entire residence portion and most of the business portion of the town were destroyed and nine persons killed.

Martin Finally Loses.

Attorney General Martin lost his fight to show that the act of approving his express accounts by the governor was purely ministerial when the supreme court denied applications for rehearings in the cases of the state rel William L. Martin vs. Governor Henderson and the state ex rel James R. Daly vs. Governor Henderson. The supreme court two months ago held that the governor had a discretion in approving expense accounts, and that he might refuse to attach his signature if he so willed.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON FOR APRIL 8

JESUS RAISED LAZARUS FROM THE DEAD—EASTER LESSON.

LESSON TEXT—John 11:17-27, 43, 44. (Read 17 to 44).

GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection, and the life.—John 11:25.

This lesson occurred about two months before the crucifixion, Jesus being in Bethabara at the time of this call (See John 10:40; 1:28). There are four recorded cases of resurrection from the dead: Jairus' daughter (Matt. 9), the son of the widow of Nain (Luke 7), Lazarus, and also Jesus after his crucifixion (John 20).

I. The Lesson of Unbelief. Bethany, the home of Lazarus, is on the southeastern slope of Mt. Olivet, two miles from Jerusalem. Christ and his disciples were on the east side of the Jordan, having been driven there by the hostility of the Jews (John 10:31). He purposely delays his stay in that place that this event might give an opportunity for the manifestation of his wonder-working power. This delay was in face of his supernatural knowledge that Lazarus' sickness had been fatal, for he said plainly to his disciples, "Lazarus is dead." Philosophers have often called death a sleep, but always one from which there was no awakening; hence the skepticism of these sisters is not surprising. (1) They limited the power of Jesus to his person—"If thou hadst been here." (2) They also limited his power to a certain place, "If thou hadst been here" (v. 21).

II. The Lesson of Pain. The suffering of these sisters produced sacrifice and self-devotion. Suffering brings blessing to others. It is also a means of self-culture. Suffering drives us to the Christ, and reveals to us the unrealized side of Christ's character (v. 25). Jesus is often never more kind than when he seems to be least kind. In the midst of her skepticism and pain Jesus gave Martha a new and glorious thought about the resurrection. "I am the resurrection and the life." If we desire that, all we have to do is to get Jesus himself (I John 5:12). Resurrection has to do with the body, and life has to do with the spirit (John 17:3). All will ultimately experience resurrection, but only those who believe on him receive life (John 3:36). There is a resurrection of life and there is a resurrection of damnation (John 5:29). Martha answered, "Yea Lord, I believe that thou art the Christ, the Son of God." It is all-important that we should really believe that (John 20:31; I John 5:1-5).

III. The Lesson of Love. Love always manifests itself in deeds. Martha secretly and quickly arose and left the wailing friends to go and meet the waiting Master. "The Master is come." He still comes, and calls to us, and, if, like Martha, we spring up gladly to meet him, he will fill our lives with blessing and joy. Jesus came to these sisters individually (vv. 21, 28). He had entered the danger zone in order to be there (v. 8), and it was Thomas, the doubter, who wanted to accompany him (v. 16). "Jesus wept," not with the wailing of professional mourners, but with the silent, grief-stricken sisters.

IV. The Lesson of Power. Jesus had let natural causes work to their fullest extent. Coming to the tomb, Jesus said (v. 39), "Take ye away the stone." It was four days after the death of Lazarus before he came forth. Jesus was soon to die and rise in three days after his entombment. The stone had to be removed from the tomb of Lazarus; it rolled itself away from the tomb of Christ. The restrictions which Christ placed upon his exercise of power, viz., that he allowed Lazarus to die, to be buried, and his body to reach the point of putrefaction, and not to come forth until Jesus himself, in his body, was present at the tomb, emphasizes the lesson of the restraint of power for the glory of God. Out of such extreme circumstances of seeming impossibility God manifested his glory (Rom. 8:28).

Browning has given us a wonderfully imaginative picture of his renewed life on earth:

And oft the man's soul springs into his face
As if he saw again and heard again
His sage that bade him rise,
And he did rise.

The effect of the miracle was twofold. Many who were present believed on Jesus, others did not.

Some went to the Pharisees to relate what they had seen, only to meet with rebuff.

The remainder of the chapter is occupied with the plotting of the Pharisees against Jesus, and from this grave there stretches the shadow of a cross upon the path of Jesus.

This miracle ranks next to Christ's own resurrection as a demonstration of immortality.

Are we on resurrection ground? Has the stone been rolled away?

The resurrection of Lazarus proves that our earthly existence is only temporary, that our real existence is eternal.

Why That Lame Back?

Morning lameness, sharp twinges when bending, or an all-day backache; each is cause enough to suspect kidney trouble. Get after the cause. Help the kidneys. We Americans go it too hard. We overdo, overeat and neglect our sleep and exercise and so we are fast becoming a nation of kidney sufferers. 72% more deaths than in 1890 is the 1910 census story. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Thousands recommend them.

YES! LIFT A CORN OFF WITHOUT PAIN!

Cincinnati man tells how to dry up a corn or callus so it lifts off with fingers.

You corn-pestered men and women need suffer no longer. Wear the shoes that nearly killed you before, says this Cincinnati authority, because a few drops of freezone applied directly on a tender, aching corn or callus, stops soreness at once and soon the corn or hardened callus loosens so it can be lifted off, root and all, without pain.

A small bottle of freezone costs very little at any drug store, but will positively take off every hard or soft corn or callus. This should be tried, as it is inexpensive and is said not to irritate the surrounding skin.

If your druggist hasn't any freezone tell him to get a small bottle for you from his wholesale drug house.—adv.

THE NEW ROAD LAW

We have heard much satisfactory comment upon the new road law for Chilton County that has been under consideration of the Commissioners Court at the session this week. The law was read before the open meeting in the court house in the presence of many citizens, and all with whom we have talked were of the opinion that it is a highly deserving document.

We hope it is not only a good law to listen to and contemplate over, but also one that will bring us a substantial firm and reliable public road system.

It has long been the opinion of this paper that the courts could not render a better piece of service to our people than to draft, adopt and to actually enforce some measures that would put our public roads upon a reliable and dependable system of maintenance.

The establishment of such a law, along with the many other good things they are doing, would entitle the present court of Cimmissioners and Probate Judge to much credit. It would be the addition of another star to their crowns.

A little later, the Judge informs us the law will be published and distributed in book form.

Rev. F. B. Ticknor, former Editor of the Union-Banner, has been in Clanton this week. Mr. Ticknor has just given up newspaper work down in Georgia to return to active engagement in the ministry. He will be stationed in North Carolina.

Stoughton Bice, son of Treasurer J. Bice, has been at home from the army camp at Montgomery this week on a furlough. He is a member of Fourth Regiment Band.

WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE

What is the difference between Popwell's bond issue in 1911 and Reynold's bond issue of 1917? Some fellow writing in the Clanton Press last week wants to know that.

Well, to our mind, there is a vast difference. Not a difference, however, in the real effects or substance of the bonds themselves. We suppose bonds were issued in 1911 about the same way they are in 1917.

But we find a mighty difference between then and now in the causes underlying the proposition.

The people in 1911 opposed a bond issue because the county was out of debt, had some money and was going along all right. The fact that they opposed the proposition was brought about by its being a form of debt. The people opposed debt. In like manner they opposed the debt that was made by the county warrants to build roads.

Now the situation is altered. We already have the debt which was made by the last administration of the Commissioners. And as a matter of fact, the people are as much as ever opposed to the debt. But we have the debt, however much we oppose one. Our people should be glad and willing to put the public debt into the form that will bring us the most good: into the form that will allow us the most privilege and the most circulation and freedom.

We believe that the bond issue is a better form of debt than the interest bearing warrants. Hence, our reason for favoring the bond issue. It is not the making of a debt, but the shaping of one already made into a better form.

Popwell's bond issue was for creating a debt at a time when we had no debt. Reynold's bond issue is for taking care of a debt that is at the present represented by the unsatisfactory time warrant system.

Yes, we have already heard it said by some that they (the Commissioners) will cut everybody's salary but that of the "'Big Boss." The allusion was to Judge Reynolds, and the idea that Judge Reynolds himself, or even the Commissioners would take any steps or show any preference to the Probate Judge or any one county officer over another is preposterous and in fact most riduculous. Such fellows as those who stand around and blow off hot air like that haven't much pride in the welfare of the county, and still less respect for the people of the county who endorse the reduction in expenses which is being made. If these ignoble commentators will reflect a moment, we think they will find out that Judge Reynolds and the Commissioners will run the county's business quite successfully without having to ask them about what to do. And all the smart things they say will not alter the wise course of the Commissioners Court very much after all.

NOTICE TO TEACHERS

The next state examination for teachers will be held at Clanton at the Courthouse, beginning at 10:00, a.m. on the 3rd Monday in April, 1917. All applicants should be present by 9:00 a.m. for registration, except those who intedd to file a second grade and stand for first, and they must be present by 1:00 p.m. on Tuesday.

All applicants who are not personally acquainted with me must be identified before they can be admit. ted to the examination.

Each applicant is required to take the examination in the county, in which he is living, teaching or attending school, If any applicant wishes to take in any other county, he should write the county superintendent for the necessary blank to make application to the state board of examiners for the desired change.

GULLEDGE FOR BOND ISSUE AND FOR TICK ERADISATION

Verbena, Ala., April 2, 1917.—

The Union-Banner:—I am writing especially on the bond issue and incidentally on tick eradication.

As to bond issue to be settled by the coming election on the 16th, I stand squarely FOR IT, just as I was years ago. I have never changed, while some I know have had change of heart. I say, let them change if it is for the best. Let us have no politics in it, and go to the polls and vote as we see it (if honestly). Let the right rule.

I see no other proper way out of our present financial trouble. (Did I say trouble? If so, let me retract that, we got into debt in a good cause. Good Roads even at the loss of a few thousand dollars is a good investment.)

Don't call it "Deason's debt," nor "Reynolds' relief," for neither —— ——— the minds of honest, thoughtful men. Both are right. Judge Deason and I too, think that he was right in his broad view of our needs. And Judge Reynolds thinks his bond issue is our quickest relief. So do I.

No big thing of which I have knowledge, was ever financed by individual or community finances. Morgan, Rockfellow and other world- renowned financiers use the money of others and profit by so doing. Bonds give us cheap cash, not warrants. Our outstanding present debt must be paid. If we have an over-plush, the county will have the cash for it.

To me, (and I pride myself on being no small tax-payer) I would favor $500,000.00 bond issue for road building. Let us ave good roads, even if it does cost heavily. They are cheap in the end.

The man who usually kicks most about his increased tax is the one who pays least ratio on his property.

So I say again, give me the bond issue.

As to tick eradication, will say, How can any sensible person oppose it in the face of accounts of its good effects from every other county that has tried it?

Think of the vast profits we lose by not now having tick-free cattle. Ship a car of cattle north, and they are billed and sold as southern cattle, "Tick Zone." Thus you lose 1 to 2 cents per pound on each cow.

And why the tick question was not included in this bond election is a question. To me the answer is POLITICAL COWARDICE.

On January 15th, past, I had raised and bought of tenants on their debts, 30 milch cows. During past fall and winter I missed the sale of not less than 15 milch cows in Elmore and Autauga counties to people who needed them, and their children suffered for milk and butter on account of the fact that I was in a county, which is saying by word and acts, "Let us keep the cattle tick."

My cattle carry no ticks, nor have they for years past. yet I am in the tick zone and must suffer the tick penalty.

Following is a clipping from the Birmingham Age-Herald of last Sunday, which covers all the ground, and should convince the most skeptical:

"War on Cattle Ticks.

"Mississippi has the biggest tick-fighting army in the world, says Dr H. H. Chadwick of the State Live Stock Sanitary Board, 500 men being employed in the work of eradication, and 500 concrete dipping vats being required to accommodate the more than half-million cattle in that state. On the first of April the state-wide tick eradication law will be put in force in every county, and millions of ticks will be killed with the first broadside. The cattle will be dipped every two weeks and those who do not dip their cattle will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. Vats have been dynamited in several counties during the past two weeks, and some arrests have been made, but this does not stop the dipping in any county, as the cattle are simply driven to the next vats. The campaign is costing a lot of money, but all sensible farmers are enthusiastic advocates and are obeying the law to the letter. For one charge of the vats 200,000 pounds of arsenic are required, and arsenic is costing 16c per pound, or double that it cost a year ago. The charge also requires 400,000 pounds of sal soda and 15000 gallons of pine tar. These ingredients cost heavily, the county paying that expense, and for the construction of the vats. The counties also employ and pay some of the men, but the inspectors are paid and sent here by the government, and thus one-third the burden is lifted off the state and county authorities."

Yours for the bond issue and tick eradication.

F. A. GULLEDGE.

P.S.—As many as can should attend the good roads meeting in Birmingham.

DEATH OF MRS. LOWE

The sad death of Mrs. W. E. Lowe occurred at the home of the family in Clanton at an early hour Tuesday morning. She had been ill for several weeks, and her death was not unexpected. She leaves a husband and four children. Her remains were buried Tuesday afternoon in the Clanton Cemetery.

Mr. E. H. Smith, a Confederate veteran of Mt. Creek was in Clanton Tuesday. Mr. Smith is seeking to organize a Camp of Canfederate Veterans here. There will be a meeting in regard to the movement July 1st.

H. T. Littlejohn, who is engaged in the timber business at Chelsea, came down to Clanton Sunday on a short visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshal Baker of Birmingham are visiting relatives here this week.

Don't forget about the bond issue. You should vote for it because it is the best for the county. Read the letter in this issue of the Union-Banner from the Campaign Committee. They outline the reasons for the bond issue.

Wonder if Georgia voted against beer because it is Teutonic.

A Letter Regarding the Bond Issue by the Committee in charge of the Campaign.

Clanton, Alabama, March 29, 1917.

To the People of Chilton County:

The Commissioners Court has ordered an election for April 16, 1917, to submit to the qualified voters of Chilton County, the question of whether or not there should be a bond issue. Every observant person in the county is familiar with the county's financial condition. Patriotic and thoughtful citizens, who are tax-payers of the county, who have given the matter careful consideration, and whose judgment is entitled to respect, have reached the conclusion that the only salvation for the county is the bond issue. Your Probate Judge has declared for the bond issue; your County Commissioners have declared for the bond issue; in fact every officer in the county is unequivocally in favor of the bond issue.

We desire to submit to your careful consideration the following reasons why you should vote for and support the bond issue:

1. We get a lower rate of interest on the bonds than we are paying on the warrants. We are now paying 6 per cent interest; we will get money on the bonds at 5 per cent; no discount, no commissions, no fees; thereby saving the county about $2,000 a year on interest.

2. The bond issue will place the county on a cash basis. We now pay from 50 to 100 per cent above the cash price for all goods and materials bought for the county.

3. If the bond issue is defeated, all work on the public roads and bridges will stop; they will continually go down and become impassible, for we will have no money to care for them.

4. All the road and bridgetax for the next ten years has been contracted to the parties holding the time and interest bearing warrants, and under the law, it must be paid to them.

5. The county now owes over $200,000.00, and an amount of about $60,000.00 is past due, not counting the accrued interest.

6. The bond issue does not increase the present indebtedness one cent; it pays and extends the debt already created. No bond can be issued for any other purpose than to take up the county warrants already issued. The burden is not increased but lightened.

7. If we fainl to vote for the bond issue, and the bond issue fails to carry, we have not hurt the larger creditors of the county, for they are holders of the interest bearing warrants, and get inteest on their claims, but we do hurt our own people here at home, whose claims do not bear interest, and who are having to discount their bills at from 25 to 50 per cent.

It is unfair to ourselves and to our county, for us to consider whether or not it was best to create the indebtedness of the county. That is a consideration with which we are confronted and now cannot be changed. As patriotic citizens, the only question for us to determine now is whether or not the bond issue will be to the best interest of the county. When all prejudice is laid aside, and the matter is considered from a business and patriotic standpoint, we feel that you will be brought irresistably to the conclusion that the bond issue is the only solution of our present financial ills, and that you will give the same your vote and support.

Faithrully yours,

W. T. BEAN, Chairman,
J. H. GULLEDGE,
W.Y. NIX,
J. WILEY LITTLEJOHN,
J. C. JONES.

YOUNG MOTHERS

The young expectant mother has the right to know more about those secret processes of nature which mean so much to her and her child. The discomfort which precedes the birth of the child is due to a great extent to the tension on the drawn skin of the abdomen.

By simple applications of "Mother's Friend," night and morning, the fine network of nerves are soothed; the muscles expand easier; the skin becomes softer; the period of expectancy is passed in comfort and a great share of the pains so much dreaded at the crisis may be avoided.

"Mother's Friend" is the prescription of a famous physician.

All husbands are more than glad to get it from the druggist.

Apply it yourself, night and morning. Write for a book every mother should read. It is free to users of "Mother's Friend." Address Bradfield Regulator Company, Dept. C. 554 Atlanta, Ga.

The New GOSSARD CORSETS for Spring

WHILE retaining all those qualities that have characterized and famed Gossard corsets in past seasons, they strike a new note in corsetry—a subtle change that is reflected in a more delicately beautiful outline and in an even more graceful flat back.

Youth is the keynote in the style of these new Gossard models.

Without any undue pressure you are assured absolute comfort and freedom of movement because the Gossard secret of scientific boning assures the most perfect support where it is needed; proper breathing is induced and the whole body thrown into the healthful poise advocated by your physician.

This is the
Thirty-second Announcement and Proclamation of Gossard Corset Styles for Spring and Summer, 1917

The new models vary in height of bust and length of skirt—as they should—to meet the individual requirements of the various figure types, but the general tendency is toward less corset, lower bust and shorter skirts with a smaller waistline indicated by skillful designing rather than actually expressed.

Be fitted today to one of the many models designed for your figure type at $2.00, $2.50, $3.50, $4.25, $5.00 and up. An expert corsetiere who understands your corset problems will deem it a pleasure to fit you without obligation.

WOMAN'S STRANGE EXPERIENCE MORE THRILLING THAN FICTION

Mrs. E. O. Wilson's Husband Tells Story Filled With Human Interest.

HAD TO SACRIFICE HOME

Friends and Neighbors Called and Offered Encouragement and Sympathy.

HOME, hope and money gone. A loving husband and a little daughter tearfully waiting for the dread summons which would take away wife and mother.

That, in brief, describes the scene enacted one October day, a year ago, when E. O. Wilson and his little daughter sat in a darkened room awaiting the end they thought near.

This chapter in the story of the Wilson family is one of sorrow and suffering, pathos and human interest. It is one which touched the hearts of friends and caused them to pour out sympathy to a sorrowing husband.

Five years ago E. O. Wilson, his wife and child were a happy family. They moved to Atlanta from Abbeville, S. C., so Mr. Wilson could accept a position on a newspaper.

Mr. Wilson prospered and the family moved into a little home of their own. Mrs. Wilson took an interest in church work and in the Woman's Auxiliary of the Typographical union. Her future looked bright.

It was in the early part of 1913 that the blow fell. But let Mr. Wilson tell the story. He can do it better, because every detail is indelibly stamped upon his memory.

Mr. Wilson's Story.

"MY name is E. O. Wilson and I live at 197 Bass street, Atlanta, Ga., with my wife and seven-year-old daughter. I have been a printer for sixteen years and am a member of the Typographical Union.

"It is with a sense of gratitude for being permitted to have with me today my dear wife that I am voluntarily making this statement. I want everybody interested to know that it comes from the bottom of my heart.

"During the spring of 1913 when I thought that nothing could impair my happiness, the blow fell. My wife, until that time healthy and strong, was stricken with illness. She was weak and nervous and at times had dreadful smothering sensations to the point of fainting. She would have fearful headaches, pains in her back and over her kidneys and her joints ached all the time. She got so bad off that she couldn't do her housework and had to take to her bed. She didn't know what it was to get a good night's sleep.

"I called a doctor who treated her eight weeks and she showed no improvement. I took the advice of another doctor and my wife was operated upon twice and spent 17 weeks in two hospitals with several weeks of nursing at home between operations.

"She got weaker and weaker. I was desperate. My savings were gone. I was in debt. So I sacrificed my home.

"Driven frantic by my thoughts, I called in three Atlanta specialists. This was along in October, 1915. My wife was a shadow of her former self. They told me she could not possibly live more than five days.

"The five days passed and, although she still lived, she grew weaker and weaker and finally I was told she would die within the next few days. She got where she was too weak to talk and could not eat. I looked for the end at any time.

SHE LIVED TO TELL STORY

Mrs. E. O. Wilson of Atlanta, Ga., Whose Experience Amazed Friends.

Had Lost All Hope.

"YOU will get an idea of her desperate condition when I tell you that the members of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Typographical union had arranged for a floral offering for my wife's funeral.

"I am now going to tell you the remarkable part of my story.

"I had seen an advertisement for Tanlac and had heard of the remarkable results being accomplished by this new medicine, but never thought I would have need for any. One day as I sat in the swing on our little front porch I thought of this advertisement and somehow or other I got a ray of hope. With one of the few remaining dollars I had, I bought a bottle.

Doctors Are Amazed.

"MY wife was so weak I only gave her half the amount recommended. In a few days I noticed a strange improvement in her condition. I could have wept for joy. After I had given her one bottle of Tanlac the doctors called one day and were surprised to find her sitting up in bed eating some toast and drinking some milk. They were amazed.

"When my wife had taken two bottles of Tanlac she was able to sit in a rolling chair and she continued to improve rapidly. Those were indeed happy days. I forgot my previous suffering. I forgot that our little home was gone. I thought of nothing except that my wife was alive and rapidly recovering her health and I thank God for letting me do what I did.

"Today she is a perfect picture of health. She can eat anything she wants. Such things as meat, turnips, and hard-boiled eggs do not bother her a particle and she sleeps as well as she did when a girl in her teens. She took eleven bottles of Tanlac and gained 30 pounds.

"So, this is my statement. It is true that I spent all that I had saved trying to restore her health. I don't know until this day what actually ailed my wife, but I do know how healthy and happy she is today and I can truthfully say that nothing on earth did this but Tanlac."

There is a Tanlac dealer in your town.—Adv.

Not Hard to Do.

"They spend their money faster than they make it."

"Well, that's no trick nowadays."

A KIDNEY MEDICINE WITH THOUSANDS OF FRIENDS

Several years ago I suffered from Kidney and Bladder trouble. I was completely run down in health and lost twenty-eight pounds in weight. I suffered nearly all the time. I could not bear to ride in a buggy and could not walk over one hundred yards without having to sit down. I could not eat hardly anything. I had several doctors working on me several years. They tried everything and I did not gain in health. A Swamp-Root Almanic was left at my house and after reading it, I resolved to try your remedy. I obtained six bottles through the druggist and had taken five of them when I was entirely cured. Gained thirty pounds in weight in a few weeks and was a new man in every respect. I always keep Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root in the house, and recommend it to my friends as I have not the slightest doubt of its ability to cure Kidney trouble in its worst form.

Yours very truly,

"Do you guarantee these colors fast?" asked the customer at the hosiery counter.

"Certainly not, madam," replied the new clerk in the fullness of his knowledge. "Black is never considered a fast color, you know. But I can show you something pretty swift in stripes."

GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER

Few persons can be sick who use Green's August Flower. It has been used for all ailments that are caused by a disordered stomach and inactive liver, such as sick headache, constipation, sour stomach, nervous indigestion, fermentation of food, palpitation of the heart from gases created in the stomach, pains in the stomach, and many other organic disturbances. August Flower is a gentle laxative, regulates digestion, both in the stomach and intestines, cleans and sweetens the stomach and whole alimentary canal, and stimulates the liver to secrete the bile and impurities from the blood. Try it. Two doses will relieve you. Used for fifty years in every town and hamlet in the United States and in all civilized countries.—Adv.

THROUGH THE VALLEY

Only Temporarily Closed Are the Gates Between Mortal and Immortal Life.

THERE came a day when the lilies were glad. They two had met and their souls were one. It was a high time for him, for he was loving another better than himself. It was a high time for her, for it was the great day of faith. They said the one to the other: "Surely heaven is bending low. This is more than life." The moonlight dreamt on the lilies, and the world was young—so young.

* * *

Then came a day when the lilies trembled, and then were still. They two went to the valley of tenderness and of death. He stayed at the gate, but she went in. And the lilies were still. And lo, the gates swung wide and she came back. Wrestling with the enemy had made her pale; talking with God had made her white. In her soul were things that never could be said, and in her arms was God's gift to her and her gift to men. It was a wondrous high time for them, for they were three. The twain were giving themselves in order that another might be. And they walked together through the lilies, saying the one to the other: "Miracle of miracles! That which was perfect has been made more perfect. The other was happiness, but this is rapture." And the lilies were glad—so glad.

Then came a day when all the lilies in the garden trembled, and then were still—so still. The three wrestled in the darkness. They three were swept into the valley. They two fought and prayed to have and to hold their own. They two stood and waited and watched. Then the two came back. And the gates were closed. And the lilies were still—yet still.

Then the two went away, hand in hand, through the lilies. They were lonely—so lonely. The sun was gray, and the heart of life was dead. But they said, the one to the other: "God was good to send the little messenger, even though the message was so soon said. Let us be glad."

And lo, from the lilies came their spirit child to walk with them. And they shall have their own forever and forever. There shall be no fear, and their tears shall grow sweeter and sweeter.—Henry M. Edmunds in Indianapolis News.

Glad Tidings

What tidings of reverent gladness are voiced by the bells that ring
A summons to men to gather today in the courts of Christ, the King!
We come to our dear Lord's altar; what brightness greets us there!
The gloom of the winter has vanished and beauty is everywhere.
O beautiful, beautiful lilies, what truths you typify!
You seemed to die in the autumn, and yet you did not die.
"Alleluia!" the choir is chanting, with joyous, jubilant voice.
"The Lord is risen, is risen! Rejoice, rejoice, rejoice!"
"He is risen!" O glorious message! "He lives who once was dead!"
And hearts that were heavy with sorrow hear and are comforted.
From the censer cups of the lilies rise scents of myrrh and balm,
And the soul, like a lark, soars upward, winged with the Easter psalm.
And on the Easter morning, while joyful voices sing,
You repeat to all the lesson of the miracle of spring.
From the tomb in which men laid him the stone is rolled away,
And lo! the Christ they sing of is here in our midst today.
—Eben E. Rexford in the Christian Herald.

Significance of Easter Water.

It is said to be a preservative against illness for the whole year to wash oneself in snow or rain water fallen on Easter. In Saxony the peasants also bring their horses into the water to ward off sickness from them. The Easter water, however, has virtue only when, while drawing it, the wind is due east. So far is this carried in the northern parts of Europe that, when the spring is backward, and the Easter waters still ice-bound, the pious folk break through the ice in order to bathe in the streams. Often great numbers gather on the banks and encourage the bathers with shouts and cheers.

New Life, Hopes, and Expectations.

Various as are the interpretations of those profound meanings lying behind the historic observance of the church, the essential feeling of Easter is of resurrection, of new life, of new hopes and expectations, and to this spiritual prophecy the springtime lends its physical reality, graciously pictorializing the promises of faith.

THE OLD ROAD TO PARADISE

But high up by heaven's gate all the saints sing,
Glad for the great companies returning to their King!

Oh, in youth the morn's a rose, dusk an amethyst,
All the roads from dusk to dawn gayly wind and twist—
The old road to paradise, easy is it missed!

But out on the wet battlefields few the roadways wind
(One to grief, one to death, no road that's kind),
The old road to paradise, plain it is to find!

(St. Martin in his colonel's cloak, Joan in her mail,
David in his robe and sword—none there be that fail—
Down the road to paradise they stand to greet and hail!)

Where the dark's a terror-thing, morn a hope doubt-crossed
Where the lads lie thinking long out in rain and frost,
There they find their God again long ago they lost.

Where the night comes cruelly, where the hurt men moan,
Where the crushed forgotten ones whisper prayers alone,
Christ along the battlefields comes to lead His own.

Souls that might have withered in world's hot glare,
Blown and gone like shriveled things dusty on the air,
Rank on rank they follow Him, young and strong and fair!

Ours is a sad Eastertide and a woeful day,
Yet high up at heaven's gate all the saints are gay,
For the old road to paradise—'tis a crowded way!

—Margaret Widdemer in Good Housekeeping.

CALOMEL IS MERCURY, IT SICKENS! STOP USING SALIVATING DRUG

Don't Lose a Day's Work! If Your Liver Is Sluggish or Bowels Constipated Take "Dodson's Liver Tone."—It's Fine!

You're bilious! Your liver is sluggish! You feel lazy, dizzy and all knocked out. Your head is dull, your tongue is coated; breath bad; stomach sour and bowels constipated. But don't take salivating calomel. It makes you sick, you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel crashes into sour bile like dynamite, breaking it up. That's when you feel that awful nausea and cramping.

If you want to enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone. Your druggist or dealer sells you a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone under my personal money-back guarantee that each spoonful will clean your sluggish liver better than a dose of nasty calomel and that it won't make you sick.

Dodson's Liver Tone is real liver medicine. You'll know it next morning because you will wake up feeling fine, your liver will be working, your headache and dizziness gone, your stomach will be sweet and your bowels regular. You will feel like working; you'll be cheerful; full of vigor and ambition.

Dodson's Liver Tone is entirely vegetable, therefore harmless and cannot salivate. Give it to your children! Millions of people are using Dodson's Liver Tone instead of dangerous calomel now. Your druggist will tell you that the sale of calomel is almost stopped entirely here.—Adv.

MOTHER! LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE

If cross, feverish, constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is ofttimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Adv.

Let us tarry awhile at the sign of the smile.

There Is No Art In Taking Medicine.

Just follow directions on every bottle of "Plantation" Chill Tonic and see how quickly those dreadful chills will leave you. It leaves the liver in healthy condition and yet contains no Calomel. Price 50c.—Adv.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as the prescription othine — double strength — is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—Adv.

WHAT IS LAX-FOS

LAX-FOS IS AN IMPROVED CASCARA

A DIGESTIVE LAXATIVE

CATHARTIC AND LIVER TONIC

LAX-FOS is not a Secret or Patent Medicine but is composed of the following old-fashioned roots and herbs:

CASCARA BARK
BLUE FLAG ROOT
RHUBARB ROOT
BLACK ROOT
MAY APPLE ROOT
SENNA LEAVES
AND PEPSIN

In LAX-FOS the CASCARA is improved by the addition of these digestive ingredients making it better than ordinary CASCARA, and thus the combination acts not only as a stimulating laxative and cathartic but also as a digestive and liver tonic. Syrup laxatives are weak, but LAX-FOS combines strength with palatable, aromatic taste and does not gripe or disturb the stomach. One bottle will prove LAX-FOS is invaluable for Constipation, Indigestion or Torpid Liver. Price 50c.

To Prevent Old Age Coming Too Soon!

"Toxic poisons in the blood are thrown out by the kidneys. The kidneys act as filters for such products. If we wish to prevent old age coming too soon and increase our chances for a long life, we should drink plenty of pure water and take a little Anuric," says the world-famed Dr. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y.

When suffering from backache, frequent or scanty urine, rheumatic pains here or there, or that constant tired, worn-out feeling, the simple way to overcome these disorders is merely to obtain a little Anuric (double strength) from your nearest druggist and you will quickly notice the grand results. You will find it many times more potent than lithia, and that it dissolves uric acid as hot water does sugar.

TENNESSEE NEWS

Brownsville, Tenn.—"It is my pleasure to let others know how much good Dr. Pierce's medicines have done me. I suffered with woman's trouble. Finally I was advised to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I took about six bottles in all and was perfectly well. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the only medicine I ever need. Any woman who wants to get well and stay well should try 'Favorite Prescription.'—MRS. CLARISSA ENIX.

Any medicine dealer can supply the Prescription in either liquid or tablet form. The cost is modest, the restorative benefits truly remarkable. Write Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for free book on woman's diseases. You can also have medical advice without cost.

Pleasant Pellets for stomach, liver and bowels, are made up of the May-apple, aloe leaves and jalap, and can be obtained from any apothecary.

A QUEERNESS IN HER HEAD

Caused This Lady Much Suffering Which She Says Cardui Finally Relieved.

Chadbourn, N. C.—Mrs. M. D. McPherson, of R. F. D. No. 1, this place, says: "My first trouble was monthly misery, ever since I was a girl. I had headache, backache, and would stagger . . . with a queerness in my head. I would faint, and could not stand on my feet. Would suffer so, I would just get down on my knees by a chair at . . . time. We would have the Dr. and take things to relieve me, but without result.

"I read of Cardui—took 6 bottles and was cured of this painful trouble. Since that I have taken it a bottle at a time as a tonic and find it all or more than recommended. Have taken it before child birth which strengthened me, but my suffering before I heard of Cardui, at . . . was equal to . . . pains. I would have to go to bed for 2 or 3 days each month.

"I am strong and well today. I believe Cardui saved my life, for it is wonderful medicine.

"My sister used Cardui. She too knows the great good derived from it. . . . I praise it every day."

Cardui may be the very medicine you have long been needing. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Composed of purely vegetable ingredients, it cannot harm you, but should surely do for you, what it has done for others—help you.—Adv.

GAS, DYSPEPSIA AND INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" settles sour, gassy stomachs in five minutes—Time it!

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; its harmlessness; its certain unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any dealer and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them; if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eructations of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. SUGGESTIONS ON TURKEY CARE AND FEED

(Clemson College Bulletin.)

Turkeys mature slowly, and for this reason it is preferable to select for breeders hens from two to four years old mated with two or three year toms. Old hens lay larger eggs, and their poults are not only larger but stronger than poults from immature stock. Do not inbreed, or mate related stock together. Medium-sized birds, plump, fine in bone, active and vigorous are best. Mate one tom with about ten hens.

A shed open on the south side, and closed otherwise to afford protection from the weather, is an ideal house. Do not keep turkeys with chickens in close, poorly ventilated houses.

Feed the Clemson egg mash dry in a box or hopper, and once daily scatter in litter a mixture of grain consisting of equal parts by weight of cracked corn, wheat and cowpeas. The latter is an excellent grain for maintaining turkeys (or common chickens) in good breeding and laying condition. Give buttermilk, or thick, sour skim milk to drink. The birds should be kept active and ready to forage at all times, and where there are plenty of bugs on the range the dry mash is really unnecessary.

Nesting Places.

To induce turkey hens to lay near home, provide nests of loose straw in empty barrels laid on the side, or in dry weather make nests of leaves and straw in secluded places and cover the place loosely with branches. From 12 to 20 eggs are laid at a clutch, and one service fertilizes all. Gather these eggs as fast as laid and replace them with a couple of china or hard-boiled hens' eggs. Keep the eggs in a cool place not to exceed ten days before setting them under a common hen.

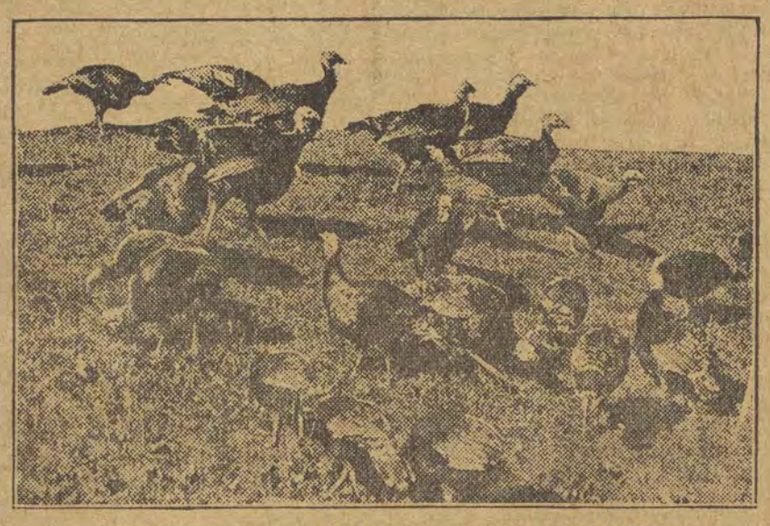
Select a fat, broody hen, as she must sit from 28 to 30 days before the eggs hatch. Grease her as recommended in bulletin 16, "Poultry Culture for South Carolina," to kill the lice. Make earth nests. Immerse the eggs in water warm to the hand (106 degrees) for two minutes on the eighteenth and twenty-fifth days. Remove the poults from the nest to a warm basket as soon as they become dry and strong, so that the hen will remain on the nest until the hatching is completed. Feed and water the hen and let her move about for a short time.

Then take mother and poults to a large-sized packing box, covered with roofing paper, with laths two and one-half inches apart in front. In front of the coop inclose a grass plot six feet square with boards 12 inches wide to prevent the poults wandering away. The coop should have a board floor and both coop and run should be moved to fresh ground not less than once a week, and more often if necessary.

Feed for Poults.

Feed the poults when they are placed in the coop a mixture of equal parts of hard-boiled eggs, rolled oats and dry bread crumbs. Cut the eggs fine and make the mixture crumbly. Feed five times daily. Give clabbered milk or cottage cheese. Soak light bread in sour skim milk and squeeze dry. Alternate this with the egg mixture. Twice a week feed finely chopped cooked liver or waste meat, as much as they will clean up quickly. After the second week scatter a mixture of chick feed or cracked wheat twice daily.

It is important to provide an abundance of fresh water, clean grit and succulent green food. As soon as the poults jump over the 12-inch boards allow them free range. They need exercise on a clean range to obtain flies, grasshoppers, grubs and worms, and the seeds that are provided by nature in order to develop a healthy constitution.



Little turkeys require more animal food than baby chicks, and hard-boiled eggs, buttermilk and cooked liver are the best substitutes for flies and bugs. Dry cornmeal swells in their crops, ferments and kills more poults than all other foods combined. Young turkeys need foods to develop a big frame and large organs—eggs, milk, and meat will do this, but corn, sorghum seed or grain of any kind fed to excess will kill them every time.

Feed and Range.

Do not leave food on the ground to sour or mold. Remove what is not eaten. After two weeks let the hen take the poults and range; see that she returns to the coop at night. Keep the hen and poults free of lice by greasing and dusting them with yellow insect powder. Moisten the head, under the wings and around the vent with a little cottonseed oil. Do not permit poults to run on ground that chickens or pigs have made filthy. Plow up such ground, or fence it in.

The turkey hen may be profitably used as a mother when she has laid out her second clutch of eggs, as she rarely lays a third. Call the hens home to roost by feeding them the mixture of cracked corn, wheat and cowpeas every night.

Further information in reference to turkeys can be obtained from the extension division of Clemson college.

AVOID LIVE STOCK DISEASES

Better to Prevent Than Attempt to Cure Disorders—Be Careful in Feeding Animals.

Once a hog has cholera, all the "doctoring" in the world is not likely to do much good; but if the proper sanitary precautions had been observed and the herd inoculated on the appearance of cholera in the neighborhood, in all probability the hog would never have contracted the disease. Carelessness in feeding or watering may give rise to troubles that will temporarily or even permanently impair the usefulness of an animal; a barb-wire cut, unattended to, may become infected and ruin a fine horse.

And so, in dealing with live-stock diseases, prevention is the great thing to seek. Few diseases in men or animals are really "cured" by medicines; but proper feed and care and sanitation, killing the germ before it has a chance to get in its deadly work, have saved millions of lives.—The Progressive Farmer.

VELVET BEAN MEAL FOR COWS

Florida Station Finds Ration Almost Equal to Cottonseed Meal—Much Cheaper to Grow.

The Florida station found that cows produced as much milk when fed a ration of 4.3 pounds of velvet beans in the pod, 10 pounds wheat bran and 24.5 pounds Japanese cane silage as when given a ration of 3 pounds cottonseed meal, 10 pounds bran, and 34 pounds cane silage. Hence 4.3 pounds of velvet beans in the pod were fully equal to 3 pounds of cottonseed meal. The average Southern farmer can produce about 5 tons of velvet beans for the cost of 1 ton of cottonseed meal.

It is reported that velvet beans in the pod can be produced at $14 per ton in Alabama and in Georgia.

IRRIGATION TO HELP COTTON

Might Make Possible Yield of Two Bales to Acre—Deficiency in Rainfall in South.

H. M. Cottrell, agriculturist of the Memphis chamber of commerce farm bureau, says that irrigation might make possible a yield of two bales of cotton to the acre, the present average being less than one.

The rainfall of the lower Mississippi valley is ample for general agricultural needs, but during certain periods in the summer there is a deficiency of moisture for cotton growing.

PLAN THREE-YEAR ROTATION

Scheme Outlined by Progressive Farmer for Obtaining Larger and Better Crops.

Where oats or wheat are grown to a considerable extent a three-year rotation consisting of oats and peas or soy beans, or wheat and peas or soy beans, crimson clover sowed on the pea or bean stubble, to be plowed under for corn the following spring, peas or beans to be planted in the corn, the land going in cotton the third year, is good, and will result in larger crops.—Progressive Farmer.

PAINS SHARP AND STABBING

Woman Thought She Would Die. Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Ogdensburg, Wis.—"I suffered from female troubles which caused piercing pains like a knife through my back and side. I finally lost all my strength so I had to go to bed. The doctor advised an operation but I would not listen to it. I thought of what I had read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and tried it. The first bottle brought great relief and six bottles have entirely cured me. All women who have female trouble of any kind should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. ETTA DORION, Ogdensburg, Wis.

Physicians undoubtedly did their best, battled with this case steadily and could do no more, but often the most scientific treatment is surpassed by the medicinal properties of the good old fashioned roots and herbs contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

THORSBY ITEMS

Miss Helen Jenkins, who has been teaching some classes in Thorsby Institute this year, while carrying on her work of raising funds for the school, left Thorsby on Thursday of last week. She will spend a few days in Demorest, Ga., with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Jenkins, and then go north the balance of the year soliciting funds for the school.

Mr. J. D. Flummer came down from Birmingham Saturday and spent Sunday with his family in Thorsby.

The School Improvement Association of Cedar Grove District presented a play at the Bates Hall in Thorsby on Tuesday night of last week. A small sum was secured for the treasury of the school.

The Camp Fire Girls entertained their young gentlemen friends on a "hike" last Saturday. Those present were Misses Jennie Robinson, Lois Abernathy, Freda Peterson, Olga Soberg, Agnes and Ruth Gerald, Mary Lizzie Hughes, Lorena Graham, and Luella Winslow, Messrs Raymond Kicklighter, Walter Morgan, Uriel Williamson, Kinsler Farrell, Albert Linderman, Orville Mastin, Frank Mastin, Almon Graham, Jno. W. Ward, and Bernard Landrum. Chaperones: Mrs. Alice McLean, Miss Flora Rice and Miss Nono Akard.

Everyone enjoyed a delightful time.

Miss Elizabeth Hoops, Miss Mae Stoddard, and Mr. Harvey Maddox were guests of Kent Roebuck at his home near Adams Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. A. L. Gaines is wearing a broad smile these days. The explanation is the arrival of a healthy pair of twin boys at his home on March 28.

Mr. John Husby spent a couple of days in Thorsby on his way from his home at St. Elmo, Ala, to Deerfield, Wis, where he has accepted a position for the summer with Mr. Andrew Soberg, brother of Mr. M. J. Soberg.

Mr. Harry Swan left last week for Archer, Iowa, to spend the summer with his Uncle, Mr. Ole Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Horn, who have been renting rooms from Mrs. H. M. Gerald, have rented a house belonging to Mrs. Lloyd, and recently moved. Mrs. Loyd will remain with them until May 1st.

A number of delegates from other communities are expected to attend the Young Peoples' Rally at Thorsby Friday and Saturday of this week. Sessions will be held at 11 o'clock in the morning, 2:30 and 7:30 in the afternoon on Friday and during the day on Saturday. Plans are being made for dinner on the grounds in connection with Saturday's meeting. Everyone interested in religious work for young people is invited to be present. Mr. Lehman will be the principal speaker of the meetings, and is a man with a vital message of interest to all.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Congregational Church will meet with Mrs. S. H. Herbert, Thursday afternoon, April 5, at 2:30.

Misses Zettie and Mae Belle McJunkin visited at the home of Miss Velvie Mims, Sunday and attended Christian Edneavor at the Cedar Grove Church Sunday afternoon.

Miss Clara Soberg spent Saturday of last week in Clanton shopping.

The Thorsby public school will close its session for this year with a picnic on Thursday of this week.

The play, "Mrs. Tubbs of Shantytown" which was presented by the pupils of the Chilton County High Schooy at Bates Hall, Saturday night of last week, was well rendered and deserved a much larger audience than was present.

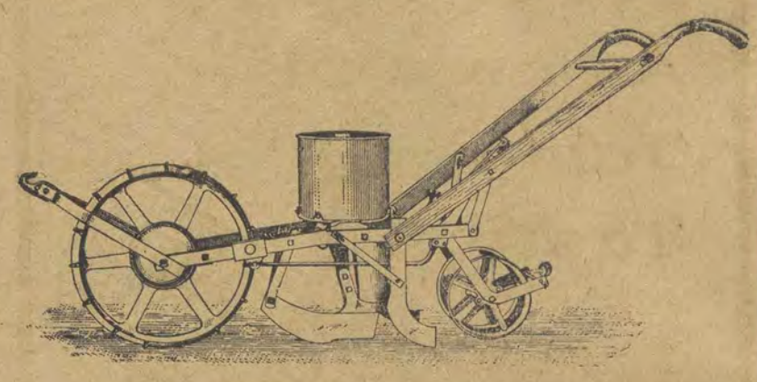
Mr. T. E. Thompson, president of the Thompson-Mayfield Publishing Co., of Chicago, Ill., visited Thorsby Wednesday of last week, and in connection with his visit, the Helen Keller Literary Society contracted for a ten-volume set of the "School and Home Reference work" which will add another valuable reference work to the library already available for the students of the Institute.

The Helen Keller Literary Society will hold its regular meeting next Saturday night, April 7th, at which time a nice program will be rendered.

A Christian Endeavor Social and business meeting was held at the Girls Dormitory last Thursday evening by the Ladies Guild. All the members assembled at the Teachers College at 5:00, p.m., then sent for Miss Jenkins to come. Miss Jenkins had suspected nothing, but was pleasantly surprised. A delightful supper was served, after which a number of short talks of appreciation for Mrs. Jenkins and her work for Thorsby Institute were given.

Miss Nell Werness entertained for the Institute teachers on Wednesday night of last week.

An auto party from Stony Point community near Deatsville, motored to Thorsby on Friday of last week and spent the day visiting the Institute and other points of interest in Thorsby, returning that evening. The members of the party were: Mrs. A. W. Gordon, Mrs. J. T. Tatum, Misses Ruby and Innellia Myrick and their mother, Mrs. Myrick.



Editor Frank Norris of the Peoples Advocate, Columbiana, and his wife, spent last Friday in Clanton. Mr. Norris was down here on business with the Union-Banner, and Mrs. Norris spent the day with Mrs. J.Q. Wade.

IN MEMORIAM

The death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Cox, on Sunday night, March 18, and took from them their darling little baby, which was about two and one half pears old.

Mother and father, weep not, for little J. E. is gone to rest, and is out of his trouble. He is gone to rest forever and ever, where he will reap the golden grain, in that land of no sickness or pain.

He was laid to rest at Chestnut Creek, Rev. J. D. Hughes conducting the funeral services.

Father and Mother, try to meet him in the sweet beyond.

"Nearer my God to Thee" and "Asleep in Jesus" were the closing hymns.

DANCE GIVEN BY THE THORSBY CONCERT BAND

The private dance given by the Thorsby Concert Band last Saturday night, proved not only to be a grand success, but showed the Thorsby Band boys that the people of Chilton County were willing to turn out and help the Band on an occasion of this kind.

The affair Saturday night was enjoyed by all present, and the Thorsby Band hopes to be able to put on a private dance at least once a month.

The Band as a whole wishes to thank all those who were present for their kind attendance, and the next time we will please you with some new music, such as one-steps, etc.

VOLUME V I — CLANTON, CHILTON COUNTY, ALA., APRIL 12, 1917. — NUMBER 2.

JUDGE REYNOLDS WRITES MORE ABOUT BOND ISSUE

Voters are urged to give to the question honest and Unprejudiced thought.

Clanton, Ala., April 7, 1917.—Well, we have reached the end of the campaign for bonds, and I suppose it will be one election which will be the sentiments of the voters, as everyone has been left to think for himself. I felt it my duty to let the people know exactly the condition of the county, and I believe it would be better for the general interest of all the people for the bond issue to be carried, but if a majority of the voters want matters to stand as they are, and for us to keep on paying the extortionate prices we are, and let our home people keep still discounting their warrants at 50 per cent, and the county keep on paying two prices for what they are compelled to have. We will have to have some things, regardless of the price.

I have listened for someone who is opposed to the bond issue to offer something better, but I have not heard one ward in the way of suggestions to take the place of bonds.

There are some few people here who are opposing the bond issue on my account, and they are trying to make me the issue, as they always try to do in every campaign, and this is about all the argument they offer. Now, I am sure it will not hurt me any worse than it does any other person that wants to see the county progress, and get out of debt as fast as it can.

The Commissioners and myself are trying to do all we can for the county, and I want to say here and now that I expect to try and do what I said I would do when I was a candidate. We have saved a considerable sum already, and we are going to try and save more.

We have a road law ready to publish, but could not get it in the paper this week as it was crowded for space, but it will be published next week for your consideration, and the Commissioners will meet the 28th to consider the law. They want as many as can to meet them there. If you cannot come, write and give us your suggestions if you have any, and I will put pour ideas before the court.

We need your advice, we need your influence, we need your presence and we will be glad to have as many as can to come out to our metings. We want to see what is being done. It is your business. You have to pay for the bills we make and if we make mistakes you suffer for them.

I hope everybody will turn out and vote just as they please. Vote for convictions, but do not come prejudiced politician that has for the last twenty years opposed everything that the people wanted in this county, and have made it a specialty of opposing any and everything that was for the interest of a majority of the people.

This bond issue is not to make debts but to reduce them to put our county on a cash basis, and to save the people's money.

So far as I have been able to see, the only parties here that are opposed to the bond issue are the same ones that have been wanting bond issues all the time and have advocated issuing bonds when a large number of us thought that bonds were not necessary, but now, we have to do something.

I would oppose a bond issue to make debts, but we cannot afford to let our county go backward. We must push to the front—we must look to the future. What has been done is past, and we cannot help that.

Respectfully
L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

EXPERIENCED REPUBLICAN RE-ELECTED TO THE HOUSE

Another of the former Republican members who have returned to their seats as a result of the last election is Hon. Harry C. Woodyard of West Virginia. Mr. Woodyard served for eight years in the House his principal work being in connection with the committees on Militia and on Rivers and Harbors. Mr. Woodyard is engaged in the wholesale grocery and lumber business in private life, but in the past twenty years has given most of his time to public matters. In 1898 he was elected a member of the Senate of his home state, and while there rendered valuable service on committees on raildoads and judiciary. Mr. Woodyard is a friend of old soldiers, and during his former service in the House was the means of securing relief to many who, because of some technicality were unable to gain recognition at the Pension Bureau.

DETACHMENT OF SOLDIERS ARE SENT TO LOCK 12

Last Sunday following the arrest of the supposed German spy at Lock 12 Saturday, a small detachment of the national guard from Montgomery were dispatched to the big plant of the Alabama Power Co., twelve miles from here to do guard duty.

The action is taken as a protection against any intrigue or conspiracy that might arise among enemies of the United States to destroy the power plant, which furnishes power for the manufacture of munitions of war in the Anniston, Gadsden and Birminghams district.

The soldiers came to Clanton on the morning train from Montgomery and were transported from here to the dam in automobiles.

SPEAKING AT CLANTON REGARDING BOND ISSUE

Next Saturday at eleven o'clock at the court house the voters of the county who may be present will have a chance to hear a full discussion of the merits of the bond issue for the betterment of Chilton county's financial condition.

Able speakers, well informed as to the county's conditions, and thoroughly arquainted with the details and workings of a bond issue will present the subject, and every voter who can should be present.

If you will come and hear the speeches it will help you to see just what the county is facing. under time warrants and the hope that lies in bonds.

You will have a better decision with which to determine your vote next Monday.

Come if you can.

MAN ARRESTED AS A GERMAN SPY

Last Saturday the deputies from the sheriff's office arrested a fellow out at Lock 12, whom they presumed to be a German spy, and placed him in the county jail for safe keeping till more of his case could be determined.

He had been hanging around the power plant for some days, and the officials there had become suspicious of him. When brought before Probate Judge Reynolds, he gave his nationality as Austrian, stating that he was not a naturalized citizen of the United States, and that he has a brother fighting in the Austrian army.

He was remanded to jail. Monday information was conveyed to the officials from Alexander City that the man was wanted there for some suspicious conduct, with instructions to hold him in jail till further notice. The man is still here in jail.

NATIONAL
Chero-Cola day
APRIL 18TH

EASTER WAS A GREAT DAY FOR ONE MAN IN TOWN.

He must have thought that it was Christmas from the way he acted.

Wherein the Demon, Rum Plays the Leading Part.

Last Sunday morning a young man by the name of Robert McKinnon, who was employed out at the power plant on the river came to Clanton, driving a team from the dam to help transport the provisions of the soldiers who had been sent up to guard the power company's property.

In some way or other, the young man became heavily intoxicated with something so vicious that he could not sit on his wagon very steadily as it came along the road toward town. Consequently, he fell off, and the result was some slight bodily injuries.

He came on to town on his wagon, and upon arriving at the station, where the loading of the soldiers' outfits was to be made on his wagon he incurred the severe wrath of one of the privates by his drunken and unruly mood. Soon the soldier was forced to put the young man aside till the work of loading the goods was accomplished. In doing this a fight ensued wherein the young man McKinnon got decidedly the worst of the deal at the hands of Uncle Sam's uniformed lad.

After all were ready to start on the return to the river, McKinnon was placed on his wagon and instructed to drive back to the power plant. All along the way he was very boisterous and unruly, and someone telephoned to the officers here to come out and arrest him and put him in jail till his fit was over.

Forthwith, the officers of the law started in qursuit, and soon had the young man in their automobile headed for the jail.

He was placed behind the bars, still as drunk and crazy as ever. He piled up all the papers, beds, rags, etc., that he could get his hands on in the cell and set it on fire.

Later he was placed in the cell with the German, who was arrested here last Saturday, with whom he became mixed in another fight.

The poor fellow had an awful time. He must have thought that his luck for that day was the most terrible that could be visited upon a man. It didn't cost him very much to get into all that trouble, but there is no telling where he will end before he gets out of it. He is still in jail charged with fighting, public drunkenness, setting the jail on fire,etc.

NEW PARTNERSHIP FORMED IN PRACTICE OF LAW HERE

Mr. B. Guy Smith of Montgomery Associates with Col. A. C. Smith.

Announcement is made this week of the formation of a partnership for the practice of law in Clanton between Col. A. C. Smith of this city and Mr. B. Guy Smith of Montgomery.

Col. Smith, the senior member, needs no introduction to the people of the town and county. He has been engaged in the practice of law here for many years, and has made a reputation that is familiar in every section of the county.

The junior member of the firm, Mr. B. Guy Smith, comes from Montgomery where he has been engagd in the practice of law for some time. He is a sturdy, self-made young man, who by his own force of will and perseverance has climbed into a prominent rank as an expounder of the arguments of law.

He was educated for his profession at Cumberland University in Tennessee, graduating with the degree of L. L. B.. In addition to the honor of his diploma from the college, he was surprised to know that he had been awarded the distinction of Bachelor of Oratory, complimentary by the college.

Mr. Smith is a forceful and convincing orator. He has been before the public in the capacity of lecturer from the platform, and has acquired the valuable art of presenting an argument to an audience of hearers.

For the new firm, which has the advantage of the senior member's knowledge and experience in law, and the power of such forceful presentation through the junior member, we predict a good portion of success and extend to them the right hand of welcome.

OBITUARY

On th 5th of March, God in his great wisdom saw fit to take from us Mrs. Jane Popwell, wife of J. S. Popwell.

She was born April 5th, 1849. She leaves a husband, five children, several grandchildren and a host of friends to mourn her loss.

She was a devoted wife, a loving mother and grandmother.

Having realized that Jesus Christ was the Redeemer and Saviour of the world, she gave her life to Him and joined the Primitive-Baptist Church on the Saturday before the Second Sunday in May, 1870, and was constantly in His service, being a faithful member until her death when she crossed the Dark Stream to become a member of the great church, around the throne at God's right hand.

She was laid to rest in Bethsalem Cemetery.

All possible was done for her that earthly hands could do, but God said, "Thou hast fought a good fight. There is laid up for thee a crown of righteousness. Enter thou into the joys of thy life."

She was sick about five months and bore her pain very patitntly, but loinging for God to say, "Tis enough, come up higher." Just before she died she said, "When I can read my titles clear to mansions in the sky."

A vacancy can be made in our home that can never be filled by anyone, only God can be loving, tender, and kind as she was.

He is ever able and willing if we will but trust.

We know it is sad to see the old arm-chair, in which she sat while sick, in its place but vacant, although we must ask God to help us out to fill the vacancy with his love and mercy, that we may meet her some day in the pearly portals of God.

A Loving Grandson.

A MOST CONCISE STATEMENT OF THE FACTS

As observed by Judge S. M. Adams on the Question of a Bond Issue.

Clanton, Ala., April 9th, 1917.—What are the people going to say about the bond issue? I will say that if the bond issue were to create debt, I would vote against it, but as I understand it, it is not to add one dollar of indebtedness to the county; but on the contrary, is to pay off some of the debts already due. If we are paying 6 per cent interest on warrants, and can get the money at 5 per cent on bonds, certainly the county will save money by voting bonds, and in addition, there is a difference of one per cent in favor of Chilton County, as between the warrants and the bonds. The difference on bridges and road repairs will perhaps be 50 per cent in favor of the county.

The total indebtedness of Chilton County is something over $200,000.00. There is over $60,000.00 past due. We owe about $140,000.00 on time warrants bearing 6 per cent. interest and the parties holding these time interest warrants have a prefered lien on all of the Road and Bridge Tax received by the county until they are paid. And the entire Road and Bridge Tax of our County is only about $12,000.00. So you see it will be some 15 years or more before we can have any money to build bridges or repair public roads with unless we get some relief.

Now I am for Chilton County without regard to who is in office, I may be a very small part of the County, as to taxes, but I am a citizen, and I stand now where I have always stood for the greatest good to the greatest number of our citizens, and as I see it will be for the best interest of the people to vote for the bonds and cut our expenses by so doing.

Sincerely,
S. M. ADAMS.

WAR PROCLAMATION EXHORTS THE U. S.; ALIENS ARE WARNED

Last Step to Active Hostilities Taken When President Signs.

CALLS FOR VOLUNTEERS

Subjects of Kaiser Enjoined to Keep the Peace and Will Be Held Liable for Disobedience—Barred From Entering Certain Localities.

Washington, April 7.—President Wilson signed a proclamation formally declaring a state of war between the United States and Germany. In the proclamation he called upon American citizens to give support to all measures of the government.

The Proclamation.

The war proclamation follows:

"Whereas, The congress of the United States in the exercise of the constitutional authority vested in them have resolved by joint resolution of the senate and house of representatives bearing date this day "that a state of war between the United States and the imperial German government which has been thrust upon the United States is hereby formally declared;

"Whereas, It is provided by section 4,067 of the revised statutes as follows:

Under War Conditions.

"Whenever there is declared a war between the United States and any foreign nation or government, or any invasion of predatory incursion is perpetrated, attempted or threatened against the territory of the United States by any foreign nation or government and the president makes public proclamation of the event, all natives, citizens, denizens or subjects of hostile nation or government being males of the age of fourteen years and upward who shall be within the United States and not actually naturalized, shall be liable to be apprehended, restrained, secured and removed as alien enemies.

To Watch Conduct of Aliens.

"The president is authorized in any such event by his proclamation thereof, or other public acts, to direct the conduct to be observed on the part of the United States toward the aliens who become so liable; the manner and degree of the restraint to which they shall be subject and in what cases and upon what security their residence shall be permitted, and to provide for the removal of those who, not being permitted to reside within the United States, refuse or neglect to depart therefrom; and to establish any such regulations which are found necessary in the premises and for the public safety;

"Whereas, By sections 4,068, 4,069 and 4,070 of the revised statutes, further provision is made relative to alien enemies;

Proclaims State of War.

"Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim, to all whom it may concern, that a state of war exists between the United States and the imperial German government.

"I do specially direct all officers, civil or military, of the United States, that they exercise vigilance and zeal in the discharge of the duties incident to such a state of war; and I do, moreover, earnestly appeal to all American citizens that they, in loyal devotion to their country, dedicated from its foundation to the principles of liberty and justice, uphold the laws of the the land and give undivided and willing support to those measures which may be adopted by the constitutional authorities in prosecuting the war to a successful issue and in obtaining a secure and just peace; and acting under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by the Constitution of the United States and the said sections of the revised statutes, I do hereby further proclaim and direct that the conduct to be observed on the part of the United States towards all natives, citizens, denizens or subjects of Germany, being male of the age of fourteen years and upwards, who shall be within the United States and not actually naturalized, who for the purpose of this proclamation and under such sections of the revised statutes are termed alien enemies, shall be as follows:

As to Alien Enemies.

"All alien enemies are enjoined to preserve the peace towards the United States and to refrain from crime against the public safety and from violating the laws of the United States and of the states and territories thereof, and to refrain from actual hostilities or giving information, aid or comfort to the enemies of the United States and to comply strictly with the regulations which are hereby or may be from time to time promulgated by the president, and so long as they shall conduct themselves in accordance with the law, they shall be undisturbed in the peaceful pursuit of their lives and occupations and be accorded the consideration due to all peaceful and law-abiding persons, except so far as restrictions may be necessary for their own protection and for the safety of the United States; and towards such alien enemies as conduct themselves in accordance with law, all citizens of the United States are enjoined to preserve the peace and to treat them with all such friendliness as may be compatible with loyalty and allegiance to the United States.

"And all alien enemies who fail to conduct themselves as so enjoined, in addition to all other penalties prescribed by law, shall be liable to restraint, or to give security, or to remove and depart from the United States in the manner prescribed by sections 4069 and 4070 of the revised statutes, and as prescribed in the regulations duly promulgated by the president.

"And pursuant to the authority vested in me, I hereby declare and establish the following regulations, which I find necessary in the premises and for the public safety:

"1. An alien enemy shall not have in his possession at any time or place any firearms, weapons or implements of war or component parts thereof, ammunition, maxim or other silencer, arms or explosives or material used in the manufacture of explosives;

Bars Wireless Use.

"2. An alien enemy shall not have in his possession at any time or place or use or operate any aircraft or wireless apparatus or anyy form of signaling device or any form of cipher code or any paper, document or book, written, or printed in cipher, or in which there may be invisible writing.

"3. All property found in the possession of an alien enemy in violation of the foregoing regulations shall be subject to seizure by the United States.

"4. An alien enemy shall not approach or be found withing one-half of a mile of any federal or state fort, camp, arsenal, aircraft station, government or naval vessel, navy yard, factory or workshop for the manufacture of munitions of war or any products for the use of the army or navy.

Making of Threats Barred.

"5. An alien enemy shall not write, print or publish any attack or threat against the government or congress of the United States or either branch thereof, or against the persons or property of any person in the military, naval or civil service of the United States or of the states or territories or of the District of Columbia or of the municipal governments therein.

"6. An alien enemy shall not commit or abet any hostile acts against the United States or give information, aid or comfort to its enemies.

"7. An alien enemy shall not reside in, or continue to reside in, to remain in or enter any locality which the president may from time to time disignate by an executive order as a prohibitive area in which residence by an alien enemy shall be found by him to constitute a danger to the public peace and safety of the United States, except by permit from the president and except under such limitations or restrictions as the president may prescribe.

Detention Provided.

"8. An alien enemy whom the president shall have reasonable cause to believe to be aiding, or about to aid, the enemy, or to be at large to the danger of the public peace or safety of the United States, or to be about to violate any of these regulations, shall remove to any location designated by the president by executive order, and shall not remove therefrom without permit, or shall depart from the United States is so required by the president.

Must Get Permission to Leave.

"9. No alien enemy shall depart from the United States until he shall have received such permit as the president shall prescribe or except upon order of a court, judge or justice, under sections 4,069 and 4,070 of the revised statutes,

"10. No alien enemy shall and in or enter the United States except under such restrictions and at such places as the president may prescribe.

"11. If necessary to prevent violation of the regulations all alien enemies will be obliged to register.

May Be Arrested Upon Suspicion.

"12. An alien enemy whom there may be reasonable cause to believe to be aiding or about to aid the enemy, or who be at large to the danger of the public peace or safety or who violates or attempts to violate or of whom there is reasonable grounds to believe that he is about to violate any regulation to be promulgated by the president or any criminal law of the United States, or of the states or territories thereof will be subject to summary arrest by the United States marshal or his deputy or such other officers as the president shall designate, and confinement in such penitentiary, prison, jail, military camp or other place of detention as may be directed by the president.

"This proclamation and the regulations herein contained shall extend and apply to all land and water, continental or insular, in any way within the jurisdiction of the United States."

Wilson Asks Volunteers.

The president also issued a call for volunteers to bring the army and navy up to war strength, and gave his indorsement to the general staff army bill designed to obtain men by selective conscription.

"The necessary men," said the president in a statement, "will be secured for the regular army and the National Guard by volunteering, as at present, until, in the judgment of the president, a resort to selective draft is advisable.

"The principles embodied in the legislation presented by the war department to the military committee of the senate and house have my entire approval, and its specific recommendations embody the best judgment of the officers of the war department. It proposes to raise the forces necessary to meet the present emergency by bringing the regular army and the National Guard to war strength and by addition the additional forces which will now be needed so that the national army will comprise three elements."

COAL PRODUCTION RECORD IS BROKEN

ALABAMA TONNAGE FOR THE PAST YEAR AMOUNTED TO 18,234,623 TONS.

BEST IN HISTORY OF INDUSTRY

Next Highest Output Was in 1913 When Official Figures Show Output of 17,907,284 Tons.

Montgomery.—Alabama produced 18,234,623 tons of coal in 1916, breaking its record in the history of the industry, according to official figures given out by Chief State Mine Inspector C. H. Nesbitt.

The next highest output in the past was in 1913 when the official figures show an output of 17,907,284 tons. The production in 1914 went to 15,525,903 tons, and in 1915 the output was 15,266,831 tons, or just 2,977,794 tons less than during 1916.

H. G. Webb Makes His Escape.

Birmingham.—Henry Grady Webb, recently sentenced in West Virginia to a term in the penitentiary for train robbery, escaped from guards at Charlotte, N. C., while being taken to the federal prison in Atlanta, according to information received by federal officers here. Three deputy United States marshals were guarding Webb and another prisoner. While the train was standing in the shed at the passenger station Webb jumped through a window and escaped. City and county police of Charlotte are searching for him. The chase of Webb, which began at Birmingham, Ala., in March, 1916, and ended in Kansas City, Mo., in January, was as pretty a man hunt as the government ever engaged in, and when the story was told it equaled anything in the whole range of detective literature.

Road Models to Be At Convention.

Birmingham.—Senator John H. Bankhead, president of the United States Good Roads Association, wires that he is in receipt of a message from Secretary of Agriculture David N. Houston stating that he has directed the United States good roads models at Washington to be shipped at once to Birmingham for the purpose of being exhibited at the fifth annual session of the United States Good Roads association, which meets April 17 to 21. Secretary Houston also told Senator Bankhead that he has detailed one of the best government engineers and road experts to be present and take part in the convention.

Alabama Troops to Memphis.

Birmingham.—Two companies of Alabama National Guardsmen passed through Birmingham enroute for Memphis over the Frisco. Nothing official is known here as to the purpose of sending the troops to Memphis, but it is said to be for the purpose of guarding the bridge over the Mississippi river at Memphis, and other important railroad properties in the vicinity. The troops are part of the First batallion of the Second infantry and are commanded by Carl Seals, with Lieutenant Julian Smith as adjutant.

3-Mill School Tax Wins in St. Clair.

Montgomery.—St. Clair county followed in the footsteps of Houston county and gave a majority of 81 for the 3-mill tax for public school purposes, according to a telegram received by the state department of education. The vote was 672 for the tax and 591 against it. Houston county gave a majority of about 1000 in favor of the tax. Only Marshall county has voted against the tax since the constitutional amendment was adopted in November. Several elections will be held during the next 60 days.

Brown Heads Alabama Teachers.

Montgomery.—With only two dissenting votes the Alabama Educational Association at the closing session of the thirty-sixth annual convention went on record as favoring equal suffrage. Dr. Charles A. Brown of Birmingham was elected president of the association as the successor of Dr. James J. Doster of the university who served one term.

Tax Election to Be Called.

Decatur.—The county commissioners will order a special election immediately on the proposed 3-mill school tax, allowed under a recent amendment to the state constitution. A petion asking for the election and signed by nearly 1000 voters has been filed with the court.

Albany Entertains Y. M. C. A.

Albany.—The meeting of the State Young Men's Christian Association was largely attended. An interesting and varied program was carried out.

Many to Attend Meeting.

Mobile.—At the annual convention of the Alabama Bankers' association to be held in this city May 10-12, between 250 and 300 members are expected to be here, many of whom will be accompanied by their wives and families. The entertaiment features will consist of the annual banquet, a boat ride on the river and bay, a reception at the Country Club and automobile rides for the women. The convention will be held at the Battle House.

TEN-YEAR-OLD GIRL WINS.

Montgomery Child Receives Prize Offered by Anti-Tuberculosis Association.

Montgomery.—The $10 prize offered by the Anti-Tuberculosis Association for an essay on "How to Prevent the Spread of Tuberculosis," has been awarded to Annie Sue Helms, Mathews, Montgomery County, Ala., the daughter and only child of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Helms, is 10 years old and formerly lived at Clayton, Ala., in Barbour County. The prize was offered to children in the 4th, 5th and 6th grades of small schools. A new $10 gold piece was sent to Miss Annie Sue by the League. Following is the essay:

"How to Prevent the Spread of Tuberculosis."

The spread of tuberculosis may be prevented by destroying the germ and by keeping sound healthy bodies. The germ may be destroyed by allowing plenty of fresh air and sunshine to enter our rooms.

Do not stay in the house all the time; get out and take plenty of outdoor exercise. Wash your teeth night and morning; keep your nails clean; do not eat with soiled hands. Hold up your chest. Keep your face and hands clean. Do not drink out of public vessels, or drink after any one else. Do not chew or smoke. Never drink any kind of liquor. When you cough or sneeze be sure to hold your handkerchief over your mouth. Do not brethe in any one's face.

Do not dust with a duster or sweep with a dry broom. Be sure to keep your dishes and cooking vessels clean.

"To be neat and clean we must take great care,
Have plenty of sushine and breathe pure air
Eat nourishing food to make good blood and then
We all become strong women and men."

Court Decides Asessment Case.

Montgomery.—One member of a county board of equalization has no authority to make an essessment unless at least one other member agrees with him, according to the supreme court, and as a result of this decision the Empire Mining Company has lost its case in the Jefferson circuit court and must pay taxes on a heavier assessment than was agreed upon by one member. The company sought a writ of mandamus requiring the Jefferson board of equalization to accept an assessment made by one member. The board declined to sanction the assesment and made another one. The circuit court granted the writ, but the supreme court reversed the case, holding that one member might make the investigation and recommend the assessment, but it would not be legal until another member had approved it.

All Counties Must Limit Indebtedness.

Montgomery.—Counties can become indebted only to the extent of 3 1-2 per cent of the assessed valuation of property, which means that they must limit their indebtedness to 3 1-2 per cent of 60 per cent of the total valuation under a decision of Judge Gaston Gunter of the Fifteenth judicial circuit, rendered in granting an injunction which prevented the board of revenue of Elmore county from borrowing $30,000 from a Wetumpka bank. The case was brought by T. L. Austin, probate clerk, in testing the contention. Elmore county is already indebted to the amount prescribed by law, provided the law means the assessed valuation instead of the full valuation.

School Teacher Wins Suit.

Anniston.—Teachers all over Alabama probably will be glad to know that Miss Bessie Alexander, school teacher of Jacksonville, was well within the law, when she whipped Melvin Prater, one of her pupils. The case was tried before a Calhoun County jury in the Circuit Court. Melvin Prater, a minor, seeking to recover damages from Miss Bessie Alexander in the sum of $2,500. The jury decided the case in favor of the defendant, assessing the costs against the plaintiff.

To Vote on Bonds.

Clanton.—April 16 has been specified as the date for the special election in Chilton County for the proposed bond issue of $200,000 to take up an old indebtedness and provide revenue for the betterment of the road system of the county. A bid by a Montgomery firm, representing an eastern corporation, to take the entire issue of bonds, already has been filed here.

State Dentists Meet In Birmingham.

Birmingham.—Approximately 200 delegates, representing every section of the state, attended the annual convention of the Alabama Dental Association held here. In addition to the State Association members, there were several noted dental authorities from adjoining states, who delivered addresses and participated in the discussions.

Dock Plans Submitted.

Mobile.—Plans for the ceration of docks and terminals on the property of the city of Mobile at Arlington on the bay front, were presented to the City Commission by Mayor and Commissioner of Docks Harry Pillans. The plans call for a bulkhead and pier, an apron wharf and breakwater pier, retaining wall, dredging of a 30-foot channel and railroad tracks to connect with the railroad system of the city. The city engineer, who drew the plans, estimates that the cost is $503,475.

The text of the joint resolution adopted by congress declaring a state of war between the United States and Germany, was as follows:

Whereas, The imperial German government has committed repeated acts of war against the government and the people of the United States of America; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled, That the state of war beween the United States and the imperial German government which has thus been thrust upon the United States is hereby formally declared; and that the president be, and he is, hereby authorized and directed to employ the entire naval and military forces of the United States and the resources of the government to carry on war against the imperial German government; and to bring the conflict to a successful termination, all of the resources of the country are hereby pledged by the congress of the United States.

UNITED STATES FORMALLY AT WAR WITH GERMANY

Congress Declares That a State of War Exists.

SENATE IS FIRST TO ACT

Six Members of Upper House Vote Against Resolution After Heated Debate—Representatives Adopt Measure by Overwhelming Majority.

Washington, April 6.—Responding quickly to President Wilson's stirring message and to the evident demand of the people of the United States, congress has formally declared that a state of war exists between this country and Germany, due to the hostile acts of the imperial government.

The senate was the first to act on the war resolution and adopted it by a vote of 82 to 6. The six senators who voted against the resolution for war were:

ASLE J. GRONNA, Republican, North Dakota.
HARRY LANE, Democrat, Oregon.
R. M. LA FOLLETTE, Republican, Wisconsin.
G. W. NORRIS, Republican, Nebraska.
WILLIAM J. STONE, Democrat, Missouri.
J. K. VARDAMAN, Democrat, Mississippi.

There were eight senators absent or paired. They were: Bankhead, Goff, Gore, Hollis, Newlands, Smith of Maryland, Thomas, and Tillman. Of those absent it was announced that all except Senator Gore of Oklahoma would have voted for the resolution if present.

All six of the senators who voted against the resolution were members of the group of twelve which defeated the armed neutrality bill at the last session. There was no attempt to filibuster this time, however.

Thirteen Hour Debate.

Thirteen hours of heated debate preceded the vote. Party lines disappeared in this discussion and Republicans joined with Democrats in sounding the call to the nation to support the president unitedly.

The little group opposed to the resolution drew fire from every side. Senator La Follette, defending Germany and heaping blame upon England, was informed by Senator Williams that Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German chancellor, would have made the same speech in the reichstag had he been imbued with sufficient effrontery.

Senator Norris, charging that the United States is going to war at the behest of the munition barons of Wall street, drew from Senator Reed the retort that such an accusation is "almost treason."

The assertion that the nation was going to war on the demand of gold, he said, was "an indictment of the president of the United States, an indictment of congress, of the American people, and of the truth."

"The president is not calling America to arms for the sake of a few paltry dollars," Senator Reed continued, "but for the life, honor, and integrity of this country."

Introduced by Hitchcock.

In introducing the resolution into the senate, Senator Hitchcock made a brief statement in which he said that the present time was one "for action, not discussion."

"The time for discussion has passed," he said. "The president has stated clearly, effectively, more conclusively the reasons which make this grave step necessary. The resolution provides for war against the imperial German government. It places responsibility for the war squarely upon the shoulders of the German government, charged with repeated acts of war against the United States.

"We want no more territory. We will demand no indemnity. We have no grudge to settle, nor racial antipathy. We will spend our treasure and our blood and sacrifice our lives without the thought of gain.

"Such quarrel as we have with Germany is not of our choosing. It was forced upon us and we did much to avoid it. For nearly three years the president, congress, and the American people have hoped to avoid it. But one desperate act by the imperial German government has followed another."

German Pledges Broken.

Senator Hitchcock was followed by Senator Swanson of Virginia, who said the German government "has repeatedly and grossly violated its treaty obligations to us, and wantonly broken solemn assurances."

"The issue is not peace or war," Senator Swanson continued. "War has already been declared upon us. The issue is whether we shall accept war or abject and cowardly submission."

Reciting the sinking of American ships, German plots, and outrages in this country, Senator Swanson said the Zimmermann plot to incite Mexico against this country "reaches the lowest depths of national turpitude."

"We have long suspected a disposition by Germany to dispute the Monroe doctrine," he added. "Now is the time to teach this mischief-making German government that our territorial sovereignty cannot be made a subject of war bargaining.

"What else can Germany do to wage war against us? When the war-made autocracy that now rules Germany has been chastened or overthrown, ties of friendship now severed will be reunited."

Many other senators took part in the debate, Gronna, Stone, Vardaman, Norris and LaFollette, all opposing the resolution.

Senator Smoot made the last speech—a short prayer that God would "hasten the day when liberty will be enjoyed by all the peoples of the earth."

The roll call was taken while the senators and spectators sat solemn. A few cheers greeted the result and then all filed quietly out of the chamber.

House Vote, 373 to 50.

The house, after a debate lasting about seventeen hours, adopted the joint resolution by a vote of 373 to 50. Nearly a hundred representatives made speeches.

In offering the senate resolution as a substitute for its own, the house foreign affairs committee submitted a long report reviewing the history of submarine warfare and America's futile protests against it, German intrigues and bomb plots in this country, the effort to ally Japan and Mexico against the United States and the mistreatment of American officials and citizens in Germany.

"It is with the deepest sense of responsibility for the momentous results which will follow the passage of this resolution," said the report, "that your committee reports it to the house, with the recommendation that it be passed.

"The conduct of the imperial German government toward this government, its citizens and its interests, has been so discourteous, unjust, cruel, barbarous, and so lacking in honesty and practice that it has constituted a violation of the course of conduct which should obtain between friendly nations.

"In addition to this the German government is actually making war upon the people and commerce of this country, and leaves no course open to this government but to accept its gage of battle and declare that a state of war exists."

Flood Opens the Debate.

Under the unanimous consent rule by which the resolution was considered Representative Flood could move the previous question at any time after one hour and, if sustained, bring the measure to a vote. He was disposed, however, to give members every opportunity to speak throughout the day. The debate began without any limitation.

"War is being made upon our country and its people," Representative Flood said in opening. "Our ships are being sunk. Our noncombatant citizens, including men, women and children, are being murdered, our merchantmen are denied the freedom of the seas. There is no choice as to our course. We are compelled by the acts of the German government to enter into this most colossal war.

"The time for argument has passed; the time for heroic action is here, and our people will rally to the support of their government in this high and patriotic hour and meet war's sacrifices and war's perils as a brave and patriotic people should.

"We should take our stand by the side of the allied nations who have been fighting humanity's battles for two and one-half years, determined that our power shall be so employed that complete victory shall crown their efforts and that Prussian militarism shall be crushed and the world shall be delivered from the threat and danger of the Hohenzollern dynasty."

PAN-AMERICA IS AGAINST GERMANY

Several Countries Of South America To Follow Lead Of The United States In War

BRAZIL PREPARES FOR ACTION

Guatemala Expected To Lead The Way For The Central American Republics

Washington.—Early entrance of several of the South and Central American nations into the war against Germany is regarded here as practically certain.

Brazil, aroused by the sinking of her steamship Parana, is expected to become a belligerent, and it is assumed that her lead will be followed promptly by other countries.

Reports of divided opinion in Argentina have given officials here little encouragement to look for aggressive action by that country.

Active support of the United States by at least two of the five Central American republics and possibly by four would not be surprising. Official and unofficial reports that Estrada Cabrera, president of Guatemala, is contemplating seriously a break with Germany have been received.

So long as Mexico's course is undefined, unsual interest is attached to the position of the Central American governments, especially that of Guatemala, controlling the southern frontier of Mexico. In the event of the development of an unfriendly situation in Mexico it is realized that Guatemala's role would be far from unimportant.

In Guatemala Estrada Cabrera has built up what is regarded generally as the most efficient army in Central America, and with it he would be in a position to lend valuable assistance to the United States. Antipathy between the Guatemalans and the Mexicans there has existed for years.

It is known that earnest efforts have been made by counsellors of Cabrera to induce him to enter promptly into the war. If he does place his country in the list it is expected that Nicaragua will quickly follow and that the long-standing difficulties between these two countries and Salvador and Honduras may be swept away in a desire to present a united Central America.

Cuba Declares War On Germany

Havana.—Cuba, not yet out of her teens as a republic, is at war with Germany—the first of the Latin-American countries to range herself alongside the United States, her liberator and protector.

President Menocal affixed his signature to the joint resolution passed unanimoulsy by both the senate and house without a dissenting voice being raised, thus putting into effect the declaration that a state of war exists between Cuba and the imperial German government.

GERMAN RULER MAKES PROMISES TO REFORMERS

Direct And Secret Election Of Prussian Deputies Promised By The Kaiser At End Of War

Amsterdam, Holland.—Direct and secret election of deputies in Prussia at the end of the war is provided for by Emperor William in his order to Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, directing reform in the Prussian electoral law. He declares that "in view of the gigantic deeds of the entire people there is no more room in Prussia for elections by the classes." In connection with this phase of his proposal, Emperor William said:

"Reform of the Prussian diet and liberation of our entire inner political life are especially dear to my heart. For the reform of the electrola law of the lower house preparatory work already had been begun at my request at the outbreak of the war.

"I charge you now to submit to me definite proposals of the ministry of state so that upon the return of our warriors this work, which is fundamental for the internal formation of Prussia, be carried out by legislation. In view of the gigantic deeds of the entire people there is, in my opinion, no more room in Prussia for election by the classes."

Increase Coming In Taxes For War

Washington. — President Wilson's policy of paying America's war bill, so far as possible, while the war is being waged, was reflected in a virtual decision by leaders in the house and senate to raise fifty per cent of the first year's expenditures by taxation. Under this program congress will be called upon to raise war revenue to the extent of $1,750,000,000 through new and increased measures of taxation during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1918. This is exclusive of the $5,000,000 bond issue.
